WOMEN ROUT L. & A. TRAIN CREW TODAY

WINNFIELD, La., Oct. 26 — A mob of women stormed the strike-bound Louisiana and Arkansas train, the Hustler, at the railroad yards here today, and assaulted strikebreaking crews.

The women held the fireman at the point of a gun, stripped off his clothes and chased him into the woods.

One of the trainmen was reported to have struck a woman with his fist, knocking her unconscious.

The women were reported to have made off with the fireman's clothes, his watch and $65 from his pockets.

George B. Campbell, United Press correspondent at Hammond, La., who was aboard the train, said he was told national guardsmen had been ordered to Shreveport, which is headquarters for the L. & A. railroad.

Meanwhile, a gang of men set fire to a bridge at La Place, La., over which the Hustler was due to pass. The fire was discovered early and extinguished with slight damage.

Dropped by Yale

Failure of Yale University to reappoint Professor Jerome Davis (above) to the Divinity School faculty was attributed to "corporate interests" who had been offended by Davis' liberal economic views, a committee of the American Federation of Teachers, of which he is president, charges. At Yale his dismissal was said to have been dictated solely by budgetary considerations.

HIGH COURT WILL REVIEW LABOR ACT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — A sweeping supreme court review of New Deal legislation, the fourth of the year, was assured today when the high tribunal accepted two charges on the constitutionality of the Wagner labor act.

At the same time the court refused to intervene in the legal fight of the Communist party which seeks a place on the ballot in Illinois in November.

Action in the Communist fight and the labor law attack were highlights of a brief session, after which the justices recessed for two weeks, while they will prepare opinions on cases already argued.

The court will not reconvene again until after the national election.

In accepting the two tests of the Wagner Act, the court advanced their position on the calendar, probably insuring a decision shortly after the first of the year.

The tests were brought by the Associated Press and the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coast Company. Both were set for argument immediately after an attack on the railroad labor act brought by the Virginia Railway Company.

Discarding Another Royal Custom

Like his father, King George V, who rigorously maintained the dignity of his royal office on all occasions, King Edward VIII of England prefers informality when away from the pomp and circumstance of the throne. This picture contrasts the two men's attitudes sharply: King Edward (right) discards precedent, strolls along in the wake of Mrs. Wallis Simpson (center foreground) during a visit ashore on his vacation cruise. The late King George usually exercised the royal prerogative, "The King walks ahead," Queen Mary bringing up the rear.

SUIT IS FILED AGAINST RADIO PRIEST TODAY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26 — John H. O'Donnell of Pittsburgh today filed suit in common pleas court for removal of Father Charles E. Coughlin as head of the national union for social justice and appointment of a receiver for the organization.

The suit, similar to one filed recently in Detroit by O'Donnell, came as the radio priest prepared for a major address here tonight.

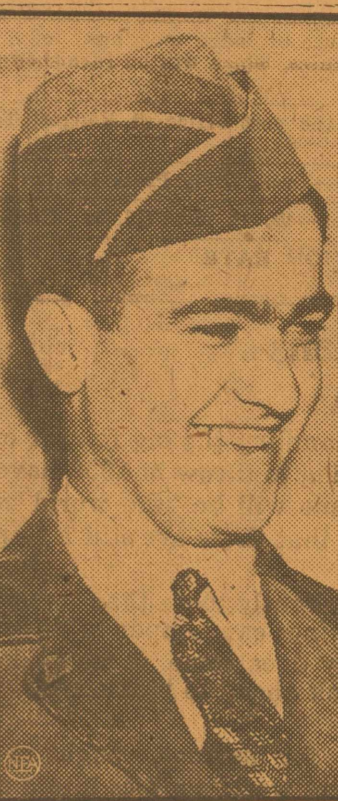

The petition charged "misfeasance, neglect and breach of duty" on the part of Coughlin.

O'Donnell, plaintiff in the suit, was sole dissenter at the NUSJ convention here last summer when the presidential candidacy of Rep. William Lemke was endorsed. O'Donnell was booted then.

Father Coughlin was to be served with the summons in the suit on his arrival here late today. Benjamin F. Sacharow, attorney for O'Donnell, asked also that the priest submit to a deposition hearing in his office Thursday.

The summons for the hearing demands that Coughlin produce "all books and documents dealing with the collection and disbursement of funds by the NUSJ, and all letters, documents and orders and resolutions ordering or dealing with payments, assigning or transferring of funds held by the union."

Named Nation's 'Star Farmer'

Star farmer of America is the proud title bestowed on Clayton Hackman, Jr., 19, above, of Schaefferstown, Pa. The honor was won at the convention of the Future Farmers of America held in Kansas City in connection with the American Livestock Show. Working on his father's land after school and in summer vacation, Hackman earned a net income of $1890.

SENATE VOTES TO CUT PENSION LISTS 17 TO 10

AUSTIN, Oct. 26 — First vote in the Texas Senate today on pension delimitation showed 17 for restrictions and 10 against.

The vote was taken in defeating a motion by Sen. Gordon Burns, Huntsville, to reject a conference committee report including delimitation.

The fight was opened with Burns moving to reject a conference report including restrictions and instruct conferees to eliminate restriction sections.

Lt. Gov. Walter Woodul sustained a point of order that conferees cannot be instructed after being appointed.

Burns then moved to reject the report.

He termed the conference bill a "pauper" bill that was a "death warrant" to aged persons, except negroes and Mexicans.

"If Gov. Allred, one day before the primary, had said what he represented to our representatives he would not have received enough votes to put in a hen house. In the campaign he said it was his baby and he didn't want anyone to adopt it."

In the house another fight centered around adopting a report on unemployment insurance. The senate has adopted the report by a vote of 23 to 6. If it receives 100 votes in the house and is signed by the governor it will be effective at once.

Opposition to the measure held the floor until the noon recess. An early vote in the afternoon seemed assured.

Late Feedstuff Is Saved In Silos

Many farmers in Eastland county plan to save their late feedstuff by putting it into trench silos, according to Elmo V. Cook, county agent. All feed standing now or left standing when frost comes can be saved in trenches, regardless of the weather, according to Cook. The more it rains the better this feed will keep as water is added to make silage anyhow. Frost does not damage feed for silage, as it can be put into the trench 4 to 7 days after the frost and make good silage.

Sweet potato vines make a good grade of silage, C. P. Houston of Eastland is filling a small trench silo with them.

Marvin Hood of Eastland is putting 6 tons of feed into a trench and B. B. Duncan of Reagan county is filling a 12-ton silo.

Dan Childress is planning to put 35 acres of hegarri about 100 tons, into a trench on his ranch near Reagan county.

John Thurman of Terral Ranch and Dr. Chas. Jones of Cisco are waiting for frost, when they will fill their trench silos.

A. D. McGinnis of Romney and Tom Grisham of Grandview will fill small trench silos.

There are several complicated problems to planning and filling a trench silo. The county agent's office will supply a bulletin covering the subject on request and will assist in planning dimensions and location for anyone interested.

ARGUMENTS TO BE HEARD ON GAS PRORATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — The Supreme Court today decided to hear arguments on the attack on the validity of essential provisions of the Texas state law governing production and use of natural gas, brought by the Henderson Company against the state railroad commission.

Orders of the commission and applicable parts of the gas control law were upheld in a decision of a three-judge court in the Western Texas Federal District Court. The company, owner of a gasoline plant in Sanford, Hutchinson County, Texas, is connected with 21 wells in the Panhandle field.

It had been receiving gas and producing carbon black and gasoline.

It protested definition of sour and sweet gas in the state law and regulations for their use.

The case is regarded of great significance, for it involves conservation of the natural gas supply.

Fewer Jobs Are Noted In Texas

SAN ANTONIO — There are 26,000 fewer persons certified as in need of jobs on the Federal Works Program in Texas than there were six months ago, it has been announced by H. P. Drought, state works progress administrator.

Current figures place the number of needy persons eligible for employment on the works program at 144,358. At the end of April there were 170,386 persons certified for such employment.

"These figures are particularly encouraging to us," declared Administrator Drought, "for the task of the Works Progress Administration is to work itself out of a job. During the entire operation of this program we have attempted to reduce our payrolls by placing workers in private employment."

Of the 144,358 currently-eligible persons, 16,590 have been absorbed by private employment, 72,146 are employed by WPA, and 17,876 persons are working on projects operated by other federal agencies. The remaining 37,756 are either engaged in seasonal employment, other temporary work, or are awaiting assignment to projects.

"We feel that a considerable number of the 37,756 are at work on temporary jobs," Drought said, "as National Re-employment officials inform us that practically every WPA district now has standing requisitions for workmen."

"Although we anticipate an influx of job applicants during the winter months as seasonal employment is terminated, we feel certain that the degree of need will not approach that of last February when 121,792 persons formerly on relief rolls were employed on the WPA projects alone," he said.

Pecan Crop Is Shortest Since '22

GONZALES, Tex. — Pecan orchardists along the Guadalupe river valley in Gonzales county hope to profit this fall from the shortest Texas crop since 1922.

The crop last year set a record of 46,000,000 pounds in Texas, but experts estimated that the yield for 1936 would drop as low as 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 pounds.

Growers in this area report a short crop this season, but it was expected that the yield would be far above the state average. Prices in the Houston, San Antonio and Austin markets opened between 9 and 12 1-2 cents a pound.

The crop in 1922 was approximately 13,000,000 pounds. The small 1936 crop was attributed to frequent "threshings" of the trees to harvest the 1935 crop—thus injuring the new wood on the trees and to the heavy drain on the trees occasioned by the bumper yield last year.

Orchardists also reported that during the pollenization period of three to five days last spring the weather was damp and prevented germination of the trees.

Wholesale pecan prices already have climbed because of the anticipated shortage and are expected to go higher during the Christmas holiday season and next year. Shelled pecans are selling now at approximately 40 cents a pound.

Man's Folly Threatens His Utopian Future

The gentlemen who are handling the big fair, or exposition, which New York is going to throw in 1939 have announced that its general theme will be "the world of tomorrow" — thereby proving that there are still a few optimists in the world.

Nineteen thirty-nine is slightly more than two years away from us, and so many things can happen in those two years that, when 1939 finally does come, it may take an uncommonly brave man to look ahead to "tomorrow" with any comfort.

The dictators of Europe, for instance, ought to find two years plenty of time to get world politics into a snarl that only the sword can cut.

The Japanese and the Russians between them, aided by the confusing factions of China, ought similarly to be able to have the Asiatic situation in a complete and permanent mess by that time, instead of the modest 50 per cent mess that they have got it into as of today.

But all of this, of course, is not the sort of thing you would put in a world's fair. Instead, this New York show will give us dazzling displays of man's scientific and technological advances.

All the spectator will have to do will be to hope that the race's unmatched talent for making hash of its human relationships will leave him alive to enjoy these blessings.

And it is right there that the most irritating and vexing problem of the century comes to a focus.

Mankind has passed through some thousands of years of apprenticeship in the task of learning how to make the physical world a comfortable place in which to live. Now, as he goes into the second third of the 20th century of Christianity, he seems to have finished his apprenticeship.

He is ready to fix things so that all hands can at last have enough of everything. The famines, some of the terrible pestilences, the crippling isolation of distance, the long regime of poverty and unremitting toil for the "submerged tenth" — these, finally, can be banished from the earth, and mankind's tomorrow can be richer in human happiness than any previous era in history.

But just as we begin to exult in this picture, we discover that the collective folly of the race weighs down the other side of the balance. We use the genius of our chemists to make poison gas and high explosives; the miracle of flight to make war more destructive than ever before; high speed travel and communications to make war and depression worldwide in scope and effects.

Never has the race had so tantalizing a prospect. Just ahead there is a time of unparalleled richness and happiness — ready to be enjoyed, if men can find a way to keep from destroying themselves before it begins.

Members of a certain Arabian tribe howl lustily for five minutes after each meal. They have nothing on certain American bridegrooms.

Q. Please state the main facts in the Austin-Robertson controversy. E. P.

A. Serling C. Robertson acquired the rights of Robert Leftwich and the Nashville Company, obtained in 1826, to colonize lands north of Austin's grant. In 1830, when he attempted to settle the land, he was informed that it would be in violation of the law of April 6, 1830, forbidding further immigration. His contract was annulled and he was expelled from the country. In February, 1831, Austin and Samuel M. Williams obtained a grant that included part of the Leftwich grant. A little later Robertson's rights were restored and a bitter feeling between the two resulted, which lasted until Austin's death.

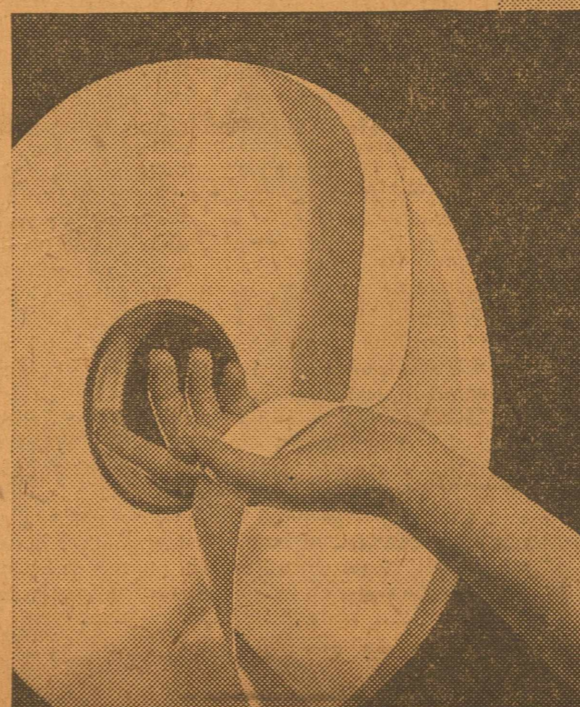

Q. On what grounds did the Mexican government restore Robertson's right to colonize the Leftwich grant? E. P.

A. The immigration law of April 6, 1830, allowed empresarios then holding grants one year to colonize the lands. That time had not intervened when Robertson attempted to carry out his contract, nor had it passed in 1831 when Austin and Williams secured their grant covering part of the Leftwich or Robertson grant.

PURE...and of finer texture than most anything that touches your lips...

We all agree on this... cigarette paper is important. For Chesterfield we use the best paper that we can buy. It is called Champagne Cigarette Paper. It is made from the soft, silky fibre of the flax plant. It is washed over and over in clear, sparkling water.

A lot of the pleasure you get in smoking Chesterfields is due to our using the right kind of cigarette paper. Chesterfield paper is pure, and it burns without taste or odor.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By NEA Service
ONE of the best cranberry seasons in years is upon us. With meats, in pudding and pies, and the juice for cocktails that start dinner off with a tang, cranberries bring in bright color and many vitamins for the family meals.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Prune and grapefruit juice, creamed dried beef, buttered whole-wheat toast, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Tomato soup, hot bacon rolls, apple sauce, tea.
DINNER: Shrimp cocktail, lamb stew with vegetables and dumplings, boiled potatoes, hot rolls, hearts of lettuce salad, cranberry tarts.

Spiced, they do wonders to a roast. Try this method: clean and pick over 1 quart cranberries. Pour over them 3-4 cup vinegar and 1-4 cup water. Add 1-3-4 cups brown sugar, 1 stick cinnamon and 3 whole cloves. Boil 20 minutes, mashing as they boil. Pound through a sieve and serve thoroughly chilled.

Cranberry Tarts
In tarts, these little globes of rich color delight most hungry males. Line tart or patty pans with pastry. Into each, place a thick layer of carefully cleaned and picked over cranberries. Sweeten with light brown sugar. Next cover with a layer of seeded raisins, sprinkled sparingly with a little grated grapefruit rind. Over this sprinkle coarsely chopped nuts. Then cover with pastry, pie and bake in moderate oven about 30 minutes. Hot, with a blob of cold whipped cream on top, they are prize winners.

Stewed Cranberries
Cranberries, steamed in a pudding, make a fine autumnal dessert. Cream together 1-2 cup butter and 3-4 cup sugar. Beat 2 eggs, then stir into the butter mixture. Add 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg. Measure 2 1-2 cups flour and 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder. Sift together into the butter mixture, a little at a time, alternating with 1-3 cup milk. Turn in 1 cup cleaned and picked over cranberries. Pour into greased steaming mold or ordinary lard pan. Cover securely. Steam for 3 hours. Serve with a light foamy sauce.

Several of my operatives wouldn't be surprised if Texas topped the Southwestern Conference, and one of them goes so far as to class the Austin array as a dark horse on the Minnesota schedule. Chevigny, the old Notre Dame back and backfield coach, marches the boys from the Lone Star State into Minneapolis, Nov. 14, when and where each of them will require both guns.

My agents inform me that Texas has the best backfield in the southwest, and that Chevigny considers it the equal of Carideo, Schwartz, Brill, and Savoldi, whom he coached under the great Knute Rockne at Notre Dame in 1930. Chevigny replaced an exceptional passer like Jurecka. His key man is Hugh Wolfe, a triple-threatener weighing 195 pounds and who runs the 100 in football togs in 10 flat. Chevigny asserts that Wolfe has the finest spirit of any athlete he ever has coached. The top Texan tries his kicker, Pitzer, right along with Sammy Baugh of Texa. Christian.

ALTHOUGH it has been none too impressive to date, Texas A. and M. was elected Southwestern Conference champion in pre-season calculations. This was due to the experienced men on its squad and a remarkable back by the name of Todd. A. and M. was conceded to have had the stoutest line in the circuit.

Here is the lowdown on the widely advertised Baugh of T. C. U. He is one of the finest passers anybody ever laid an eye on. He is an exceptionally good punter, but he has a weakness. It is that he cannot particularly carry a running attack. Meyer and Roach, senior ends of T. C. U., are splendid pass receivers. Chevigny calls Meyer the equal of Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan in this department. Meyer has the particular knack of getting into the open field.

Baylor, a disappointment to date, has a complete senior backfield and a combination of senior and junior linemen. Master and Russell appeared to be backfield stars.

ARKANSAS' powerful sophomores of last autumn are a year older, but bowed to Texas Christian, 18-14. The Razorbacks have a sterling triple threat man in Robbins. They are noted for their passing and tall and exceptionally skillful receivers. They threw 56 passes in one game last fall, which gives you a rough idea.

The southwest was amazed when Southern Methodist held Fordham to 7-0 in New York. The Mustangs graduated 23 lettermen, from the brilliant Bobby Wilson on down.

Rice lost the nucleus of its offense when Wallace, McCauley, and Sylvester passed out of the picture. The Owls have an abundance of material, but are the most disorganized team in the Southwestern Conference.

They're still chucking the ball around in the cattle country, and they have seen nothing to cause them to believe that the finest football in America isn't played in Texas.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

SCOUTS report that fey Jack Chevigny has rounded up quite a football team for himself and the University of Texas.

That 6-6 tie with Louisiana State isn't exactly a black mark on the Longhorns' escutcheon, and their 6-0 defeat of Major Biff Jones' fine Oklahoma varsity is something in the way of a recommendation.

Several of my operatives wouldn't be surprised if Texas topped the Southwestern Conference, and one of them goes so far as to class the Austin array as a dark horse on the Minnesota schedule.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on Farm, Mead Meadows, with their lovely and indolent grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKE. Kate is engaged to handsome MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE ELLIOTT, beautiful and wealthy.

As a matter of fact, Caroline had very little time to spare. Althy, she soon learned, was also suffering from sore muscles, and Zeke was less spry than usual. Caroline had to help both with their work, especially Althy, who was forced to go to bed and rest. From these two, Caroline drew the story of the night's escapade. It was not in their eyes, a childish piece of folly which had been rewarded as deserved; it was a glittering adventure that had, somehow, miscarried.

Yet he felt intuitively that it was not. It was the girl's blood. He had shot her and she had made no sound. "That's Kate for you!" he said aloud, his teeth biting his pipe stem. In his unwilling mind he knew her intimately. He called her Kate. Sometimes he scorned and hated her. Sometimes at night, just before sleeping, he left off hating her and took her in his arms and held her close—close—

KATE gave Caroline a little twisted smile. "Talking in my sleep, was I? What did I say?" "A lot of nonsense about digging," Caroline replied. "Does that mean you're planning to go and look for the silver?" "It means I've been," Kate said. She groaned with pain as she tried to get herself upright, then fell back again.

ALTHY said exultantly, "You ain't been nowhere, honey, till you been out treasure diggin'!" "Probably not," Caroline retorted. "But at least I'm not half dead today, like some people around here. That man just missed killing Kate! Did she cry out when it happened?" "No'm," Zeke broke in. "We didn't know Miss Kate were hit till we got home. She's a proud child, Miss Kate is."

On the back porch he found the slender, fair-haired girl whom he knew to be Caroline Meed. She was polishing lamp chimneys. "He took off his hat. 'Does this spade belong here?' he asked. Caroline nodded. 'Yes. Thank you for bringing it. My sister happens to be romantic and reckless. She was digging on your property last night for something our family lost long ago.'

JEFF HOWARD had just finished filling the chasm under the oak tree. He surveyed the great bare hump with a sardonic look. He had watched them at work last night from his bedroom windows—the girl and the two servants. He had watched them for hours. The only time he left off watching them was when he withdrew from the window to smoke a cigar. It had been as good as a play. Better. It had aroused emotions in him that were exhilarating, to say the least. He had meant to confront them just as they were leaving. "Can I be of some use to you?" he had planned to say as he emerged from the darkness.

"That would've been smarter," he told himself bitterly. "That hell-cat of a girl would rather be 'Kate'!" she said. "He had no right." "So I figured," Jeff Howard remarked. "Did she find it?" "No," Caroline replied coldly. "Oh, no. Will you just put the spade down, Mr. Howard?" She delicately rubbed the glass with a cloth, looking far away over the fields, as if she were alone.

"Was Kate shot last night?" asked Jeff Howard violently. Caroline lifted her chin. "Yes, Mr. Howard. In the shoulder. Wasn't that something like the idea when you fired?" "You know it wasn't!" he answered roughly. "Not even a mountaineer shoots at an unarmed girl. Is she hurt bad?" "Not very," Caroline answered. She added sarcastically, "Don't worry. You'll not be held for manslaughter."

HE began to walk along the course the three fugitives had taken in their flight the night before. He came on the dropped spade and picked it up. When he examined it he saw that there was something else beside mud on the handle. It was dried blood.

"That wasn't what worried me," he replied quietly. "Well, good day to you." "Good day to you," said Caroline, assuming the vernacular. He turned and walked away. She saw him pause and half turn, then go on again. "He called her 'Kate'!" she said. "He had no right."

She heard the car door slam, heard him shift gear and go speeding down the road. She was strangely disturbed. Her sensitive nature, often psychic, was enmeshed with the emotion that had emanated from the man. She said to herself presently, "Kate somehow matters to him—and he matters to Kate. What is the matter between them, besides hate?" She wished that she had been kinder to Jeff Howard. (To Be Continued)

Hiway Patrolmen Must Be Good at Variety of Trades

AUSTIN, Tex. — The days of hiring state highway patrolmen because they are big and can shoot straight are over. Of course they must be able to do these things, but with the trend of the present day toward the scientific they must now be "Jacks of All Trades — and Masters of All."

When the school opens at Camp Mabry a number of prominent Texas officers will be on the instructor's list. Among them will be Capt. Homer Garrison, assistant director of the Department of Public Safety, who will be in charge of the school; Attorney General William McCraw; H. H. Carmichael, director of the department of public safety; Gus Jones, Department of Justice; E. A. Gormley, national auto theft bureau; L. G. Phares, chief of the Texas Highway Patrol and Drivers' License Divisions; M. T. Gonzales, chief of the Bureau of Intelligence and Scientific Crime Laboratory; C. G. McGraw, chief of the bureau of Identification; Professor Tom Rouse, director of debate at the University of Texas and members of the safety patrol and first aid unit of the highway patrol.

Still Coughing?
No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with anything less than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble to aid nature to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes as the germ-indeed phlegm is loosened and expelled.
Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, your druggist is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion and to refund your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Get Creomulsion right now. (Act)

Webb, it was recalled locally by Hall Walker and Ray Newham, lived near Ranger in his youth and often visited in their home.
"I do not remember him very distinctly," Walker said in recalling the boyhood of the author, "but I do remember that he often visited Ray and spent the night at our house on a number of occasions. He was older than I was and I did not know him very well."
Webb has not lived in this part of the country since his youth, it was explained in mentioning him in connection with the local showing of the picture.

Eight wrestlers are accompanying a political speaking party, probably to symbolize the future generation's struggle with debt.

Partisans cried "politics." The denouncing order was one of the first issued by Kluchsky, who a decade ago sat in the mayor's office as bodyguard to Hoan. The non-partisan city council ordered a referendum on whether the horses should be reinstalled in the police department, and dobbin became an election issue.

Next year, as a result of an amendment to the Constitution sponsored by Sen. George J. Norris (R) Neb., the new President must take his oath of office almost 8 weeks before any predecessor—in January—often a blustering and snowy month even as far south as the languid Potomac.

Norris sponsored the Constitutional amendment in the belief that the "lame duck" Congress in modern times was a relic of the past, with its slow transportation arrangements.

Now, with airplane and streamlined train, he argued the will of the people in a November election should react on legislation with the beginning of the new year after the election.

Thus Congress will meet—a new Congress—on Jan. 5, and a President be inaugurated on Jan. 20 for the first time. President Roosevelt therefore, finds himself the first President in history with a term cut short.

One major hazard to the inauguration has resulted from the Norris amendment. Previously a "lame duck" Congress has met in January—a Congress already organized—to give official benediction to the electoral college count.

The new amendment provides that on Jan. 6, one day after the new Congress convenes, house and senate will sit in joint session and give legal status to the electoral vote.

Registrar Elected For Ranger Schools

Miss Jessie Davenport, a graduate of C. I. A., Denton, reported today as registrar of the Ranger High School and the Ranger Junior College, it was announced by W. T. Walton, superintendent of schools. Miss Davenport takes the place of W. W. Jarvis, Jr., who resigned recently to accept a position in Dallas.

Miss Davenport secured her B. S. degree from C. I. A. and has taken graduate work in that school toward a master's degree. She has had practical business experience with two firms since graduating.

In addition to serving as registrar Miss Davenport will be head of the business administration of the Ranger Junior College.

Police Horses Are Issue at Election

MILWAUKEE. — For the first time since the days when runaways were a serious traffic problem, horses will be a political issue at the polls here when Milwaukee votes Nov. 3.

Dobbin galloped into the 1936 campaign when Police Chief Joseph T. Kluchsky ordered Milwaukee's six mounted policemen dismounted and their steeds sold as "obsolete."

For several years the late Chief, Jacob G. Laubenheimer, had kept the mounted officers on duty, although Socialist Mayor Daniel W. Hoan vetoed all appropriations to support the horses, and they were forced to rely on contributions from business men for their upkeep.

Hoan said they were "Cossacks." Laubenheimer admitted mounted policemen were good in strike duty but insisted their main job was to direct traffic. Kluchsky said "a mounted officer can't tag a car as well as a man on foot."

Partisans cried "politics." The denouncing order was one of the first issued by Kluchsky, who a decade ago sat in the mayor's office as bodyguard to Hoan. The non-partisan city council ordered a referendum on whether the horses should be reinstalled in the police department, and dobbin became an election issue.

Day of Oath For President Jan. 20 For First Time

BY EDWARD W. LEWIS
WASHINGTON — The next President of the United States for the first time in history, will be inaugurated in mid-winter — Jan. 20, instead of Mar. 4, as a result of the Norris 'lame duck' amendment.

Washington, despite its southerly location, finds winter often grim. As a result, a snowstorm beating down on the Capitol may be the inauguration greeting for the next President.

Four years ago Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated on the center tier of Capitol steps on March 4. The day was hazy, chilly and windy.

Next year, as a result of an amendment to the Constitution sponsored by Sen. George J. Norris (R) Neb., the new President must take his oath of office almost 8 weeks before any predecessor—in January—often a blustering and snowy month even as far south as the languid Potomac.
