Economy Seems Need in Our Politics, Also

By the time Nov. 3 rolls around it will have cost somebody close to $20,000,000 to give the American people a presidential election, and it is a nice question whether the trusting gentlemen who put up all that money will get out of it anything remotely approaching their money's worth.

The national committees of the two major parties, according to a story in the New York Times, will have spent upward of $13,000,000. The various state, city, congressional, and Senate committees will have spent at least $6,500,000 more. Altogether, we are getting the most freespending campaign in American history.

An old-fashioned American, to whom a million dollars still looks like a great deal of money, could be pardoned for wondering if any large part of this enormous total was actually needed.

It costs money to buy radio time, charter special trains, hire halls, and pay all the other bills incidental to sending the candidates around the country, of course, and both Mr. Landon and Mr. Roosevelt have been doing a lot of traveling. It also costs money — gobs of it — to oil the local machines so that they can get the boys out to the polls on election day. But is there any reason under the shining sun why these things should cost $20,000,000?

When money is poured out at that rate it can mean only that the rival campaign managers figure the electorate needs to be yelled at, written to, button-holed, cajoled, brow-beaten, and generally propagandized until it will shamble off to the polls in a stunned silence, obediently casting its vote for the crowd that has made the most noise and put on the best show.

But does the electorate need anything of the kind? Isn't it at least a fair assumption that the vote Nov. 3 would be just about the same if the two parties had spent only a quarter of what they actually are spending? Are all these millions actually changing very many votes?

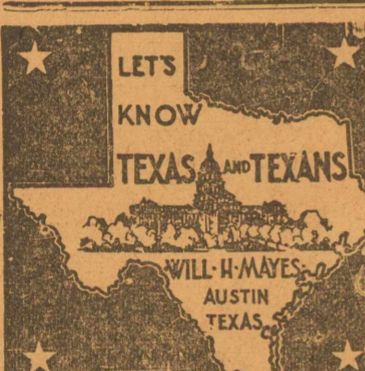

In spite of what cynical political wiseacres sometimes assume, the American people are not dumbbells. They have had ample opportunity to size up the candidates, compare their records, meditate on the virtues and the defects of the New Deal, and decide whether they want to go along with the old management or install a new one.

It is important, of course, that Mr. Landon and Mr. Roosevelt get every opportunity to appear before the electorate and expound their ideas. Since we have to take politics as we find it, it is probably equally important that the machinery of local politics be properly oiled. Beyond those points, it does look as if the Republicans and the Democrats are spending a lot of money for nothing at all.

These tons of mail that registered voters toss in the wastebasket, these 15-minute broadcasts by party stooges to whom no one listens, these doorbell ringings by earnest folks who bore their victims to distraction, these frantic stump tours by fifth-string party hacks — they are surplus, pure and simple. The money they cost must be at least 90 per cent wasted.

We have heard much, this year, about economy in government. A little economy in politics would seem to be indicated, too.

The ALBATROSS IS THE MOST PNEUMATIC OF ALL BIRDS! EVERY BONE IN ITS BODY IS FILLED WITH AIR SACS, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE SCAPULA AND HYOID BONES.

BEES. DURING HOT WEATHER, SUCK UP WATER INTO THEIR HONEY SACS, AND CARRY IT TO THE LARVAE IN THE HIVE.

THE wandering albatross measures 14 feet from wing tip to wing tip. The enormous spread is due to the elongation of the arm bones. The bird's "hand," from which the primary feathers grow, is only of average length, but the other wing bones are out of all proportion, giving the albatross 40 secondary feathers in each forearm.

In this column, answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. An evidence of good faith inquiries must give their names and addresses, but only their initials will be printed. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. When and where was Mirabeau B. Lamar inaugurated president of the Republic of Texas, and what were the most memorable words of his address? I. P. H.

A. December 10, 1838, in front of the capitol at Houston, when he succeeded Houston. The most quoted part of the address was: "It will be my policy to awaken into vigorous activity the wealth, talent and enterprise of the country, and, at the same time, to lay the foundation of those higher institutions for moral and mental culture without which no government on democratic principles can prosper, nor the people long preserve their integrity."

Q. Who took part in the Goliad declaration of independence of December 20, 1935? J. D.

A. The consultation was called by Major Ira Ingram and there were 32 citizens in the meeting, mostly citizens of Goliad, members of Capt. Phillip Dimmitt's volunteer company stationed there and 31 Irish colonists of San Patricio and Refugio.

Q. What was the substance of the Goliad declaration and how was it received? J. D.

A. It was a well-framed statement declaring "that the former province and department of Texas is and of right ought to be a free, sovereign and independent state." When it was presented to the provisional council, the majority appeared to be in accord with its sentiment, but regarded the declaration premature and not the authorized expression of all the people of Texas.

Q. By what name was the Rio Grande known to the Spaniards? C. S.

A. Rio Bravo del Norte.

The Best Dressed Woman in World Has Been Selected

By United Press PARIS—Tall, slender Mrs. Harrison Williams of New York and Paris who affects bright colors and has famous furs and jewels, was selected by a jury of fashion experts as the world's best-dressed woman.

Mrs. Harrison led a list of ten women whose taste and finery make them, in the opinion of leading Paris stylists, among the hundreds of society women who frequent the better shops of Paris.

A noteworthy trend toward simplicity of dress was indicated by the selections. Nearly all those included are known for their taste in sport clothes and employ eccentric dashes of style only in evening wear.

The ten best dressed women, it was estimated, spend an average of $15,000 per year to achieve ultra-smartness. This amount includes every article of wearing apparel, accessories, beauty treatments, hair dressing and small purchases of jewelry.

The others named by the Parisian couturiers were: Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes, Senora Martinez Hoz, Begum Aga Khan, Baroness Eugene De Rothschild, Hon. Mrs. Richard Norton, Baroness Von Krieger, Princess Charles Murray, the Duchess of Leeds and Mrs. David Balcon.

Mrs. Williams, who also led the poll of best-dressed women in 1933 and 1934, is slender with curly brown hair. She is noted for her beautiful complexion. She wears bright colors—chiefly reds and blues—and much black set off by touches of white. Her jewels and furs are famous. Her clothes are designed by Schiaparelli.

The Hon. Daisy Fellowes of Paris and London is short, dark, with a slender boyish figure. Her simple sports clothes are world-famous in fashion circles as are her eccentric afternoon and evening gowns. Molyneux and Schiaparelli are her designers.

The third of the list, Senora Martinez Hoz, is an Argentine beauty. Tall and slender, with dark hair and large brown eyes, she wears warm reds, brilliant blues, black and much pure white in summer. Molyneux and Vionnet make her gowns.

The Begum Aga Khan is French and was a milliner before her marriage to the Indian potentate. Patou and Molyneux make the wardrobes of the Baroness Kilty Spotswood of Virginia—who divides her time between Paris and Vienna. Tall, blonde and statuesque, she wears chiefly black or shades of green.

The Hon. Mrs. Richard Norton, London socialite, is known chiefly for her chic sports clothes. This tall, dark, slender sportswoman, who maintains homes in London and Paris, wears mostly autumn shades of orange, red, green and brown.

The Baroness Von Krieger, beautiful Dutch aristocrat, of Amsterdam and the Hague, has been known for several years as one of the best dressed women in Europe. Princess Charles Murray, daughter of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt of New York, was born Margaret Rutherford. She always wears clothes fashioned by Jean Patou, as does the Duchess of Leeds. Tiny, the Duchess achieved a sophisticated smartness in severe black set off by luxurious silver fox furs.

Mrs. David Balcon, the former Millicent Rogers, was divorced last year from Alturo Peralta Ramos, spends most of her time traveling in Europe and America. She is known chiefly for her sports clothes. She patronizes Schiaparelli.

Search Begins For Longest Bar

SAN FRANCISCO—Heck Church, manager of a local bar, has just sent a telegraphic request to every city in the United States that boasts of possessing the longest bar in the world.

Church's own bar is 167 1-2 feet long, and if there is any other city in the United States that has a bar longer than that, Heck wants to know about it. Until the existence of such a bar can be established, Heck intends to continue calling his bar the longest one in the world.

In addition to advancing his own interests, Heck is interested in long bars and considers himself an authority on the subject.

Heck started his long bar search when a magazine recently published an article on the bar at the Commodore Hotel in New York, saying it was the longest one in the country. The length was listed at 165 feet, 2 1-2 feet shorter than Heck's bar.

But even these figures are challenged by Heck. He insists the bar of the Commodore is only 116 feet long, but with a frontage of 125 feet.

"The really longest bar in the world," Heck admits, "is at Tia Juana, but at present the management is only utilizing 80 feet of its shining surface."

"Originally the longest bar was at Butte, Montana. It was the old 'Atlantic' and measured 110 feet. "Since then longer bars have been established, including my own, and I intend advancing my claims to the championship until it is proved to the contrary."

In addition to telegraphing all cities which boast long bars, Heck is checking with fixture companies in the United States.

'32 Landslide Was Largest; 1876 Vote Is Still the Closest

WASHINGTON—The closest Presidential election since the Civil War must be traced back to the Tilden-Hayes contest of 1876, but President Roosevelt gets credit for the biggest landslide—that of four years ago.

In contrast to Mr. Roosevelt's victory over Herbert Hoover—472 electoral votes to 59—Rutherford B. Hayes in 1876 had a final count of 184 electoral votes to 134 for his Democratic opponent, Samuel Tilden.

An electoral commission decided the Hayes-Tilden contest in favor of Hayes, although Tilden had a popular vote in the nation greater than his opponents.

In 1932 Mr. Hoover carried only six states, four of them in New England. The closest election of this century was that between Woodrow Wilson and Charles Evans Hughes in 1916. The outcome was in doubt for more than 24 hours, hinging ultimately on California's 13 votes. President Wilson's final majority in that state was less than 4,000. Had California gone Republican, Hughes would have been elected by 267 electoral votes to 264 for Wilson.

California Sends SOS To Save Pine Forests

SAN FRANCISCO—The State Chamber of Commerce has sent out an SOS for federal cooperation in fighting California's latest pest—the pine bark beetle.

Unless the ravages of the beetle can be stopped, it is declared, the honey packing crate, junior's soap box scooter, the poor man's fire wood supply and the great crate industry necessary for the shipping of California's vast vegetable and fruit production will be seriously curtailed.

Anthony Adverse To Have Premiere Here Wednesday

The long awaited Warner Bros. production of "Anthony Adverse," filmed from Hervey Allen's eye-opening novel, which boasts of 3,000 readers, comes to the Arcadia theatre Wednesday with Frederic March in the stellar role and Olivia de Havilland playing opposite him in the feminine lead.

In its panoramic story sweep through five countries and three continents, the magnitude of its 131 sets, the picturesqueness of its backgrounds, the gigantic scale on which it was produced and the vast number of talented players in its cast, "Anthony Adverse" surpasses any picture filmed by Warner Bros., and is said by those who have seen the preview to be the most pretentious piece of entertainment ever attempted in Hollywood.

The picture will show only twice daily, at 3 and 8:15 p. m.

U. S. Population In 1965 Is Estimated At Near 150 Million

BERKELEY, Calif.—America's population will reach a maximum of 142,000,000 in 1965 and then drop approximately 4,000,000 in the next 15 years to 1980, according to Prof. E. F. Penrose, economic and population expert of the University of California.

Penrose finds that while the American population and birth rate is still increasing, nevertheless its fertility is on the decline. The two things that are keeping up the American increase in population, Penrose says, are its present high birth rate and the large immigration in the past.

Fertility, as represented by its actual number of births, Penrose finds is falling in the United States as the result of several causes. These are restricted immigration, birth control, late marriages and economic insecurity, which tend to restrict large families.

Even should the present immigration restrictions be modified to permit 50,000 more immigrants yearly up to 1940 and 100,000 after that indefinitely, he says that the population still would start to decline in 1970. In that year it is estimated that the population would reach a maximum of 146,000,000, but with a drop of 2,000,000 within the next two years. The one problem which population experts have not been able to solve, Penrose says, is whether this inevitable drop in population will prove a detriment to national welfare. In the event it does, he points out that northwestern Europe and Australia will have the same problem to face.

TRY rice for a change—cook it with beef or chicken for a delicious, yet substantial, 2-in-1 dinner dish. To make an appetizing novelty that hits the spot, use 2 tablespoons butter; 1 medium onion, chopped; 1 pound round steak, ground; 1-2 green pepper, chopped; 1-2 cup uncooked rice; 2 1/2 cups tomatoes (No. 2 can); 1-4 teaspoon paprika and 1 teaspoon salt. Add black pepper if you want it. Melt butter in 1 1/2 quart saucepan. Add onion, brown lightly by cooking for about 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Then add meat and cook until browned on all sides. Stir in all other ingredients. Cover. Simmer for 45 minutes—simmer, that's important! Fast cooking will ruin it.

Chicken With Rice
Chicken with rice is a savory invention. Use a medium fowl cut in 8 pieces; 1-3 cup butter; 1 large onion, chopped; 1-2 clove garlic, chopped; 2-1 1/2 cups tomatoes (No. 2 can); 1-4 pound cooked ham, chopped, and 1 cup uncooked rice. Heat butter in frying pan. Add chopped onion and garlic. When brown, remove, set aside, and brown chicken in the butter. In the meantime, boil the rice in 2 1/2 quart water for 5 minutes. Then add the fried vegetables, chicken, ham and season with salt and pepper. Stir until all ingredients are evenly distributed. Place in double boiler, cover, and simmer over hot water for 3 hours. Add more boiling water if rice becomes too dry.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

CHICAGO—When Jim Braddock and Joe Louis appeared on the same program here, the heavy-weight champion told the Negro youth that he preferred to box him next June rather than Max Schmeling. True, Schmeling earned another crack at the crown by flattening Louis, but the Ferocious Frankfurter would have no compa. Braddock first squared off with the Brown Bomber. Herr Moxie is a good waiter and doesn't mind keeping the other fellow waiting. There are other reasons why Schmeling shouldn't object to Braddock boxing Louis, and leaving some of the swag in this country. Herr Moxie certainly has taken enough bilion to Germany—and on the first boat or dirigible. Indeed, Schmeling has taken so much money to Naziland that he was in a position to reject a $300,000 offer for a return bout with Louis in September. Since getting his big break against Max Baer and his sore hands, Braddock has been the most stupidly managed heavy-weight champion in history. Joe Gould stood idly by and permitted the Schmeling-Louis engagement to take all the play away from Jersey Jim, who should have met both, Louis at least. Once Schmeling and Louis had taken the edge off the outdoor season, Braddock's knuckle injury and attack of arthritis, which resulted in the indefinite postponement of his fall booking with the

GRIDIRON HEROES

THEY made few rough-and-ready football players in the modern era of the game who could stack up with Ernest J. (Pug) Rennert, Northwestern University's All-America halfback in 1931-32. Pug was all football, and Big Ten and intercollegiate opponents of the Wildcats during his career will confirm that. His best year was in 1931, when he rambled 1551 yards, 648 from scrimmage. He was particularly poisonous to Minnesota that season. Against the Gophers he streaked 95 yards from a kickoff for a touchdown, and later dodged 80 yards with a punt for another counter. Pug was a great blocker and ball carrier, and no tackle was too tough for him to try on defense. At present he is playing pro football with the Boston Redskins.

KATE and CAROLINE MEED live on a farm, Meed Meadows, with their lovely and indolent grandfather, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHEY and ZEKIE. Kate is engaged to handsome MORGAN PRENTISS, who neglects her for EVE ELWELL, beautiful and wealthy. Major Meed loses Meed Meadows to JEFF HOWARD, bitter young mountaineer who owns coal lands. Kate treats Jeff rudely and he responds with insolence, though he is drawn to her. The Meeds move into a nearby tenement house, Kate learns that her family buried a valuable silver service during the Civil War. She broods over this news and persuades Althy and Zekie to accompany her to Meed Meadows one night where they dig for the silver. Jeff shoots to frighten them, and wounds Kate slightly in the shoulder. He does not know this until he finds the spade with the bloody handle. Jeff fights his growing love for the girl. He returns the spade and Carol tells him that Kate is not badly hurt. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII KATE recovered from the shoulder wound. "But you're going to have an ugly little scar there," Caroline pointed out. "The scar might have prevented that." Kate said, "I know it's not ethical to be your own surgeon. I reckon I deserve the scar. But I couldn't bear for Doctor Grace to know what a fool I'd been. Besides, I saved the price of his visits. That means my $10 bill is velvet." "You need a pair of shoes," Caroline suggested. "And you could get a new hat. We could both use stockings—" "We'll manage to get the stockings," Kate answered, "from next week's egg money. But that's all that's going to be wasted on clothes. We're going to have a party!" Caroline was aghast. Kate had made the mistake of selling a pile of old "Godey's Ladies' Books" that had been stored in the attic at Meed Meadows and discovered at the time of their move. "Are you delirious again, Kate?" Caroline demanded. "I don't see why the desire for a party points to delirium. We're indebted to everybody, but that's not the only reason I want a party. We've got to show people we still enjoy being alive. We've got to show them misfortune hasn't gotten us down." "Very commendable," Caroline answered, smoothing the counterpane on the bed she was making. "—And the third reason, darling? The real reason for wanting to throw a party when we're stoney broke?" Kate blushed. "I often wish you were a fool, Caroline. . . . The real reason is Morgan, of course. I haven't been blind to the way things are. He's rushing. He's in the good old family-friend, big-brother guise. I've too much

BY ROONEY DUTCHER

CHICAGO—In the face of a growing belief among politicians and students of politics that Roosevelt has an edge in the presidential contest, Gov. Alf Landon and the Republicans have set out to prove that an election can be won in the last month of a campaign. Landon himself, according to those who have been with him daily since his nomination, is more confident of victory than at any previous time. At one period, they say, he felt there wasn't much hope. Enough of the political map has jelled to enable the Republican high command to boil the situation down to one nutshell formula. Here it is: Landon must carry New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, and New Jersey if he is to be elected. If he loses a single state among the first five—the "Big Five"—he is sunk. He might win them all and still lose the election, but no such thing has ever happened. If you care to take out your pencil and play the game which everyone, down to the youngest office boy, at major party headquarters is now playing, you can have herewith the latest confidential figurings among the Republican big shots, whose Chicago offices are spread through three large downtown buildings. NEW ENGLAND, they are sure, will throw the 41 electoral votes of her six states to Landon. Add that to a possible 47 from New York, 36 from Pennsylvania, 29 from Illinois, 26 from Ohio, 19 from Michigan, 16 from New Jersey, and 14 from Indiana. The
