NEW DRIVE ON 'HONKY TONKS' IS ANNOUNCED

A drive against honky-tonks and disorderly taverns has been initiated by county officials and the state liquor board, Dist. Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., announced Monday. Sheriff's officers working with state liquor control board agents already have closed one tavern at Ranger and are moving against others in the Cisco vicinity.

"We are going to get rid of these places," the district attorney said. "For some time now we have been quietly preparing evidence against a number of beer joints which have been giving trouble and state and county officers are already taking steps to clean up such premises."

"The state liquor control board already has suspended the license of one Ranger tavern on affidavits of law violation which we secured."

"Under the new policy of the state liquor control board the board can and does suspend a license on affidavit of violation of the law such as permitting drunkenness on the premises or the sale of beer to minors."

"Such violations exist in other taverns according to evidence which we have obtained and we plan to move against them immediately."

The 91st district grand jury, last week, especially asked the co-judges to complete its deliberations operation of the citizens of the county in reporting violations of the liquor control act, especially with reference to sale of beer to minors and permitting drunkenness on the premises.

Judge Charged In Receiving Money Quits His Bench

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Chairman Hutton W. Summers of Texas, of the house judiciary committee, said today that U. S. Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton of New York has submitted his resignation.

Summers made the announcement shortly after he had revealed that his committee would begin, tomorrow, a preliminary study of charges against Manton, made by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Summers said that Manton's resignation would preclude any action by the house judiciary committee, the legislative body which sits as a grand jury to consider charges against federal judicial officers.

Dewey, in a letter to Summers, charged that Manton had received sums of money from individuals or corporations acting for individuals or corporations interested in matters handled by Manton's court.

Manton, who was senior judge of the New York circuit, was named a district judge in 1916 by President Woodrow Wilson, and was raised to the circuit court in 1918.

CELEBRATIONS TO AID FIGHT ON PARALYSIS

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Americans will dance tonight to help President Roosevelt celebrate his 57th birthday, and raise more than $1,000,000 for the fight against infantile paralysis.

At more than 10,000 balls to be held in virtually every city and town, the nation will celebrate and contribute to the anti-paralysis campaign. Stage and screen stars will join Mrs. Roosevelt at seven hotels in the Washington celebration.

The president, who will address the thousands of celebrants by radio at 11:30 p. m., E. S. T., planned to spend a quiet day interrupting his routine only to attend a white house birthday dinner with the "cuff link gang," a group of long-standing friends.

The cuff link gang is composed of persons associated with Mr. Roosevelt during his service as assistant secretary of the navy. They wear gold cuff links given them by the chief executive.

The president's birthday cake will bear only 21 candles, in keeping with a Roosevelt family tradition.

Paralyzed Boy Is Saved by a Lung Made In His Home

By United Press
LONDON—A father and mother have saved the life of their son after doctors had all but abandoned hope.

For nine days and nights they took turns operating a special apparatus which enabled the boy, who was stricken with infantile paralysis, to breathe.

Gordon Bennett, 9, contracted the disease last August. Recently the paralysis spread to his lungs. A swinging apparatus, which operated by levers, expanded and contracted the lungs, was constructed and the boy's parents volunteered to work the machine.

Day and night they worked. At last their efforts were rewarded. Gordon's lungs became strong enough to allow him to be removed from the machine. He is well on the road to recovery now.

Round 47 Coming Up in Battling Bransfield's Legal Bout

In this corner—James Bransfield, who wants his own name kept for his own business.

CHICAGO, Ill.—The 47th round of the legal battle of the century between the James Bransfields will be fought Feb. 8.

Forty-six times in the last three years the Bransfields have faced each other in court. Domestic trouble arising from a separation has been the issue.

Mrs. Clara Bransfield won the 46th round by slipping over a hard right to the face before the gong had sounded, and even before the referee had climbed into the ring.

That is to say that before their 46th appearance in court here the couple met in Judge John J. Lupe's chambers. And even before the judge had appeared, they got into so hot an argument that Mrs. Bransfield bounded across the room and smacked a hard right to the face of her heavyweight husband.

James Bransfield and his wife Clara decided to train separately in September, 1935. At that time she filed a bill for separate maintenance.

Blizzards Sweep Through Midwest Toward The East

By United Press
A blizzard swept northeastward across Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, and Indiana today, disrupting land and air transportation.

The storm, which centered over Southern Illinois, was accompanied by a sharp drop in temperatures. Freezing rains bordered the northern and eastern fringes of the storm area, and extended through Pennsylvania to New Jersey.

U. S. Forecaster C. A. Donnell of Chicago predicted lower temperatures, gales and snows for the Great Lakes area and a cold wave in North Dakota and Northern Minnesota by tonight.

Indications were the blizzard would extend over all the Great Lakes states in the next 24 hours.

Rain and strong winds were reported at New York, Washington, and generally along the Atlantic seaboard and throughout southeastern states.

A series of windstorms in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee and Georgia demolished wires and leveled telephone and telegraph lines. Considerable livestock was killed.

Cattle Shipments In December Up

AUSTIN, Tex.—Shipments of livestock from Texas to Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points during December totaled 6,623 cars, compared with 5,096 cars during December, 1937, an increase of 30 per cent, the Bureau of Business Research at The University of Texas announced today. Each class of livestock shared in the increase, but the amount of increase varied widely.

Cattle shipments, 4,742 cars, increased 31 per cent; calves, 969 cars, increased 13 per cent; hogs, 419 cars, increased 23 per cent, and sheep, 493 cars, increased 75 per cent.

Shipments for the year 1938 aggregated 89,511 cars, compared with 90,343 cars during 1937.

Hog and sheep shipments to the Fort Worth market increased moderately but shipments of cattle and calves to this market were dropped off substantially from December, 1937.

CARR COLLINS IS REJECTED BY THE SENATE

By United Press
AUSTIN, Jan. 30.—The Texas Senate, in open revolt against Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, today rejected the appointment of Carr P. Collins as chairman of the highway commission, and voted to abolish the office of state tax commissioner, to which O'Daniel had appointed Elster M. Haile, who claims Hereford as his home.

The tax commissioner's office was abolished by a vote of 28 ayes to no dissent.

The bill to abolish the tax office was offered by Sen. Morris Roberts of Pettus, chairman of the senate finance committee. It places the state treasurer on the state board to fix intangible taxes valuations in place of the tax commissioner, and gives other duties of the office to the state comptroller.

The action was taken under suspended rules. To suspend the rules requires four-fifths vote, while only two-thirds vote is needed to pass a bill over the governor's veto.

Sen. Joe Hill of Henderson preceded the vote with a vigorous denunciation of Haile and Gov. O'Daniel. He refused repeatedly to end his remarks at Roberts' request that he permit a vote.

"I am for the bill," Hill said, "because, if we do not pass it we might have the office legally filled, but unoccupied." (There is no residence requirements in the existing act which created the office.)

Sen. Hill read the governor's quoted statement that he thought Haile was a resident of Texas. He then read from O'Daniel's copyrighted story of Haile's life giving a Kingman, Kansas, broadcast in which Haile is quoted as saying, "I live in Kingman, but now am farming a lot of land in Texas."

Hill pointed out that this broadcast was in July, 1938, and said that in November, 1938, in taking out a poll tax, Haile necessarily swore that he had lived in Texas a year and in Deaf Smith County for six months.

HIGH COURT DISMISSES A SUIT ON TVA

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The United States Supreme Court today dismissed a major suit by private utilities against the Tennessee Valley Authority, without ruling specifically on the basic constitutional issues involved in the power program of the vast new deal agency.

The action brought by a group of southern private utilities in the TVA area, was dismissed on the technical grounds the private firms were without legal justification for maintaining their suit.

The decision was read by Justice Owen J. Roberts on behalf of a 5-2 count, a few minutes after President Roosevelt's third supreme court appointee, Felix Frankfurter, was sworn in on the high bench.

While avoiding a ruling on the constitutionality of TVA, the high court appeared to raise several obstacles against future legal efforts to obtain a decision on those fundamental issues. The court held that the utilities could now show illegal competition and damages as a result of TVA operations.

Taxes May Be Paid Through Tuesday Without Penalty

One more day, Tuesday, remains in which taxes, including city, county and poll taxes, can be paid, it was reminded today by H. C. Wilkinson, school tax assessor-collector and E. T. Eubanks, city secretary. In the advertisement appearing in the Times Sunday was the statement that only one day remained for paying school taxes, when it should have read two days, as taxes can be paid Tuesday without the penalty being added.

Poll taxes must be paid by all who pay property taxes of any kind, though if the poll tax is paid after Tuesday midnight the privilege of voting in elections this year is lost.

Poll taxes may be paid in Ranger at the office of C. E. Maddocks, city taxes can be paid at the city hall and school taxes at the office of assessor-collector in the Recreation building.

A special appeal has been made to the residents of Ranger to pay their city and school taxes before the deadline.

The fire department sounded a "distress" signal in calling volunteers to aid in the search. The child had only been gone 45 minutes when found.

Expanding Public Domain May Solve Land Problems

Just at the time when everybody was getting accustomed to the idea that "the public domain is exhausted," to behold the public domain starts growing again.

Public ownership of land is gaining by leaps and bounds, not only as a result of widespread purchase by the federal and state governments, but by tax foreclosure.

For example, in 1938 Oregon owned 1,714,349 acres of land, with another $20,000,000 worth foreclosable because of tax delinquency.

Almost every state is faced with this problem in one degree or another. In little New Jersey nearly 900,000 acres of rural land are tax delinquent, a survey shows.

This state of things, regardless of whether it is a happy state or not, is a condition and not a theory.

States and counties are being forced to take steps to find out what to do with this newly acquired land, the American Society of Planning Officials reports. In 29 states foreclosed or abandoned land reverts to the counties, and in 19 states it reverts to the state.

That makes necessary a different approach to the problem in almost every case, for while counties are closer in touch with the local problem of the use of their land, most of them do not have enough money or enough land to institute much of a program.

Minnesota, Michigan, New York and Wisconsin classify the reverted lands as to whether it can produce anything, and whether it can be sold. Then they try to homestead, sell or exchange the land. Such lands as are useless for such purposes are usually turned into parks or game refuges.

The United States, and the individual states are thus rapidly acquiring a new and large public domain. The problem would seem to be to get to some of this land those farmers who no longer can find a place on developed lands, the migratory workers, the sharecroppers, and the dispossessed of the farm areas.

Starting at scratch, with land which cost the governments nothing but the loss of tax revenues, it should be possible to get much of this land back into the hands of individual owners, thus accomplishing the double object of producing more taxes and giving farm families a new start. Homesteaders built the country in the first place—maybe a new generation of homesteaders can help to rebuild it.

The Big Push

Milk Drinking In Factories Grows

By United Press
GENEVA.—Two and a quarter million thirsty workers in 7,000 British factories are drinking milk at the rate of 8,500,000 gallons a year. That is one of the many facts reported in the League's survey of national nutrition policies.

Britain's milk - in - industry scheme has shown excellent results on the health of workers who "down tools" for a few minutes every day while they drink milk. The factories using the scheme report far fewer absences, and milk retailers report no adverse effects on their sales. Cheap milk is also provided for hundreds of thousands of poor school children.

The league's survey reveals that governments all over the world are becoming increasingly nutrition-conscious. More governments are following the example of the United States and Norway, in helping the farmers' economy and building the poor man's health, by buying up surplus stock of high-value nutritive foods and reselling at lower prices.

Throughout Europe and the Americas especially, governments are conducting campaigns for more milk, and cheap milk, for the poor.

Norway, for example, last year allotted $210,000 for the provision of cheap milk and $57,000 for

It's Very Seldom This Miss Misses

In France the national milk propaganda committee distributes milk to school children in 367 centers, while more than 200 special milk dispensaries provide free milk for thousands of children up to the age of 8, each one being card-indexed so a record may be kept on the effects of the government's diet.

More and more countries are setting up national nutrition committees which are concentrating on nutritional education, and their efforts are beginning to take effect also in the improvement of food production.

The Dutch, for example, annually are training 30,000 girls of all classes, in nutritional science, while in France the national childhood committee is telling even girls how to rear a baby.

Driver Recalls the Old Chisholm Trail

By United Press
SPEARFISH, S. D.—Indians, road agents, swollen streams and heat were among the "wild west" dangers that harassed early day cattle drivers as they moved thousands of Texas longhorns over the famous Chisholm trail into the vast pasturage of the north country.

So recalls Charles Graham, 81-year-old Spearfish old-timer, who spent 16 years in that spectacular drama of populating the bounding prairies of the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, Kansas and Nebraska with cattle.

Graham's first trip over the historic Chisholm trail was in 1872 when but a lad of 13. From then until 1888 he gained his livelihood by following the old Indian road which led from Texas, through Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska and branched off throughout the great Northwest.

"Traveling in those days was plenty rough," the old-timer related. "Indians and road agents were always giving us trouble and I must have been in 20 or more fights. Occasionally I'd get nicked by a bullet but I never got hurt seriously."

The Indians always wanted pay for the use of their trail, Graham said. The cattlemen saw no reason why they should be paying the natives and didn't. Therefore an occasional raid from the Indians could be expected.

"It usually took three and a half months to move a herd of around 3,000 longhorns from Texas to Wyoming," he said. "Sometimes groups of different drivers would band together and move around 30,000 head on one trip."

The rivers always gave the cattlemen trouble, especially when they were high, Graham asserted. The dangerous streams were the Red River of the South, the Canadian, the Cimarron, the Arkansas, the Somky Hill, the Republican, and the Platte.

Graham was the son of a Texas ranger. When he quit the cattle business in 1888, he opened a saloon in Beulah, Wyo., and later moved his business to Spearfish. With the advent of prohibition, he retired.

Investigation showed he had been sentenced to six days in jail on a contempt of court charge.

Advertising A SERVICE TO YOU

HOW ARE YOUR RESOLUTIONS HOLDING OUT?

By this time, a lot of the resolutions that were so shining bright on New Year's Day are badly bent or broken. Maybe your resolutions were too lofty to allow for human frailties. We'd like to suggest another resolution that is both easy and profitable to keep. It's just like this: Read the advertisements regularly. Sounds childishly simple, doesn't it? But it makes sense when you stop to think about it. You have a certain amount of money to spend for all the things your family needs. It's up to you to get the most out of it. And the advertising pages of this paper can help you. Here merchants and manufacturers advertise their best values, their lowest prices. They know they can build business only by giving you satisfaction. You know you can depend upon the things they advertise. It works both ways. Watch for "specials," for seasonal sales, for news of new foods and new conveniences. You'll learn the best time to buy winter coats or bathing suits. You'll learn prices, styles, brands. You'll shop without wasting time or steps. And you'll live a lot more comfortably.

SERIAL STORY

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Barney McKnight... and Janet told him how much she needed him. Then he told her what Aunt Mary once said to him about Janet's future.

CHAPTER XX

"I REMEMBER every word Aunt Mary said," Barney put a big hand over her tightly clasped fingers. "She said, 'Janet doesn't know her own mind now, Barney. But if anything should happen to me, I think you will be the first one she will turn to. If you can persuade her to marry you then, don't wait—even if I should still be lying in state—out of a mistaken respect for convention. I don't worry about Cynthia now. She's shown more sense than I ever gave her credit for. And if I know that Janet is with you, I can stretch out in my grave and take a good nap.'"

This from Aunt Mary, who never meddled with other people's lives!

She must have known, Janet thought, touched beyond words. Something must have told her. "But, Barney, all along it has seemed to me that what you and I have is something so much finer and saner and less complicated than the feeling people seem to mean when they talk about—love and marriage."

"Now don't tell me, Jan," Barney interrupted with a flash of something like his old humorous impatience, "that you've been kidding yourself with that old tripe about platonic friendship. There isn't any such thing."

"But I never thought—" Janet began again. "Well, begin thinking about it now."

When she only continued to shake her head helplessly, he took his hand from hers. "All right, forget it," he said. "I suppose, after all, thinking doesn't do much good about things like this. You either know or you don't. Forget it, Jan."

JANET, who had found in the shelter of Barney's arms the most real comfort and rest she had known for weeks, felt newly bereft and deserted.

"Barney," she began, "why can't we go on—just the way we always—"

But he had got abruptly to his feet. "I'll run along now, Jan," he said. "You're too tired for this. You get yourself some rest. I'll have the supper sent in for you, and I'll come back later to see if there is anything I can do."

But Janet's hands had found her coat sleeves, and were clinging with all her strength. "Don't go, Barney," she cried against his shoulder. "Please don't leave me—ever again. It rests me just to have you here. I need you so terribly, Barney."

He stood for a moment, looking down at her; then he took her quickly into his arms and kissed her.

"I wonder," he said half to himself. "Well, that's something, anyhow."

Janet and Barney were married the day after Aunt Mary's funeral.

The morning before the ceremony she went through an hour of terrible misgivings, during which she wondered whether or not she were bringing to the new relationship anything that Barney had a right to expect. Except for a great need for his companionship and a genuine affection for him, she had so little to offer. It seemed to be all taking and no giving. Did Barney really understand, after all, just how she felt?

But when he came for her, he was so completely the good comrade she knew so well that most of her doubts vanished.

THEY were married in Sylvia Grant's home, with only one or two old friends present. Afterward, they would go to Aunt Mary's apartment until Cynthia and Timothy Benton returned, and she and Cynthia could arrange about the disposal of Aunt Mary's cherished possessions.

"After that, I naturally can't promise to support you in the splendor to which you've always been accustomed," Barney said. "But at least we'll eat from time to time."

Miss Parsons, the society editor of the News, ran an announcement of the ceremony, with the brief comment that it had been the bride's recently deceased aunt, Mrs. Mary Cantrell, who had specifically requested, when she knew of her impending death, that the wedding should not be delayed on that account. This, the other papers eagerly reprinted as an item of sentimental interest—using Janet's photograph when it was available.

It was in turning over the pages of the News that she happened to glance at the story of the most recent financial disaster. A nationally known oil company had gone into receivership. It meant very little to her at the time, and hardly engaged her attention, for she was looking for Barney's second article.

His first one had appeared the day before. Already the News had received a flood of comment—some cordial letters of approbation, some attacking the policy of the paper in exposing the scandal as "muck-raking," and some crank notes—one an anonymous threat, which the paper gleefully published.

Barney laughed at Janet's concern over that.

"When a reporter gets well enough known so that people begin threatening him, he's made, honey," he said. "It might even be worth my while to pay someone to take a few pots at me."

ALREADY the district attorney's office had ordered an investigation into the facts of the story; and high police officials were angrily calling the paper to demand what the shooting was all about, and why they hadn't been let in on this before it was made public. As if Barney said, the police hadn't known all the facts for months without making a gesture towards doing anything about them.

Janet was deep in the page of "Letters from Readers" that afternoon, looking eagerly for further comments on Barney's articles, when a key turned in the lock of the hall door, and someone came in and down the hallway.

"Why, Barney, you're early!" Janet called. "I hope you're not playing hooky."

But it wasn't Barney. Cynthia, paler than usual, came quietly into the room. She smiled her twisted little smile, took her hat a little wearily from her head, and flung it on a low table.

"Well, Jan," she said, "here I am again."

"Cynthia, darling!" Jan cried, and ran to throw her arms about her cousin in a warm rush of gladness.

Cynthia said, "Jan honey—you poor kid! Tell me everything!" and they sat down together on Aunt Mary's gold brocade Empire sofa.

When Janet had told her everything, Cynthia said brokenly, "I should have been here. . . . We did change our plans as soon as we got your message about the accident; but it had followed us for days. We were just lucky in making connections to get here even this soon."

"I tried so hard to reach you, Cyn. It was you she wanted really. She always loved you best," Janet said, entirely without jealousy. She had always known that.

She was thinking, Cynthia had changed.

She couldn't put her finger on the exact difference, but it was as unmistakable as Cynthia's actual presence here. It showed in the way she had come into the room, in the tones of her voice. It was not exactly that she seemed older. If anything, Janet thought, Cynthia was, for perhaps the first time in her life, really beautiful.

Something had happened to her, Janet thought. (To Be Continued)

Mines In Texas Produced Ores of $986,739 In Value

By United Press

WASHINGTON—Mines in Texas produced $986,739 worth of gold, silver, copper and lead during 1938, the United States bureau of mines reported today.

Silver made up the most of that amount, the bureau said. Figures based on actual production for the first eleven months and an estimate on December output indicated that Texas produced 1,445,100 ounces of silver, worth $934,206.

"From 1885 to 1938, inclusive, Texas has produced, in terms of recovered metals, 115 fine ounces of gold, 28,761,796 fine ounces of silver, 1,773,960 pounds of copper, 7,976,124 pounds of lead, and 1,488,474 pounds of zinc," the bureau said.

"The bulk of the state output of silver, lead and gold in 1938, as in the past, came from the Presidio mine of the American Metal Co. of Texas at Shafter. From 1885 to 1937, inclusive, this mine produced in recovered metal, 24,657,461 ounces of silver. Preliminary figures for 1938 show an increase over 1937 in output of silver and some decrease in quantity of by-product gold and lead recovered. The ore is treated by table concentration followed by cyanidation. The lead concentrates and silver precipitates, both containing some gold, were shipped to the Carteret (N. J.) smelter. The decline in copper production in Texas in 1938 is attributable mainly to the decreases from 1937 in average prices of copper and silver.

The Black Shaft mine in the Allamore district, Hudspeth county, which produced most of the state copper in 1937, was closed in February, 1938. Also there was a decrease in the quantity of silver-copper ore shipped to the El Paso smelter from mines near Van Horn.

"In 1938 the American Smelting & Refining company, continued to purchase gold, silver, copper and lead ores and concentrates in bond from Mexico for reduction in its lead and copper smelters at El Paso. The copper smelting department was shut down in July due to the closing of Chino mines at Santa Rita, N. Mex., its largest source of copper-bearing material, but was started up again in October when Chino mines resumed production. The Nicholas Electrolytic copper refinery at El Paso was operated on copper anodes received from the corporation's smelters in Arizona.

Turkey Is Overdone In 2-Alarm Blaze

NATICK, Mass.—To say that Donald Walkup's 15-pound turkey was roasted prematurely in an automobile fire would be understatement. It was destroyed in a two-alarm blaze.

CLEVELAND.—Alfred Ramsay, generally conceded to be the slickest squash racquets player of the day, developed his game during his spare time as a masseur at a Cleveland health club.

Scotty Ramsay captured the second annual open invitation singles tournament in New York and defended the national professional championship here.

Ramsay did not take up squash racquets, which is several times faster than handball, until he was 26, which was 10 years ago.

He developed the stamina for his aggressive game as a goal tender in soccer in Scotland and Cleveland. Although he has the Scottish brogue of Harry Lauder, he played with the American Hungarians, who went to the United States soccer cup finals in 1929.

Ramsay's aggressiveness prevents the other fellow from getting properly set to play his shots. Squash racquets is the more popular of racquets games.

IT is handball played in a four-walled court with a nine-ounce racquet and a rubber ball that ricochets in 80 directions.

Squash tennis is played with a racquet and ball similar to those used in tennis. It is even faster than squash racquets.

WHAT the farm program of the administration is marked for the scrap heap has been known by observers who have surveyed the nation during the past year. It has also been apparent that it would be succeeded by an adventure in price maintenance for farm products through the application of the two-price system.

Now a group of senators representing both parties and, indeed, both wings of both parties, comes forward with a new farm bill which will be pressed upon Congress. This bill embodies the two-price idea.

Last fall during the political campaign, when discontent raged high in several states, Senator Vandenberg went to Kansas and preached the doctrine of "An American Price on the Homestead of the Free."

The new plan proposes to get rid of the immense amount of old tape and hard conditions which the A. A. A. imposes on its beneficiaries. This is a plan to pass out the money without forcing the farmer to do very much.

The program is to divide the crop into two parts. One part represents the part of the crop which the farmer sells on the domestic market. The other is the part which will be sold abroad.

On the domestic crop the farmer will be guaranteed a price covering cost of production and this price will be insured to him by compelling dealers who buy it from him to pay the cost of production. The cost of production will be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture. And if he decides, for instance, that the cost of producing wheat is a dollar a bushel, then the dealer or processor will be permitted to buy wheat from the farmer at less than that figure.

The part of the crop to be sold abroad will go into warehouses where the warehouse receipts will be made available to the government. The government will sell it abroad for anything it can get and account to the farmer. This, to call it by its correct name, is plain dumping.

The soil conservation plan of the present farm program will be retained. The Commodity Surplus Corporation, a scheme to buy up surplus parts of all sorts of crops to keep the price up, will also be kept.

There seems to be ample evidence that something like this is to be the next phase of farm legislation. The only thing that can be said for it, compared with the A. A. A. program, is that it does not attempt the morally and socially unjustifiable plan of subsidizing crop reduction.

It is not a new plan. It has been tried in various countries in various ways. It always breaks down.

However, anyone who thinks he knows how to solve the farm problem is entitled to a try at it. Everyone else has failed so far. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

Pat Neff's Bible Is Still In Office of Governor of Texas

By United Press

AUSTIN, Texas—A leather-bound copy of the Oxford self-pronouncing Bible (Sunday school teachers' edition) is passed from governor to governor of Texas.

The Bible was left in the governor's office on Jan. 18, 1925, when Pat M. Neff ended a four-year term as chief executive. On its cover in gold leaf is the inscription: "Presented to my successors in office." Neff's signature in gold leaf, with the dates of his administration, are on the cover.

Neff underscored the 105th verse of the 119th Psalm.

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path."

St. Matthew 7:12 was marked by Miriam A. Ferguson when she ended her first term Jan. 18, 1927. The passage is: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye do that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them; for this is the law and the prophets."

Gov. Dan Moody marked two passages in the Bible on Jan. 10, 1931. One was John 3:16: "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. The other was Psalms 19:14: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer."

As Mrs. Ferguson ended her second term on Jan. 15, 1932, she marked Jeremiah 50:32: "And the most proud shall stumble and fall and none shall raise him up; and I will kindle a fire in his cities and it shall devour all round about."

S. O. Montgomery Buys Auto Store

S. O. Montgomery, for a number of years owner and operator of one of the largest Jersey dairies in this part of the country, has purchased the Western Auto Associate store in Ranger from Collier Brothers, and will take over the management immediately.

Montgomery is well known throughout this part of the county, having operated the Oakwood Jersey Dairy for many years. He has been a director of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce the past three years and has taken an active part in civic movements of the town.

It was stated today that Collier will remain in the store about two weeks, until Montgomery becomes familiar with the stock and the business.

Mouse Farming On Ranch Pays

MODESTO, Cal.—Most people try to get rid of the mice around their homes, but not Frank Cook, Modesto district rancher. Cook actually encourages them, then sells them and lives on the profits.

Cook first became interested in "mouse farming" when he noticed the large number of the tiny rodents used in scientific research. He decided to capitalize on the demand and go in for large scale raising of white mice.

That was in 1934. Today he owns rather an unusual mouse farm which nets him a good return.

During the first few years of his venture, Cook was able to sell only 20,000 mice. Now, he says, the demand has grown. Last year he sold 20,000, and he predicts he will top that record in 1939. Research laboratories are his chief market.

Cook becomes irked when people tell him his work is easy—that all he has to do is turn the mice loose and "let 'em multiply."

He denies there is anything easy about the work, pointing out that infinite care must be taken to keep his charges in good health. Diet and housing are the greatest problems.

At first Cook made the roof of his farm building of straw, but recently changed to a new method. Now he has two roofs, with about two feet of straw between them for insulation.

Because the mice are extremely susceptible to changes in temperature, Cook now is considering seriously installing an air conditioning system—a comfort which his own home does not have.
