BIRTHDAY BALL CHAIRMAN FOR NATION NAMED

NEW YORK—President Roosevelt has appointed Keith Morgan, National Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday to conduct the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign.

The President also authorized the use of his birthday, Jan. 30 next, for the raising of funds to aid the nation wide fight against the crippling disease.

Declaring in a letter to Mr. Morgan that the health of America's children is one of the front lines of our national defense, Mr. Roosevelt said that plans for the campaign already worked out by Mr. Morgan and associates had his "heartiest endorsement." The President added:

"I am sure they will meet with the whole hearted response and cooperation of all of the birthday committees and the American people."

Chairman Morgan announced that organization for the drive for funds which will reach its climax on January 30, 1941, the President's fifty-ninth birthday anniversary, was already under way and would proceed at top speed.

Members of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's birthday were quick to respond to the new call for action.

Eddie Cantor, noted radio, screen and stage star, told Mr. Morgan at headquarters he was happy to again serve as chairman of the "March of Dimes" of the air.

Grantland Rice, widely-known sports authority, immediately accepted the chairmanship of the Sports Council for the fourth time.

George Allen of Washington, former District of Columbia Commissioner, at once volunteered his services as chairman of the "Mile of Dimes" committee.

Joseph M. Schenk of Los Angeles wired his acceptance as vice chairman of the committee. He, like the others, has served for the past three years with Mr. Morgan.

Colonel D. Walker Wear, Assistant National Chairman, announced that State Chairmen already were accepting appointments and that every state in the Union would be completely organized.

The President, in his letter authorizing the campaign for the raising of funds, praised the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday for the splendid fight being waged against the crippling disease. He added:

"Nothing is closer to my heart than the health of our boys and girls and young men and young women. To me it is one of the front lines of our national defense."

"Although the warm heart of the American people will never cool toward helping the afflicted children of countries abroad, I know also that this warm heart will always respond to a call to help our own."

Commenting on this, Mr. Morgan said:

"Our slogan will be: 'Help the Youngster Around Your Own Corner.'"

"And we will ask all America to enlist in our national defense for health."

Traffic Deaths In State Reach 190 In Month of October

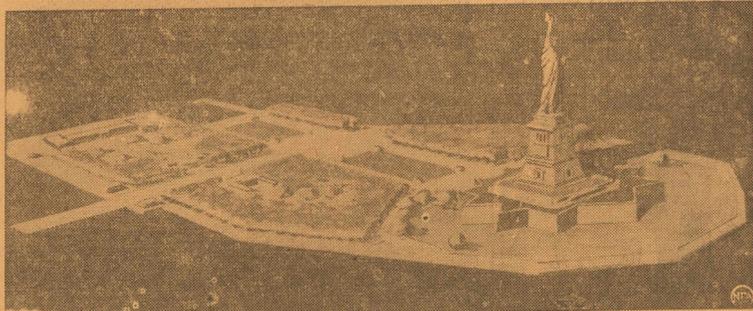

AUSTIN, Texas.—Motor vehicle traffic played into the hands of the "grim reaper" during the month of October as 190 deaths were chalked up on the "death book" maintained by the State Police Statisticians in the Accident Records Section.

During the first 10 months of 1940 there were 1363 persons killed in traffic accidents which is 114 more than for the same period of 1939 or an increase of 9.13 per cent.

"Drivers who operate their automobiles at speeds which are too fast for prevailing conditions are traffic enemy Number One," according to Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Department of Public Safety.

"This wanton slaughter of Texans must stop and may I take this medium of urging each and every driver to reduce the speeds of vehicles operated on our public highways," said Col. Garrison.

Goddess to Reign in New Setting

In the near future, Miss Liberty will preside in a setting more fitting to her official standing as the Statue of Liberty National Monument. WPA workers are busy razing unorganized huddle of buildings that cluttered around her base on Bedloe Island, New York harbor. The old buildings will be replaced by modern structures housing a museum, souvenir concessions, and administrative offices. It is expected to take nearly five years to give the island the complete "face-lifting" seen in architect's drawing above.

FLIGHT COURSE IN RANGER IS ONE OF MANY

Airplane pilot training at Ranger Junior College is part of a program encompassing 214 junior colleges last winter, last summer and this fall, and providing air training for more than 9,000 students.

Ranger Junior College is listed in the current issue of the Junior College Journal as having offered the pilot training program last winter and last summer and also as having quota of 20 students for the primary training course this fall.

Approximately 5,000 civilian pilots in 148 junior colleges successfully completed their primary training course last year, says this article, by Secretary Walter C. Eells of the American Association of Junior Colleges.

Quotas of 4,250 students are assigned to 210 junior colleges for the first semester of this year. Most of these are in the primary training course, but 490 have been assigned to the secondary or advanced course.

The primary course includes 72 hours of ground school instruction and from 35 to 45 hours in the air, sufficient to qualify students for private pilots' licenses. The secondary or advanced course deals with CAA regulations, aircraft, engines, meteorology, aerial navigation, instrument and parachutes.

The work was given last summer in 142 junior colleges, and last winter in 109.

Contributions by the government for ground school work of $50 per student have amounted to approximately a quarter of a million dollars to junior colleges during the past year, says Secretary Eells. In addition $325 per student for flight instruction has been paid to the cooperating airports.

This year the regulations have been modified so that it is more difficult for regular junior college students to qualify. Freshmen are not admitted and students must be 19 years of age. The entire primary program must be completed in one semester. All applicants must pass the regular military physical examination. In addition, those who complete the course successfully must promise to enter the military aviation service of the government.

Pin Ball Play Is Held In A Court

NEW ORLEANS.—Incongruities poked at the traditional dignity of Orleans Parish Civil District Court when five pinball machines were the principal exhibits in a hearing.

Assistant Attorney General Bertrand I. Cahn of Louisiana announced he would prove that the machines were instruments of gambling, not games of skill. Operators of the machine sought an injunction to prevent authorities from barring them from public places.

Cahn told the court he would show it was impossible for a player to release the plunger on the right side of a machine so lightly that the ball—or marble—would roll back down its channel on the right side without going out onto the board.

On his first try, Cahn did what he had said was impossible. He blushed while Clarence Dowling, attorney for the pinball interests, rushed up and congratulated him as "an expert witness."

"I didn't think it could be done that well," Dowling said. "You're far too modest," Judge Byrnes chuckled.

Registration Of Aliens Reaches a Three Million Mark

WASHINGTON.—The Department of Justice announced today that alien registration is now approaching the 3,000,000 mark. The exact figure through close of business on Friday was 2,903,688. This is almost 81% of the 3,600,000 aliens estimated in continental United States at the start of alien registration.

Earl G. Harrison, Director of Alien Registration in the Department of Justice, in making public these figures today, pointed out that the period set aside by Congress for the tabulation of all non-citizens was rapidly drawing to a close and urged that those who have not yet complied with the law do so immediately.

"I want, at this time," said Mr. Harrison, "to remind all aliens who have not yet registered that the registration period will end on the 26th of December. There will be no postponement of the registration. Under the Alien Registration Act of 1940, the Department of Justice has no authority to grant any time extension. Therefore all non-citizens who were in this country on or before August 27 and who, not having gained citizenship in the meantime, are not registered and fingerprinted by the close of business Thursday, December 26, will have to take their place with other lawbreakers."

Mr. Harrison added that this statement did not mean that the Department was displeased with the present progress of alien registration.

"To date, non-citizens have been cooperating with the Federal Government in this defense measure," said Mr. Harrison. "The nearly 3,000,000 aliens who have been listed so far have come in willingly, in a spirit which showed their desire to obey our laws. With our preliminary count showing nearly 81% of non-citizens registered in 67 of the 100 actual registration days allowed, it is clear that most aliens have realized how moderate are the demands of this Government compared to those that they would face in any other country in the world. However, the Christmas rush will soon be on at the post offices everywhere. Aliens who register immediately will be able to complete the formality much more speedily and with much less annoyance to themselves now than at the last minute."

Mr. Harrison again reminded all aliens who have registered that they are not fully complying with the law and are laying themselves open to other penalties if they fail to notify the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Department of Justice, in Washington within five days of any change in their permanent residence address.

Philip Murray New President of C.I.O.; A.F.L. Reconvened

Philip Murray was elected unanimously today by the Congress of Industrial Organizations to succeed John L. Lewis as President.

Lewis resigned because he supported Wendell Willkie as president of the United States, and in his speeches said that he would resign the CIO presidency if President Roosevelt was re-elected.

Murray, the new president, is opposed to uniting the CIO and the American Federation of Labor.

The Federation reconvened at New Orleans today after a holiday punctuated by fist fights between two delegates over a charge that some AFL unions were dominated by racketeers.

Skeleton May Be Last Remains Of Prehistoric Man

LUBBOCK, Texas.—Remains of a skeleton unearthed in a gravel pit several miles northwest of Whitharral in Hockley county last week are believed to be those of prehistoric man, although conclusive evidence that this was the long-sought Folsom man was lacking. Dr. W. C. Holden, curator of the Tech Museum, said.

Amount of fossilization of the skeleton was similar to that of an elephant, camel and horse bones found in the same strata, possibly 20,000 years old, he said. But due to disturbance of layers immediately above the grave by excavations of the gravel pit, proof was missing.

A portion of the skeleton was excavated and brought to the museum for study and measurement.

Excavation of the skeleton brought archeologists from University of Texas, University of New Mexico, and Texas Technological college, and from Santa Fe. Visiting scientists, who came here to witness the excavation were: Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Hibben of the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque; Eric Reed, archeologist with the National Park Service; Stanley Stubbs, archeologist with the Laboratory of Archeology at Santa Fe; A. T. Jackson, archeologist in charge, Dr. M. S. Goldstein, physical anthropologist, and T. N. Campbell, instructor in anthropology at the University of Texas.

Teachers Approve Retirement Plan

FORT WORTH, Nov. 22.—The Texas State Teachers Convention expected, today, to approve a proposal for the legislature to appropriate $3,500,000 annually to match teachers' retirement contributions, without levying any new tax.

The plan calls for separating the teachers' retirement from old age pensions and other social security legislation.

LONDON NOTES POSTERS SHOW TEMPO OF WAR

By United Press
LONDON, Nov. 22.—The posters and notices which you see on windows, boardings and all over London give an accurate reflection of the wartime life of this great city.

Early in the war, huge placards called on men and women to give their services to Britain's cause. "Freedom is in peril, defend it with all your might," and similar appeals were posted in every street. The answer wasn't long in coming. There were calling-up notices too, advice on where to obtain gas masks and ration cards and what to do about registration.

But those posters have long since been tattered by the weather, faded by the sun or covered with more immediate developments.

With the later phase of war bringing the metropolis into the front line of attack, a new class of announcements has appeared.

Beside the old directions for obtaining respirators for babies and later information on evacuation of women and children, now can be read instructions on what to go to be fitted with rubber ear-plugs. Thousands of the little gadgets have been issued without charge to offset the din of bombs and barrage. Another notice advises the reader to report to his local distribution point for a special smoke filter to be attached to gas masks.

There are dozens of colored and illustrated posters telling pedestrians and motorists what to do during an air raid.

"Don't stand gazing up in the sky," advises one. "Go quickly to the nearest shelter."

Pictures illustrate "right way" and "wrong way."

"Save your way to victory," another poster says. "Lend to defend the right to be free," says another.

Ministry of information bulletins on air raid compensation are one of the latest products of the blitzkrieg. They give directions to householders on how to obtain cash for damage done by bombs to homes and personal possessions, not excluding furniture and clothing.

Published also is official information regarding applications for benefits to wage-earners who are injured by bombing, and how to get food and a home when their house is blown up. The notices stress that there will be no delay in payments in cases of emergency. It is a policy of help first, and comb out the red tape afterwards.

It is impossible to read the last paragraph of the bulletin without thinking that the author had in mind a picture of Adolf Hitler and his backers on a day which sooner or later will come. Inevitably a certain grim humor creeps into the sentence. It reads: "All grants will be settled as advance payments in anticipation of a final settlement after the war."

Airports Improved With NYA Labor

AUSTIN, Texas.—Presidential approval for the construction by NYA youth labor of the Big Spring Airport Administration Building has been received. J. C. Kellam, state NYA administrator, announced today.

Clearance of the Big Spring Project by the Civil Aeronautics Authority is expected any day after which work on the building will start, Kellam said.

Kellam also reported progress being made by NYA youth in building complete airport facilities at Huntsville, including work already begun to construct a sheet metal hangar sixty feet by one hundred feet in size, with a concrete floor, to be followed by the grading of the field and laying of runways.

The City of Big Spring has secured land for the airport administration building which is to be 88 feet by 131 feet in size, and of a Spanish style, bitudobe block construction with clay tile roof, observation tower, general offices, waiting rooms, coffee shop, and other passenger facilities.

Bitudobe blocks are formed of soil stabilized with bituminous material and made impervious to the weather.

The Huntsville Airport Hangar and facilities is sponsored by the Sam Houston Teachers' College and will be used, in addition to regular aviation traffic, as a means by which the College will cooperate with the CAA to provide student flying instruction.

Heads Britain's Army Air Force

In an important shuffle of Royal Air Force officers, Great Britain set up a new aviation unit, the army co-operation command, which will give the army its own air force for the first time. The new command will be headed by Air Marshal Sir Arthur Sheridan Barratt, above, who led R. A. F. in France until the French surrender.

Fur Trapping In Texas Ranks Well Up In The Nation

AUSTIN, Texas.—Texas ranks fifth in the production of fur-bearing animals, a summary of reports from all of the states by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service reveals and the Texas Game Fish and Oyster Commission, through its expanding program of restoration of proper habitat for fur-bearing animals, hopes to increase the crop materially during the next few years.

Texas ranks fifth despite the fact reports of the annual catch are far from complete. This is due to state laws which do not require trappers to make reports of their catches and all furs sold outside the state are not counted in the total.

Lone Star State trappers were reported taking 729,244 pelts in 1939 and it is believed by game managers of the Game Department that at least half that many more fur-bearers were trapped. The production of fur-bearing animals in Texas is increasing, the report indicates, for only a total of 590,444 was reported in 1938. The increase is mainly due to the added number of muskrats taken last year. Muskrat pelt sales dropped to a new low in 1938, when the take was reported at 2,569. Last year the total reported was 229,734. However, all of that increase cannot be ascribed to the larger number of muskrats in the marshlands. There was a definite increase, game managers who are working on the rehabilitation of muskrat habitat, are certain, but better supervision of the reports on trapping by the managers is responsible for a portion of the reported increase. Flooding of more marshland under the supervision of game managers also helped by providing more suitable habitat.

Texas had an increase of 138,800 pelts in 1939. Sixteen species of fur-bearing animals, are trapped in the state. They include badger, beaver, fox, red, gray and kit fox; swift, mink, mountain lion, muskrat, opossum, raccoon, ring-tail cat, skunk, both common and spotted, weasel and wolf.

The State Game Department is co-operating with marshland owners in a program to restore more habitat for muskrats. It is believed that within two or three years muskrats will put $2,000,000 in the coffers of the Lone Star State. Work to restore a few other species of fur-bearers such as beaver, is progressing.

Fur animals require natural habitats in which to live. As the country develops, more and more of these habitats are being destroyed. In many sections, however, much land still remains that is capable of producing large crops of fur if the animals are given sufficient protection to assure maintenance of an adequate breeding stock. It is upon these lands that the Game Department is concentrating so that the purse of Old Man Texas will be heavier in years to come.

Air Base Being Built By Air Corps Close To Spokane

By United Press
SPOKANE, Wash.—Crews are clearing a 1,000-acre field here for the Sunset airport as Spokane prepares to assume its role as northwest district headquarters for the U. S. air corps.

Giant graders are removing an estimated 300,000 cubic yards of dirt at the airport site, just west and south of Spokane.

The field is expected to be the base for the 5th Bombardment Wing and the 39th Heavy Bombardment Group. Both groups are in the process of training and organization.

Fort George Wright will become headquarters for the unit, and barracks and officers' quarters there will be occupied by the fliers. A service unit comprising 2,700 enlisted men and 280 officers also may be quartered at the fort.

Arrangements have been completed to move commanding officers of the air corps into Fort Wright as rapidly as the 4th infantry is transferred from the Fort to Alaska.

Officials have pointed out, however, that it is doubtful that heavy flying equipment will be moved to Spokane before completion of Sunset airport next spring. Exact number of planes to be based here remains a military secret.

Congressional groups have said that Spokane's present air defense program may be greatly expanded because of the city's strategic situation. Of the six trans-continental railroads, four run through Spokane. The city also is protected by the Cascade Mountains on the west and the Rocky Mountains to the east. To the north is the British Columbia tableland.

Completion of the airport before spring is expected to be out of the question because of cold weather hampering pouring of concrete. Two runways, which will be constructed, are expected to extend more than a mile, and be among the longest in the world.

Plans also are being discussed for a railroad spur which would carry supplies direct to the field. The government is buying land near the field, where it expects to construct 200 homes for non-commissioned officers.

New Detectory May Get A War Role To Locate Submarines

COLUMBUS, O.—Possibility of locating "noiseless" submarines by meteorite detector designed by Ohio State University educators is under investigation by Canadian and American sources.

The detector's importance increased following German claims of underwater craft with sound-proofed engines which, if true, would destroy the usefulness of standard hydrophones for locating submarines.

Designed and perfected by Prof. Lincoln La Paz, Ohio State mathematician, the detector has been used in the last two years to search for meteorites buried in the earth. Its possible use as a submarine detector is under consideration by officers of the U. S. Navy and Dr. R. W. Boyle, director of the National Research Council of Canada.

Dr. La Paz already had demonstrated the use of a small scale model in underwater experiments. "A model exhibited at the Ohio State Fair indicated that the instrument will function almost as well when operated over metallic masses submerged in salt water as when used on metallic meteorites buried in the earth," he explained.

The instrument gives two-fold warning of the presence of hidden meteorites. First a signal is heard over connecting earphones, and then a needle on a dial indicates the meteorite's presence.

Jubilant Greek soldiers continued today to defeat the Italians in Albania, capturing the chief Fascist base at Koritza, threatening the southern base at Argyrocastro and advancing upon all fronts.

The fall of Koritza was admitted in Rome, where a Fascist war communique stated that the town had been evacuated by the two remaining Italian divisions, and admitted that the Italians had sustained heavy losses in the 11 days of fighting around the base.

At Athens the Greeks were celebrating the victory and it was reported that gigantic stores of war supplies had been captured. It was estimated that it would take several days to make a check of these materials captured, as Koritza had been stocked with all the military supplies expected to be used in the invasion of Greece.

The Greeks said their forces had also captured an Italian battalion, complete with equipment, on the Central Front, and were now attempting to encircle the important southern base of Argyrocastro.

The Greeks advanced so rapidly in pursuit of the fleeing Italian army that airplanes were sent out to drop supplies of food to them. In some sectors it was reported the Greeks had advanced 20 miles north of the Koritza base.

Neutral experts accepted the Greek victories with reserve, believing that Italy can eventually bring the war to a halt, but they also believe that Italy's reverses may hasten German participation in the Balkan campaign, to prevent the first serious setback of the Axis powers in the war.

The Italians revealed that Ettore Muti, former Fascist secretary, reported killed in Greece, had only made a forced landing and is now safe at home.

Air activity between Germany and Britain was reported to be comparatively light and no bombs were dropped during the daylight hours on England, although coastal guns shelled the English Channel. British bombers raided these gun emplacements and also successfully surprised the German Stavanger airport garrison in a bombing raid.

Outstanding Men To Speak Before A Masonic Meeting

WACO—Two of the south's outstanding speakers will address Masons on the opening day of the Grand Lodge of Texas, A. F. and A. M.'s 105th annual communication in Waco, Grand Master Leo Hart has announced.

Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist church of Dallas, and Dr. Max Strang, pastor of the Central Congregational Church of Dallas, will speak Dec. 4.

Dr. Truett will address a banquet of approximately 3000 Master Masons in Waco Hall at Baylor university. All Master Masons registering at the Grand Lodge will be guests at the banquet being served free by the grand lodge committee on Masonic education and service. Dr. Truett is an outstanding Mason and is internationally known through his outstanding work with the Baptist World Alliance.

Dr. Strang will be speaker on the subject "Masonry Day by Day" which has been the theme of Grand Master Hart during the past year. He is an outstanding Mason, orator and churchman.

The Masonic Grand Lodge will close on the evening of Dec. 5. All indications are that an all-time attendance record will be established.

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 3, Masons of Waco will entertain the visiting Masons with a barbecue, following which a Master Mason's degree will be conferred by a Waco team.

The Voices That Shouted 'Peace!'

The tumult and the shouting of the campaign die away, but there is one shout that must echo and re-echo in the President's mind as he sits alone to think of his tremendous third triumph. Yes, presidents sit alone sometimes. In fact, despite the constant impingement of problems and persons, the presidency is a lonely job, and all presidents have felt it keenly.

The shout that cannot die out of President's mind is the shout of the American people for peace. He cannot forget that the one thing both in his own addresses and those of his opponent that always touched off a roar of spontaneous approval was any passage that gave hope of keeping our great land at peace.

He cannot forget that of around 22,000,000 Americans who voted for the opposing candidate, many, many of them so voted because they thought peace might thus be best preserved. He cannot forget that his own specific pledges of peace, so long as peace is permitted us, were the passages which drew the deepest response.

Neither candidate could honestly have made or kept a pledge that "under no circumstances whatever will the United States go to war." Neither did so. War or peace in the near future is not so much a matter of conscious American decision as of circumstances, and the acts of others. Yet a strong and determined will to peace can do much, and the American people have that will. They showed it throughout the campaign, showed it clearly to both candidates by their responses.

The campaign showed equally clear support of American foreign policy as revealed in action. There was no basic difference between parties here, and Mr. Wilkie's post-election statement shows clearly this unity. Exactly where this course will lead us, no man can precisely prophesy. The conduct of human affairs is not a mathematical science. But the course has been charted by the pilot and confirmed by passengers and crew.

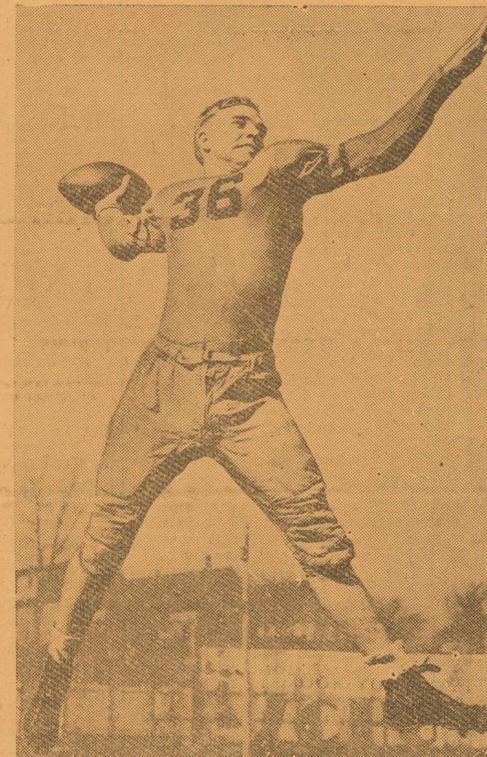

This time we propose to prepare, hoping that this will serve us for peace, since unpreparedness has so often failed to prevent war. The nation is united in determination to gain strength in proportion to its great power. To the death it will defend its soul, its interests, its free way of life.

But it is peace the American people want—to keep peace if they can; to join war only if they must. Those great deep-throated shouts from both sides of the whole campaign reveal it clearly. Above the shouting and exaltation of triumph may be heard clearly the voices that cried "Peace!"

DON'T STOP AT MURDER!

A newspaper is an accurate reflection of what today is doing with people . . . and what people are doing with today.

Murder is big-type news. So is a bank stick-up. And so is the dedication of a new library, or the launching of a new ship, or the employment of hundreds in reviving industry.

But you have read only half of the story, if you stop at murder. In our advertising columns can be found news in its most authentic sense.

What are people wearing? What are they eating? Where are they going? How are they going? Why this style, and why that vogue? When is the time to build? Who has the latest? How much does it cost?

Answers to these and like questions give you real information . . . news . . . about this business of modern living. And you will find these answers by carefully reading the advertisements in this newspaper.

RONNIE TO THE RESCUE

CHAPTER VI

RONICA BAILEY felt that utter despair, born of terror, when danger is all around you and nothing is to be done. She had slipped off her horse and crept forward afoot in sheer... She lacked even the pearl-handled pistol that stayed in her plane...

Actually, she had a side view of the little battlefield. She could see all five of the aliens—two of whom unmistakably were dead or wounded now. Suddenly she observed that Starr was no longer shooting.

"O-o-oh!" It was almost a gasp. "I wonder if he is—is dead!" Fury began to replace the fear that assailed her, because those aliens had shot at her once earlier in this day and she had done nothing to cause it. She decided now that she must go back for help.

Whatever had Mr. Starr meant, coming out here single-handed anyway? She crept back toward their horses. Her own had been tied near his.

When she got there she saw the stock of the rifle in Starr's saddle scabbard. She remembered he had worn two side arms, but—

Then Ronica did a characteristic if foolhardy thing. She took the officer's gun, opened it part way to see that it was loaded, and started right back to the spot she had fled from.

Even before she got there she heard more shots. "All right!" she heard Starr yell, and was happy for it. "Come out of that with your hands up! Manos arriba!"

He mixed his commands in English and Spanish, but the tone, not the actual words, told Ronica of his desperation. Somehow she knew he was bluffing, possibly hurt.

She crept to a huge boulder, then dropped to hands and knees and started crawling. She had the side view of the battlefield now, and by moving from rock to rock, she came within 50 yards of the embattled men. Then she paused behind a rock about hip high.

"I can shoot from here!" She said it, and she was physically calmer than she imagined she could be. Muscles were tense. She lifted the rifle, rested on the boulder, and took a perfect, nerveless aim—a sharp bead right through the sights and onto the torso of a man dressed in dark clothing. Only the poorest of shots could have missed.

"No! No-no!" She murmured that, too. Not aloud, but to herself. Try as she would, Ronica Bailey could not shut down any man!

All at once she shouted. "MR. STARR! I'M HERE! YOU MEN—YOU BETTER DO WHAT HE SAYS!" Her words sounded inadequate, silly, she realized. Muscles had begun to tremble, and now she was too utterly frightened to speak with anything like the threat and menace she had meant to put into her voice.

Instantly, somebody turned and shot at her. She didn't try again to call out or aim closely. She just shot back.

The rifle thumped her shoulder. She sat back, astonished, and gazed at the thing before she thought to pump in a fresh shell. Quickly then she raised up and shot again.

All at once she heard voices calling, and while she didn't understand the words, she did hear Starr. She peered over her rock again to see three of the men standing, arms high. They glanced first toward her and then toward Starr, who was coming forward now with both pistols drawn.

She saw him handcuff the men together, but when she heard him say to her she was shaking too much to answer.

ON the front porch of the Rocking R Ranch, Thomas U. Bailey sat staring fondly at his daughter. She had been home less than an hour, and the tan, strong-faced Border Patrol officer had done most of the talking so far.

"Well, I'll be eternally damned!" Mr. Bailey repeated himself often. "Ronnie, you'll get into scrapes no matter where I put you. I had thought that out here—"

"Hold on, Mr. Bailey," Officer Starr interrupted. "If it hadn't been for her, I'd be a corpse, and no fooling! They thought I had big help. I admit I shouldn't have let her go along, but she said she could show me the right place, and—well she just kept insisting, and—"

"I know just how it is, Mr. Starr! I am her father, but I—"

Even Ronnie smiled then. "You'd think I was a terror," she said.

"No, ma'am," Starr resumed. "But I'm here to say this—when- ever you want anything from the U. S. Border Patrol—anything in the world, miss—why you just whistle. And you, too, Mr. Bailey. As you know, we have a force of men guarding the line between the U. S. and Mexico to catch aliens slipping in and narcotic smuggling and any criminals we can. And if it hadn't been for Miss Ronnie here—"

"You say those were not Mexicans, Mr. Starr?" Bailey asked. "No, sir, Japanese. Hadn't expected that. We don't catch many here."

"And they weren't aliens, after all, but American born?"

"Yes, sir. They had proof of that. Fingerprint records, photos, birth certificates, everything. All I can file against 'em is an un- lawful weapon charge, and resist- ing an officer, and they can plead misunderstanding and mistaken identity and all to that, even. But that don't make Miss Ronnie's help any less impor—"

"I know, I know, Mr. Starr. But—see here, what would five men be doing out on the desert that way?" Mr. Bailey's face was intent now. He looked closely at the officer.

"Said they was hunting."

"You—believe that?"

"Well, no sir. Nothing to hunt now. Especially with just pistols."

"Um," Mr. Bailey meditated a moment. "Look here, Mr. Starr, you appear to be a level-headed man. And you are a federal officer. —Ronnie, call Fabian to bring out some refreshments, eh?"

Ronica, slightly surprised, nevertheless got up to obey. Fabian, the Mexican cook, would be in the rear somewhere, she knew.

WHEN she was gone, Mr. Bailey spoke again to the Border Patrol man, but in low tone. "Mr. Starr, do you know why I am out here? Besides my health, I mean?"

"I have my ideas, sir. Nothing official yet, but—well, I know you manufacture bombing planes, and there's a new bomb sight, and—"

"Exactly, Starr! Now, sir—about these men, do you suspect what I suspect?"

quick kick back from their own 40 for a touchdown, but a clipping penalty on the 20 brought the ball back and gave the Tigers a 15 yard penalty.

In the second quarter the Bulldogs had their best opportunity to score, but were unable to take advantage of it. A Tiger punt was returned to the Tiger 16-yard line, where a 15-yard penalty was called for unnecessary roughness, giving the Bulldogs a first down on the Tiger one, but three line plays lost four yards and a pass into the end zone was slapped down by the defense and the ball went into play on the 20.

Twice in the first half the Bulldogs were deep down in Tiger territory, and it looked as though they might score, but nothing came of their efforts.

As the second half opened the Tigers came out with renewed drive and aggressiveness, while the Bulldog offense appeared to have bogged down and the defense was looser, possibly because of the power the Tigers had turned on. Although slightly outplayed in the first half the game was clearly all Ansons in the second.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

BULLDOGS HOLD FAST IN FIRST HALF, THEN LOSE IN SECOND 13-0

The temperature was just right, the crowd was small, the field a little muddy and the Bulldogs played their hardest Thursday night. But not hard enough, for Anson's Tigers won the football game by a score of 13 to 0.

At half-time the score was 0 to 0 and the Bulldogs appeared to have a slight edge over their opponents, with the aid of a few breaks and some heads-up playing, but at the beginning of the third quarter Anson turned on the steam, and with pilderiver line plunges ran over the Bulldogs to two scores.

The Tigers tried but eight passes, having one intercepted and completing two for a total of 50 yards. The remainder of the night they concentrated on re-

Both their touchdowns were earned by straight football, plunging through the line for gains of five and six yards at a time, to carry down to within the five yard line, and then plunged over for the score. The point after touchdown was made the same way, through a hole over right tackle.

It was not until the fourth quarter was well underway that the Tigers scored again, this time on a 50-yard drive in which powerhouse plays again were featured, using the same tactics. The try for extra point was stopped short of the goal line.

In the closing minute of the game the Tigers ran a Bulldog

THE PAY OFF

By Harry Grayson NEA Service Sports Editor

MIKE JACOBS is moving into Chicago chiefly for the purpose of re-establishing himself so he can unload a second edition of the Baer-Louis fiasco there next June.

Chicago is the only spot where it might go fairly well. Max Baer made his greatest fights in Chicago. The Californian and poor Ernie Schauf flat on his back at the end of 10 rounds fought so savagely that many suspect the late sailor never recovered. He knocked out Tuffy Griffiths, and topped it all off by disposing of King Levinsky with big gloves in the second round.

The good people of the lakefront were spared the sight of Baer clowning while losing the title to Jim Braddock. They didn't see him quit on one knee to Joe Louis and cut up and stopped by Lou Nova.

JACOBS, more than Baer, must rebuild himself in Chicago. The old Broadway ticket scalper has in the past treated the big town as though he were operating in Scappoose, Ore. He fed Charley Retzlaff and Harry Thomas to Louis there, the latter bringing out a confession and investigations.

JACOBS was given plenty of help in Chicago in connection with the Braddock-Louis production, which was nothing to write home about as an artistic success.

And with it, Jacobs broke the boxing back of Madison Square Garden, obtained control of the heavyweight champion and crowded himself the cauliflower czar.

He made a fine deal for Comiskey Park. It cost him exactly nothing to put extra lights around the place. There was ample police protection. Everybody commented on how well the show was run.

But Jacobs, who never seems to be satisfied, had to make some bum cracks about Chicago politicians, and they haven't forgotten. Jacobs introduces himself in Boston, Dec. 16, by raking Al McCoy a Christmas present of a shot at Louis—and anaesthesia.

He is butting into Detroit, too, as quickly as he can find something he can stuff down the throats of the local citizens.

TEX RICKARD monopolized the heavyweight champion only. He wanted to see other promoters get along. They developed major attractions for him. Mike Jacobs has tied up nearly every fighter of any worth in all divisions, and appears bent on putting other promoters out of business. He has few box office cards.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

NEW DEAL MAY STIFFEN AAA DESPITE WILLKIE ELECTION STRENGTH IN MIDWESTERN STATES

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Nobody is trying quite as hard to figure out just what the election meant as are officials of the Department of Agriculture.

On the face of the returns, New Deal farm policy took a walloping in the eye. Henry Wallace's own state of Iowa went decisively Republican. Throughout the midwest the farm belt followed suit. States like Illinois and Ohio were saved for Roosevelt by the city vote.

Catton

Judged by any ordinary standards, then, a sharp revision of the farm policy, specifically the AAA policy of indirect control of crop reduction, would seem to be in order. Oddly enough, there is developing a good deal of sentiment in the Agriculture Department in favor of making the AAA program stiffer instead of milder.

Various explanations for the loss of the farm vote are offered. One group in the department is engaged in painstaking, precinct-by-precinct analysis of the farm belt vote. The argument of this group is that it was the small-town voter rather than the farmer himself who swung the rural areas to Willkie. The farmer, by this argument, is still for the Wallace program.

Another group in the department ignores this argument and admits the midwestern farmer has come unsold on AAA. It argues that the midwestern farmers are relatively the most prosperous in the country, and that they just can't be persuaded to like measures made necessary by farm poverty in other sections.

Both groups say the election proved the farm program popular with some farmers—those in New England, for instance. The closeness of the vote in Maine is laid to the farmer's liking for AAA. It is pointed out that F. D. R.'s majority in several New England states swelled rather than diminished when belated rural returns were counted.

CONSIDER RETURN TO DIRECT CONTROLS

CUTTING across all lines of argument, there is a growing belief in Washington that more stringent crop controls are in order.

A return to the direct controls of the first, Supreme-Court-invaliated triple-A program is seriously considered. Thesis is that the nation still has tremendous carry-overs in crops like wheat, corn and cotton and that the export market continues to shrink. Hence, it is argued, only a return to sure-fire means of making direct payments to the farmer in return for a reduction of production can meet the situation.

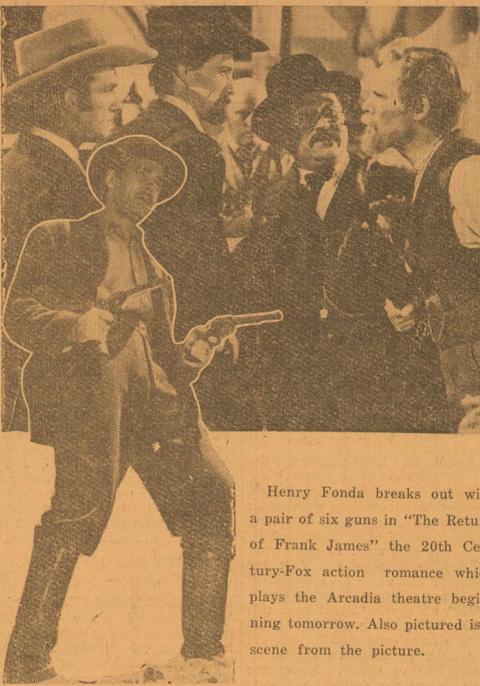

Whether such a program will actually get proposed to Congress this winter is open to a good deal of question. For one thing, it would be certain to raise a storm of opposition—severe enough, possibly, to upset the good relations which the White House ardently wishes to have with Capitol Hill. For another, it would go directly against those numerous New Dealers who feel that the midwestern vote was a plebiscite against the general New Deal farm program and that some modification is imperative.

SOUTH AMERICAN POLICY BIG FACTOR

DON'T accept any predictions on the matter until the administration's South American policy is unveiled in its final form.

There is a growing chance that the American farm program may tie in with that policy pretty directly.

Grandiose propositions such as dumping the farm surplus on the Latins through some continent-wide variation of the stamp plan have been advanced. They're still in the talk stage, but the talking is being done by some important people. Until it jells, no guess on the future of the domestic farm program is much good.

Officials of 896 Masonic Lodges To Convene In Waco

WACO.—Masters, wardens and secretaries of 896 Masonic Lodges in Texas, representing a membership of over 100,000 Master Masons in good standing, will convene in Waco at 4 p. m., Dec. 3, for an unusual conference preceding the formal opening Dec. 4 of the 105th annual communication of the Grand Lodge.

Grand Master Leo Hart of Gilmer will preside over the conference. The meeting will be an informal discussion of vital and timely interests of the lodges, including special meetings, attendance and other matters of importance. An impressive ceremony for the formal opening of the Grand Lodge Dec. 4 at 9:45 a. m. will include a grand procession of the Grand Master, past Grand Masters and Grand Lodge officers; followed by a salute to the United States flag, Grand Junior Warden Rogers Kelley of Edinburg will deliver the address.

Six Waco Blue lodges will have charge of the pre-opening program which will include presentation of the Baylor A Capella choir under the direction of Prof. Robert Hopkins. The A Capella choir of 75 voices, founded 10 years ago, is recognized as one of the outstanding musical organizations of the southwest.

Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dallas, and Dr. Max Strang, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Dallas, will address Masons on the first day of the two-day communication.

Mrs. Hagaman Gives Review for Hamill's, Inc.

Mrs. Leslie Hagaman gave a delightful review of "Mr. Skeffington" by Elizabeth when she was presented by Hamill's, Inc., at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the lobby of the store. An unusually large audience heard the review, and later viewed the new line of gifts recently added to the store's merchandise.

Preceding the review Mrs. Eva Hamill presented a showing of Lettie Lee dresses with Mrs. W. J. Van Bibber, Mrs. Fred Yonker and Miss Mary Croom serving as models.

Rebekahs Have Luncheon
The members of Ranger Rebekah lodge met at the home of Mrs. Eula Blackwell Thursday for a covered dish luncheon.

The rooms were decorated with pot plants and fall flowers. At noon a bountiful luncheon was served to the following: Mrs. Lovie Calder, Lena McDonough, Grandma Ready, Bessie Harris, Kate Morris, Viola Cash and Mary Margaret, R. C. Carville, Thelma Bott, Jewel Green, Mae Eyley, Fannie Robinson, Anna Mae Robinson, Laura Melton, Eula Blackwell and Mrs. A. E. Hudnall, Bunkie Louisiana.

Betty Joe Stie Entertained
Mrs. Joe Stie entertained Thursday afternoon from 3:30 to 5 o'clock with a birthday party complimenting her daughter, Mary

Joe. At the close of the social hour refreshments carrying out a pink and green color scheme were served to the following: Judy McGown, Joyce Willingham, Alice Jackson, Betty June Jackson, Lelia Gay Stringfellow, Mary Joe Wenchell, Jimmie Don Mills, Richard Davis, Douglas Willingham, Parks Bell, Jr., Michael Hull, Alvis Jackson and Mary Joe.

Mrs. Stie was assisted in entertaining by Meses. Pete Donham, Chester Jackson and Miss Genevieve Dodd.

Just a Bit Personal . . .

Mrs. Aaron Bell has been called to the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Love, who is seriously ill at her home in Farmersville.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Sims and children, of McKinney, formerly of Ranger, are here visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Champion of Bowie will arrive tomorrow for a visit with Mr. Champion's mother, Mrs. Frank Champion, and other relatives.

Billie Ann Burk, a student at St. Joseph's Academy in Abilene is the holiday guest of her mother, Mrs. Polly Burk.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuqua Lovell were surprised by a reunion of children and grandchildren on the Thanksgiving holidays and those present were Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Lovell and son, Los Angeles; Mrs. W. F. Ash and daughter, Long Beach; Mrs. B. R. Lawrence and daughter, Tulsa; Mrs. Preston Reeder and son, Port Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lovell, Fort Worth, and three grandsons, Dallas.

GHOST OF DOLLAR DIPLOMACY RISES TO HAUNT GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY, ROCKEFELLER FINDS

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—One of the big things keeping Nelson Rockefeller busy these days is the fact that Latin Americans can't quite forget the U. S. marines and dollar diplomacy.

Catton

Saddled with the lengthy title of co-ordinator for the National Defense Commission of Cultural and Commercial Relations with Latin America, young Rockefeller has become chief salesman, field marshal and kink-remover for the whole good neighbor policy.

The Latins like the policy fine, he says, but they keep wondering: "Is this real, and if so, how long does it last? Are those people trying to help us or to exploit us? If they're helping us, is it for keeps or just while the war lasts?"

"I realize we're under suspicion," he says. "Right now this office is studying all the plans people have suggested for helping the Latin Americans and making them like us better. We've got to improve our cultural relations in two directions—our own people must do their part to know and like the Latin Americans better, too."

There are two angles to this policy, as he sees it. Improvement of our cultural relations has got to be built on improvement of trade relations. If the Latins can be convinced that what we're doing in the field of trade and commerce is going to make them permanently better off, and isn't just another form of exploitation, then they'll be interested in reading our books, exchanging students with us, learning our language and listening to our radio programs.

In the commercial field, Rockefeller has to act as a sort of liaison man. Commerce Department is trying to help U. S. exporters increase their sales in South America. Agriculture is helping the South Americans develop new commodities—such as rubber—for sale to the United States. State Department and Import-Export Bank experts are puzzling about dollar exchange, about getting capital for new industries and public improvements in the southern continent and about disposal of commodity surpluses.

It's up to Rockefeller to see that each group of experts knows what the other groups are doing and that the whole job is co-ordinated properly.

Building on that, there is to be a broad program in the cultural field. Some $3,000,000 has been allotted for this work. There is a committee on communications—composed of Karl Biekel, John Hay Whitney and Don Francisco—to handle newspaper, motion picture and radio propaganda. Another group is being formed to deal with music, art and books.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

ROCKEFELLER frankly admits he doesn't know precisely what will be done in these various fields. First job, he says, is to figure out just what sort of stuff the South Americans themselves want. He may send out some sort of poll, or questionnaires, to find out.

"We're way behind some other countries in this field, and we can't catch up in a month, or even in a year," he says. "I rather think, though, that the franker we are in our propaganda—the more directly we learn how to say 'We want you to like us, and this is the way we do things, and we hope you like our methods,' the more successful we shall be."

"The first thing we've got to do is learn their language," he adds. "I want to popularize Spanish and Portuguese in American schools, as well as popularize English in South American schools. We've got to get acquainted with them at the same time that we make them acquainted with us."

Calf Feeding With Home Grown Feed Being Tried Out

LUBBOCK, Texas.—Use of home-produced feeds in feeding out small bunches of calves is the object of an experiment being conducted by the Texas Technological college animal husbandry department, W. L. Stangel, head professor, said.

Grain sorghum stubble on the college farm will be used for "roughing in" twenty calves, the roughage to be supplemented with cottonseed cake and possibly some oats pasture in late winter or early spring.

When sudan pasture becomes available, Stangel said, that will be used until late summer. Then the animals will be put on full feed, in lots, with a ration designed to fatten them economically.

MR. GAGE SAYS RELIEF ALMOST FROM THE START

The Relief Hoyt's Gave For Gas, Bloating, Headaches and Dizzy Spells Leaves Him Feeling Fit

MR. HARRY GAGE

Mr. Harry Gage, 555 E. 11th Ave., Denver, states: "Acid indigestion would come on me shortly after every meal; at night, my stomach would fill with gas and cause such awful pains I could not get to sleep until midnight. It felt like a solid mass in my stomach and I would lie awake for hours. I had frequent headaches and dizzy spells. I had always had to take strong physics to get relief from constipation."

"After taking three bottles of Hoyt's Compound, I am pleased with the way it helped me from the start. I can eat about anything now without attack of gas and bloating. I now sleep well and do not have those headaches or dizzy spells. My bowels are regulated. I have more vitality and feel fit. I can heartily recommend Hoyt's Compound."

Hoyt's Compound is sold by the Texas Drug Store and all leading drug stores in this area.

Famous Magician To Be Presented Here Next Monday Night

What has been termed a "big indoor circus" is being brought to Ranger Monday night, under the auspices of the Ranger High School Band, when Dr. Gaffney, famous magician, will be presented at the High School Auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Gaffney and his company will present a full evening of entertainment filled with baffling mystery and illusions. More than a ton of stage equipment is carried for the performance, all of which is handled with a skill that has required years of practice.

Dr. Gaffney is the only survivor of the famous Kerral Troup of magicians, and he has recently returned from a tour of the Orient where he studied under some of the famous Hindu performers.

Illusions to be featured in the performance will include the Egyptian mummy case, the phantom case, the Chinese dove mystery and dozens of others, including the famous vanishing princess, which was originated by Dr. Gaffney, in which he presents Viola, the "fastest vanishing human being in existence." Another of Dr. Gaffney's features is his demonstration of thought transmission.

RAZOR DESTROYS EYE

SHEREVEPORT La.—A razor blade falling off a cabinet shelf cost 15-months-old Mary Elizabeth Herrington the sight of her right eye. The child crawling on the floor, jarred the cabinet and dislodged the blade from the shelf. She looked up as the blade struck her in the eye.
