SET-UP FOR LITTLE MAN TO BE PLANNED

By BOYD LEWIS
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—Representatives of labor, management and civic interests today began setting up a permanent organization in 11 midwestern states to save non-defense industry from destruction so that soldiers now in the military forces "will have something to come back to when the emergency is over."

Plans were made at a conference of unemployment due to priorities for local, regional and state organizations. Delegates took the project home to their communities in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Before adjournment last night, the conference resolved that:

Curtailment of business activities in non-defense industries is inevitable.

Necessity of rationing of raw materials and priority control is recognized.

In order to promote unity and maintain morale and keep unemployment to a minimum, Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and other members of the new supply priorities and allocations board should complete as quickly as possible their survey of defense needs and available supplies of strategic materials.

Completion of the survey, all possible steps should be taken to avoid serious dislocations in non-defense industries.

During the conversion of non-defense industries, priorities should be allotted with the aim of maintaining maximum local employment.

The conference urged that representatives of labor and management be incorporated in the staffs of all regional defense contract services.

The conference adopted these resolutions after hearing speakers assert that great industrial dislocation is inevitable and many small firms face shut downs, that unemployment and "ghost towns" are the inescapable result of tooling for guns, tanks and chemicals instead of ice boxes, pleasure cars and cosmetics.

Twelve more directors will be chosen at regional conferences.

Law Enforcement Feels The Pinch of Defense Program

By United Press
DALLAS, Texas—Law enforcement has felt the pinch of the defense program.

The Dallas police department, which in former years had a plentiful supply of applicants, was forced to advertise for 150 special policemen. They will work during 16 days of the Texas state fair, which starts Oct. 4.

Police Chief J. M. Welch said booming defense industry had created a shortage of the kind of men he wants—"young, strong, able to take care of themselves." Welch said he would hire men in their 50's if necessary, provided they still are able-bodied.

Map-makers will assist this year in keeping order at the fair grounds. A diagram has been prepared showing last year's "trouble spots." The officers will be dispersed over the grounds accordingly, Welch said.

Art Student Now On Baylor Faculty

By United Press
WACO, Texas—Enrique Ramirez, who paid his way through Baylor University by doing art work, was graduated last month. Today, he had been added to the Baylor faculty.

Ramirez, known as "Henry" to fellow students, came to Waco from his San Antonio home a few years ago. He had little money but considerable natural ability.

Ramirez chose art as his major subject and Spanish, the language he had spoken from infancy, as his minor. He made his expenses by doing art work for the university and commercially for Waco firms. During the last year, he designed and executed two murals at Baylor.

"We felt such perseverance and ability should be rewarded," President Pat M. Neff of Baylor said. Ramirez will teach Spanish and art.

Antique Division Of County Fair To Feature Old Glass

Every year more and more women of Eastland County take up the hobby of collecting antiques and old glass, and the Antique Division of the Eastland County Fair Association would like to place these rare pieces on exhibit at the County Fair, scheduled for the 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th of September, it was stated by the division chairman, Mrs. W. C. Whaley.

The Antique Division plans to make the project educational as well as picturesque with old glass as the feature, but said Mrs. Whaley, a number of other antiques will be exhibited with the histories told of the various pieces. Family heirlooms of old settlers of the county have been promised for the display, it was announced.

The antiques display will be arranged in the place used at last year's exhibit in the old lumber yard. Mrs. Whaley, who recently moved here from Gladewater, is chairman and has as her assistants Mrs. Allen D. Dabney Sr., Mrs. Jack Muirhead, Mrs. Olney Black, Mrs. Artie Lyles and Mrs. W. E. Chaney.

Collectors of this territory are making plans to form an Antique Club, and all who are interested are asked to register at the Antique exhibit room at the fair, it was announced.

Mrs. Whaley invites every one in Eastland county who have antique glass and other rare pieces to display them this year. Displays should be brought to the lumber yard building Wednesday, Sept. 24, before the fair opens, in order that it may be arranged.

GULF STORM EXPECTED TO MISS TEXAS

Texas will escape the full force of a tropical storm churning high tides along the Gulf coast from Carrabelle, Fla., to Sabine, Texas, and threatening lives and property in southern Louisiana, the U. S. Weather Bureau said today.

Although the disturbance was moving west-northwestward, weatherman Andrew Hamrick said changing pressure conditions probably will cause it to veer toward the east. Winds up to 70 miles an hour were indicated tonight on the southeast Louisiana seaboard. Persons in low, exposed places in that area were advised to seek refuge.

Storm warnings were extended to Sabine from Lake Charles, La. Substantial rains were predicted for the upper coast, on the fringe of the disturbance, as showers moved across North Texas.

Moisture was fairly general during the last 24 hours in a region extending east from El Paso to Lubbock and south almost to the Gulf. Temperatures were seasonal.

Heaviest overnight precipitation was at Spur, which had 1.26 inches. Crosbyton reported 1.03 and Lubbock .84.

Northeast storm warnings were ordered extended today from Lake Charles, La., to Sabine, Texas, in the face of a tropical disturbance with 60 to 75 miles per hour winds at its center.

The disturbance was central at 6 A. M. (CST) about 70 miles south of Grand Isle, La., and apparently moving west-northwestward at six to seven miles per hour, the Weather Bureau said.

The storm warnings now extend from Carrabelle, Fla., to Sabine. The Weather Bureau said that winds of gale force, up to 60 miles an hour in the more southerly portions, were indicated today on the southeast Louisiana coast.

24-Year-Old Beer Found In Garage

TEMPLE, Texas—T. J. Laramey, Temple implement dealer, recently built a new home. When carpenters tore down the old one they found in the garage 10 dozen bottles of beer. The date on the labels: 1917.

Laramey explained. Bell county voted dry in 1917, he said. He was sending a truck to San Antonio one day, so he had the driver pick up the beer and a case of whiskey.

"During the war," he said, "I heard that the soldiers were suffering from the 'flu' and that the Army doctors needed good whiskey. One day my wife and I drove down and turned that case over to the camp doctor. You never saw a more appreciative man."

Corn Festival Is Planned at Granger

GRANGER, Texas—The fourth annual Texas State Corn Carnival at Granger, Sept. 24-25, will feature marketing corn by feeding it to livestock. A balanced livestock program is the goal of the carnival association.

Reigning over this year's carnival will be Alice Bartosh, who will have in her court a score of duchesses from as many towns. Gov. Coke Stevenson has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address, and hundreds of former Granger residents will be back for a "home-coming party."

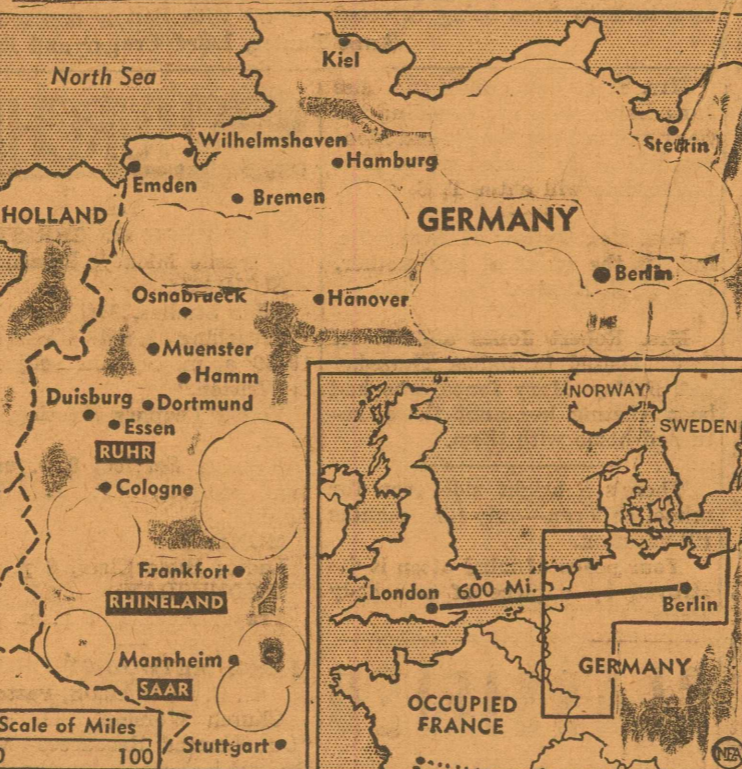

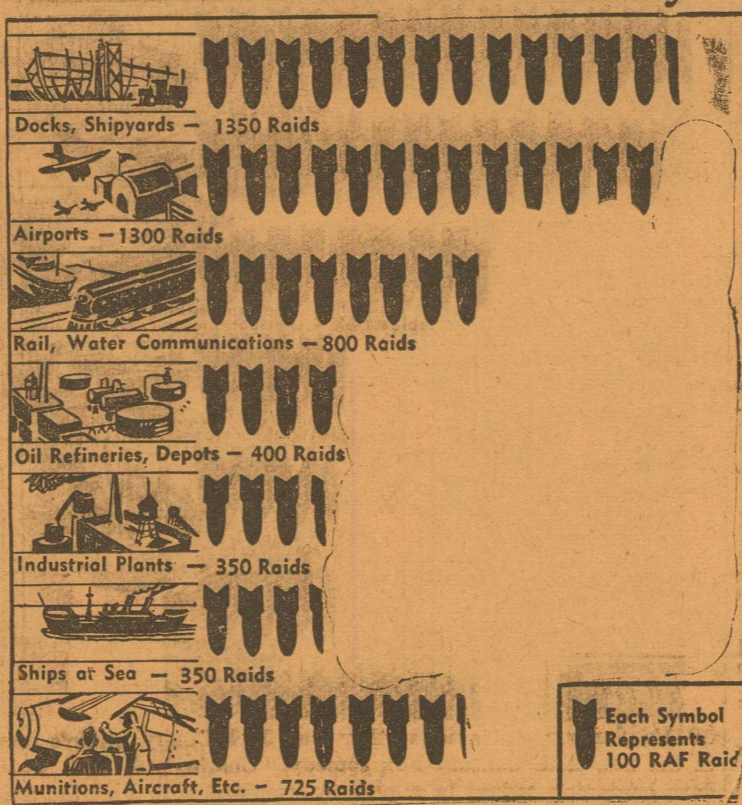

Entertainment features of the carnival will include a rodeo. Official corn products week in Texas is to be observed on Sept. 21-27, inclusive.

Mineral Wells To Have Golf Meet September 18 to 21

The Mineral Wells Invitation Golf Tournament will be held on Sept. 18-19-20-21—and indications point to a large attendance by championship flight golfers from all sections of Texas—especially from the West Texas area. The program calls for qualifying on Thursday, Sept. 18 until 3:00 p. m. with a stag banquet and calcutta pool that night at the new Club House.

Match play will start Friday morning and continue through Sunday, with 36-hole finals in the Championship flight and eighteen-hole finals in all other flights and consolation.

RAF Rains Wrath on Germany

Swinging into its fall bombing campaign on Germany with the most intensified attacks of the war, the RAF is rapidly adding to its score of more than 5000 raids on Nazi targets since September, 1939. Chart shows principal objectives of these raids, and map spots cities continually hit the hardest by the British bombers.

Cops Win Jackpot In Knockout Game

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 13.—Six youthful sportsmen stood on the corner of Seventh and Main streets early today with nothing on their hands but time.

"I'll tell you," said the oldest who was 21, "Let's get up a pool."

"A pool on what?" asked one. "Its like this, see. Well each chip in two-bits. That'll make a dollar and a half. Then we'll jump the first pedestrian that comes along. The first man who knocks him down wins the pot. How about it?"

The six sportsmen agreed that the oldest, who was 21, had a capital idea.

Soon an elderly man, bald-headed and bulb-nosed, sauntered down the street towards the mid-city corner where he had hoped to catch a bus for home.

The gamblers jumped on him. Ironically the 15-year-old who was the youngest landed the kyo punch and collected the $1.50. It was high railway, so they gathered another pot, same entry fee, same rules.

Another man came blissfully along and was swung to the sidewalk. Who won this pot was not divulged, but another was soon built up. The third late walker suffered the same fate.

As this was sport! The youths called for another pot which was collected rapidly. Two strangers won this pot.

They were police officers Winfred Kerney and Howard Wilkinson.

The youths repented in the city jail today. Victims said they would not prefer charges.

If Entering School Registrants Should See Local Board

Registrants who contemplate resuming attendance at schools this month should first consult their local boards to ascertain approximately how soon they may be called for military training, General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director, announced today.

While deferments from military training are being granted students who are preparing to enter certain occupations in which shortages of manpower exist or are indicated, General Page said, there are no group or blanket deferments. Each case must be acted upon individually by the local board having jurisdiction, and unless a student can qualify as a "necessary man" under Selective Service Regulations he is liable to be called for induction when his order number is reached, he said.

It is the policy of the Selective Service System to be as lenient as possible within the law in the cases of young men who are earnestly pursuing educational opportunities, even though they are not seeking to qualify for an occupation that is exceptionally important for National Defense. My advice to these young men, therefore, is to consult with their local boards and find out when they will probably be called to qualify for military training. If the probability is more remote than three months or so, they may begin their studies with the understanding that they can at least complete one semester. In the same way it may seem probable, according to their order numbers, that they can complete a full year.

The general policy, General Page said, will be one of cooperation between the student and his local board with the object of not causing a sudden interruption of studies or financial loss to the student through inability to continue through a semester for which tuition has been paid. This, he said, can be accomplished by the student consulting with his local board before commencing a semester and by the local board granting a stay of induction until the end of such period to a student who is called for military training.

There are a number of specialized professions, General Page pointed out, for which students who give reasonable promise of becoming acceptable practitioners are being deferred on recommendation of the Office of Production Management. Procedure for the deferment of such students has been worked out by the American Council of Education in collaboration with National Selective Service headquarters. It is set forth in Bulletin No. 10, issued by the Council, and provides for getting into the hands of the local board of a "Student Statement of Information" concerning his plans and status, and an affidavit by his college or university in which the college officials testify as to his standing, courses and occupational objectives, together with a general evaluation of the student as a "necessary man" for occupational deferment.

NAZI AND SOVIET REPORTS INDICATE MAJOR BATTLE IS FIERCEST OF PRESENT WAR

Kiev Sector Is Reported As One Critical Phase

Soviet dispatches, indicating one of the fiercest and perhaps most important conflicts of the war in progress between Kiev and Bryansk, reported that:

1—A great Russian drive against 12 German divisions centered at Trubechevsk, 60 miles southwest of Bryansk, smashed two enemy tank corps (an army corps is three divisions) and three infantry divisions, recapturing 26 villages and continued pursuit.

2—A Russian counterblow climaxing a two-month battle for Kiev drove the enemy from heights in the suburbs and continued the attack "allowing them no rest." These dispatches said four enemy divisions had been smashed in the two-month conflict around Kiev.

3—Scattered but ceaseless counterattacks continued against the Germans on the Smolensk sector of the central front and the village of Steolovo was recaptured after the Germans had failed in several attempts to gain the offensive.

4—Leningrad and Odessa continued to hold firm against enemy encirclement and Russian counterattacks south of Leningrad appeared to be gaining ground.

The fighting around Kiev was described in a dispatch by Major Gen. K. Dobrosodov to the newspaper Izvestia, which said that the Germans sent in the 71st and 299th divisions in August to reinforce the shattered 44th and 59th divisions attacking the city.

"The Germans with this weight of numbers reached the suburb of Stalinka and the Golsyev woods, a height commanding the city," the dispatch said. "Our troops and artillery drove them out and gave the Coup de Grace to the 95th and 44th divisions, also routing the 71st and 299th divisions which lost 70 per cent of their manpower."

He said the Russians continued to attack and that the German bombers had not yet been able to attack Kiev "due to valiant defense" by the Red air force which "downed 130 enemy planes."

Russian correspondents also reported from the vital central sector northeast of Gomel that the German "blitz" on Bryansk had failed despite attack with 12 divisions in a four-day battle.

The Russians cut off the German armored wedges and counter-attacked with tanks, infantry, artillery and aircraft to break up the offensive toward Bryansk, the dispatches said.

The correspondents said that Russian tanks were then seen lumbering westward along muddy, rain-drenched roads and fields and through burning villages, still pursuing the routed panzer units.

Nazis Throwing Full Weight Upon The Soviet Front

By Frederick C. Oechsner
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 13.—The German supreme command has thrown the full weight of the German air force against Russian armies on all sectors of the Russian front, competent German quarters said today.

Northern armies were claimed to have crushed more of Leningrad's defenses after a series of blasting, rolling attacks by the luftwaffe. German planes were reported to have flung "a hurricane of fire" over Leningrad's outer ring of fortifications.

Similar operations were said to have damaged Russian forces in the central sector and in the south. Usually well informed quarters indicated that the German drive southeast of Gomel had nearly reached Konotop, 100 miles northeast of Kiev. These quarters believed that another large-scale German pincer movement may be in progress southeast of Konotop and northwest of the Knieper bend to create a pocket between Kiev, Konotop and Kharkov.

Competent German quarters would not confirm Russian reports that the Red army had evacuated Chernigov, some 80 miles north of Kiev.

The competent German quarters said that yesterday rolling air attacks also were made on field positions and lines of communications in the Ukraine and the Crimea, "constituting important preparations for ground operations."

"It was claimed that a number of Russian motorized columns were 'destroyed' and that a concentration of 29 transport trains had been wrecked.

Competent quarters said the Germans had resumed an advance on the Murmansk front in the far north. Details were withheld but it was said that additional information on these operations would be given out later.

Smashing attacks by the air force near Leningrad yesterday were described in preparation for an advance by ground troops. It was claimed that the heaviest air raid of the war was made on Leningrad Friday morning.

A propaganda company reporter said that "squadron after squadron of the luftwaffe circled over tank traps, trenches and pill boxes, quickly identifying their objectives."

"Wave after wave of attacking dive bombers went into position to attack and then dived on concrete blockhouses and fortified field positions," the dispatch said. "With a single blow an entire sector became a cloud of explosions and was transformed into a fiery front. Bursting bombs hurled pieces of concrete and steel high into the air and silenced heavy Soviet guns."

German planes operating on other sectors were said to have "seriously disrupted Soviet rear communications."

Self-Encirclement

One hears the word "encirclement" used very often these days in discussions of the affairs of nations. The Japanese claim they are being "encircled." The Germans, back before World War I, always claimed they were being "encircled." They claimed they were being "encircled" just before this World War II broke out.

What is "encirclement," anyway? Every country in the world is encircled, in the sense that there are other countries around it. Clearly, then, "encirclement" has little to do with pure geography, since in that sense every country is perpetually encircled.

The term must mean more than that.

It means not only "surrounded by other countries," which is true of every country, but "surrounded by other countries with whom it is on bad terms, and from whom it may expect ill will."

The United States does not regard itself as encircled by Canada and Mexico. Japan, in the happy days before it got delusions of grandeur, didn't regard its chain of tiny islands as encircled. Switzerland, tiny land in the very midst of Europe, has never had encirclement jitters, though it is completely surrounded by countries larger and more powerful than itself.

No country is encircled unless its neighbors fear, dislike and distrust it. Then they begin to seek ways of combining together to make a joint and effective resistance to possible aggression. And when they do that, encirclement of the distrusted country begins.

In other words, a country is encircled by itself. A country which maintains good-neighborly relations with its neighbors, which has good will toward them and does not covet their lands or goods or position, is never encircled in the vicious sense in which the term is used politically.

There is only one way for a country to avoid encirclement: in time of peace to adopt such policies and attitudes toward its neighbors as to lead them to trust it and cooperate with it. When the reverse policies are adopted, then those neighbors combine, driven by the fear which is the source of all international hatreds.

"Encirclement" is the most false of all excuses for aggression, for no country is encircled save by itself alone.

Don't put too much faith in moonshine just because it's aged in the woods.

Why is it the fattest people always sit between you and the aisle?

SERIAL STORY

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Associate magazine editor Judy Allen is still anxious to fly west to see aviator Sandy Ammerman, downed on a test flight, even though she learns he is safe instead of in danger as first reports indicated.

PICTURE OF A GIRL

CHAPTER IV

"DON'T you see that we aren't exactly needed?" Phil asked seriously. "Listen to sense, Judy. The long distance telephone message to Skyways vouched for everything."

"I'm probably half-cracked or something, Phil. You're sweet and right and you win. So forget about my lavish plans—I only have $900 in the bank, and it wouldn't pay the way of a privately engaged plane. I'll see you later."

A call to Skyways added just enough additional information to give impetus to Judy's hesitant plans.

"Ammerman's sticking by his ship," a suave voice said. "Will be nearly a week until the plane is ready for a return trip."

"Is he hurt?" She needed reassurance.

"Oh, a few scratches when he landed. Wait a minute, you're the voice that belongs to Ammerman's fiancée. We haven't your name, in case we get more messages." The voice waited.

More messages. . . . It might be wise to leave her name and number even though she was leaving for a week. She gave the information in a voice that was slow and soft. Then she changed costumes. During the conversation she had decided to go immediately to the Union Station of the Air. She would engage reservations on the first plane for the west.

She slipped into a rust blouse that held the sheen of her hair, a purple hat that was small and gay and demure. Her gloves were bronze.

She grinned at herself in the long mirror in the door of her bathroom. "Never accent an accent color," she told herself. "If I do, you'll look speckled." She remembered that Philip had seen this outfit one evening and had liked it. He had said nice things about it as though such words often lingered on his tongue.

Sandy had seen it, too. He had whistled and nodded approvingly. "No adjectives for my splendor?" she had asked lightly. "How can there be when I'd adore you in a gingham apron, my darling?" he asked. After a second he had formed another question. "Does an ensemble like that empty your elephant bank?"

No, this ensemble hadn't. It was a pattern costume made up for Under Twenty and bought at the wholesale price. It was the silver fox jacket that she slipped over the purple suit that had made a dent in her bank account. She would wear the jacket and carry the polo coat.

The taxicab that she summoned took her uptown to the Union Station of the Air. No plane could provide reservations for Chicago until 5 o'clock. She took the first seat that was available and then entered the coach that was leaving for LaGuardia Field. Once there she promenade the terminal, gazing at its 36 clocks at least three times apiece. She saw part of a movie in the small cinema theater arranged for people who waited between ships. She ordered a sandwich on the terrace, and sat while lights began to twinkle in the vast immensity of space about her, as ships came in like gigantic lightning bugs.

Her plane was called at last. She hurried through the glassed-in underpass to her seat. Small electric letters warned all passengers to "Fasten Seat Belts." This was easy enough to do. She stirred uneasily. None of the afternoon editions had given any news concerning Sandy other than that he had been located, was slightly scratched, had a broken rib or two, and that the fuel he had been testing was in no way responsible for the accident. Then what had been to blame for the disappearance and reappearance of a silver-winged monoplane? Just where was Sandy?

The ship was ready to take off when Judy glanced through her window. Phil was running toward her, waving a yellow telegram, trying to attract her attention. She started to rise, but the belt held her securely in place. She tried to signal that he should forward the message to the airport at Chicago.

Whether he understood or not she did not know. The huge transport was moving down the runway, gaining its freedom as it rose for a final circling of the field. A star or two shot through the darkness and found its reflection in the seaplane basin. There were transports everywhere, some that would leave swiftly, some that waited for another day. Perhaps if she had come with Sandy nothing would have happened.

Only, no one would have approved such a trip, unless she and Sandy were married at the City Hall or the Little Church Around the Corner before the westward trek began. And that night she had not been sure. Why had she hesitated? Why had she waved so gaily when Sandy went away? She knew now what she wanted. It wouldn't be many more hours until she could tell the daring young aviator she would like a permanent seat in his plane.

RELIEVED, she fell asleep and did not waken until the liner taxied down the field to a halt. There was a moment's delay as it prepared to release its passengers. She gathered her pocket-book, bag, and the extra coat and hurried down the steps.

A messenger boy was calling her name. So Phil had caught her signal and relayed her message. She handed the boy a quarter and hurried to the corner of a long coffee counter. Her fingers trembled as she tore the envelope's flap.

She read: DARLING STOP AM PERFECTLY SAFE STOP DELAY OF NO IMPORTANCE STOP I LOVE YOU SANDY

Suddenly the other passengers seated at the counter became aware that the girl in the purple suit had gold candles in her violet eyes, that her hair was like fire-light, her eyebrows and her gay red mouth flew upward. She moved as though she belonged to wings and high winds. All this, because she had read a message on a telegraph blank.

There was such a brief space from grief to Paradise, such a brief space from world's end to world's beginning. Sandy had said, "I love you" . . . sped the three words on shining wings so she could smile again . . . and now all skies were bright, and every outgoing flyer a magic carpet primed for heaven.

Because she had seen no papers for several hours, Judy hurried to a news stand and asked for several. She verified the time of her plane's departure, then sat down to read any new words about the tall young aviator with bright, rough hair and a crooked grin.

Suddenly the paper rustled, would have slid to the floor if she hadn't pulled it back. There was Sandy's picture, a news picture that she had always liked. Dear, lovable, laughing. But there was another picture with it, under the same heading—the picture of a girl's face, surrounded by hair that undoubtedly was golden. (To Be Continued)

Red Cross Station To Meet Tuesday

Mrs. J. J. Kelly, chairman of the Ranger Red Cross Station, which has been inactive for several months, announced Saturday that new materials had been received and the station would again work on clothing for needy British.

A meeting has been called for Tuesday morning, at 9:30, at the First Presbyterian church, when the work will be outlined and the station will again become operative.

All who are in any way interested in the movement, whether they can sew or not, have been urged to attend the meeting. All knitters have also been urged to be present.

It is expected that work will actually start on Thursday morning.

not seen are eternal" (II Corinthians 4:18).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Praise ye the Lord. Praise ye the Lord from the heavens; praise him in the heights . . . Praise ye him, sun and moon; praise him, all ye stars of light . . . Let them praise the name of the Lord: for he commanded, and they were created" (Psalms 148:1,3,5).

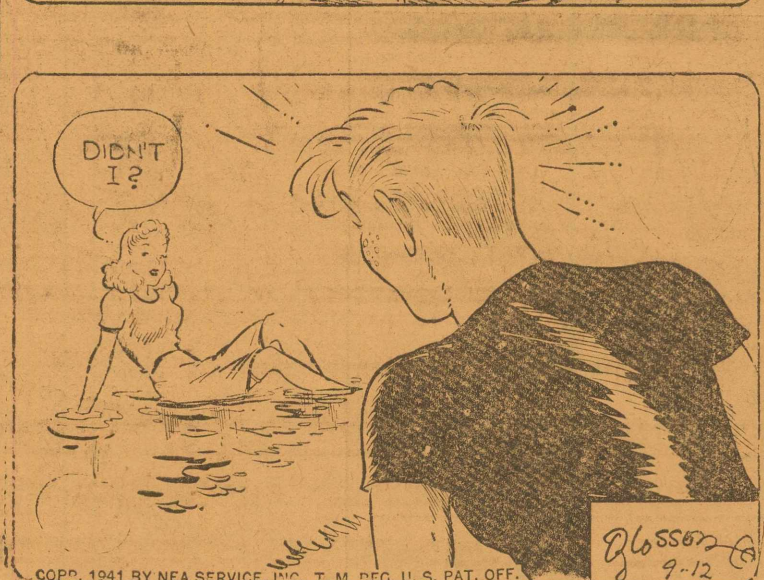

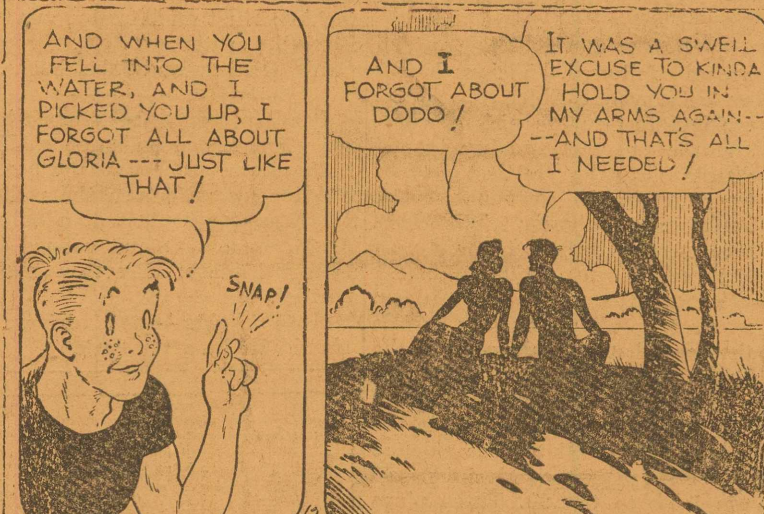

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God, the great I AM; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving, and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love; all substance; intelligence" (page 587).

Use More Eggs Committee Urges

Eggs are a year-round protective food—and every member of the family should have at least an egg a day. Eggs will play an important part in improving the health defense of the nation.

Grady Pipkin, chairman of the Eastland County Food Industry Committee said.

Eggs are included on the September list of "Blue Stamp Foods" of the Surplus Marketing Administration, and can be obtained with blue food order stamps. The Surplus Marketing Administration and other government agencies with the aid of farmers, industry and consumers are working together to build a stronger, healthier America, Mr. Pipkin explained.

"We are especially anxious for everyone in this community to use more fresh eggs," he said. "Eggs are a bargain at all times. Nutritionists recommend an egg a day for everyone in the family, if at all possible. Eggs are body builders. The protein in the yolk and the white is the efficient kind that is needed by the body for growth and repair of tissues. The yolk is especially rich in iron, the mineral that helps form red blood cells. Many diets are very low in iron. Eggs also supply calcium, another mineral that is found to be low in many diets. They are also rich in phosphorus. Vitamins that are found in eggs are A, B1, D and G—all so essential to our daily health.

"Homemakers who follow the practice of cooking all eggs dishes at low temperatures are well on the way to mastering egg cooking technique. The delicate protein in egg becomes tough when it is cooked for too long a time or at too high a temperature.

"I hope all homemakers will serve more eggs. There are many new and tempting ways to prepare eggs, not only will they be enjoyed by every member of the family, but they will help keep the family well," Mr. Pipkin concluded.

since the closing game of the 1939 season.

The Bulldogs, in winning over the Panthers, looked more offensive and more like a ball club than they have in years, and it was not the size of the score, so much as the way in which it was made that made them look good. Only nine varieties of plays, including one pass play and the punt, leaving but seven running plays, were used in the game to score once in the first, once in the second and twice in the third quarters.

Blocking, particularly in open field, was the prettiest part of the whole game, and even eclipsed the ball carrying department, which usually comes in for most of the praise from the grandstand. To say that there was a standout player on the field Friday night would be misrepresenting facts, because, almost without exception, the Bulldogs tried in their game with snap, vigor and in a manner that showed they knew what they wanted, then went out and got it. The timing and play was a little ragged, in spots, which was to be expected after only 10 days of practice, but on the whole the game was satisfactory from every standpoint.

The Bulldogs, too anxious at first, played a smashing first quarter, then slowed down a little, without letting down, probably because few were in condition to keep up the early game pace.

Too anxious on the start the Bulldogs manufactured a couple of bad breaks, which they quickly overcame. On the opening kickoff the ball was fumbled by Gorman and downed on the one-yard line, to put Gorman in a bad hole. But Ranger was offside, and a kickoff made from the 35-yard line. After three Gorman plays failed a weak punt put the ball on the Gorman 46—in Ranger's possession. On the first play from scrimmage Bill Brown scamper-1 off for 23 yards, but a clipping penalty brought the ball back to the 50.

Nine plays later, with Brown, White and Elder carrying, Elder plunged over for the first touchdown of the game, going over his right tackle on a reverse.

Gorman failed to click in the first half, gaining but 11 yards from scrimmage and failing to make a first down.

The Bulldogs scored again near the end of the second quarter after Gorman had kicked off to the Ranger 40. Ven White, playing the safety position, took the ball and, behind some beautiful blocking that took out all but one of the Gorman players, raced back to the Gorman 20. Three plays, a 10-yard sprint by Bill Brown, a three yard-plunge by Elder and a seven yard buck by Brown carried over for the tally.

As the second half opened Gorman kicked off to Ranger and the Bulldogs marched right back to a touchdown without losing the ball, though one near-costly play ended in a touchdown. After the ball had been advanced to the Gorman 12, a bad passback from center was fumbled by Brown and rolled back to the 29. Brown picked it up, circled to his right and appeared trapped. Suddenly his blockers, seeing how the play had gone, circled back, cut down Gorman tacklers like tenpins in a bowling alley and cleared a path-way clear to the goal line, which Brown followed. Vicious blocks by Williams and Elder cleared out tacklers just in the nick of time, and the perfect timing turned disaster into the prettiest play of the game, with nearly everyone having eyes only for the blockers who were turning in timely assistance to set up the tally.

The fourth and last touchdown was set up almost exactly as was the second. Gorman kicked to the Ranger 45, where Blackwell, playing in a blocking position for the two safety men, tucked in the short punt, raced to the sideline where he picked up blockers, and ran back to the 20. Three plays carried over, with Elder lugging the ball, but an offside put the ball back on the nine. Elder's next try was good and he went over his left tackle to score standing up.

All points after touchdown were missed, two being attempted drop kicks and two passes, one of which connected but was a yard short. This was one of the weakest departments of the Bulldog offense. Gorman took to the air in the last half, tossing 11 passes, two of which were completed, one for nine yards and one for a one-yard loss. It was inability of the passer, T. A. Brown, to find his men rather than the Bulldog defense that made the passes ineffective. Brown, a 170-pound fullback, found a weakness in the center of the Ranger line in the last few minutes of play and accounted for most of his team's 52 yards from scrimmage over that spot in the late minutes of the game, though the Panthers never seriously threatened to score. It was in the fourth quarter that Gorman first crossed the 50-yard line, going once to the Bulldog 45 and then again to the 35, where they had possession of the ball when the game ended.

Every man in uniform on the Ranger bench got a chance to play some in the game, with the second team playing nearly one-fourth of the game.

The standouts in the game were the blockers, with the linemen opening up wide gaps through which the backfield could easily gain.

Peepin' Thru The Knothole

With Bill Mayes

There just ain't no justice. Saturday morning we came to town as pleased as Punch about that 24 to 0 score, because we had wagered two-bits and had given 20 points.

First Bran Garner jumped on us because he had been reading this column—which makes two because Dr. Roswell read it the other day. Bran had gotten all excited over the Bulldog's chances and had given 30 points. He even suggested that we should pay his two-bit loss. Without success.

Then Coach Jennings jumped us out for giving that many points. Said it was bad psychology, or something. Just before he jumped on us, though, Otis Taft had complimented him on his psychology, and he passed the buck, saying this column furnished his psychology. Then, when we mentioned the two-bits he changed his mind right quick and decided he would handle that department himself.

Just between us and the two readers we don't even know what psychology means. Personally we think the prettiest play of the game was that third touchdown—the one made by Brown. It wasn't the run by Brown that caused so much comment, though, which is unusual. It was after the play went sour, turned in some neat blocking and paved the way for a touchdown, where a bad loss was in sight.

The blockers had driven through, as the play indicated. Then when they saw the passback had gone haywire and was rolling around far behind the line of scrimmage, instead of standing there and watching the game like they were cash customers they drifted back, well behind the scrimmage line, where most of the Gorman team was congregating by that time, and mowed them down, one by one, to clear a path to the goal line. The first two blocks were administered, without warning or ceremony, by Williams and Elder. There were a couple of others, too, farther on down the line, but things were happening so rapidly we just plumb forgot to check up on who they were and missed their names entirely. Of course there were about 10 blocking—which means all but the ball carrier and the waterboy, but there were two others who were just at the right places at the right time to prevent the play being stopped. When, and if, we find out who they were we will take our hat off to them. Figuratively or literally, or both.

Next week it is Eastland. The Mavericks played Friday, too, but so far we haven't heard how they made out. But the Mavericks always play better ball against the Bulldogs than anyone else, and win or lose yesterday they will probably be primed up by next Friday.
