VACCINES DISTRIBUTED FREE IN COUNTY WERE WORTH $4,078 IN 1940

AUSTIN, Texas.—Detailing some of the ways the State Department of Health is aiding each county in the prevention and control of communicable diseases, Doctor Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer, today revealed that the number of specimens examined and the amount of vaccines distributed free to Eastland County in 1940 by the State Hygienic Laboratories.

"The service rendered to this County is but one of twelve organized services set up to help you," Doctor Cox added.

The other services maintained by the State Department of Health include Vital Statistics, Food and Drug Inspection, Venereal Disease Control, Public Health Education, Tuberculosis Control, Sanitary Engineering, Maternal and Child Health, Nursing Service, Local Health Service, and Administration.

"The assistance rendered this one County in this one division of service will convey to you some idea of the scope of Texas' health program," Doctor Cox stated. "The State Department of Health operates on a state appropriation of Four Cents per person, which amounts to $1218.80 for this County. When compared to the return from only one of the 12 divisions in the State Department of Health, it is readily seen that Texans are getting much more health protection than they are paying for."

Judge To Assist Supreme Court To Take Office Nov. 1

AUSTIN.—Judge Few Brewster of Temple, who will become a member of the commission to assist the state supreme court on Nov. 1, was first president of the state bar of Texas. He was elected to that honor by the lawyers of the state when the state bar was established by act of the legislature a few years ago.

Judge Brewster is a native of Williamson county, 52 years old, a graduate of the University of Texas and of Baylor University, and was licensed to practice law in Texas in 1915. His family consists of his wife and four children.

The commission to assist the supreme court was established in 1918 because the great increase of law cases in Texas made it impossible for three Supreme Court Justices to keep up with the appeals from lower courts.

Two commissions to be known as "Commission A" and "Commission B" were created. Each was composed of three members. Each commission sat separately, heard arguments and submitted its decisions.

The original commissions were named by the governor. Later the system was changed and recent commissions have been appointed by the court.

Complaints of lawyers that decisions of the commissions were without value as precedents led to a practice of the commission opinions being submitted to the Supreme Court, which by adopting Supreme Court Justices. Now both commissions sit regularly with the three Supreme Court Justices and many cases involving important points of law are reserved for consideration by the nine judges.

Judge Brewster will be successor to the late Judge S. H. German of Livingston.

The State Court of Criminal Appeals also is assisted by commissioners. This court has but two commissioners. These commissioners likewise were named originally by the Governor but now are selected by the court.

Defense Guard Is Larger Than National Guard Of Year Ago

AUSTIN, Texas.—New Home Defense Guard already has climbed past the number that was in the National Guard when the latter went into federal service. At the last accounting, the Home Defense troops had 997 officers and 13,800 men. The war department has issued enough rifle bayonets and first aid kits to furnish one for each two men. The state furnishes a small amount of equipment, but the men buy their own uniforms and drill at least one and one-half hours weekly.

Tavern Signs Are Now Regulated By A State Law

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN.—Texas law limiting outdoor advertising at taverns has a dual purpose, State Liquor Administrator Bert Ford has advised the tavern keepers.

It does not seek to abolish outdoor advertising but to prevent cluttering up the premises. Its other purpose is to prevent expensive signs from being furnished as a means to control the business or policies of the establishment.

The law prohibits the use of many small cheap signs to prevent what the board terms "over-emphasis" of beer advertising by covering buildings, fences and approaches with beer signs.

A tavern keeper who permits such signs is likely to be equally careless about the interior of his tavern, Ford remarked. The law does not include in its definition of outdoor advertising newspaper or periodical ads, nor identifying labels placed on containers. But the term has been held by the board to include advertisements on menus and on service trays used outside the tavern, and on cards, handbills or novelties distributed outside the establishment. Regulations for these are to be issued later by the board. Immediate warning has been given that the board will prohibit any advertising of this sort that may be considered salacious or indecently suggestive.

Signs in violation of the new law took effect this month may remain until Feb. 1, 1942. Signs violating the regulations must come down at once if they were put up since Oct. 2.

The board has decided that the section of the law that permits one sign advertising beer in letters not more than a foot high may contain also notices to the public that food is served and that beer is on tap or on draught, provided the size of the lettering is observed. Old signs with brand names may remain if the brand is eliminated.

Many questions already have been asked the Liquor Control Board about construction of the new act. The questions illustrate some of the problems that can arise. One dealer was informed that he may lawfully have the word "beer" on both sides of a sign swung across a sidewalk so that it may be seen by persons approaching from both directions.

Another was told that use of brand names without connecting them with beer is considered a violation of the law. Signs may not be painted on the roofs nor sides of buildings, though billboards of the authorized 180 square feet size may be attached to buildings at the proper distance.

The 180-foot square size was adopted, Ford said, because that is the area of the standard nine by 20 foot billboard on which 24-sheet posters are placed.

Signs are held permissible on the inside of fences of ball parks, beer gardens and such places, but are not permissible if they are visible to the public outside.

Daniels Resigns As U.S. Ambassador to Republic of Mexico

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Josephus Daniels as United States Ambassador to Mexico.

Resignation of Daniels had been expected in Washington political circles for some time.

Before being appointed as Ambassador to Mexico Daniels was Secretary of the Navy during the first World War. During his regime as ambassador he was credited with cementing friendly relations between Mexico and the United States.

O'Daniel Asks For A Vote On Neutrality

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas, asked the Senate today to dispense with further debate on the neutrality revision bill and to vote now upon "whether the nation is neutral."

National Guards Retain Their Rights To Cast Ballots

AUSTIN.—A recent report that Alameda County, California, will deny voting franchise to all persons living on federal property—military bases, veterans' hospitals, and the like—recalled that Texas National Guardsmen and organized reserves retain their voting privilege, according to an opinion by Attorney General Gerald C. Mann last spring.

Selectees, regular army, navy and marine men cannot vote in Texas elections. But members of the citizens' militia can do so if they pay poll tax. The National Guardsmen number only about 13,000 men, but Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel was elected to the U. S. Senate over Lyndon Johnson by a smaller plurality in the state's most recent election.

The Texas National Guard's year of service will be over in November, but the war department has been authorized to extend all terms of service for 18 months, which will cover the 1942 elections.

There is little prospect that the whole National Guard will get home any time soon. The 45th Division—composed of National Guardsmen from Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, and Colorado—finished its first year on Sept. 15 and still is in training at Camp Barkley.

Numerous individuals, however, are being released from the 36th Division, which is made up of Texas National Guardsmen. The 36th recently has been releasing men over 28 years of age, as prescribed by Congress, at a rate of nearly 75 a day. A smaller number is going home because the bread-winner's military service works an undue hardship upon dependents.

Physical Directors Of U. S. Navy Are Sought By Tunney

HOUSTON.—Young men interested in becoming physical directors in the United States Navy are being requested to file their applications in order that they may be interviewed by Lieutenant-Commander J. J. (Gene) Tunney, U. S. N. R., when the former world heavyweight boxing champion visits Houston on November 6 and 7.

Lieutenant-Commander S. L. Shade, officer in charge of the Houston navy recruiting station, said today that already he has received a number of inquiries concerning the physical director assignments. He urged others interested to contact the recruiting station in the Houston post office building, either by letter or telephone, to make interview appointments.

Applicants found qualified after an interview by Commander Tunney will be enlisted in the Naval Reserve and rated as chief boatswain's mates. To be eligible, an applicant must hold a degree in physical education from a recognized college or university. In general, applicants who are unmarried will be given preference over those who are married.

The visit to Houston is one of six which Commander Tunney will make in the Eighth Naval District as part of a special recruiting tour of the nation.

Landscape Work At Camp Wolters Is To Be Started

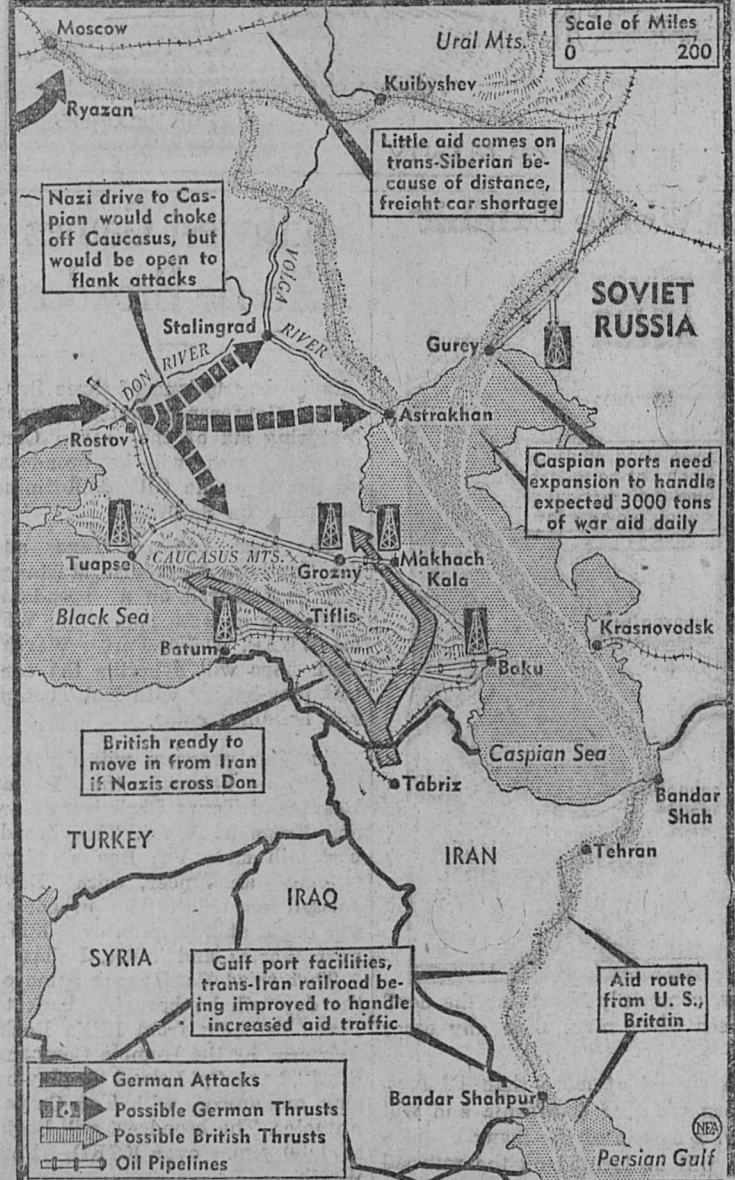

CAMP WOLTERS.—The employment of landscape-architects to assist the Constructing Quartermasters at the various large army cantonments in the development and improvement of the camps has increased rapidly the past few months, and their contributions have greatly improved the appearance of the sites.

Funds have been set up by the construction division of the War Department for landscape development and improvement at Camp Wolters according to A. A. Blinks, landscape-architect which calls for the planting of trees and shrubs and the sodding of lawn areas in the various units of the camp.

Plans and specifications for this huge project have been submitted to the Zone Constructing Quartermaster for approval preparatory to the letting of contracts for the supplying and planting of trees, shrubs and sod. This work is to be carried on throughout the planting season which extends from November 15 to May 1, according to Captain Thomas G. Gammie, Constructing Quartermaster.

Blinks, a graduate of the Iowa State College in 1925, came to Camp Wolters as landscape-architect from the Oklahoma A. & M. College and was formerly connected with the National Park Service in New Mexico and the state division of the same service in Austin, Texas. He later joined the Resettlement Administration at Dallas and was with the Soil Conservation Service in Fort Worth.

Aid From the South for Russia

Threatened in the south by swift German advances, Russia also looks there for aid in the form of troops and supplies. British troop aid may come soon if Rostov falls, while transport facilities must be expanded before flow of supplies via Iran can reach a peak.

U. S. DESTROYER SUNK BY A TORPEDO WHILE ON DUTY NEAR ICELAND

SOVIET PUTS UP A FIGHT NEAR MOSCOW

Russian troops fought stubbornly against the powerful Nazi offensive against Moscow's southern approaches and into the Crimea today, while a new Japanese thrust against Thailand and the Burma Road appeared to be building up in the Far East.

Reports from the Soviet war front told of a pounding German drive on the Tula salient, 100 miles south of the Russian capital, new frontal attacks on the Central Moscow sector and continued drives southward in the Crimea.

The Germans claimed that the Crimea offensive was approaching a rout for the Russians, who were described as being in "full flight" in front of the advancing German armies.

On the high seas Berlin claimed another submarine success, the sinking of 27,000 tons of shipping, comprising six ships, plus a destroyer and two patrol ships.

Two Dallas Firms Have Low Bids On Defense Work

Camp Wolters, Mineral Wells, Tex.—Two Dallas construction firms were the low bidders Thursday on United Service Organizations recreational buildings to be erected at Mineral Wells and Wichita Falls by the Constructing Quartermaster at Camp Wolters, according to Captain Thomas G. Gammie, Constructing Quartermaster.

The Eckert-Fair Company of Dallas submitted the low bid of $58,200 for the construction one type "D" USO recreational building at Wichita Falls, Texas and the H. L. Rogers Company of Dallas was the low bidder with $43,378 for the type "A" USO recreational building at Mineral Wells.

Both low bids along with others have been to the Zone Constructing Quartermaster at Fort Sam Houston for approval, according to Camp Wolters officials. When awarded the buildings will carry a completion date of sixty days from starting time. The sites for both the Wichita Falls and Mineral Wells buildings have been selected and approved and work will get underway immediately upon the awarding of the contracts.

Fliers Lost A Week Are Rescued Today

FRESNO, Cal., Oct. 31.—Two army fliers, lost in the mountains since last Friday, were rescued by land crews today after they had been sighted by searchers from the air.

The two were Lt. Jack West and Lt. Leonard Lydon, who were sighted by pilots as they sat near a campfire they had built after their plane cracked up.

Oklahoma Floods Take Four Lives

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 31.—At least four dead and five missing and feared drowned was the toll today in floods that inundated virtually all of Oklahoma.

The floods, because of the cold weather, continued to deal suffering for thousands and damage was reported to be running high.

American Viewpoint Not To Be Changed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt said today that the international situation from the American point of view remained unchanged, despite the sinking of the U. S. S. Reuben James.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The United States Destroyer Reuben James, an old destroyer carrying a regular complement of 114 men and six officers, was sunk by a torpedo in the North Atlantic last night while conveying shipping off the west coast of Iceland. This was the third American warship fired upon, the second that was hit by a torpedo and the first to be sunk.

The brief Navy announcement did not say how many of the crew members or officers, if any, were lost, but promised the information would be announced as soon as it was received in Washington.

The announcement of the sinking followed by a few hours an announcement in a German communique that a destroyer had been sunk recently at some undisclosed place. The German announcement did not give the nationality of the destroyer.

The Reuben James was of the same type as the 50 over-age destroyers traded to Great Britain in exchange for the Atlantic bases. It was commanded by Lieut. Commander H. L. Edwards, 35, a native of San Saba, Texas. The ship was named for a seaman in the United States Navy during the war with the Tripoli pirates.

In Washington the announcement of the Reuben James' sinking brought much comment on the proposed bill to repeal the entire neutrality act, with some isolationists saying that such incidents were to be expected, and might even lead to war, if the bill was repealed, while advocates of repeal of the measure pointed out in vigorous fashion that it was another indication that the bill now should be repealed.

A spokesman in Berlin stated that if the destroyer was escorting a British convoy it was part of that convoy and thus subject to attack under international law. The spokesman did not say, however, that it was sunk by a German submarine.

Pork And Butter Added As Latest Blue Stamp Foods

Fresh pork and butter have been added to the list of foods obtainable by Stamp Program participants during November in Eastland County it was announced today by Charles L. Howell, Area Supervisor, Surplus Marketing Administration.

Except for the addition of these two staple food items, which appear on the stamp program food list for the first time since July, the November list is the same as that of October. These foods are obtainable in local stores throughout the month of November.

Commenting upon the return of pork products and butter to the list of foods available with blue stamps, Roy F. Hendrickson, Administrator of the Surplus Marketing Administration, said:

"It is doubly fortunate that we are able to return pork products and butter to the stamp program list at this time. It not only makes it possible for us to provide wider markets for farmers to move increased supplies, but it also will make important food commodities available to millions of low-income people. Farmers need these wide markets in order to get a fair return on their full production. Needy families must have the food for a balanced diet. An adequate selection of foods for distribution to supplement the limited food supplies low-income families are able to buy is especially important in these days of emergency, when we must plug the weak spots in our national health defense. Consumer buying power has been increased materially by defense and other employment, but there are still millions who need help. Supplying these people with foods they need and keeping open markets for increasing farm production are twin objectives of national concern."

The complete list of blue stamp foods for the period November 1 through November 30 in all stamp program areas is as follows: butter, fresh pork (except that cooled or packed in metal or glass containers), fresh pears, apples, oranges, and fresh vegetables (including potatoes), corn meal, shell eggs, raisins, dried prunes, hominy (corn) grits, dry edible beans, wheat flour, enriched wheat flour, self-rising flour, enriched self-rising flour, and whole wheat (Graham) flour.

Football Bowl As Melting Pot

Every time this country gets into a war or a war emergency there are people who vocalize the failure of the American melting pot. They say it has failed to melt into the common stock the various foreign elements that have poured in. Some of them make remarks about immigrants forgetting President Roosevelt recalled to them that all Americans were either immigrants or descendants of immigrants.

America, with its free institutions, its open field of opportunity, its essentially democratic ways, has a habit of making loyal Americans out of the vast majority of those who come to these shores.

Most people who leave Europe to come to the United States propose to stay here. Here they hope to have a better chance than they had in the old world. Here they dream of a better way of life for their children and their children's children.

Working at the bench or the counter, or in the fields alongside older Americans, joining them in religious worship, affiliating with them in lodges or labor unions or clubs, the newcomers begin to absorb the American way of thinking and acting. Their children absorb it 100 per cent.

One indication of this is to study what happens in the big playing bowls of the country where American college and university football teams meet. A quick glance at the roster of players in northern and western teams shows that alongside the Kemps and Seymours, Wilsons and Martins, there are young men named Cohen and Silverstein, Bova and Metek, Rakowski and Nairoti, Dedinsky and Tidek, Panciera and Narducci, Lindskog and Kmetovic.

Or look at the names of football players in the south where it is often said people of British descent predominate. Well, alongside the Marshalls and Eliots, there are boys named Nowak and Grygo, Pecora and Suntheimer. You are not going to tell a Carter that a Grygo is not a good American, nor convince a White that his fellow players, Suntheimer and Pecora, are not the real thing.

Fences surrounding Buckingham Palace will be used to make tanks. And they, too, will help keep intruders out. The more Defense Savings stamps are licked, the sooner Hitler will be.

Phrenologists Get Old Man's Savings

By Guffed Press

BROWNWOOD.—D. W. Perry of Goldthwaite was an old age pensioner who wished to know a little more about his future.

The people to tell him, he reckoned, were the folks who had recently opened a "Phrenology Studio" in a downtown building. One fine day he dropped into the studio where attendants felt the bumps on his head and read the lines of his palms.

They told the 70-year-old pensioner considerable about his past and more about his future. Then he went home. A few hours later he missed his earthly fortune—

$120—which he had had in his pockets when he called upon the phrenologists.

He quickly called Sheriff Hern Harris of Mills county, who, in turn, notified Brown county officers. Sheriff Harris found that the palmists had closed shop.

In Brownwood, officers found a car which tallied with the description of the one furnished by Sheriff Harris. The car had been taken to a garage for repair and officers quickly took the auto's keys and waited for its owners.

They kept on waiting. Finally a group of carnival men arrived and asked for the car. They were not the owners, officers determined, but had formerly known the phrenologists. Sheriff Harris made them a proposition, which they considered for several hours, and finally returned.

FINAL INSPECTION

UNDER the impetus of war Canada has become a vast arsenal of which millions of rounds of ammunition and vast quantities of explosives are being poured annually. War expenditures will cost the Canadian people about 40 per cent of the national income, a sum which in terms of comparative population and income would be the equivalent to an expenditure by the United States of about $35,000,000 in a single year. Besides equipping and completely maintaining its own forces at home and in the field, Canada also is supplying Great Britain with $1,500,000,000 ($23,000,000,000 would be the American equivalent) to help her make her war purchases in Canada. In the present fiscal year Canada's war purchases in the United States will amount to about $500,000,000. These purchases will be paid for in cash as Canada is not taking advantage of the Lend-Lease Act for war supplies bought on her own account.

MURDER IN PARADISE

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Two murders at Paradise Lake renew the old romance between school teacher Mary O'Connor, vacationing there with her mother, Maudie, and reporter Dennis Flynn, sent down from the city to cover the story. Police are convinced sophisticated Herbert Cord was killed by gangster Stash Verett, although Cord's death at first implicated Jeanie Morris, whom he had courted for two summers only to bring Marie Dixon to Paradise this year as his fiancée. Second mysterious death was that of Miss Millie Morris, Jeanie's stern spinster aunt, who kept locked in her heart the secret of a girlhood romance with someone who signed his letters "Kil." Other characters in the story are Liza Holmes, Miss Millie's maid who stays on with Jeanie; elderly innkeeper Chris Gordon; local editor Tod Palmer, in love with Jeanie; and Dennis, who is in the city to cover the death of a girlhood romance with someone who signed his letters "Kil." Jeanie and Mary find Liza's body hanging in the attic of the Morris home. Suicide?

WHAT OF TOMORROW?

CHAPTER XXII

IT was an undiplomatic question to ask and the doctor was obviously glad when Officer Antler came in. But I had a hunch the doctor had made up his mind as to the answer even before he made the official autopsy in his role as coroner.

The law was in charge now and so the questioning began. I'm quite sure John Antler would have liked to put me in my place several times, but I wanted to be the first one to start, and since I had seen Liza Holmes up there and Jeanie hadn't, it seemed only right I should begin.

I told them all I could, starting back with our trip to town the day before. It made it easier for Jeanie when it was her turn, not that there was any reason why she should not help her.

"You didn't look to see if she was in her room last night, then?" she asked, and she repeated that she hadn't. She also told again that Liza Holmes had had no worries that she knew about, and that she hadn't seemed unusual except that she grieved for Miss Millie in her silent, tight-lipped fashion.

We didn't stay there much longer. The doctor said there were things to do up in the attic and if I wanted to take Jeanie home with me we could leave any time. "I'll lock up and bring the key. Might be just as well if you stayed some place else tonight—not here."

Tod had arrived at our house before we got out of the car which a police officer had turned into a taxi for our benefit. Tod had heard the news that Liza was dead and his first thought had been to have someone to stay with Jeanie. Maudie told him I was already at the Morris home and then, after he had admitted there was more excitement over there, she had buttonholed him. I think he was almost as glad to get out of her clutches as he was to see Jeanie.

I MANAGED to get Maudie in the kitchen away from them with the promise to tell her everything.

"Suicide," she snorted. "I don't believe that and you don't expect me to because you don't believe it yourself."

"Well, I saw her hanging there with a rope around her neck," I said. "And it wasn't a pretty sight, either."

"Have you notified Denny?" was her only answer to that one.

I hadn't, but Tod Palmer had, and Denny was with us for dinner that evening. "Three times and out, you know. You girls have presented this lovely, restful community with three dead persons. Don't you think that's a pretty good summer's work? Why don't you go home now. Go home and rest up."

He was grinning, but the way he held my hands didn't make me feel he was fooling. His hands trembled and in back of that grin I sensed fear, and I'd never known Denny to show fear. If it hadn't been for Maudie I think I'd have packed our things right then and headed for town. But Maudie said it was apparent we were the only observant ones around there.

"Maybe before the police are through they'll give credit where credit's due. They should vote us honorary members of the force," she said.

"Maybe they'll give you a gun to carry," Denny said quietly. "I'll speak to Antler about it."

"Oh, indeed?" Maudie looked over the top of her glasses at him. "The time we might have needed a gun was after the first or second murder. This is just a suicide, so why should we need a gun now? It is suicide, isn't it?" Her naivete didn't fool Denny or me.

TOD PALMER'S old jalopy stopped in front of the house and he came in. "She's asleep," I said, nodding to the bedroom where we had put Jeanie, who was now relaxed under the influence of one of the white powders Dr. Orway had left me for my nerves.

"What did they decide?" Denny asked.

Tod's solemn face was stern. "Murder," he said, and the word didn't come as a shock. "She was dead before she was put up in the attic. Under the rope there were marks. She'd been choked to death."

"What are they doing now?" Denny was already reaching for his hat.

"The usual things: looking for fingerprints, trying to find out where the rope came from, who was around the house last night, and who was the last one to see the old lady alive."

"How long had she—?" Maudie began, and Tod hesitated.

"Doe says at least eight hours—maybe longer."

"Why, it must have happened just before Jeanie went in," I said, horrified. "What if the murderer was still there? She might have been—"

"Yes," Denny said. "She might have been number four."

"Are they going to start torturing the poor child again?" It was Maudie, and her question left me a little sick. I saw what she meant. If Liza Holmes had been dead at least eight hours and we found her in the morning about 11, then she could have been killed after midnight; after 1 o'clock even, and it had been that late when we left Jeanie.

HER one-time sweetheart, her aunt, her housekeeper—all dead. Tod had given her an alibi for her whereabouts at the time of Cord's death; Liza had sworn she knew the girl was in the house when Miss Millie met her death in the rowboat, and we could testify she had been with us until 1 a. m. But with three murders—three people so intimately associated with her, those three alibis that a smart lawyer could blast holes in, didn't look so strong.

I hated to think of tomorrow. I could see Tod felt the same.

Maudie was the only one who didn't look as though she might be ready to lose her dinner. She was looking out over the lake absently scratching Finn McCool's well-filled tummy.

"I suppose the numbers boys took care of poor Liza Holmes, too," she said to no one in particular.

Denny got up from the table and slapped his hat on his head.

"Oh, hell," he said, and walked out of the cottage.

FIELD DRIES OFF RAPIDLY IN HIGH WIND

Many Mineral Wells Fans Are Expected To Follow The Mountaineers Here

With brisk, cool and possibly clear weather in prospect for the Mineral Wells-Ranger game tonight, a large crowd might be on hand to see the two teams when they go into their conference tilt at 8 o'clock.

The rains of Thursday night have not left the playing field too wet for a good game, barring more rain this afternoon, as the field is well drained and the high winds of early morning had dried it out sufficiently to make for a better than fair playing surface.

What is usually termed as ideal football weather, except for some wind, prevailed shortly after noon, with the sun making attempts to break through the clouds to further enhance the prospects of good football weather by nightfall.

All the previous game dope and most of the predictions favor the Mountaineers, who expect at least 1,000 fans to follow them to the game here tonight. Mineral Wells has won two and lost no conference games to date, and much enthusiasm over the prospects of going up against Breckenridge on Nov. 20 is creating much interest in the Mountaineers by the Resort City fans. Mineral Wells has but one easy hurdle, if they can get by the Bulldogs, to go into the Breckenridge game undefeated.

They have only the weak Stephenville club to play after tonight before meeting the Buckaroos.

The Ranger squad is in pretty fair shape for the game, as there were no serious injuries in the Breckenridge conflict. Several sustained bruises which hampered them some in the early practices this week in preparation for the game, but which are not expected to be any handicap tonight.

A big pep rally was held at the Arcadia Theatre Thursday night, with Dr. G. C. Boswell as master of ceremonies.

There was some talk early this morning of postponing the contest until some time next week, probably Monday, but with indications the weather might clear up before game time these plans were dropped.

ment and all the coaches and players there; the office of student activities, the department of information and college publications, and the Association of Former Students of Texas A&M College.

No reservations were taken for the game so there is no chance of any being unclaimed just before game time. E. W. Hooker, Aggie ticket manager, said:

Ticket sales opened to former students and pass holders on Aug. 1 and to the general public on Sept. 1. By the time of the opening game on Sept. 27, not a ticket remained in the stadium and the 3500 unreserved bleacher seats went on sale. Those lasted less than 10 days and since that time there have been no tickets of any kind anywhere in the stadium. Temporary box seats moved out along with the stadium seats and even the press box and scout booth are filled to overflowing.

PLEASE—THERE ARE NO MORE TEXAS TICKETS.

A check up of all departments which might have saved some tickets found them all in the same shape—not a single ticket left and that included the office of Dr. T. O. Walton, president of the college; the athletic depart-

Towns Stand Pat On Hearing On C. & N. E. Removal

BRECKENRIDGE, Oct. 30.—

At a meeting of the district committee here last night it was decided that petition of the C. & N. E. Railway company made to Interstate Commerce Commission, to abandon the road will be fought by the towns served by the line.

Discussed at the meeting were some concessions the railroad might make with reference to disposition of property that would thus be abandoned, to which those present turned deaf ear and voted to "fight such a move to the hilt."

Children Are Urged To Do No Damage To Property In Ranger

Chief of Police Lee Ames today warned children to observe Halloween without doing any property damage, but said that no effort would be made by officers to interfere with innocent fun.

He warned particularly about marking store windows and automobiles with soap, as soap often contains grit that does material damage to surfaces on which it is used to write.

"In the past," Chief Ames stated, "the children and their parents have cooperated by seeing that no material damage is done during the night, and losses in Ranger have been low. The entire police department and the property owners will appreciate it if the same cooperation is given this year."

Dr. Boswell Will Speak Here Sunday

Dr. G. C. Boswell, Superintendent of Ranger Public Schools and president of Ranger Junior College, will speak at the eleven o'clock service of the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning.

Dr. Boswell will speak in the absence of Rev. C. C. Elrod, pastor of the Ranger Church. The public is cordially invited to attend the service here Sunday.

Chief Ames stated that he would have extra officers on duty tonight in an effort to cut down on damage to property, but that those engaging in innocent fun would not be molested.

A poll by the Abilene High Battery, student newspaper, showed that 57.9 per cent of the student body favored immediate intervention against the Nazis.

In general, upperclassmen—those nearest army age—opposed active and immediate intervention by a small margin. The younger students were for it overwhelmingly.

Fatal Accidents Taking A Toll Of Workers In Defense

CHICAGO.—"Killed on his way to work!" That phrase is appearing more and more often in newspaper days. stories of traffic accidents these

The National Safety Council says that off-the-job accidents to defense workers are one of the most critical problems in the Emergency Safety Campaign the Council is conducting at the request of President Roosevelt.

The relative importance to the defense program of occupational and off-the-job accidents is shown by the following figures from the Council:

Occupational deaths in the first eight months of this year totaled 12,400, while off the job accidents killed 19,000 workers.

Occupational deaths and injuries in the same period represented a loss of productive time sufficient to build 19 battleships or 33,000 fighter planes. But off-the-job deaths and injuries of workers represented a loss of 30 additional battleships or 50,000 more fighter planes.

"It makes little difference whether a worker is killed at his lathe or in his car after the factory whistle blows, so far as the effect on the defense program is concerned," said Col. John Stillwell, president of the Council. "Safety authorities recognize that all-out production requires 24-hour safety."
