2 County Trucks Taken; 1 Dipped in Lake by Vandals

An Eastland County maintenance truck was pulled out of a ditch Tuesday night.

A tragedy was feared at first when it was thought that there might have been a body still in the truck which had been driven into the lake, just north of the bridge, northeast of Eastland.

The trucks were reportedly taken from the Precinct One yards southwest of town, after the locks were broken on the yard gate.

One of the trucks was driven to the high school, park right in the front door, and all the tires slashed.

Police gave chase to the other truck but lost it west of town, and later discovered truck-type tracks going into the lake, but no tracks coming out.

Retrieving work began Wednesday morning by city, county and state officials.

Other vandalism reported included the turning on of some 25 or 30 fire hydrants, which were quickly closed by Volunteer Firemen who were on alert expecting such action.

Streets in Eastland were busy Tuesday night with trick or treaters making their rounds, after the wind calmed and the weather became more tolerable.

No disturbances were reported from the Halloween Carnival held in the Gym at High School Hall, according to Police Chief Ray Laney.

The Police did have one other unusual request — to capture and exterminate a skunk at a residence.

Low, Wet Temperatures General Throughout Area

Temperatures of near freezing were recorded in this West Central Texas region early Tuesday as the initial wintry blast of the fall season.

The low readings accompanied a blustery cold front that left nearly one and a half inches of rain in the county.

The cold front blew in Sunday afternoon with high winds and rain that fell intermittently through Sunday night, Monday and Monday night.

High winds Tuesday were expected to diminish with a warming trend to follow.

Most area farmers welcomed the moisture for the benefit of their small grain crops, and other grains had been underway for several weeks.

The peanut harvest, which was just getting underway, will be delayed a few days. Some damage to peanut hay that was on the ground and not baled was considered likely.

A good average crop has been forecast for peanut farmers.

The rainfall was slow and soaking with little or no run off. Lakes and stock tanks, however, were in good condition and this was not important for their benefit.

The wintry blast came unusually early this year as near freezing conditions seldom occur in this region in October.

I Am a Tired College Student

By LYNDA FORD

I am a tired college student.
— Tired of students complaining — "there's nothing to do" — and doing nothing about it.
— Tired of protest marchers and draft card burners in the United States when there are thousands in Viet Nam protesting — with courage and their lives.
— Tired of being called square because I am God-fearing and not an immoral swinger.
— Tired of those lacking dedication and purpose, the shallow "just-get-by-ers."
— Tired of being called corny because my eyes mist at the playing of the Star Spangled Banner, or our Alma Mater or the fight song of my old high school back home.
— Tired of those who degrade the school's name, and complain because it isn't any better.
— Tired of students who pay to attend school, yet do not make full use of the facilities.
— Tired of non-conformists who wear a uniform of dirty jeans and long hair, no socks or bath.
— Tired, too, of hippies — those turned-on people who are turned off to the realities of life.
I am a tired college student, but a proud one. Proud of my school, proud of the opportunity to become better than I am through education. Yes, I AM a tired college student today, but may tomorrow be a better day because many of us are tired today.

AUSTIN — A multi-million-dollar Texas tideland sale once more is before the highest court in the land. It involves 37,000 acres of oil-rich offshore territory.
Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin and his aides have presented the state's arguments to the U.S. Supreme Court.
Key question is whether Texas coastline includes its jetties as part of the permanent harbor system. Jetties in question are at Port Isabel, Port Mansfield, Port Aransas, Metagorda, Freeport, Galveston and Sabine Pass. They extend as far as four and a half miles into the Gulf of Mexico.
Decision for Texas would add four and a half miles to the three marine leagues (10.35) offshore boundaries allowed by the federal submerged lands act of 1953.

Political pot continues to boil at the state capitol:
As expected, 29-year-old House Speaker Ben Barnes announced for lieutenant governor. He said his move should not be interpreted as a tipoff to Gov. John Connally's plans. He stated that he would run as an independent, sas, Matagorda, Freeport with no "ticket" affiliation campaign with Connally or anyone else. Barnes immediately opened his statewide headquarters in Austin.
Governor John Connally left for Canada and the National Governor's Conference in the Virgin Islands without revealing his decision as to retiring or running for a fourth term.
Lt. Gov. Preston Smith already is campaigning for governor. He predicts that Governor Connally will not run for an unprecedented fourth term and submits as evidence Connally's 1962 pledge not to do so.
Former Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr called on all three — Connally, Smith and Barnes — to run for re-election. In a letter to Connally he said he may run for governor if Connally doesn't or for lieutenant governor if the governor seeks a fourth term.
Supreme Court races continue to draw increasing attention. Declared candidates are Houston District Judge Sears McGee, Texarkana Court of Civil Appeals Associate Justice Matt Davis, Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals Chief Justice James G. Denton and Austin District Judge Tom Reavley.

Texas Secretary of State John L. Hill is warning persons who are 60 years of age or older and live outside cities of 10,000 or more population time, they must register to that this year, for the first time.
Hill said that a special provision has been made for such persons to register during the period Oct. 1 to Jan. 31, 1968 at the county tax office or by mail to the county tax assessor collector.

RHS BAND NEWS
BY TERESA DUDLEY
The High School Band is marching in triangle formation in preparation for marching contest to be held in Coleman on Nov. 18. Additional maneuvers will be added to the two previous shows. The contest show will be performed at the De Leon and Dublin games.
The first meeting of the Ranger High School Band was held Monday, Oct. 30 at 2:55 p. m. with the president, Jimmy Watkins, presiding. The purpose of the meeting was to hold nominations for band sweethearts. Nominees are Suzann Rourke, Karen Mince and Sylvia Camacho. The band sweetheart will be crowned on the field Friday evening.
The drum section is especially important in marching because it determines the marching speed. There are five fine drummers in this year's marching band. Larry Walker sets the tempo with the bass drum. Kathleen Cole and Beth Pearson roll the snare drum and Delbert Cozart lays tenor drum. These three drum cadences in parades. The symbol crashes in the "Star Spangled Banner" and other songs are played by Robert Clements. Theresa Lilley plays the melody part on the bells. The drummers will be heard frequently in concert season.

Saturday the band marched in the Ranger Junior College parade and received a trophy for the performance. Songs played were "La Donna," "El Gaucho," and "Brasses To The Fore."

N. is a very essential part of health care in hospitals in patient care, keeping patients comfortable, in noticing and reporting vital signs which saves many lives. He stated that many new jobs are continually opening for L. V. N.'s, especially in geriatrics, doctors' offices, and hospitals.

The convention president, Mrs. Helen Segrest, of Lubbock, reported that the association now has over 3,600 members, with 72 active divisions, but that only one in ten LVN's belong to the association. She stated that it is the only group working strictly for the benefit of the LVN and urged that the importance of membership be stressed to all licensed vocational nurses.

This is the only association of LVN's recognized by the Texas Hospital Association. Mr. J. Townsend, attorney-at-law, Austin, and the attorney retained by the LVNA, spoke at the president's council and at the general assembly. He explained procedures concerning nurses coming into Texas from other states and the LVN home.

Mrs. Ruth Smith of Division No. 5, El Paso, was the winner of the portable television set and Mrs. Dolly Frable of San Antonio won the Afghan.

A Hell's Angels 'Philosopher' Now Cooling His Dirty Heels in County Jail

Young people in this area sometimes, because of early Marlon Brando movies and absent-frequent magazine publications, hold in adoration members of the infamous West Coast Hell's Angels.

Perhaps because these young people are portrayed as "free-wheeling," "no-responsibility" individuals who "live the way they want to," with a personal philosophy of "you only live once."

That philosophy is held by a 21-year-old Angel who is presently being held in Eastland County Jail on a car theft charge.

'BUGGER' FUENTES at 21

Talking freely Tuesday afternoon, the Selma, Calif., naive expressed quite a few other philosophies: he doesn't believe in bathing or shaving ("It's a waste of water and time"); and does believe in using stimulants ("glue, and gasoline sniffing LSD; marijuana; but no heroin," because I promised my mother never would, "cause my uncle died from a poor injection.")

"Bugger" nervously guesses he's been on "pills" since he was ten. (He's been locked up here since Oct. 17, and admitted he'd feel better if he had a little something.)

Sent up for the first time when he was 11, the Spanish-American young man, estimates that during the past ten years, he's been in custody at least seven years, "off and on — 60 days here — six months, there, etc."

He'll probably be extradited to California where he's wanted for armed robbery and street warfare. (He admits looting in Watts, shortly after the riot started there —

"Man, it's only a hours drive from my home, and I nearly got rich.")

Somehow, he reasons that glue sniffing and gang fighting is okay for him, but was quick to say that he didn't recommend it for the interviewer or anyone else who hasn't tried it.

His eight brothers and one sister live with his mother in Selma. His father has been in a state penitentiary for so many years that the young man doesn't know anything about him. ("Probably for murder.") Selma, an agricultural town of some 20,000, is known as the toughest town on the West Coast. ("I was a Vulcan, and nobody messed with us.") The Hells Angels are divided into separate clubs and have their own rules and regulations, he says.

His first arrest was for burglary, ("Or maybe vandalism,") and he was later sent up for what the Selma papers described as "90 per cent of the crimes and 10 per cent of the marijuana pushing."

After one arrest he was given a choice: juvenile authority detention or the Job Corps. He took the Corps and was sent to a camp near Lincoln, Neb. He promptly set up a protection agency and had a bootlegging system worked out before they kicked him out some four months after arriving.

He has a girl in San Antonio, he'd plan to marry at one time. But today, he figures it's too late. "I couldn't settle down to a job. I love everybody and just want to be left alone."

(He was arrested in Louisiana and before being picked up by local authorities, had access to lighter fluid in the Bolger City Jail, so he was pretty high, and doesn't remember too much.)

Ever kill anybody?

"No, no, I never kill anybody." (Later he admitted that he'd rather not talk too much about some things.)

"My step-daddy, who has since left the house, used to tell me I'd never live to be 24. My mama has always been glad when I'm locked up, 'cause she knows I'm safe."

"I've broken me out a few jails. I ain't going to say where or when though." (Jailer John Shook calls him a good prisoner who sleeps almost around the clock in the tank.)

School?

"Oh, yea, man, I was a B-plus student..."

Youths Visit 'Haunted' House

Youth sponsors of the Mesquite and Rusk St. Church of Christ were hosts of 57 high school students on Sunday evening following services.

The young people of the church and their guests met after church at 7:30 and joined a car caravan on the Caddo Road to an authentic haunted house. After watching an enactment of a witch and her crystal ball, the group proceeded through the house after first receiving a dose of "courage tonic." After being thoroughly shocked and petrified by Herman and Lilly Munster, and surprised by the "Caddo Critter," the high schoolers returned to the La-Casa Club House for hot dogs and the trimmings. After eating a presentation of Spencer Tracy's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" was viewed.

Hosts for the young people were Bill and Lurene Parnell, Jerry and Pat Greer, Don and Charlotte Adams, DeWitt and Prissy Jones, Luther and Pat Gohlike, Bill and Sandi Herod, Herman and Clarence Cupp, and Gary and Deanna Beauchamp.

THE GORDON SPOT

By DeMarquis (Dee) Gordon
Eastland County Extension Agent

Native pecans are selling at a very good price this year. Those farmers and ranchers who own native pecan timber in Eastland County will have an opportunity to get some extra income by harvesting these native groves this fall. Most native trees produced well this year even with no extra care.

These native groves can be made into very profitable land by thinning and managing the native grove. This can't be done in one year. It usually takes 3 to 5 years of work to get native groves into good production.

The first step is to clean out all the under brush and trees that are not pecan trees.

The second step may be done the first year also or it can be done the second year. This step is to take out all pecan trees that are badly damaged or diseased.

During the next one to four years the pecan on each tree should be evaluated. This can be done in the fall by walking through the grove and looking at the crop on each tree as well as the quality of pecans they produce. Every native pecan tree is different. Some will produce every year, some every other year, and some will never produce a pecan crop. Some trees produce very small hard shells where as other produce more desirable pecans. While evaluating the grove you might mark each tree. Some people use a non-oil base paint and mark each tree with a 1, 2, or 3. The 1 will indicate a good tree while the 2 indicates a less desirable tree and a 3 indicates a poorer tree. If a tree is found to be completely undesirable it may be marked with a band of paint around the trunk. These trees should be removed the following winter.

The fourth step is to thin the trees to the desired distance. Normally there should be a distance of 60 to 70 feet between trees. Trees should not be close enough for the limbs to over lap limbs of other trees. By having the trees evaluated and marked you will have a better chance of leaving the best trees and taking out the less desirable ones.

The next step, which may be started after the first two steps have been completed, is to spray the trees for insects and diseases. Another important reason for spraying is to apply zinc to the trees. Native groves are usually sprayed once or twice a year, but these applications must be correctly timed to be effective. You can mix an insecticide, a fungicide, and zinc sulfate in the same spray solution and apply all at one time.

There have been many farmers and ranchers who have improved native pecan groves in this way. Most of them say that under this type of management their pastures were improved enough to pay for the clearing work and their pecans gave an additional income.

The Oct. 1 forecast of the Texas pecan crop remains at 35 million pounds. The report from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says good pecan crops are expected in the West Cross Timbers, San Saba area, portions of the Blacklands; and along the Red River in Northeast Texas. Prospects are poor in Southcentral counties and along the Upper Coast.

I have received several calls this week concerning web worms and walnut caterpillars in trees. These leaf eating worms are relatively easy to kill. You may use Sevin, Chlordane, DDT, Malathion or Toxaphene. The

LOOKING At Agriculture

By GILBERT MEREDITH

(This is one of a series of articles dealing with agricultural programs in Eastland County.)

I had the opportunity this week to visit several peanut farms in the Gorman-Carbon area and attended part of the peanut tour. Maybe we have taken the pessimistic view toward our 1967 peanut crop. I have heard reports of yields exceeding 100 bushels on irrigated land. Gene Snider in the Kokomo area reported over 100 bushels per acre on about 9.0 acres, Ronnie Love reported 75 bushels per acre on 27.00 acres and D. B. Warren at Gorman reported 64 bushels per acre on 80.0 acres. This indicates a better than average crop for 1967. Our five year average is 25 bushels per acre.

I saw a dry land crop south of Cisco that the producer said would beat his 1966 yield of 63 bushels per acre.

The difference between an optimist and a pessimist is the fact that the optimist thinks everything is going to be good and the pessimist is afraid that he is right.

We have just under 32,000 acres planted in the county and hope for a late frost.

Mr. Charles Rogers with the state Department of Agriculture was in this office this week and is beginning his work on peanut marketing research. Mr. Rogers is stationed in DeLeon and was recently appointed to the post he now fills. He has a varied experience in the field of agriculture and we in ASCS look forward to working with him. Doc Farmer, who lives north of Cisco, was in the office this week and said that he was getting ready to sow his wheat. Recent rains make the prospects for a good fall wheat crop look good. 1967 was one of the worst years in history as far as wheat production in Eastland County. Very little wheat was even harvested. 1968 wheat averages are 15 percent less than in 1967 due to the present wheat supply situation. Quotas are not in effect on wheat, but a voluntary wheat reduction plan is in effect for 1968 similar to the 1967 program. Cooperating farms will receive domestic wheat certificates on 40 per cent of their allotment which is 5 percent more than in 1967. Domestic certificates are based on projected yields and will be valued at about $1.30 per bushel.

Our 1968 Agricultural Conservation Program has been developed and approved locally and was submitted this week to our state office. We believe that it will be approved in the near future. Some new practices have been added which we believe will benefit conservation in Eastland County. We will tell you about the new practices when they are approved.

I talked to Ross Wilson in Gorman this week and he said that a field examination would be made on the Sabanno Creek watershed during the week of Oct. 23-27. The examination will be made by the Soil Conservation Service. I have noted a great deal of enthusiasm on this project did I know what the project will finally be a reality.

Nov. 11 Amendment Pros, Cons Given

Absentee balloting continues through Friday for the Saturday, Nov. 11, constitutional amendment election which contains six propositions. A light vote is anticipated in this county. Briefly, these are the arguments made for each of the issues, as compiled by the Legislative Council:

1. Putting the four funds together will end the "feast and famine" effect that now exists, wherein one of the funds is bankrupt while there is money in another. Proponents also say it would give the county commissioners, who set the operating budget, more control in that area and more freedom in meeting unforeseen needs.

OPPONENTS OF THE fund system say the separate funds were set up as a safeguard and that they should be left in. They say also that with all money available for unrestricted use, commissioners might be prone to waste money rather than keep forced economy.

2. Approximately half the Texas population is found in the five major metropolitan counties, all of which have hospital districts. By removing the restriction forbidding cities or counties to establish mental health care, millions of people could be treated locally. Some hospital districts have been reluctant to take on the added expense of having mental treatment readily available.

Opponents say a duplication of services might exist if some agency other than the hospital district tries to run mental health care centers. Besides duplicating services, taxes might also be duplicated for the entity which runs the service would also need to tax to finance it.

injured in the line of duty their families often are the ones who suffer most. Proponents also say the benefit is needed to help recruit good people.

Opponents say it is not fair to offer one class of employes such a provision and not offer it to the others. They say also that because the change is permissive, and not mandatory, some counties might pay a part of the cost, others all the cost and that this would create hardships on counties that did not pay all in recruiting new officers.

5. Money from the general fund is not available now to buy new park sites and build new parks. By selling bonds, however, land could be acquired now while it is cheaper. Revenue received from the parks will pay off the bonds with no need for taxation, proponents say.

Opponents of the measure say estimates of what will be needed to pay off the bonds are, at best, theoretical and that a tax might be necessary to pay off the bonds, especially if all were sold in the first year. They say also a federal law provides for up to 50 per cent participation in programs financed by the state that should be looked into rather than using a bond issue to finance new parks.

3. BACKERS OF THE veterans' land proposal say it is only fair to offer land to veterans of wars fought since the Korean conflict since those that fought in Korea and in World War II got the land benefits. They say also it would boost the state's economy by producing a profit on the $400 million bond sale and they point out there is no cost to the taxpayer.

Opponents say the state government should not enter the loan business — that the veterans' program, in this case, would be just that. They say also that since the proposal has been vetoed twice in earlier constitutional amendment proposals, the voters are tired of the program.

4. Law enforcement officers are not covered by workmen's compensation insurance, backers of the aid to law officers say. If they are

Backers of the two-jobs in state government say qualified employes can provide better service if they are allowed to work in two posts where there is no conflict of interest. They say also that some duplicating of salaries would be eliminated.

Opponents say the restriction on jobs is intended to be a safeguard and that it should be retained. They say also that adoption of the amendment might encourage state offices and employes to increase their spheres of influence.
