From Cow Grass To Sheep Grass To No Grass In One Easy Lesson Is The Story Of Over Stocking

It used to be "cow grass", then "sheep grass" and finally "no grass", and with this first stage came the invasion of bitterweed and other undesirable range plants. Thus might be traced the history of grazing on many ranges in the Edwards Plateau area during the past 40 years, according to numerous Sonora ranchmen.

Many ranchers have tended to blame sheep for this decline in range production but actually the blame should be placed on the failure to recognize and understand the grasses. Too many head of any class of livestock will result in the "no grass" and bitterweed stage also.

Ranchers cooperating with the Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District are finding that running sheep under good management practices results in improved range conditions and higher wool and mutton production.

Edwin Sawyer, W.R. Cusenbary, Fred Earwood and Stanton Bundy among many others have definitely proved that sheep offer no handicap in improving ranges and growing grass, when principles of good range management are observed.

By carrying out a good pasture deferment program Cusenbary has not only improved his Southwest Pasture from "little grass" and bitterweed to a Good Range Condition, but has also marked some of the heaviest lambs in the District the past several years. This means that from 50-75 percent of the vegetation in this pasture is made up of the bluestems, grama grasses, switchgrass, and other palatable high forage producing grasses.

This all points to the fact, that Grass is the basis of the livestock industry-whether it be sheep, goats, or cattle. The more feed in the form of native grasses on the ground, the more pounds of wool, mutton, and other products sold.

This grass cover also provides the rancher with reserve feed, insurance against erosion, and assurance that maximum use will be made of rainfall.

The "short grass" stage may be fine when it rains every 15 days, but that doesn't happen in the Edwards Plateau area.

With rains few far between the "short grass" stage is an open invitation to all the many troubles that plague a rancher.

No grass reserve means high feed bills at times and weakened ranges supporting only short, weak grasses are asking for bitterweed, prickly pear, etc., to move in.

Trouble with threeawns (needle-grass) is due to this short grass taking the place of the bluestems and grama grasses on the range. In like manner, many livestock disorders and losses are due to the "no grass bug" which in turn means only "hollow belly."

About the only thing a rancher can control on his range is his livestock and management practices. Working with the Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District ranchers are learning their grasses, range condition classes, and methods of range management.

By working out complete, and correlated conservation plans on their land, ranchers are working back to a combination of taller, deeper rooted, higher producing grasses.

By rotating sheep, thereby giving ing pastures short rest periods following rains, District cooperators are overcoming the "spot grazing" habits of sheep. Livestock are "doubled up" for short periods on pastures being grazed, thereby forcing sheep to graze more uniformly. This heavy use is followed by a period of complete rest, which allows the weak spots and bed grounds to grow a cover of grass.

Some cooperators like Thomas Espy and Gordon Stewart concentrate large numbers of sheep in one pasture during the winter, and then completely defer the pasture during the growing season.

This practice cobines winter sheep grazing with summer grass growth to reduce bitterweed, and by rotating the pastures every 2-3 years, all of the ranch will eventually be improved. Many ranches need more watering places and additional cross-fencing to facilitate the shifting of livestock and provide more uniform grass use. Few ranchers have developed water facilities to the extent that Bryan Hunt has on his Headquarters Ranch south of Sonora. Hunt's sheep rarely have to travel more than one-fourth to one-half mile to water, which results in very uniform grazing.

All of these various management practices are being fitted together into well-balanced conservation ranch plans, worked out by ranchers with the technical help of Soil Conservation Service personnel, working with the Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District.

Almost 80 percent of the ranchers in the District are now cooperating in this program to conserve soil and moisture, and arrive at the highest level of livestock production in keeping with the climate and land capability.

Lowell Thomas: World's Most Famous Newscaster

When Nelson Case (left) introduces CBS newscaster Lowell Thomas every evening to the radio audience as the "world's most famous newscaster," he is using the phrase by which the world traveler, lecturer, and newscaster is most generally known. But he also finds the phrase an apt one when he goes into the commercial. Mr. Thomas' specialty, of course, is Ivory, which is generally known as the "world's most famous soap."

With an estimated output of more than 2,000,000 words a year for the past twenty years, Lowell Thomas comes by the "most famous" phrase deservedly. In addition, he has visited more places, interviewed more celebrities and participated in more great events than perhaps any other man alive.

Not only great adventure but thrilling variety has marked his career. He discovered Lawrence of Arabia while on a trip of exploration. He has recorded the curious customs of the pygmy tribes of Africa. In Australia, he filmed a dying race of aborigines. He hunted tigers with the Prince of Wales in India, and in Malaya was entertained by the mighty potentates who gave him glimpses of the problems of the Orient.

But those adventures were topped in 1949 when Lowell Thomas and his son, Lowell, Jr. were invited to the forbidden land of Tibet. He had a special audience with the Dalai Lama in Lhasa, and aired the first broadcast from the isolated "roof of the world" over the CBS network.

Born in Ohio and reared in a Colorado gold mining camp, Thomas has been gold miner, cowpuncher, newspaperman, editor, author, lecturer and, of course, world traveler and newscaster. All this has provided the background to make him today's foremost reporter of world events—as they are happening!

Advances Made In Cattle Disease

University of Texas scientists have made another advance in the search for a cure for brucellosis—the disease now costing U. S. livestock an estimated $100,000 annually.

They have found common sulphur is toxic to brucella organisms, Dr. Vernon T. Schubardt, University bacteriology professor and brucellosis research director, said.

Laboratory tests indicate colloidal sulphur is the toxic agent in certain amino acids and peptones, protein-derived chemical which have been found effective in killing brucella organisms.

"The problem now is to find a way to keep the sulphur toxic when brucellosis is treated," Dr. Schubardt explained. "Blood and chemicals in tissues tend to change the sulphur to a non-toxic state."

Brucellosis losses are particularly heavy in the dairy industry where both milk and calf production are greatly reduced. The disease sometimes infects humans who are constantly exposed to it.

Barbara Schwiening is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Martin, in Junction.

Harold Schwiening Improving

Harold Schwiening, local ranchman who underwent major chest surgery Monday morning in a St. Louis hospital, was reported as "getting along fine" Wednesday and will be home about the middle of June. Mrs. Schwiening, Mrs. C. E. Stites and Jack McDermitt are with him.

Our Readers Prayer (we hope)
Don't stop my paper, editor;
Don't strike my name off yet;
You know the cash comes slow,
And dollars hard to get.
But tug a little harder
Is what I mean to do;
And scrap the dimes together—
Enough for me and you.
I can't afford to stop it,
I find it doesn't pay
To do without your paper;
However, others may.
I hate to ask my neighbors
To give theirs to loan;
They don't just say (but mean it),

A little girls like new shoes, party dresses, small animals, dolls, make believe, ice cream, make-up going visiting, tea parties, and one boy. She doesn't care much for visitors, boys is general, large dogs, hand-me-downs, straight chairs, vegetables, snow suits, or staying in the front yard. She is loudest when you are thinking, prettiest when she has provoked you, busiest at bedtime, quietest when you want to show her off, and most flirtatious when she absolutely must not get the best of you.

She can muss up your home, your hair and your dignity—spend your money, your time and your temper—just then when your patience is ready to crack, her sunshine peeks through and you've lost again.

Yes, she is a nerve wracking nuisance, just a noisy bundle of mischief. But when your dreams tumble down and the world is a mess, when it seems you've pretty much a fool after all, she can make you a king when she climbs on your knee and whispers, "I love you best of all!"

Horse Show, Opens Thursday

San Angelo Horse Show and Rodeo, scheduled for June 7, 8, 9, 10, prepared for one of its largest shows in its history as officials were tabulating some 180 entries into four classes.

This year marks the first performance of the Rodeo in conjunction with the Horse Show. Also a Cutting Horse Contest is scheduled for the 4-day program.

Divisions of the Horse Show are the Quarter Horse, Palomino Stock Horse, Palomino Pleasure Type Horse and Thoroughbred and Half-breed sections. Halter Judging will begin Thursday, June 7.

The following classes will be judged in the performance divisions: reining; Pleasure Type, western equipment for mares or gelding, stallions; Ladies' Western Pleasure Class; and Western Pair Class. Purse for the Cutting Horse Contest will be $500 plus entry fees of $25 per contestant.

The San Angelo Rodeo, produced by Buettler Brothers, Elk City, Oklahoma, will be given at six performances on Thursday night Friday Afternoon and Night, Saturday Afternoon and Night, and Sunday Afternoon.

A few weeks ago we published an article titled "What Is A Boy?" Recently Mrs. J. M. Rabon mailed us a copy of a similar story by the same author, Alan Beck, titled, "What Is A Girl?"

"Little girls are the nicest things that happen to people. They are born with a little bit of angel shine about them and though it wears thin sometimes, there is always enough left to lasso your heart even when they are sitting in the mud, or crying temperamental tears, or parading up the street in mothers best cloths.

A little girl can be sweeter (and badder) ofner than anyone else in the world. She can jitter around and stomp, and make funny noise and frazzle your nerves, yet just when you open your mouth, she stands there demure with that special look in her eyes. YOUR HEALTH

"Good health in hot weather may be largely a matter of personal choice," according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, as he called for Texans to take life as it comes in summer and live with it comfortably as possible.

"These modern scientists can drop ice from airplanes to make rain, and they can forecast weather several days in advance, but nobody has figured out a way to keep the thermometer from rising sky high in a hot summer afternoon," Dr. Cox said.

"Therefore, Dr. Cox continued, 'a few common sense practices will help us to live with summer and like it: Texas summers are hot and the hottest part is still ahead, so one needs to remember certain things that are good hot weather practices.

"For example: drink plenty of cool (not ice) water; eat moderately of simple, but a wide variety of foods, exercise daily in the fresh air and have plenty of air in sleeping rooms; take a fair amount of salt to replace large losses through perspiration; avoid alcoholic drinks get plenty of sleep, keep clean; 'One of the essentials of summer comfort is the daily bath to don't worry. Do not overeat. wash away perspiration and with it body wastes eliminated through the pores, and to relax tired muscles and strained nerves. There is nothing better than a leisurely bath followed by a short rest."

Ranch Taxes Show Increase For Fourth Year, 15 % over 1949

Taxes on Texas farm and ranch real estate increased in 1950 for the fourth successive year. The average increase for the state was four per cent, compared with 15 per cent for 1949.

Total taxes levied averaged 26.6 cents per acre. This is about 50 percent higher than the 1936-46 average of 18 cents per acre. A record high of 29 cents was levied in 1931.

Taxes ranged from an average of five cents per acre in the Trans-Pecos area to $3.41 in the Lower Rio Grand Valley. This variation reflects the wide differences in Texas agriculture and the intensity of governmental development, according to Robert G. Cherry and L. P. Gabbard, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station economists, who made the 1950 tax study.

Some counties showed slight decreases, and the rise in some counties was much higher than the state average.

Cherry and Gabbard report that school districts were responsible for most of the increase in 1950. State and county taxes generally showed no appreciable change.

In recent years schools have increased their share of the total tax bill, while the proportion from county levies has declined. In 1950 school districts accounted for 50 percent of the farm and ranch real estate taxes, counties for 29 percent, the state for 14 percent, and other districts for 7 percent.

The extension of levies to most land by the Gilmer-Aikin school laws has been a contributing factor to the growth of school taxes, report the economists.

Although assessments per acre were higher in 1950, taxes were easier to pay in 1949. The relative rise of taxes was less than the rise of prices over 1949. The tax-price ratio declined in 1950 from 1.03 to .97, which is slightly less than the base year 1913.

The experiment station economists expect the upward trend of taxes to halt, at least temporarily, in 1951, since 1950 was the last year in which the state will levy a property tax for general revenue purposes. However, the possible tax load has not been greatly diminished because counties may now levy an additional 30 cent rate.
