

Home Trade And Civic Loyalty Essential To Sonora's Growth, Says Lion President

"Home trade is vital to any town and it is vital to Sonora," Lions Club President Clayton Hamilton stated this week in endorsing Civic Loyalty Month in Sonora. "Pouring trade resources through home channels builds up success and prosperity in the community," he added. The principal argument for home trade, he continued, is the fact that it not only benefits everyone living in the adjacent trade territory which is a part of every community, but home trade pays in dollars and cents. Every dollar spent away from home builds up business away from home and so contributes to lagging business in the home town. Out of town shoppers should figure up the incidental costs and inconveniences occasioned by sending out of town for anything that can be bought in Sonora. Then they will see that it pays, literally, to trade at home. We all tend to ignore such things as gasoline costs, hotel or motel costs, time spent away from our jobs. But we should include these items in the actual cost of goods purchased.

In the case of mail order purchases, money order and postage fees should be added to the catalog price in order to arrive at an honest cost. Then should be considered such items as waiting for arrival of the ordered merchandise, time lost in exchanging unsatisfactory merchandise, and the inevitable disappointment when the ordered item fails to live up to expectation. There just is no easy way to buy goods at cheaper prices than our home town merchants can supply them. Retailing of merchandise is probably one of the most closely studied aspects of business and you can safely figure that Sonora merchants are applying their knowledge of retailing to the best of their abilities in order to offer you their wares at the lowest possible prices. Competition is too keen these days for retailers to ask for more than a low profit margin. Common sense tells us that the field of business is wide open and if there were big profits to be made, the field would be closed to all but a few nationwide concerns.

Our home town merchants don't ask for our business as a charity but they do ask the opportunity to prove that they can fulfill the needs of Sonora shoppers, either over the counter or by special order.

NINTH WEEK

Big Stink At Courthouse

Odds And Ends

Best news of the past week was the Aggie's loss to Darrel Royal's Texas Longhorns. Good news for two reasons: first, because Texas won.

Most important reason: the City of Sonora is now cleansed of Aggies. This is roughly as great a feat as, say, eliminating the sidewalk swarmed with Aggies or Aggie-Sympathizers all last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday morning. Late Thursday afternoon and from that time to this there is not one to be found. One former member of the Aggie fraternity told us in confidence that he had really wanted to go to the University as a young man but his father wouldn't let him. Since then he has been a Longhorn booster on the sly!

The unruffled calm of county politics seemed this week to cover a story which would smell to heaven. Talk of dirty politics and stink raising was drifting over Sonora early Tuesday morning. Even in an off year election-wise, it was apparent that something would have to be done to cover up the threat of a Sutton County (above) to bring smelly matters into the open. Quick thinking and work on the part of Custodian G. G. (Shorty) Bennett resulted in the native's being coxed off the steps of the courthouse where he had, evidently enjoyed a good night's sleep.

New Motel Opens Last Weekend

The Holiday Host, new motel on Highway 290, opened for business last Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Shurley, managers of the 20-unit motel, moved into their living quarters in the establishment's main building earlier in the week. Featuring central heating and cooling and a heated swimming pool, the Holiday Host's 20-units are decorated in contemporary colors.

PULL OVER PLEASE!

The Texas State laws say that we people must pull over when we hear a fire alarm or see the Fire Trucks coming down the street, but we don't do it. The Firemen are in no hurry to get there anyway, and why should they worry if your house burns down? And, if the trucks happen to get out ahead of you, just follow them as fast as you can, for there may be some Fire boys trying to catch and get to the fire. These late boys should have started sooner if they wanted to help. So pay them no mind if they have lights blinking and sirens blowing, for they like the bright lights and enjoy the sirens. Go on, pass them if you can, so that you may be there as soon as possible, for what is another fire, anyway?

Bronco Cagers Take One, Drop One

The 1957 second place Broncos started the season off with a boom here Thursday, November 21, by winning their first cage game 37 to 27 over Christoval. Charles Lamb's Broncos, after a rough and tough three quarters of play finally gained an edge in the fourth period. High point man was Freddy Fields with 14 points. John Ed Neville and Jerry Potmesil hit 9 and eight respectively. Sam Galindo, although seeing little service, got 50 percent of the rebounds. This is Sam's first year to participate in "round" ball. Barrett, Carl Jones, George Thompson, Herman Moore and Charles L. Haines. Starters for the Broncos will be Freddy Fields, John Ed Neville, Jerry Potmesil, Gene Brodhead and Allen Wall. Admission for the All Star event will be 50 cents and 25 cents with proceeds to be used to help defray tournament travel expenses for the high school cage teams. Game time is 7:30.

Engineering personnel of the SCS flood prevention planning unit at Brownwood were in Sonora this week making preliminary examination of possible structure locations on Dry Devil's River. Engineering crews are expected to start making field surveys on December 9. Current work on Dry Devil's River is being financed from money remaining in the Lowrey Draw fund. An additional $3,500 required to complete the work plan on Dry Devil's River will be furnished jointly by the City of Sonora and Sutton County. "A number of factors determine where structures must be located," explained E. B. Keng, local work unit conservationist. "First, there must be a natural site, with sufficient material suitable for dam construction. Dams must be constructed from 'hill to-hill', so sites must be selected where the most water can be impounded with the least cost." The size and shape of the watershed also is important in determining the number, size and location of structures. The law limits each structure to a maxi-imum of 5,000 acre feet, which means that the drainage area above a particular structure can be no larger than about 18,000 acres. Adequate spillways must be available, since provision must be made for water to pass without damage to the structure in the event of rains greater than a 100 year frequency storm. Sufficient dams must be constructed to give a minimum of about 70 percent control of major floods. This means that approximately 70 percent of the entire watershed must be above the structures. After a suitable site is selected, the next all important factor is the willingness of the landowner to permit construction. Under this flood prevention program the landowner retains ownership of the land, and simply grants an easement to permit construction. The landowner also retains full control of the use of the water in the sediment pool which may hold up to 200 acre feet of water. Following high intensity rains each structure will flood irrigate from a few acres to several hundred acres of rangeland above the dam. The increased grass on these areas will much more than offset the loss of production on the few acres covered by the dam and sediment pool. Landowners on both Lowrey Draw and Dry Devil's River realize the potential damage to Sonora and have this far been very cooperative and interested in the proposed project. The flood prevention survey made in connection with Lowrey Draw indicates that a major flood in Sonora would cause greater damage than was suffered by Ozona. The June 1954 flood in Ozona caused damages estimated from four to seven million dollars.

There will be a meeting of the Sonora Fling Ding Club at 7:30 O'clock Monday night, December 9, in the courthouse. Officers for the coming year will be elected at this time. Members and their wives are urged to be present.

WHEREAS, self interest and collective interest are one and the same and we are all partners in prosperity, and WHEREAS, we have made our homes here, and are in a sense investors in Sonora's welfare, and WHEREAS, merchants have also invested here, to help the town thrive, and WHEREAS, loyalty to our community means everything since it is the essential factor to our growth and development and it is a requisite of loyalty to get behind the business institutions who have shown their faith by devoting their time, money and efforts to the general welfare of our community, NOW THEREFORE, I Alfred Schwiening, Mayor of the City of Sonora, do designate and set aside the month of December as Civic Loyalty Month in Sonora and urge the citizens of this city to join in this program and to patronize our merchants whenever it is possible. Signed this 1st day of December, 1957. (SEAL) Alfred Schwiening, Mayor of the City of Sonora.

Devil's River Philosopher Says If Nation Needs More Basic Researchers, He's Available

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weet ranch on Devil's River is misinterpreting the news again, his letter this week indicates.

I found in a copy of a newspaper which a north wind blew in here the other afternoon, when you can get newspapers from any direction you don't care which way the wind is blowing, an article that said Washington officials are concerned about the number of scientists the schools are turning out. They say it's not enough.

That is, we're turning out a lot of scientists, all right, but they're being trained for such things as designing lower cars, cars that get lower from the top down but still stay far enough of the ground to keep from burning the seat of your pants, or working out new color blends for refrigerators, making radios you can drop without breaking, watches that never have to be wound, cigarettes with twice as many filters as any other brand, etc.

What we need now, Washington has decided, is more scientists for basic research. More egghead scientists, men who work on theories without any consideration for whether the idea will be worth anything commercially or not.

Well, now, I'll tell you. I might qualify on this thing. That is,

I'm no scientist, but I've spent a lifetime working on basic research, if a basic researcher is somebody who works at a joy regardless of whether it'll pay off or not.

Ranching the way I do it comes as close to being basic research as anything I can think of. When a rancher starts a year's work, he has no more idea whether it's going to turn out commercially profitable than a scientist working on abstract mathematical theories. I know ranchers who have plowed ahead for years with practically no attention to whether or not their venture would show a profit.

But there must be some mistake. If Washington thinks there's a shortage of us basic researchers, it ought to take another count of the ranchers in this country. Instead of counting how much we produced, it ought to find out how much we made. This country is filled with basic researchers, but our trouble is we've been researching in the wrong field.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Air Pollution Is Problem Of All Communities

One of the paradoxes of civilization has been that each advance in technological know-how contributes a benefit to mankind usually beings with it some new problem to be overcome.

Unfortunately, many things that contribute to mankind's progress also pollute the air he breathes.

All fuels consumed for heat and power, gases that propel vehicles, spinning tires, construction, rock-crushing, grading, chemical processing, incinerators pollens from weeds, and other sources are continually adding to the contamination content of the air above areas of industrial concentration.

Air pollution is a problem of all modern communities, regardless of size. Nearly every contaminant that is put in to the air causes some form of damage or hazard even many miles from its source.

It is for this reason that every resident of an industrial, urban and rural community should have a keen interest in the control every source of air contamination in his municipality.

Air is our most important resource, basic not merely to health but to life itself. Great strides have been made through research to identify the sources of dangerous air pollution. Reduction of contaminants discharged into the air by industrial plants is one of the major contributions of the Air Pollution Control Association, sponsor of the nationwide Cleaner Air Week activities, October 20-26.

This has been effected through installation of a variety of dust and fume collectors, industrial stokers, overfire jets and a assortment of other devices.

While United States industry spends upwards of $120 million annually on pollution control equipment, many sources of air contamination can be corrected at little or no cost.

Over-abundance of smoke is frequently the result of carelessness and indifference on the part of householders, janitors, railroaders, and other persons involved in the operation and maintenance of power or heating equipment. High weeds and grass produce pollens.

Regardless of what type of fuel is used—whether it is coal, oil, wood, or gas—human failure usually creates the smoke with its resultant air pollution.

Edwards Plateau Soil Conservation District News

By E. B. Keng
Soil Conservation Service

What plants are taken first, when sheep, goats and cattle are turned into a deferred pasture in October? Observations were recently made on the SCD trial area at the Herbert Fields Ranch after sheep, goats and cattle had grazed approximately 3 weeks. Texas wintergrass and sideoats grama showed the most use made of native grasses. Green and succulent from fall rains—and carrying some 16 percent protein—Texas wintergrass is being taken by all classes of livestock. With the good moisture available this grass will furnish choice feed throughout the winter. Another choice native grass showing high grazing preference is plains lovegrass. Though not winter growers, both plains lovegrass and Texas cupgrass are very cold resistant.

The seed heads were stripped, apparently by goats from practically every green sprangletop plant in the 367 acre pasture. The leaves of most green sprangletop plants also showed use. Cane bluestem plants showed some stripping of leaves, but the tall seed stems are not being grazed. Among introduced grasses, buffelgrass and blue panic were being chosen by livestock, but the frost nipped KR bluestem, along with curlymesquite, is being frowned upon. Perennial weeds showing grazing preference included Indian mallow, rock lettuce, Dutchman's breeches, and a small weed called knotweed leafflower. Tallow weed and filaree are still too small to be grazed. Good recovery has been made by some choice shrubs, including kidneywood and black dalea. These palatable shrubs showed evidence of considerable grazing. One of the interesting things to watch this winter is the reaction of sheep to bitterweed with adequate palatable weeds and grasses available. Will the sheep take enough bitterweed to cause poisoning? Some ranchmen believe that sheep will take enough bitterweed accidentally, while grazing good plants, to start them to eating bitterweed. Other ranchmen think that with good green desirable plants available sheep will avoid the bitterweed, and that losses will be very light. A few ranchmen have recently asked, "Has anything been developed to counteract bitterweed poison?" The best answer to this question is a statement by Dr. I. P. Boughton on this subject: "From the time that Socrates swallowed a cup of hemlock (tea from a poison plant), to this good day there has never been a successful antidote developed for a natural vegetable poison."

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL CHOIR GIVES PROGRAM AT PTA

The PTA met in regular session Tuesday afternoon in the Central Elementary School auditorium with Mrs. Frank Potmesil presiding. Mrs. Robert Kelley gave a report on the PTA State Convention held in Galveston. Mrs. Jack Thomas's choir presented a program on songs including "Adeste Fideles", "Let Us Play a Gay Musette", "Bring a Torch, Jeanette", "Isabella", "Birthday of the King", "What Child is This?", and "Sweetly Sleeping in the Manger" with Tommy Rape singing the solo part.
