LIONS ROAR

The Sonora Lion's Club met Tuesday July 10 at noon in the Fellowship Hall of the First Methodist Church.

The program was brought by Bob McMinn, who is in charge of the swimming pool, which is sponsored by the Lion's Club.

Lunch was served by the Methodist Adult Sunday School Class.

President Jack Kerbow presided at the meeting. A short directors' meeting was held following the regularly scheduled one.

Mrs. Dora Herrera would have been the winner of $175 at the Bonus Dollar Drawing in downtown Sonora, July 7, had she been present to claim her prize.

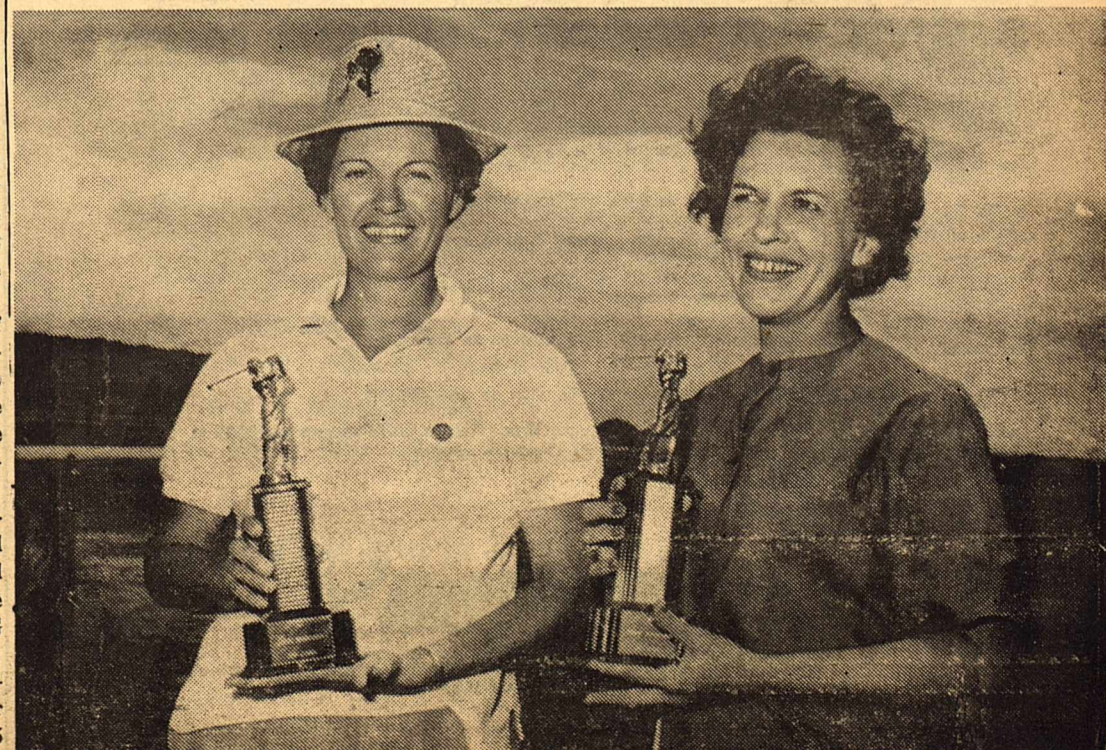

The woman's husband was present, but Mrs. Herrera, herself, was not in the audience. H. V. Stokes, Chamber of Commerce manager, stresses that the person whose name is drawn must be present. He emphasizes that families should register the member most likely to be downtown to claim the money.

The next Bonus Dollar Drawing will be Saturday, July 21 and the prize now moves up to $225.

Dr. Salk: Portrait of a Worker

... pays little heed to recognition

... a lively sense of humor.

Dr. Jonas Salk, who will direct the Salk Institute for Biological Studies at San Diego, Calif., is a modest man. He pays little heed to the world-wide recognition of his right to be ranked among America's leading scientists.

The man who developed the Salk vaccine against polio, and thus unquestionably saved tens of thousands of lives, impatiently waves aside any suggestions that his role was historic. In one of few interviews he has granted, he has said, with respect to the vaccine: "I happened to be in the right place to catch a long forward pass."

He added, in effect, that instead of receiving accolades, he would far rather devote his time to his work.

Plans Center

As long ago as 1956, a year after his polio vaccine was declared safe, potent and effective, Dr. Salk turned his thoughts toward creating a "center for biological research" where outstanding scientists in the fundamental disciplines would carry on their work in an atmosphere of intellectual imagination, heightened by the presence of their fellow workers.

Some biographers note a contradiction in this scientist who for many years has acted as if an 18-hour-day was nothing extraordinary. If he is modest when in the public view, he is the opposite in the laboratory—gregarious, yet single-mindedly intent on reaching his goal.

The director and first head of the Salk Institute, to which he has already attracted eminent scholars, will be this relatively young scientist who is now 47. Dr. Salk and his wife, the former Donna Lindsay, have three sons. The doctor is of average height and build, with dark eyes and hair. He has a lively sense of humor, apparent even at anecdotes told at his expense, and a ready and engaging smile. He is conservative in dress but is constantly chided about not owning a hat.

Has Busy Schedule

Dr. Salk's schedule permits him little time to relax—at the moment he is studying the basic nature of viruses and of cells, but when he does repose the companions of his leisure are often the works of Sibelius, Bach and Beethoven.

The eldest of three sons, Dr. Salk was born in New York City in 1914. At an early age there were evidences of unusual ability which led him to Townsend Harris High School, a school for talented young people. He graduated from City College of New York and entered New York University College of Medicine when not yet 20. A March of Dimes fellowship took him to the University of Michigan and to the laboratory of Dr. Thomas Francis Jr., a leading virologist and epidemiologist. In 1947 he joined the University of Pittsburgh as associate research professor of bacteriology and director of its virus research laboratory. In 1949, working under a March of Dimes grant involving $1,370,000 (in which three other universities joined), he first entered the battle against polio.

Develops Polio Vaccine

The subsequent development of the polio vaccine by Dr. Salk requires retelling. In recognition of this work and other contributions, the State of Pennsylvania in 1955 created for Dr. Salk the chair of Commonwealth Professor of Preventive Medicine at the University of Pittsburgh.

Asked recently how he arrived at scientific research as a lifetime work, he explained: "I really entered medical school with the idea of doing research, and I never changed my mind. It's a way of projecting yourself ahead of yourself, I suppose, and there was something appealing in the search for understanding that had some bearing on human problems. I guess I felt the unreasonable of life in so many ways. Research was one way to get at reason and logic."

He succeeds in devoting some hours to his family. But he has no time for distractions such as those presented by interviewers who want to give him what he regards as undeserved renown.

Devoted to Work

As to the unending flow of invitations he receives these days to speak on almost any subject, his honest reaction is that "I'm still young enough to work, and I have much to do. And I am not old enough to pontificate."

In 1956, after he was awarded a Congressional Gold Medal in ceremonies at Washington, D.C., Dr. Salk expressed his appreciation in these few words that tell much about the man: "The community needed a bell tower to warn its people against attack. Everyone helped to build it, and the whole was greater than the sum of its parts. When it was finished, the feeling of gratitude of each man for his neighbor, for what each had contributed, was showered upon but one—and he was among the last to contribute. But all knew that the end could not have come without the beginning, and without all that had transpired in between."

Devil's River Philosopher Eases Up On New Tax Sources Figures Way To Pay The Taxes We Have Now

Editor's Note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weed ranch on Devil's River discusses another angle of the tax situation this week, but he won't get anywhere with it.

Dear editor:

A neighbor of mine who apparently reads The Devil came by my house yesterday and said it's all right with him if the government wants to tax cats, he's got ten or twelve around his house he'd be pleased to have revenue agents foreclose on and put up for public sale, but that what he's really interested in is not in helping the government find new sources of revenue, what he wants is help in paying the taxes the government has already thought up.

This sounds like a reasonable request and I have started off with a method to pay income tax installments on the installment plan. It's not as complicated as you think.

The government makes a lot of people pay their income tax in weekly installments, doesn't it? Everybody knows what the withholding tax is. But some weeks a man needs all his money, not just the part that's left after the government withholds its tax.

In such a case, which I figure occurs most of the time, the thing for the government to do is to sell the man a money order on credit to pay his withholding tax with. This way he'd get all his money to pay out on all the other installments he owes, and the government would get its money from the post office.

Where the post office would get its money to make the money order negotiable involves another point, but it'll be a sad day in this country when one branch of the government can't trust another. The post office can take its money orders and put them up as collateral and borrow against them from some other branch of government.

Where this other branch will get its money is still another question, but the way I see it, the government has so many different branches it'd be years, maybe generations, before it ran out of still another one to borrow from, and by that time a new generation would be on hand and that'd be its worry.

After all, each generation has enough to worry about on its own without taking on the generations still to come. The world has come to learn how to live with debts. In fact, if you will point out to me any government on earth which is out of debt, or ever seriously expects to be, I'd like to hear about it. Make a good place to float a loan.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

whitewing population in the Valley counties.

Quail season in the regulatory counties may not be set until the October meeting, awaiting information on this year's crop. Biologists say that right now it is too early to get firm indications on the quail crop.

Commission To Set Seasons At July Meet

The 1962 hunting seasons in more than 100 regulatory counties in Texas will be set July 20 by the Game and Fish Commission, according to H. D. Dodgen, executive secretary.

Public hearings have been held in these counties throughout the state, where any changes in regulations are recommended, and surveys of conditions are now being compiled in readiness for the regular summer meeting of the Commission. According to Dodgen, the 1962 season will be basically the same as in 1961, with the exception that a bonus deer may be allowed in several additional counties this season, because of the increase in deer population.

It is expected also that the dove season will be set at that time, following receipt of the blanket date which is expected very shortly from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. It is not expected that the dates will be changed this year, but because of a decrease in dove population it is entirely possible that there will be a bag limit reduction.

It is also indicated that there will be at least a two-day whitewing season in the Rio Grande Valley, subject to the final decision of the Commission. Again, there has been a reduction in the

IN TEXAS... a new governor, Francis Richard Lubbock, guided a bankrupt state through that bitter Civil War year. Cotton, exported through Mexico, brought desperately needed foreign gold. Homefront industries were established. Comforts were few, but morale stayed high... and there was good Texas beer, enjoyed then as now.

For then, as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation—light, sparkling refreshment that adds a touch of Southwestern hospitality to any occasion. Texans have always enjoyed the good fellowship that goes with every glass.

Devil's River Philosopher Says Doctors And Movie Queens May Strike, But Ranchers Never Will

Editor's Note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weed ranch on Devil's River considers some new aspects of the strike, his letter this week reveals:

Dear editor:

Since I don't even know very much about what's going on in Sonora, I'm in no position to know what's going on in that province up in Canada where the doctors struck, but the thought by doctors opens up a vast and baffling new field.

I know that organized labor has been using the strike for years, but up to now about the only other place where it has been used is in Hollywood, where an occasional movie queen might

Tag Returns Aid Studies

One of the most important objectives of coastal fisheries biologists is to learn the spawning, feeding and migratory habits of marine life along the Texas coast. To do this, these scientists must catch and tag or stain thousands of fish, shrimp and crabs.

It is reported that the strike has held up production by striking because her name wasn't printed in big enough type or something like that, but that Canadian doctor's strike presents new fields of unlimited confusion.

For instance, a bankers' strike. You go into town to renew a note till Fall and find a sign on the bank door: On Strike Against Slow Payments of Notes.

You stop by a barber show and find the door closed with a sign on it: On Strike Against Safety Razors and the Home Use of Hair Clippers.

On a lawyer's door you find a sign reading just: On Strike, because a lawyer will never be very clear anyway, sometimes because he's not sure himself.

After you find three or four other types of business on strike, you write your Congressman asking him to pass a law to solve these strike problems, and you get a form letter back saying Congress is not in session on account of the members are on strike against the popular vote, a legitimate position since many of them every once in a while are fired on account of it.

I don't know how far this far-fetched thing could go, but I know where it would stop. It would stop with ranchers.

Ranchers aren't likely to go on strike, for a very simple reason. They have built up such a huge surplus that it would last longer than they would. With enough food already on hand to run a couple of years, ranchers would have to strike for three years at least to make the pinch felt, and they aren't in financial shape to do it. This is just another edge the doctors, movie queens, labor bosses, etc. have over ranchers.

In upper Galveston Bay, near Seabrook, the last week in June, 55 crabs were tagged with spaghetti tags and released. At Matagorda Bay, a drum tagged February 12 of this year and released in Turtle Bay was returned. It has been at liberty for 104 days and moved some 6 miles southeast of the tagging site. Biologists at Seadrift, as at all areas along the coast, are constantly trawling for shrimp samples. They report that brown shrimp are again very scarce in the area. At Corpus Christi, biologists noted that brown shrimp started moving out of the bay in large numbers.

In the upper Laguna Madre, biologists report that brown shrimp were plentiful all last week but apparently moved out of the bay this past weekend, June 23, and 24. About 30 small trout and rat reds were tagged in that area and released.

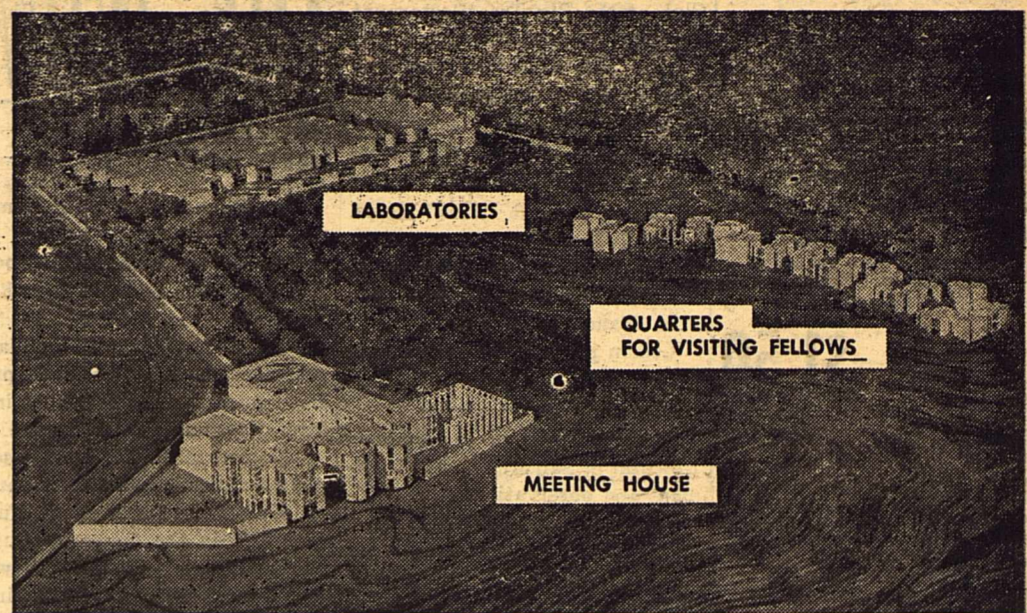

In the lower Laguna Madre, seven trout and one redfish were tagged and released. Biologists report that both species were very abundant in that area. Trout, half of which are under legal size, were present in the Intracoastal Canal throughout the area with rat reds showing up in numbers, especially at Port Mansfield and at the mouth of the Rio Grande. Flounder were present in the Port Isabel area but had not yet moved as far as Three Islands. Eighteen stained shrimp were turned in to biologists.

Biologists strained and released nearly 40,000 shrimp in the Port Mansfield area in June. Fishermen who return the marked shrimp, along with data on when and where they were caught, to Game and Fish Commission personnel will become eligible for a drawing later this summer. The shrimp should be frozen or pickled in alcohol. Six names will be drawn and awards of $25 each will be presented by the Texas Shrimp Association.

By the way, the newspapers aren't planning on striking, are they? I need to know, as there's no sense in me writing you if you're going to shut down in protest against something.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Dr. Salk Will Head New Institute

Architect's model of Salk Institute under construction at San Diego, Calif.

Through the many years Dr. Jonas Salk has worked toward the elimination of polio, he has become increasingly aware of the need for an approach to biological questions that is of broadest scope and has deepest meaning for all human beings.

Today this idea is being transformed into reality.

The need—to establish a community of outstanding scholars in biology and other basic sciences who will carry on their quest for fundamental truth about life, health and disease; to bring these scientists and scholars under one roof; and to provide them with the equipment they will need and the opportunity to exchange ideas.

The reality—the Salk Institute for Biological Studies, to be directed by Dr. Salk. The Institute, which is to be financed by the American people, is now under construction at San Diego, Calif., and will open in 1963.

Campaign June 1 to 15

Everyone will have the opportunity June 1-15 to contribute to the Salk Institute Building Fund of $15 million. Thus, the Institute will represent a partnership of the American public with eminent scientists in the pursuit of the answers to fundamental biological questions. The campaign will be sponsored by The National Foundation through the March of Dimes.

Dr. Salk plans for a staff of Senior and Visiting Fellows who will be "men of great excellence" in the fields of biology, genetics, biochemistry, physics and mathematics. There will also be philosophers, historians of science and others concerned with humanitarian pursuits. Provision will be made for a total staff of between 300 and 400, including laboratory technicians, administration staff, animal caretakers, maintenance workers and others.

The site consists of 27 acres overlooking the Pacific Ocean on Torrey Pines Mesa in the La Jolla area of San Diego. Gift of the land, valued at $1 million, was authorized by the electorate last year. The architect is Louis I. Kahn of Philadelphia.

The plan of the Institute that emerged after several years of study was a research center consisting of three groups of buildings, containing approximately 400,000 square feet. The three units will house the Laboratories, the Meeting House, and the Quarters for Visiting Fellows.

The Laboratories will be part of a two-story structure that also includes studies and a technical library. The upper floor, roofed in part by glass, is built without columns to keep space free and to allow for maximum flexibility in planning individual laboratories—each complete with facilities for water, steam, air, vacuum, electricity.

West of the Laboratories and closer to the edge of the site that drops steeply to the Pacific will be the cluster of Quarters for Visiting Fellows. These will number about 18 two-story units divided into studio-type rooms.

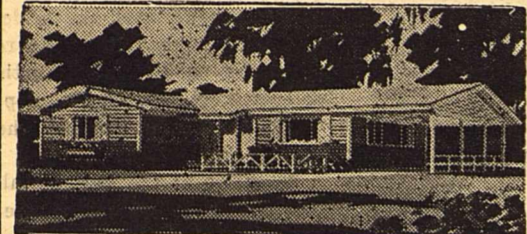

Also west of the Laboratories will be the Meeting House. This is designed as the intellectual, cultural and social heart of the Salk Institute. The units of the Meeting House vary in height. This building will provide seminar rooms, a library for special collections concerned with the humanistic aspects of the Institute's interests, rooms for temporary guests and an exhibition hall. There will also be a lecture hall.

Understanding is Vital

Describing the aims and purposes of the Institute, Dr. Salk said recently that "discoveries in biology and medicine, as in other sciences, are not often made by accident or even by trial and error. They are made by deep and thoughtful search. The way to solve the problems of disease is through understanding; cures and preventives come from knowledge and understanding.

"It is our expectation that the men and women at the Institute will help further understanding of the basic processes of life. In that way we should learn how the natural processes are altered by disease. As we understand more and more of the natural processes and therefore of the changes present in disease, we will have at our disposal knowledge upon which health is built.

"We prefer to speak of life and health, rather than disease and cure. The attitude and the approach at the Institute will be positive; the purpose will be to contribute to helping man make the best of his gift of life."

If, like so many other Americans today, you've asked yourself, "How can I help my country?"—here's a suggestion from the U.S. Treasury:

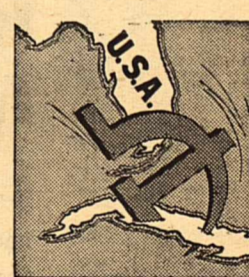

Start buying and holding U.S. Savings Bonds.

When you do, you open the door to a lot of bright horizons. For one thing, you put your dollars into a pile that the U.S. Government guarantees to grow. Your investment can never shrink.

But your Bond dollars bring you a bigger return than money alone. Uncle Sam uses them to strengthen his stand for freedom—so you'll be able to enjoy the things you're saving for.

Your new home, for example. Buying Savings Bonds helps make sure you'll be able to own and enjoy it in a free world.

That's why millions of Americans are putting up their dollars for freedom through Savings Bonds today. Why not add your strength?

Buy an EXTRA Bond during the Freedom Bond Drive.

Keep freedom in your future with

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

The communists have world-wide ambitions. One way we can upset their geography is to help keep our economy strong through U.S. Savings Bonds.

You get more than interest. Savings Bonds pay one return you can measure in dollars and cents, and one you can't.

The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertising. The Treasury Department thanks The Advertising Council and this newspaper for their patriotic support.

Congratulations To These New Parents

Miss Aline Schwiening, Robert O. Gilbert Married In Church Rites Friday Evening

Miss Aline Schwiening, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Schwiening, became the bride of Robert O. Gilbert, son of Mrs. Ora Gilbert of Austin, in ceremonies at St. John's Episcopal Church Friday evening, July 6. Mr. Pat Stephenson of Odessa, Church of Christ minister, read the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. W. T. Hardy, organist, presented nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. D. L. Locklin, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie with re-embroidered Alencon lace trim featuring a fitted bodice with long sleeves and a Sabrina neckline. Loops of self material, attached at a low back waistline, formed a bustle effect on the bouffant skirt which extended to a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of sheer illusion was attached to a bonnet cap of sequin-studded appliqued flowers. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and stephanotis shower and wore a single wedding band belonging to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. George Sutton Allison.

Mrs. Robert Tisdell of Portland, Oregon attended her sister as matron of honor. Her street-length dress of blue silk organza over net was designed with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline and cap sleeves. The full skirt featured a black panel of self-ruffles extending from waist to hemline. Her headpiece was a halo of blue net and she carried a crescent bouquet of white carnations. Darla Sue Moore, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress matched that of the honor attendant and she carried a basket of white flower petals.

James Dodd of Austin served the groom as best man. Ushers were Curt Schwiening, Jr. of Junction, brother of the bride; Harold A. Schwiening, Jr. and Joe Moore, cousins of the bride, and Jack Baker. Joe Moore lighted the candles and Curtis Tisdell of Portland, Oregon, nephew of the bride, carried the rings.

A reception at the Parish Hall of St. John's followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a cloth of natural lace and centered with an arrangement of white carnations in a crystal compote. Mrs. Harold A. Schwiening, Sr., aunt of the bride, served the four-tiered cake which was topped with a miniature bridal couple used by the bride's grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schwiening, Sr. on their 50th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Mary Johnson registered guests and Mrs. Margaret Green ladeled punch. Both are aunts of the bride.

Mrs. Gilbert is a graduate of Sonora High School and San Angelo College. She has been employed as a nurse at St. David's hospital in Austin. Her husband is a graduate of Austin schools and attended the University of Texas.

The couple will be at home temporarily in Colorado where he is employed with National Geophysical Company.

Women of the world, unite! A female of our species has written an article saying more men have heart attacks, not because of the pressures of business, but because of the work the little woman requires of him at home, like putting up screens, sweeping the garage and carrying out garbage. The woman columnist defends her position by glibly admitting women can do all these little chores without having heart attacks because they are used to it. (And how does one get used to something?)

She goes on to show women are outliving men and that the ideal marriage arrangement for a woman who does not want to become a widow, is to marry a man six years her junior. She further cites that in monasteries and convents where both men and women are relatively free from the pressures of home and business, women still outlive men.

This is a sad commentary on American men, and all part of a move to prove men are weaklings and than an Amazon-type female is soon to rule the world. Bet she won't like it, if and when she does. Next to lady politicians, men that can't put up a screen or hoist the garbage can out to the street, rate the lowest. Is life so dear to the male?

If so, garbage is worth it. For after all, it's the subject that is supposed to cause the greatest number of quarrels in the home.

A family of eight once eliminated the garbage quarrel. When the word was even mentioned they all, from the baby to the head of the house, ran and kissed each other smack on the mouth. It created a near-riot one evening when they were with friends at a drive-in eating place, when somebody in a nearby car mentioned "garbage." That was eight automatic kisses eight ways in a few minutes in one station wagon.

Summer saunters on by, and it's time to plant a second crop of zinnias for fall blooming. Zinnias like rich soil and bloom fuller and oftener if snipped every day.

Contour fitted sheets with elasticized corners will probably be on the market in time for the next white sale. This innovation is for easier bed making, and the elastic is guaranteed for the life of the sheeting.

A contour knit stocking that fits superbly and will not run is at last a reality. And a reality is something that exists and can be identified. When lady shoppers see this runless, seamless nylon that snags, but the snag can just be snipped off without causing a run or hole—well when we see it, it will be for real.

The winter gold rush of '61 is not over. Fourteen-karat gold lames and brocades in dinner suits and evening clothes are in the offing. But the fall fashion for those who crave potato over

He says he can't stay ahead of the correspondence he has with the Labor Department and the American Quarter-horse Association. "Just charge it up to experience," he advises, "and if that won't pay for it take up a collection."

There is a painting over the altar of the local Methodist Church that is worth seeing. The Saviour is portrayed in Gethsemane before the crucifixion. It was painted by the late Mrs. Bud Stokes and was dedicated shortly before her death. The background of the canvas—great rolling clouds of blackness and despair—tells the story as much as the praying figure.

A salute to the newly-organized Sonora Garden Club. Mrs. Charles F. Browne's enthusiasm on a downtown sunken garden is contagious. Homemakers and businessmen, let's not build up an immunity.

"The final test of an economic system," according to author Lewis Mumford, "is not the tons of iron, the tanks of oil, or the miles of textiles it produces; the final test lies in its ultimate products—the sort of men and women it nurtures and the order and beauty and sanity of their communities."

Let's all fall in step with the 'order and beauty and sanity' envisioned by the Sonora Garden Club for our community.

HIGH LIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

That "safe driver insurance plan" with its penalty points for traffic law violations and accidents goes out the window August 1:

State Board of Insurance bowed to legislators' demands that it be greatly modified. But Board members felt it would be better to scrap the whole thing, and try to work out some other plan for later adoption.

Most Texans will find that the abandonment of the merit rating plan will cost them money. This despite the fact that insured Texas car-owners taken as a whole will pay $10,000,000 less for car insurance in the coming year than they did this year.

However, two-thirds of the car owners—those who have been getting 20 per cent discounts because they have had no accidents or reported traffic convictions—will pay the full rates in the year ahead. The other one-third—those who have been paying as much as 100 per cent extra because of bad driving records—will save substantially. They will pay the same rates as everyone else.

One factor in the decision to drop the plan was concern by members of the Board and the insurance industry over the increasing number of car owners who just were doing without insurance. Board members felt that to increase the penalties, which would have been necessary to maintain the 20 per cent discount for the "safe drivers", would drive even more people into un-insurance. This would have made the safe driving insurance plan even more out of balance statistically.

Because auto insurance rates are set by counties, and by types of cars and the age groups of drivers, it is not possible to say just what effect the rates will have. Local insurance agents soon will have the information.

CREAM OF THE CROP—A preliminary glance at the Texas Education Agency's survey of 80,000 teachers revealed that the state's public schools system is getting the "cream of the crop" of high school graduates. Study chairman R. W. Byram of Austin said that new teachers came from the top 25 per cent of their graduating classes.

But the distribution of education specialists seems to be uneven: All teaching colleges in the state graduated a total of only 80 language teachers last year, and only 12 per cent of those who took mathematics education degrees plan to teach, so schools will suffer shortages in those areas.

On the other hand, there's an estimated surfeit of English and history teachers . . . almost all the college graduates who majored in those two subjects plan to teach.

BUSINESS BETTER THAN EVER—The seasonally-adjusted index of Texas business activity rose to a new all-time high of 137.1% in May, reported Dr. Francis B. May, statistician for the University of Texas' Bureau of Business Research.

High score reflects a seven per cent increase over April this year and a 12 per cent increase over May, 1961, according to Dr. May. He considers the sharp rise a potent reminder that the recovery from the 1960 recession has not yet spent its force.

DANIEL NAMES APPOINTMENTS—Gov. Price Daniel has made the following appointments to state boards: Kenneth Nelson of Diboll to the Board of Registration; Mrs. Mary Moody Northern of Galveston to the State Historical Survey Committee; L. E. Tension of Clifton Walter Flack of San Antonio, and R. H. Taylor of Houston, to the Accountancy Board; Wayne Thode of Austin, Talbot Rain of Dallas, Zeb Rike to McAllen and Crawford Kerr and Edwin W. Carroll of El Paso to the Commission on Uniform State Laws.

Fisher Writes On Farm Bill Defeat, Maneuvers Area

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

BY A 10-VOTE MARGIN the House last week defeated the supply-management farm bill. Considered by many as a drive for politically-determined and regulated farm prices, the House turned it down. Recognizing weaknesses in the bill, House sponsors accepted some 25 amendments during debate, and before it was all over no one seemed to know just what the hedge-podge measure actually contained.

The outcome was a victory for livestock producers who had reason to fear higher feed prices if the bill went through.

In short, the bill simply did not include answers to the high cost of the farm program, the mounting surpluses and the ever-increasing trend toward more controls and regimentation over the American agriculture.

I joined with 8 other Texans in voting to defeat the bill.

INQUIRIES HAVE COME IN regarding the proposed maneuver area plan recently announced by the Army. The project would include a 2-million acre area adjacent to Ft. Hood. It would take in all of Mills County, about half of Brown, San Saba and Lampasas Counties, and some of McCullough County.

Following the announcement, I joined with Congressman Poage and Burleson in an exploratory discussion of the project with Army officials at the Pentagon. Right-of-entry easements are

Fish With Worms Edible If Well Cleaned & Cooked

The ordinary cleaning of fish will remove practically all of the parasitic worms found on bass in Texas, with the exception of the yellow and black grubs. Marion Toole, coordinator of inland fisheries of the Game and Fish Commission, is getting many questions concerning worms found in cleaning fish.

Since these worms are not being sought from all landowners in the area, and we were anxious to know what if any compensation might be paid for such rights and also what arrangements would be made to see that any damages would be taken care of, and how much red tape and delay might be anticipated in the approval and payment of claims.

Many landowners remember the unhappy experience during Operation Longhorn several years ago when claims were admittedly poorly and inefficiently handled.

The Army insists that in the future damage claims will be handled promptly, up to $1,000. Above that figure, the claims would have to be processed and some inevitable delay would be involved.

We suggested that high-level studies be made to determine whether it might be feasible to pay landowners a stipulated amount per acre as liquidated damages where entries are actually made plus any specific damages that might occur following such entries.

hosted by man, they would not be injurious if eaten. This is especially true if the fish is well cooked, according to Toole.

"It is possible to find the bass tape worm, Proteocephalus ambloplitis, in places in Texas," he says. "These are cestode worms and occur in the intestines of the bass. They will be eliminated from a fish by cleaning the fish."

"The bass tape worm also goes through a life cycle in order to continue its existence in the world. They produce eggs which break off from the adult form and are shed from the anus of the fish into the water.

"In the water, the wall of the proglottid disintegrates and the eggs are released into the water. The eggs are then eaten by some crustaceans, such as the cycloids or diatoms and in these small animals the eggs hatch and develop into the proceroid.

"When the crustacean in turn is eaten by the fish, the parasite which is a proceroid larvae, bores through the wall of the digestive tract and invades the tissues of the viscera.

"The final host is usually one of the centrarchids which eats the infected, secondary fish host and as the secondary host is digested, the larvae are released into the intestines of the fish (black bass, goggle-eyes, crappie, etc.) and grow into adult tape worms, anchoring themselves to the intestines of the fish.

"Usually when yellow or black grubs are found encysted along the dorsal spine of a fish, by cutting off a little muscle tissue these worms can be recovered."

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

By John S. Otey

Church of the Good Shepherd,
Presbyterian U.S.
Some Thoughts About
Heaven and Hell

A few months ago I read an article in a national magazine about what some ministerial students believe and how this is expected to affect the beliefs of the church in general in a few years. The article was obviously designed primarily to sell magazines and not to give any deep theological insights, but I was interested in one point in particular.

The article stated, in a somewhat shocked tone of voice, that some seminary students don't even believe in hell anymore. Well, sir, I was shocked. I was shocked not at the lack of belief in hell, but rather at the degree to which many serious Christians still do believe in the fiery place of eternal damnation which medieval theologians conjured up largely out of the pagan superstitions of that day. Much of what they scared our ancestors with is not based on scripture, and what was based on scripture came from a questionable interpretation of some parts of The Book of Revelation. Let's see just what is at stake here.

We, as Christians, affirm that God alone is eternal. God alone is the Almighty, the Sovereign of the universe. If we posit a Satan who is also eternal, have we not created a dualism of two gods, one of good and one of evil? Have we not divided up eternity between two sovereigns on a "you-take-the-bad-ones-and-I'll-take-the-good-ones" basis? Now, we can certainly accept the reality of the present power of evil, whether we personify that power in "Satan" or not. However, we must beware of accepting traditions which are largely unscriptural and certainly not in keeping with the Gospel message of a loving heavenly Father. One popularly accepted medieval view was that one of the joys of heaven would be standing on the balcony and watching the bad ones catching hell below. How such a self-centered celebration of personal piety could be called Christian I do not understand. The message of Christianity concerning eternity is a reminder that God has had a past with man, Adam, that God has a "now" with man, and that He will also have a tomorrow with man. God's purpose in that tomorrow was, and through the miracle of forgiveness still is, a loving purpose of eternal fellowship of man with his creator.

-GREEN NEWS-

By Betty Jones

The Fourth of July tournament seems to have provided a stimulating topic of conversation. Men's tournament director J. W. Neville said, "The tournament was an overall success. There was a lot of work by all the members, but we feel that it was worth the effort of all concerned. We hope to make this an annual event and plan a two-day tournament next year."

President of Sonora Men's Club, Son Allison, said, "The interest shown by the community as a whole has been a contributing factor in the growth of our golf club. The tournament was a result of day by day cooperation and work of everyone."

The most pleasant feature of the tournament was the manner in which people worked together to make this effort a success. We owe special thanks to Dock Scott, Bill McGilvray and Candido Duran who did without their own celebration to provide beans and barbecue. The GI Forum lent chairs and under supervision of Pete Virgen delivered and picked them up. We are also grateful to other interested citizens who helped—especially the donors of all that luscious food.

Ladies Golf Club President Lunetta Morgan commented, "The women surely rolled up their sleeves and worked." We women had much needed help from many people: Reggie Trainer, John McClelland and Son Allison helped us as well as participating in other phases of the tournament. Jan McClelland ran many errands and helped at the club room. Stanton Bundy also spent most of his Fourth of July on the local course taking pictures. By the way, negatives of pictures taken may be secured at club house.

But what struck me most forcefully was the truth of Lunetta's statement that golf widows in Sonora are a thing of the past. Not only were our golfing wives and mothers working like beavers and playing too, but in many instances the entire family was on the golf course. Fathers caddied for their sons in the Pee Wee and Junior tournament; sons and daughters caddied for their mothers and dads.

At the barbecue, after a full day of golfing, everyone visited with old friends and met many new ones. The very special part of it all was the little boys "pridefully" sitting with the men and joining in the men's golf talk.

Speaking of family interest, we welcome the George Wallaces. They have a new set of clubs, and it looks like George may have to spend extra time on the course to keep ahead of son Joe.

Albert and Cynthia Wards' children are small, but the golf gleam in their eyes is obvious.

Another needed and appreciated help—Marie Ellis, on her own time, mimeographed our form letters for the tournament.
