That there are those among us who would use such violent means to sway the direction our elected leader pointed is a sign that our country is not as well as it should be.

Enough has been said on the marathon coverage television has given. Suffice this column to say that we have witnessed a sickening event that weighs on us as Americans and as Texans, and that we have witnessed the passing of a great man. May it not have been in vain.

Once again Santa is coming to town. He tried it before and got mobbed by "children" old enough not to believe in him, young enough not to have manners.

Santa's candy, like that meant for trick or treaters, often goes to enterprising young spoils seekers who have long forgotten the thrill of being a child.

But once again he'll grace our town. Bring the kids to see him arrive atop the fire truck, complete with escort. There will be candy for all the girls and boys who will be expecting a return trip on Christmas eve.

Downtown stores will be open until 8 p.m. to show off their yuletide merchandise. Most will be awarding prizes to the person nearest a hidden alarm clock in each store when it goes off between 6 and 8 p.m.

Drive safely over the holidays. Although drivers are more cautious during holiday driving, the great increases in the number of cars on the road increases the chances for accidents.

The Turkey, always associated with Thanksgiving, is truly an American bird. No other country has a similar fowl.

Long before the white man came to America, Indians caught the wild turkeys, tamed them and fattened them, and used them for ceremonial feasts.

After the coming of the Spaniards, turkeys were sent to European markets, and there gained their name. The merchants, mostly Hebrews, thought this new bird was a kind of peacock, and called it by their name for peacock "tukki."

Constant use of this term resulted in the English word "turkey."

Ozona Tops Broncos In Basketball Opener

By Dick McMillan

The Sonora Broncos, with starter Tino Noriega nursing an injury, dropped their first game of the season here Tuesday night as they lost to the Ozona Lions, 54-34. The Broncos trailed by only three points at half-time, but a cold second half doomed the Broncos to defeat.

Junior sharpshooter Bill Elliott had fifteen points to lead the Broncos in scoring. Mike Sims hit eight. Ozona's Rodney Stewart led all scorers with 21 points.

The "B" team also dropped their game. The final score was Ozona 46, Sonora 37. Grady Roe and Jim Brown, two sophomore transfer students who will really help the Broncos in years to come, had ten and nine points respectively.

The all-day conference will be sponsored by West Texas Utilities Company and the San Angelo Public Schools.

Santa Claus Coming To Sonora Monday

HAVING OPEN HOUSE along with their Christmas opening Monday night from 6 to 8 p.m., December 2, are Ruth Shurley and Clarence Key, owners of The Ruth Shurley Jewelry. "With our move one door down to a much larger and newly redecorated building, we hope to serve our customers better by offering them a much wider selection. For instance, we now have a separate room where our customers may make a leisurely selection of china and crystal in a rather uncommercialized atmosphere," said Mrs. Shurley. Coffee and cookies will be served Monday night.

LUTHERAN CHURCH SETS MEMORIAL OBSERVANCE FOR THURSDAY MORNING

Services will be held at Hope Lutheran Church Thanksgiving Day at 10 a.m. The Rev. Arno Melz, pastor, says that memorial services for President John F. Kennedy will be held at that time.

The observance is in accordance with an announcement by Carl Heckmann, president of the Texas District, that all Lutheran Churches in the Missouri Synod of the State of Texas will hold memorial services on Thanksgiving Day.

Football Contest Judging Postponed

Judging of last week's football contest has been delayed until all games have been played. Four games listed were postponed, and the decision to wait until these scores are available was made so that all the guesses on all the entries may be considered in the judging.

Final results of the forecasting of Mike and Ike for the year will also be computed when all the games have been completed.

Telephone Company Plans Close Of Business Office

General Telephone this week announced that the Sonora business office will close effective December 11 and that all Sonora accounts will be handled in the General Telephone business office at 14 West Twohigh in San Angelo. Mrs. Pauline Barnes, who has been with the telephone company in Sonora since 1935, will be moving to San Angelo where she will become a service representative in the San Angelo business office.

In making the announcement, R. R. McCullough, district manager for General, said the move is all a part of the Company's program to improve service through centralization of operations which permits more efficient operations.

W. B. Dillard, combination-man for the telephone company, will continue in his present capacity in Sonora.

Customers still will be able to discuss their telephone bills, make changes or additions to their service or take care of telephone business by dialing 2-4111—just as they do now, McCullough said. Dialing this number will put them in touch with the service representative handling Sonora accounts in the business office in San Angelo. "Of course there will be no charge for the call," he emphasized.

All customer bills will include an envelope for mailing in their bills without charge to the San Angelo office. Service outages or telephone trouble will continue to be reported as it is now—by dialing "Operator" and asking for Repair Service.

"We are pleased that Mrs. Barnes is transferring to San Angelo," McCullough said. Mrs. Barnes has been with the telephone company since 1935, having served as an operator for 15 years, and chief operator for almost four years. She has held her present position since 1961.

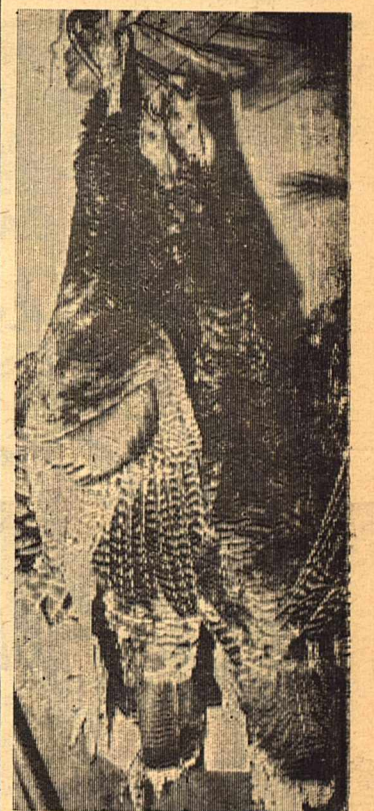

As announced last week, the company is planning to construct a new central office and install new facilities in Sonora. The new equipment is expected to take care of anticipated growth in Sonora as well as provide an improved grade of service.

The Christmas season in Sonora will be officially opened by Mayor A. E. Prugel Monday, December 2. His proclamation in front of the First National Bank at 6 p.m. will signal the turning on of Christmas street lights and will start an evening that will be climaxed by a visit from Santa Claus and the awarding of prizes by several stores in the special "Alarm Clock Surprise" feature.

Santa is scheduled to arrive in Sonora at 7 p.m. with candy for the youngsters, and he will stay for a tour of the downtown area.

Most stores displaying Christmas merchandise will remain open until 8 p.m., and many will be awarding prizes sometime between 6 and 8 o'clock.

In each participating store the winner will be the person standing closest to a concealed alarm clock when it rings. Sometime Monday an alarm clock will be set to ring at an undisclosed time between 6 and 8 o'clock and will be hidden in the store. When it sounds, the customer standing closest to it will be the prize-winner.

WILD TURKEYS are being bagged in greater numbers by hunters this season. Nolan Johnson, game warden, says that the birds are much more plentiful this year than last. M. C. Scott said Tuesday afternoon that about 75-80 turkeys had been brought to Sonora Food Locker—more than three times as many as last year. Tuesday Jeff Lambert estimated that 33 had been brought to Lambert's Drive Inn.

"Stop Your Loss Of Freedom," Romanian Refugee Princess Tells Lions

Princess Catherine Caradja, Romanian refugee, told the Downtown Lions Club November 19 that Americans must wake up to the creeping horror of Communism or one day awake to find themselves overcome by it. She is presently touring the U.S. speaking to Americans about conditions existing behind the Iron Curtain.

"Our freedom is lost. Yours is in danger and you don't even realize it. And yours is the last outpost of freedom today. You'll have no last stronghold of freedom to go to as I did."

"Ten nations fell to the Reds after the war. Czechoslovakia, the last, was a model form of democracy. Now its citizens, like Romania's, live the humiliating life behind the Iron Curtain.

"Our country had been conquered before, but never like this. Others came, looted, burned and left. The Reds train and leave behind the bad elements of your country to carry on."

"They killed at first—20 million people from 1917 to 1937. But now they're not in as big a hurry. There are other ways to crush the opposition, tricks that Hitler learned from Stalin."

"But the Reds respect you when you push. Push hard, and often, and don't stop pushing."

"You try to make the Russians like you. But is it important if they do? Their country is not run by the people as is yours. What does it matter if they do like you? It does not change the international Communism goal."

"Imagine what it's like to have all your property taken from you, to pay rent for a room in a house that once belonged to you. And to have strangers living with their families in the same house, fighting over who uses the kitchen and bathroom and when. And who pays more on the bills. What would you do if you were told everything you owned was on your back?"

"At first you say it's not so bad. But it gets worse until there's hardly any reason to live."

"Communists say there is still freedom of worship. They say there are still churches. But try to step inside one. They take your name and you lose your job. You lose your ration card if you have no job. If you have no job your children can't go beyond grade school. All their lives there is no hope of betterment, nothing beyond the pick and the shovel. People haven't the courage to hurt their children so much."

"And children learn comic dirt about what we call holy. There's no teaching of religion to a child under 18. But they teach them anti-religion."

"Buy, terrify, and kill. Buy those you can—these you'll find in the prisons, already trained in dirt and violence. Terrify others. Kill those who you can't control other ways. Not with a bullet, with work. I've seen good men in state positions worked until they fell, beat until they got up, and worked again until they fell. And when they can no longer work they are left to die. Yes, there are other ways to kill."

"Khrushchev has told you on TV that your children will grow up under him. But he takes you in with his clowning. He tells you peace. He tells his people war. And he tells them any war of liberation is permissible."

"You're now living World War III. The author of Protracted Conflict says you're losing it in the air, on land and in the minds of men. And unbearable captivity is what you will have when you lose."

"Have courage to take life standing up. Yours is the most nearly perfect form of freedom. But you or Khrushchev must break. Your ancestors made sacrifices and worked the wonder of freedom you are enjoying."

Can't you retain it for your children?"

"Realize what you're facing. Stand up and fight while there is still time. Stop your loss of liberties. Do what's right today."

"You sold scraps to Japan. Now you sell wheat to Russia. Anyone knows that an army marches on its stomach. They can't use munitions if their army is too weak to fight."

"Everything you do is vitally important. Weigh the worth of what your forefathers gave you. Thank the Lord for the blessings you enjoy every day, and promise that you'll keep them and pass them on to your children."

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY

Texas' Darkest Days

Shocked and sickened by the senseless assassination of President Kennedy, Texans felt remorse and shame even as they joined mourners throughout the world. That an American President could be slain from ambush in one of our foremost cities filled thousands with a sense of frustration, anger and sorrow.

Our sympathies turned immediately to Mrs. Kennedy, who was our guest only Thursday, and to their children, when must grow up wondering why, in a society that has found itself a world leader and trying to bind up the wounds of wars, our President and their father was slain for no more reason than somebody disagreed with him.

This monstrous turn of events puts us in no better position than the so-called underdeveloped nations where assassination is a political way of life. If there is an American anywhere whose soul is not seared with the shame of this deed, he needs to examine the twisted nature of his mind and the warped nature of his conscience.

Mr. Kennedy's slaying renews the need for Americans to understand their own government and how it functions. The President has been incorrectly blamed for political sins he did not commit.

Indeed, the greatest sense of hatred turned upon him came because, like President Lincoln before him, he tried earnestly to activate freedom of opportunity for all Americans.

The fanatics who accept bias, rumor, hatred and prejudice for fact have reaped the whirlwind.

Dallas bears a special burden of grief and it is a city that deserves better. Its leaders are painfully aware of fanaticism that has caused other regrettable incidents before this horrible nightmare struck.

President Kennedy showed his own personal courage by declining the protection of a bullet-proof bubble over his automobile. Regret that it was not in use can only serve to remind future presidents that theirs is such a sensitive office that they must regard every crowd as a potential danger.

Punishment of the assassinations cannot assuage the grief a nation feels keenly in what is at the very least a national loss.

Why Can't My Debt Ceiling Be Adjusted Occasionally, Old Philosopher Wonders

Editor's Note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-wood ranch on Devil's River admires a feat of Congress, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

Trying to live within your budget is a problem I guess 95 per cent of the people struggle with; it doesn't make any difference how much money a man makes, his family or his government can always think of some place to put it. In fact, I know a man who has several sources of income and a neighbor was admiring his situation and said, "Man, you've got it made, you've got money coming in from three or four directions," and he answered, "Yeah, and for every place it's coming in, there are two places where it's going out."

I got to thinking about this when I read an article in a newspaper last night saying Congress has raised the national debt ceiling again, and I have often wondered why I can't arrange such a system myself.

Here's the way it works: actually, the debt ceiling is 285 billion dollars. When we get that far in debt, the law says hold on, you can't go any further. But every year along about this time the government runs out of money and Congress has to raise the ceiling so it can pay its bills. Well, it doesn't actually raise it, what it does is say, look, let's keep the ceiling where it is permanently, but temporarily let's raise it a little. Over the last 15 years the ceiling has been oched up to where it's now 309 billion, but the other day they had to add on another 6 billion, to bring it up to 315 billion.

You might say, if it's going to take a 315 billion dollar ceiling, why not just vote to put it there, but you don't understand. Everybody runs for office on a platform of economy, and no economy-minded Congressman is going to vote to increase the national debt, even though they do every session. This may sound like Congress' trying to vote that some movie actress' age shall forever remain 36, but that's because you don't understand national finance.

I'm not saying the ceiling is too high, I don't know how high the nation can stand for it to go, it's a pretty wealthy country, although I think maybe we could cut down somewhere, except the cut ought to be in some other part of the the country, not around here. Any right-thinking person knows the place to cut the national debt is in

Hunter's Wild Turkey May Be Barbecued With Sauce Or Roasted With Dressing

The Texas Game and Fish Magazine recommends these recipes for the turkeys the hunters will be bagging this hunting season.

Hunters Urged To Aim At Halting Hunting Accidents

The U. S. Department of Agriculture offers these tips for safe hunting:

- Do not assume other hunters are observing safety rules. Assume every gun, including your own, to be loaded. Leave the breech open when handling guns.
- Do not climb fences, trees, brush piles, etc., with a loaded gun. Carry your gun in such a way that it will not hurt others or yourself if you fall.
- Be sure of your target. Do not shoot at shadows or sounds. See your target plainly. Never point your gun at anything you do not intend to kill.
- Do not mix shell sizes. A load may fit, but blow up the gun and kill you or, at the least, ruin the gun.

Remove shells immediately after using. Keep guns under lock and key when not in use.

Oklahoma, not in Texas.

At any rate, I wouldn't mind living within my budget permanently if I could just find some way to raise it temporarily every few months for the next 15 or 20 years.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

By Rev. Allen Roe, pastor First Methodist Church

For a Thanksgiving meditation let us turn to an ancient bit of Scripture that we find in the 8th chapter of Genesis. Here we find the Lord saying, "I will never again curse the ground because of man, for the imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth; neither will I ever again destroy every living creature as I have done. While the earth remains, seedtime and harvest, cold and heat, summer and winter, day and night, shall not cease."

According to this Scripture Noah had won the favor of God by building an altar and making burnt offerings to Him. It was thought that God was pleased with the smoke of sacrifice and that He begins to feel more warmly disposed toward man. Like de Lawd in "The Green Pastures" He resigns Himself to the likelihood that man is hopeless; so the only thing to do is to accept the situation. Even another flood would do no good. Noah's burnt offering-sacrifice seems to be all that God could expect.

So far as theology goes this interpretation is, of course, childlike; but like so many things, there is some wisdom in it. The most probable purpose of this strange Scripture is to cause us to recognize that sin is stubborn and only a patient God could put up with it. In spite of all human sin He will not visit upon us our deserts.

We have here the first vague and instinctive trust in the compassion of God. Later we see that "by grace we are saved, through faith, and that not of ourselves, it is a gift of God." The window of trust is beginning

An Idle Mind Column
By Della King

Thanksgiving Day comes this year after days of shock, tragedy, and deep sadness. It has always been an old-fashioned holiday calling for the gathering of families and the remembrance of the gratefulness of our founding fathers after their period of struggle.

This Thanksgiving Day will be a time for thoughtfulness and re-examination of such old-fashioned virtues as patriotism integrity, and respect for law and order.

This year we will have a reverent appreciation for our blessings. We are grateful for our families and our friends and that we live in the United States of America. It is an imperfect nation, but it is one that can be bettered by its own citizens through Democratic processes.

M. M. Moody in "The Open Door" suggests that we express our gratitude with a note or a call to an individual who has enriched our lives:

"Don't you know a teacher or school principal who has impressed you and made you feel that all was well and in good hands?"

"Hasn't your mailman often brought a little extra cheer into your life?"

"Haven't you ever admired a neighbor's well kept yard which

Seek To Understand The Family Story Is Theme For Annual P-TA Convention

Mrs. Herbert Fields, delegate to the 54th annual state convention of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers in San Antonio November 20-22 returned to Sonora Friday and made the following report.

Mrs. W. J. Danforth of Fort Worth, state president, presided at the first convention of her administration, and gave the keynote address on "We the PTA: Seek To Understand the Family Story," the convention theme.

Mrs. Jennelle Moorhead of Eugene, Oregon, first vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, addressed the convention the first afternoon and made the following points: "Our fundamental outlook on life, our beliefs, our attitudes were determined in our homes. What the child becomes depends on the kind of family responsible for his upbringing."

She urged members to work to strengthen home life, the life of the community, and the life of the nation.

Newspaper woman, lecturer, and author, Mrs. Edith Deen of Fort Worth was guest speaker the first evening. Her subject was the heritage of our family life in the Bible. She said, "For many centuries the Bible was the only guide to family living. But today in our complex way of life, we are drifting away from Bible standards."

The second day was taken up with conferences under the general direction of James T. Ogg, superintendent of Glade-water public schools. Mrs. Fields attended a group under the direction of Dr. Charles Mathews, superintendent of Longview Independent School District. Points stressed were the elements essential to a successful family life, teaching basic ideals to children, and teaching religious beliefs in the home and schools.

That evening Dr. Bernice Moore, consultant in home and family living for the Texas Education Agency, was moderator for a panel discussion titled "All the Children of All the People." Other participants included Marshall Ashley, principal of University Junior High School in Austin, and Mrs. Jozie M. Mock, director of Talent Preservation Project of the Houston Independent School District. Emphasis was on the dropout problem faced today in our schools and in our society.

Officers elected were Mrs. Carey Synder of Fort Worth, vice-president of Region I; Mrs. Chesley McDonald of Sterling City, vice-president of Region II; Mrs. John Toombs of Irving, vice-president of Region III; and Mrs. John F. Weinzler of Riverside, vice-president of Region IV.

Delegates and visitors registered numbered 2,981.

Livestock Feeding Program Outlined For Drouth Period

Most of Texas is dry and much of the state is now faced with the problem of poor grazing, says Uel D. Thompson, animal husbandman with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

When this condition exists and the total feed intake of cattle must be supplied, probably the cheapest method is to supply energy by feed sorghum grain, and limit the animal's intake with salt, explains Thompson. And though roughage is expensive and low in energy, some must be provided for proper ruminant digestion, he adds.

There are several alternatives for producers who have no pasture, according to Thompson. They can sell replacements if necessary, wean and sell calves as early as possible, cull low producers and confine animals to traps or drylots and feed them.

A mixture of 34 percent ground sorghum grain, 33 percent of a 41 percent protein supplement, 31 percent salt, and 2 percent trace mineralized salt, can be self-fed. Cattle will consume about 5 pounds of this mixture daily depending on the quality and quantity of the roughage they receive.

However, such a mixture is deficient in Vitamin A, states Thompson. Mature cattle need about 40,000 International Units of Vitamin A per head daily and the synthetic form may be fed, placed in the drinking water or injected into the animal, advises Thompson. It is not advisable to mix the synthetic form with mineral or high salt feed mixtures and to leave it exposed to air, sunlight and heat.

The amounts of roughage fed daily should be limited, due to their high cost and low energy value, and low quality roughages should be ground. Though grinding costs may be too high on other types of roughages, rice hulls must be ground to prevent intestinal irritations, says Thompson.

Most people need not die of tuberculosis. Death can usually be prevented if the sickness is discovered early.

Despite modern scientific progress, TB still takes a life somewhere in this country every 50 minutes. But more than nine million lives have been saved from tuberculosis since the first Christmas Seal was issued.

About 40 million Americans have TB germs in their bodies. At least one out of 20 of them may come down with active tuberculosis during their lifetimes.

CONSTRUCTION ...

Evidence of growth in WTU communities

Where is all the construction coming from in our service area? Well, a survey shows that $89 million worth has been completed recently in new and expanded factories, stores, motels, shopping centers, schools, churches, public buildings, street paving, and other such improvements. Add to this figure the amount invested in new residences and apartment houses, as well as State and Federal expenditures, and you have truly great evidence of growth in the 166 communities we serve. Such facts as these again explain why we say our service area faces GROWTH UNLIMITED.

THE TEEN SCENE

By Mary Davis
There hasn't been too much school this week. Tuesday and Wednesday were the only days that we went to school.

The plays Saturday night were good. "The Red Key" got everything off to rather a serious start, and then "Sunday Costs Five Pesos" set every one in the aisles with laughter.

Friday morning club pictures were made. Classes were interrupted with club members leaving every few minutes to "smile for the Birdie" and cause Mr. Probst a lot of trouble by not posing right.

An assembly Friday afternoon disturbed the afternoon classes. A man from the Alcoholics Anonymous gave a talk on alcoholism and narcotics. The speech was interesting, but the time was sad because we had just heard about President Kennedy.

There was no game Friday night out of respect for President Kennedy. Both Iraan and Sonora felt that was the least they could do. For the same reason, schools throughout the area were closed all day Monday.

The basketball boys have a game at Brady Friday. Game time is 6:30 p.m. for the B team and at 8 p.m. for the "A" boys. Lots of luck fellows. We hope you win your first game.

When Buick builds a LeSabre-- Buick builds a high-priced car, and puts a low price on it.

Lots of cars are in LeSabre's price class, but that's where the resemblance ends. For instance: Does anybody else in LeSabre's class treat you to that gentle Buick ride or impressive Buick performance and new gas economy? No. And who else gives you 15-inch wheels, finned aluminum front brakes, extra cushioning for middle-seat travelers, and separate heat ducts and controls for the rear seat? Right again: Nobody in LeSabre's field but LeSabre. If all this makes you think a LeSabre would look awfully nice in your garage, you should see how nicely it fits a budget. You know who to see about it, of course: your Buick dealer. Who else? Above all, it's a Buick

Imported Mohair Sweater Mislabeled Target Of FTC, Customs Bureau Action

By Congressman O. C. Fisher
The U. S. Customs Bureau has confirmed "a substantial overstatement of the mohair content" of imported Italian sweaters, and is coordinating its action in this area with the Federal Trade Commission to deal with the sweater mislabeling problem effectively and quickly.
This development last week followed tests conducted by Customs in its own test laboratory. FTC has about completed its tests, and is expected to make an announcement of its findings. I recently cited ten retail stores that were selling imported Italian sweaters where private tests indicated the mohair content of the garments were mislabeled. The tests showed substantially less mohair than the labels stated.

The one million sweaters brought in from Italy whose mohair content have been questioned have long since moved into retail channels. But the exposure has caused the importing retailers to re-examine their practices and seek to avoid a repetition of mislabeled garments.
For example, a report from Florence, Italy, states that Macy's Italian office said all labels will be changed for next deliveries.
Determination of exact mohair content is a bit complicated, particularly in Italy where there is no standard method of fixing the fiber content, where yarns from different spinners find their way into the manufacturers' product.
In the meantime, U. S. Customs examiners are being instructed to submit samples to the Customs lab whenever they believe the products have been misrepresented. Because of the complexity of the content test only a limited number of tests can be handled with existing customs lab facilities.

In any event, the result of the mislabeling exposure is having a salutary effect. Importers can be expected to exercise much more care and caution in the future to avoid the penalties than can be applied to mislabeling practices. Mohair growers and manufacturers in this country are determined to protect the reputation of mohair products against the down-grading of the mohair fiber by having its content misrepresented. Laws to protect against this are adequate. The problem is to get those laws applied and enforced.

Individual Motorist Has Responsibility For Safe Holiday

"During this Thanksgiving Holiday there will be an increase in travel due to a long school holiday weekend with many of our college students traveling to and from home for the first time since school began. There will be many motorists traveling our highways visiting friends and relatives, and of course there will probably be a large number of traffic mishaps and many drivers and passengers will not return after this long weekend," Major Leo E. Gossett, Commander of the 49-county West Texas Region of the Department of Public Safety has warned.
"The Department of Public Safety will have patrolmen on duty throughout this weekend in its endeavor to curtail and reduce many of these traffic accidents as possible; however the individual motorist holds the responsibility in his own hands as to whether or not he will be involved in a traffic accident during this weekend. May we remind you in planning your trip to plan well in advance your course of travel, rest stops, time of departure, obey all of our traffic laws, add a dash of common sense and courtesy, and we feel reasonably sure you will be one of those who will return to enjoy other Thanksgivings," said Gossett.
