IT'S ABOUT TIME

In this day and time, when much of our "thinking" is done by others, the old story of the Indian who was building a boat is apropos.

The Indian was carving his canoe out of a huge log. A man came along and said: "Chief, I think she's too wide for her length." So the Indian narrowed her down.

A little later, another man came along, and said: "Chief, it looks to me—like the stern is too full." So he cut down the stern.

A third man came, watched the Indian chisel awhile, and, giving the canoe a close look, said: "The bow is too sheer, Chief." So the Indian changed the bow.

When the canoe was finally finished, the Indian launched it in the nearby river, and it capsized. He hauled it back on the bank, found another log and began again.

Once more a man came along and offered advice, but this time the Indian answered: "That boat over there—that's everybody's boat," pointing to the monstrosity on the bank. "This one Chief's boat!"

In this present-day era, advice, free and otherwise, can be found on any subject. It makes no difference how simple or how technical. Someone somewhere can tell you what to do and how to do it.

The fact is that most of us do not do enough of our own "thinking." We rely on books, television, radio, newspapers and other people and all this has a tendency to make us mentally lazy.

We know that failure to use certain muscles will result in atrophy of those muscles. The same is true when it comes to thinking and reasoning.

No one claims to know it all and no one can argue that we cannot learn much from those educated and experienced in certain fields.

But we must be able to "think" out our own problems. When we try to take advice from everyone, we often get as many different answers.

Too much of our thinking is done for us by leaders, intriguers, hucksters, mean-wellers and do-gooders.

Some of us can't think our way out of a wet paper bag, and we can't because we have relied too long on other people to do our "thinking."

And like the old Indian, it's about time we put our foot down, straightened up and made a few decisions of our own.

Philosopher Sees No Need For Faster Mail

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Dry Devil's River defends the mail system, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

According to three different articles I've read in three different newspapers I've found out here in the past week, a lot of people, especially in cities, are complaining about the mail service. They say it's too slow.

According to one article, a man living on one side of New York sent a letter to a friend on the other side. At the same time, another man in Australia sent the same friend a letter, and he got them both on the same day. One crossed the ocean while the other was crossing New York. Some Congressman up there even got on a horse and proved pony express was faster than the regular system.

Another article claimed mail service in London is three times as fast as it is in big cities over here, said you could mail a letter there in the morning and it'd be delivered before noon.

Of course there are reasons for such things. Take London. London is a very old city and the postmaster probably knows everybody in town. No trick to that. Postmaster James D. Trainer probably could beat London, if it ever became necessary, although I figure if anybody in Sonora needs to communicate with somebody else in town that fast, he could phone or walk across the street.

Personally, I have never been too concerned over how fast I got my mail. Half the letters could never have reached me at all and I'd probably been better off. Anybody who can't wait till the 1st to get a bill can always go in ahead of time and pay it in the middle of the month.

Furthermore, I don't know of a thing I need to tell anybody now that day after tomorrow wouldn't do just as well, even if he never heard it he'd probably be just as well off, and I don't know anybody who has any information for me that I'd be any less confused by getting two days late. I've never understood all this craze for speed.

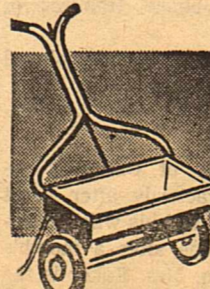

Say, my copy of the Devil's River News got here a day late last week. Wish you'd speak to the Postmaster about it.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Overhanging Branches
To the man next door, that spreading elm tree in his back yard may be a thing of beauty. But to you, the branches overhanging the fence may be just an eyesore. Do you have a right to cut off those branches at the boundary line?

Generally speaking, you do indeed. As a property owner you own not only the surface of your land but also, to a reasonable extent, the airspace above it. By cutting off the overhanging branches, you are merely removing what has intruded into your property.

But the right to cut is not the same as the right to keep. Whether cut or not, those branches still belong to your neighbor. The law determines ownership of the entire tree by the location of its trunk, not of its branches or roots.

Thus, if it is an apple tree that overhangs your yard, you may pluck the apples (because they are intruding) but you may not eat them (because they are not yours).

Suppose the tree is located entirely on your neighbor's property, with no overhanging branches. Would you ever have any grounds for complaint about such a tree? You might have—if the tree is in danger of falling.

In one case a man noticed that a pine tree, planted by his neighbor, was rotting badly and learning his way. But his warnings to the man next door went unheeded. Sure enough, during a windstorm, the tree finally did topple over onto his house. He sued the neighbor and won damages. The court said that, even though the tree did not overhang, it posed a clear and constant danger to his safety.

On the other hand, you ordinarily have no legal grievance if the tree isn't dangerous but merely annoying.

One home owner complained in court that a neighbor's leafy maple tree, while not overhanging his yard, did keep his house in shadow most of the day. But the court held this complaint unjustified, saying that the neighbor had full freedom to grow whatever trees he pleased on his own property.

As a practical matter, tree law is seldom tested in the courtroom, perhaps because there is seldom enough at stake to justify the costs of litigation.

Besides, a tree—in the poet's words, "a nobler object than a prince"—usually gladdens people on both sides of the fence. If statistics were compiled, they surely would show that trees inspire more poems than law suits.

Ski Surfing Is New Rage in Sand Dunes

Texas wouldn't be big enough to hold the ensuing stampede should wild buffalo revive and see what is going on at one of their favorite old times stomping grounds.

Because Texas' biggest sand pile is being converted into a favorite ski surf-boarding race course pursuant to a new fling by the young set.

Thus Monahan's Sandhills State Park suddenly has blossomed from a remote, silent wasteland into a daytime gay spot amid the whoops and laughter of the athletic type seeking a new test of skill and physical endurance.

James A. Jaynes, superintendent of the park, said Carl Kirk learned about sand surfing on the west coast and installed the sport when he returned home.

Now many West Texas youngsters are trying to perfect their own ski designs.

Some of the sand dune pioneers report attaining speeds up to 30 miles an hour, although the ordinary sand surfer manages to make 17 to 20 miles per hour.

Jaynes said one thing that recommends the sport is its safety because the speed, as yet at least, is not dangerously high and the soft sand cushions an ordinary fall.

Of course, there is the problem of a little sand in the hair, eyes and clothing. But the sand surfers take that as part of the game, so they say.

Sand skiing has been successfully developed in Peru where speeds up to 40 miles an hour have been attained. Also it is a popular summer sport at Monte Kaolins in Hirschaw, Germany.

Up to now the only "thrill" attraction at historic Sandhills State Park, where buffalo wallows and wagon train stops marked pioneer times, was the roller coaster type jeep ride. Jaynes reported the principal lure around the calendar, however, still is the quiet isolation.

Student Sect Probes Secret of Wildlife

The college professors had better not squander their time this summer because at least some of their students will be back and ready with penetrating challenges come fall semester.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is laying the groundwork for a new world of curiosity for a substantial number of young collegians.

The Department gets immediate value received for just having able bodied help scattered throughout the research and management areas.

But, as a spokesman said, it's the long range benefits accruing from the summer time investments. Vacation apprentices of today bulwark permanent staffs of tomorrow.

The broad field of biology and related sciences provide most of the talent for the summer staffs.

The wildlife division is assigning the students, some of whom have spent all their summer vacations on field duty, to all parts of the state.

They will explore the exhausting but fascinating management of game birds and game animals and the little and big fishes.

They will crawl the Murphree

Wildlife Management Area marshes to try to determine how to eradicate alligator weed and other nuisance plants.

Others will take bottom samples in Laguna Madre on the lower Texas Gulf coast to probe the ecology of plant life under varying salinity conditions and their relation to waterfowl since that is one of the largest wintering red head duck concentration areas in North America.

The fisheries forces will seine and make public access surveys, test moss control methods and inventory the huge new reservoirs such as Sam Rayburn and Amistad.

Those stationed on the coast will assist marine biologists in an inventory of the sport and commercial fisheries in bays.

The college boys will be scratched, stung by Big Bend scorpions and harassed by stingrays in the coastal bays. But they'll return well nourished from per diem allowance and properly inspired from living the life of a field technician for a career that means providing boundless pleasure for the outdoor minded hordes.

GREEN NEWS

by Lunetta Morgan

Have you ever been so carried away with your own affairs that time slips by and catches you unprepared? Well, you guessed it, that's what has happened this week.

Now for the Tournament News. Bobbie Fawcett and Ernestine Hext teamed up and attended the Midland Partnership Tournament. They shot 3 under par and had a wonderful time. Men attending the Big Lake tournament were Clayton Hamilton, George Johnson, Mickey Powers, Jack Adkins and Whiskey Hill. Clayton and his uncle, Horace Rees of Big Lake won third place in the first flight. They shot 108.

It's getting so the birds aren't even safe any more. Last Sunday Buddy Brown hit a nice long drive off 8 and wham, right in the middle of a tree. Everything fell but the ball and after looking on the ground for several minutes, Buddy looked up and sure enough, nestled in a bird nest was his ball. We wondered if this would be considered an unplayable lie and how many strokes penalty would be involved?

Luncheon Honors Miss Sawyer Saturday

Miss Sarah Sawyer, bride-elect of Preston Neely, was feted on Saturday, July 9, with a bridesmaids luncheon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Elliott with Mrs. J. W. Howell as co-hostess with Mrs. Elliott. The rooms were made festive with arrangements of summer flowers. The dining table, at which the bride-to-be and her attendants were seated, was laid with a white linen cut-work cloth and centered with a silver and crystal epergne holding an arrangement of tiny white and yellow chrysanthemums. Other relatives and out-of-town guests were placed at quartet tables with corresponding covers centered with hand cut crystal holding two rose buds. A toast to the bride-to-be was followed by a humorous reading by Mrs. Rex Lowe entitled "How to Remain a Bride." Miss Sawyer presented gifts of small silver bowls to her attendants. The hostesses presented the honoree with a gift of lingerie. There were approximately 40 guests registering.

Last week's "Who's Who" was Bert Bloodworth. This week's mystery man is a boy who will be a sophomore. He is of about medium height, has light brown hair, and is known to most people by a nickname rather than his real name.

"No Tickee . . . No Shirtee" . . . no question about this shrewd businessman's credit policy. It's clearly defined. It's understood by all concerned. Your credit policies can be just as clearly understood when you check the applicants history, present obligations and income with a quick and concise Factbilt report from your local credit bureau.

Mr. Customer, you who apply for credit at any of our local merchants—this same Factbilt report can work equally well for you, if you have always arranged to take care of your obligations as agreed. The credit bureau has your credit record history on file—regardless if you are a "newcomer" or a longtime resident. Remember—the credit Bureau only KEEPS the record, we do not MAKE the record. Only you can do that. As summertime is travelttime and vacationtime—be very careful on the highways.

Mystery Appearing At Theatre

Agatha Christie's chill-and-shudder play of multiple murders called "Ten Little Indians" opened at the Point Summer Theatre July 6, as a presentation of the Hill Country Arts Foundation, under the direction of William Hardy. Pam McCormick will be seen in the role of Vere Claythorne, the attractive young secretary of the mysterious host who fails to appear to greet his eight guests when they assemble for a house party at the wierd mansion of Indian Island.

Neither Miss Claythorne nor the other guests have met their missing host, and they have only just assembled and been introduced to one another when a voice comes out of the air to accuse everyone present, including the two house servants, of murder. Then, as one of the ten little Indian statues crashes from the mantelpiece to the floor, Anthony Marston, who had been accused by the disembodied voice of the murder of two youngsters he had run down while driving recklessly, suddenly dies by choking on his drink, in which someone had dropped cyanide of potassium.

One by one, the little Indian statues topple off the mantelpiece as one after another of the accused guests is mysteriously murdered—one is garroted, another is the victim of a gruesome booby trap, another is stabbed, and so on.

"Ten Little Indians," which will continue at the Point for performances through July 17, is Agatha Christie's own dramatization of her well-remembered Saturday Evening Post serial story, "And Then There Were None."

A Parson's Eye View of Sonora

by the Rev. Ross T. Welch
We are beginning to get quite a few favorable comments about this bit of writing we do each week. Most persons admit that the most interesting thing about the column is its novelty—they are attracted by something new and different.

We are well aware that we cannot bank on strong readership very long on that basis. We shall need to offer something of general interest to keep you reading. As we get better acquainted in the community, we hope to be able to better provide a varied, interesting, wholesome diet. Don't go away.

We want to commend the Volunteer Fire Department of Sonora for an excellent organization and record. According to a report by Secretary Cullen Luttrell to the Lions' Club last week, Sonorans enjoy a very favorable insurance rate, based strictly on the records of the past few years.

Mr. Luttrell is also president of the Hill Country Volunteer Firemen's Association, which will hold its fall meeting in Sonora.

Lee Patrick is the fire chief and John A. Martin Jr., is the Fire Marshal for the city. Again we say, "It pays to be well-organized."

***
The gentleman who made the excavations for the footings for the new football lights is an early riser. We caught him hard at it before 6 a.m. It appeared this (Saturday) morning that the excavation work was about completed.

***
Several persons have said, "We have no bakery in Sonora." This is not correct. We found one. It has no sign. Apparently this baker does not need a sign, for it does not take him long to dispose of whatever he sells.

He is diagonally across the street

Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Jack Kerbow is the director of the school which meets in two churches. Harris, lead teacher; Mrs. Wallis Renfro, and Mrs. Bob Ferguson, teachers; and Kay Kerbow, Missy Brown and Tony Renfro, helpers. It will meet at the Methodist Church. Their theme will be "God's Plan for Families."

***
The first three elementary grades will also meet at the Methodist plant with Mrs. Ralph Finklea as lead teacher; Mrs. James Alexander and Mrs. Albert Ward, teachers; Evelyn Jane Lowe and Charlotte Redman, helpers. The subject of their study will be "Christian Community Around the World."

***
"Living as a Christian in a World of Conflict" will be the theme for the study in grades four, five and six, meeting in the Episcopal Parish House. Mrs. Gus Redman will be the lead teacher assisted by Mrs. James Wilson, teacher, and Terry Trainer and Joy Slaten, helpers.

***
Mrs. George Wallace will be in charge of refreshments. Any one who wishes to assist with this responsibility may contact Mrs. Wallace.

***
Jane Ray will care for the pre-kindergarten children of workers in the school.

***
This parson finds traveling in West Texas very difficult. It is not that the roads are not good. The difficulty is that the Queen of the Parsonage is a bottle collector. Of course, she gives no space to beer bottles, but when the vintage gets stronger, her interest increases. And driving down the road at even a normal speed, one finds it hard to distinguish at first glance between the 'desirable' and the 'undesirable'.

***
Only the husband of a bottle collector knows how difficult it is to put one's foot on the brake, slow down to a stop, turn around and return to a discard of empty bottles to check and see if perchance one of them would look pretty in a parsonage window.

***
While the motor idles the parson sits silently, fervently praying (1) that no one will pass who might recognize us and (2) that none of the bottles prove 'desirable'—lest the Highway Patrolman stop us further down the road.

Letter to the Editor

Editor's Note: The following is a letter received by the "Devil" from Norris Loeffler, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Loeffler. He is now editor of the "Landsman" a real estate publication.

Dear John and Della:
Like all good editors, I put personal correspondence off to last. But even a year later, I want to convey the congratulations of Martha and myself on your Jubilee edition. It was well done and of course, I truly can appreciate the added problems and hours you dedicated to it—those things that our "reading public" never knows or understands.

Hope the year has been a rewarding one for you all. Of course I know it was in the arrival of your child.

With three in school, we manage to stay busy. Ours are in Lucy Read Elementary, a new one on N.W. Austin since you lived here and excellent. Martha and I will be serving as Parliamentarians (couples are elected to each office) of the PTA and naturally—publicity chairman.

The Capital City continues to grow. Be sure to give us a call—if you're ever in the territory.

Enclosed is my subscription renewal check. We enjoy seeing the "Devil", 'tho we continue to recognize fewer and fewer of the names.

Best regards,
Norris

Hearing the Word

"Their sound went into all the earth, And their words unto the ends of the world."

— Psalms 19:4

Blessed with divine inspiration, the Apostles went forth into the fertile fields of disbelief to preach the word of God. Hardships, persecution, even the threat of death did not deter them from their appointed task of spreading the message of Christianity.

There was a time when even those who merely listened to the word of God placed themselves in great personal danger.

Today, in this modern world, the words of God are spoken in a more proper setting. How often do we take the time to listen? How small is that part of our lives we devote to God and to the practice of Christianity?

We should not become so occupied that we leave only a little time for hearing the word of God and serving the cause of Christianity.

BREAKFAST GIVEN WEDDING GUESTS SUN.

YOUR MINISTER SAYS

by the Rev. Rodney Dowdy Pastor, First Baptist Church
Philippians 1:3 "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you."

The Apostle Paul was expressing his gratitude unto God for the good people in Phillipi. He had many wonderful experiences with the people of that city. Because of the Macedonian call he went to the city to preach Christ. From the very beginning he found a group of people seeking to worship God. The Apostle Paul went to this city under the direction of God's call and commission to preach to the people. Even though the Apostle and his good friend, Silas, suffered hardship, the ministry in Phillipi was a great mile stone in their lives. Even while in prison he wrote a letter back unto the Christian people expressing unto them his love and how much he appreciated their expression of love.

Today the members of Sonora Ministerial Alliance desire to use the words of the Apostle Paul and say "Thank You" for your wonderful help, cooperation, and encouragement. The Community Service last Sunday night will live in our hearts for many days to come. Because of your enthusiastic support of our community service we will look forward to next year when we shall again meet as friends in a common spirit of worship.

As ministers of your community we recognize that the blessings from last Sunday night were possible by your interest and support. We are very conscious that we must depend upon your good will and love if our ministry is to accomplish the greatest results. Even though we believe in our divine call to the ministry and to our field of service, we also greatly request your love, prayers, and personal service.

Let us give thanks unto God for the blessings we received. "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Psalms 133:1
