adult producers were successful participants in the thirty-third annual Sonora Wool & Mohair Show with some of the top spots being taken by the Sutton Countians. However, Kerr County 4-H'ers walked off with many of the awards, including the coveted National Wool

Judging contest trophy.

County Agent D. C. Langford said that this was the closest year score-wise of any previous contests with James Henderson of Kerr County 4-H scoring 606 points, and second place Wesley Richardson scoring 604. Only twenty-two points separated the first place winner from the tenth place winner, Wade Richardson.

A total of eight teams participated in the contest, including one from Wyoming, two from Colorado and two from New Mexico. The Kerr County team scored 1783 points with second place Sutton County scoring 17.73, and third place Bandera County, 1761.

Kerr County team members included Henderson, Kimmy Nichols, alternate; Louis Rumsey and Stanley Garrett. Bill N. Rector, Kerr County agent was coach of the group.

Coached by county agent Langford, Sutton County team members included Eddie Alexander, alternate, Steve Street and the Richardson youths.

Awards and trophies were presented to winners in the various groups at the luncheon sponsored by the Lions Club at the 4-H Center Thursday.

Champion wool and mohair fleeces were exhibited at the Sonora Wool & Mohair warehouse, where the show was held, at Wednesday's showing. Although a smaller number of entries were exhibited, fleeces were top quality according to Fred Campbell, show superin-

Last year's 286 entries included 157 single wool fleeces, 92 single mohair fleeces and 37 bags of wool with a total weight of wool and mohair 6,788 pounds. This year's show had 232 entries, with 113 wool, 96 mohair fleeces and 27 bags of

Why People Stay Away From Church per cent of the Methodists, 81

Churches bewailed the sharp drop in attendance among its affiliated Churches. Recently, news columnist Tom Anderson pointed to what we believe to be one reason why-in a report off a survey of Protestant clergy-biblical account of the Virgin men which he noticed in the magazine "Christianity Today."

The church leaders were asked so did 44 per cent of the Bapwhether they believed in the physical resurrection of Jesus from the grave. An astonishing fifty-one per cent of the Methodists said they could not accept the story as a historical fact. Thirty-five per cent of the United Presbyterians could not accept it: 30 per cent of the Episcopal priests could not; 33 per cent of the Baptist could not; 13 per cent of the American Lutherans and 5 per cent of the Missouri Synod Lutherans. When asked if they believe the salesman who doesn't believe

Cifies and Towns Hopping Mad Over Their Low Census Figures

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River reacts to the census figures this week

I'm not sure you're to worry about such things in the face of far graver issues around the globe, but according to an article I read in a newspaper last night a lot of towns and cities are hopping mad over the census figures now coming

They're mad because the fig- barefooted, hoping for a still ures are lower that they'd expected. Here they'd been thinking they'd been getting bigger all the time and when the figures came out some towns believing they'd jumped from say 10,000, and some cities thinking they'd passed the quater-million figure found they were measley 200,000. Some of them want a recount.

I don't understand this. The average city like it is can't af ford all the police, firemen, and parks, schools, paved streets, parks and other things it needs, and yet here it is hollering for more people it can't extend sewer lines to. It's like a man with seven children, the last two of them bigger family.

Now I'm not saying the smaller a town is the fewer problems it has, but you've got to remember that the biggest city in this country certainly has the biggest problems.

Ask Mayor Lindsey. Or take Los Angeles. Why would a city with so many people and so many cars now there's not enough air to breathe and no place to fall down if you faint, want to increase its population? It's like a fat man trying to gain weight, an under-staffed hospital asking for more patients.

Now you take the area surrounding this bitterweed ranch. e haven't increased our popu lation in years. We saw long ago that if we couldn't improve the quality, at least try to hold down the quantity.

Hypocrisy Defended

A Bishop

By Everett H. Jones Retired Bishop of the EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Vermont Royster, editor of the Wall Street Journal, has recently written an essay entitled, "In Defense of Hypoc-

"If there's one thing we of the parental generation ought to know," he writes, "it is that we are shot full of hypocrisy. Our young tell us that all the time-The prevalence of hypocrisy is simply accepted as an attribute of our generation along with stuffy clothes, sagging muscles, and the absence of hair."

He goes on to admit that the charge, namely that we do not live up to the virtues we pretend-and preach-is true. All of us, some more and some less, have some private pretense by which the virtue we honor is observed more in the breaching of it. As a society, we do not live up to those standards that we proclaim are those of a good society.'

"But," he says, "you can't help wishing the young could Billie Forbe was in town yesunderstand that hypocrisy is the consequence of one virtue known to man alone, that he can aspire to what he is not -It simply means that our reach gust 13, 1901 to Mr. and Mrs. exceeds our grasp.

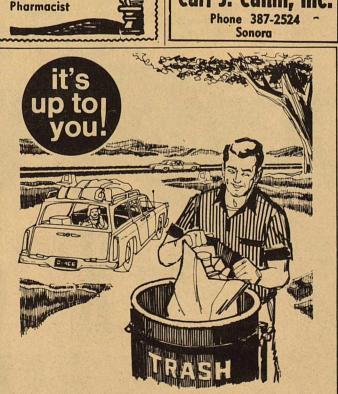

"If we have made any progress from the slime, it is because we are constantly making ourselves hypocrites by setting ideals beyond us. There was a time when we preached the brotherhood of man and practiced slavery; dreamed of justice and hanged a man for stealing a loaf of bread; praised God and burned those who praised him in a different fashion.

"Somehow these young have got things turned around. What they ought to be telling us is that the gap between what we are and what we do, and what we should aspire to be and do, is not great enough. The sin, if there be such, is shriveling our dreams to match our deeds."

If a high school senior this year graduates in the spring and plans to start to college or uni-versity in the fall of 1970, what should he do to assure himself that his draft board will co-operate with him?

If he is then in Class I-A, or is placed in Class I-A later in the summer, he will remain in I-A normally until he gets into college, usually in the fall.

If he drops out of high school, the law directs the draft board to take away his deferment. And if he gets to be 20 years old and still hasn't graduated, he loses his deferment. But most high school seniors get their high school diplomas before that age, so that usually doesn't become a problem.

In nearly every case, if he is a normal, healthy young man, his draft board is going to class-ify him in Class I-A as avail-Maria Esquivel able for military service. Does this mean that he is going Pedro Martinez, Ozona

Just as soon as he completes high school and he and his parents have decided on the college he is going to attend, he should inform his local board in writing, giving the name and location of the college. When he signs his name, he should write his Selective Service numper under it. He must request an SSS Form 104 from his board and sign a request for deferment on this form if he wants deferment in Class II-S. The board can't grant a deferment without this request.

If he should be reached by his draft board for induction into the military service during the summer, he will have his induction postponed until fall to give him an opportunity to get in school. This is authorized at every draft board under an authority called State Director's Advice to Local Boards No. 617 and Section 1632.2 of the Selective Service Regulations.
