Former Mayor, "Buzzie" Stokes Dies In Uvalde

Services for H. V. "Buzzie" Stokes, 74, of Uvalde were held at 1:30 p. m. Sunday in the First United Methodist Church at Uvalde. A memorial service was held here at 5 p. m. at the Methodist Church with the Rev. John M. Weston officiating.

Mr. Stokes died about 9:30 p. m. May 25, 1972, at his Uvalde farm home, apparently of a heart attack.

He was born here April 4, 1898, and was married to Nancy Vivian Casbeer September 24, 1932 in Lampasas. He was Sonora mayor from 1940 to 1946 and had served as Lions International district governor and international counselor. He was at one time a director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and an officer in Sonora Lions Club. His parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Stokes were pioneer Sutton Countians.

During the early 1950's he lived in San Angelo where he owned Stokes Feed and Seed Company, and was president of the Business Men's Bible Class in 1952. He was one of the owners of Sonora Caverns in 1961 and was instrumental in attracting publicity for the caverns. He returned in 1965 to Uvalde where he operated a farm and wrote a column for the Uvalde Leader-News. He later became the paper's agriculture editor.

Survivors include his wife of Uvalde; two daughters, Mrs. James Stephen of Houston and Mrs. Al Thompson of Fair Haven, New Jersey; a sister, Mrs. W. E. McClelland, and four grandsons.

Pallbearers were George Allison and Louis Hall, both of San Angelo, W. B. McMillan, Lea Allison, Willie Miers, Bryan Hunt, George H. Neill and Rex Cusenbary. Burial was in Sonora Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Libb Wallace Couple Plans Golden Wedding Anniversary Observance Sunday

A couple whose many friends rank them as favorites will be observing their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday afternoon. Oddly, Evelyn and Libb Wallace were married on a Sunday, on this same date, June 4, 1922, at 10 a. m. at the Methodist Parsonage by the late Rev. L. C. Mathis. Their attendants were her sister, Grace Trainer (the late Mrs. J. D. Wallace) and Emmett Archer.

Mrs. Wallace, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Trainer, was born here as well as was her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wallace. Both families were early-day settlers of this community, and her father was elected commissioner in the 1890's and served as tax assessor of this county from 1914 until 1939.

Mrs. Wallace's mother, Frances Adams, and her father both lived on the North Llano in 1885 before moving here after their marriage. He was a foreman of the Fort Terrett ranch. He traveled once weekly to what was then known as Junction City to pick up mail for persons living in the vicinity of the Fort.

Mr. Wallace's family moved to this area from Barksdale and his mother came from Llano. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wallace, began ranching here in the early 1900's.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

DARLINGTON, WISC., La-Fayette County News: "Everywhere I go lately I detect new and positive signs pointing to a revival of decency in American thinking and action. For one thing, good people are now much more concerned than I can ever remember them being. Apathy and indifference are at an end. And typically, the great Reader's Digest... lambasted the outrageous nudity and nastiness that has befouled the New York stage for the past few years, and that journal has kept a sharp finger on the pulse of American thinking. I have always contended that we Americans are people of immense common sense. Our biggest fault is that we tend to be too tolerant of nonsense."

SAYBROOK, ILL., GAZETTE: "Drivers are safer when the road is dry—but the roads are safer when the driver is dry."

BELTON, TEXAS, JOURNAL: "Some people say 'politics is' and others say 'politics are'; nobody seems sure whether the noun is singular or plural. To settle the argument, let's say that plural is correct. Anyway... this year, politics are about as plural as you can get."

CAVALIER, N.D., CHRONICLE: "A candy wholesaler received an order of $11.50 worth of candy to be shipped on credit to the 'Horsie Hollow Candy Co.' The wholesaler asked for a credit report from Dun and Bradstreet, who investigated, and promptly sent back this report: 'The Horsie Hollow Candy Company is a small business house, retailing candies at Horsie Hollow, a small Mississippi community. Proprietors are: Royal White and Thomas Flippen. Both are 11 years old; both unmarried. Value of cash and merchandise on hand; $13.25, largely in chocolate bars, gum drops and Tootsie rolls. Fixtures and store building, which was remodeled from an old chicken coop, valued at $45. No liabilities.' The candy was promptly shipped."

WHITTIER, CALIF., REVIEW: "While government is designed to serve the people, it cannot be expected to support all of them."

MIDDLETOWN, PA., JED-NOTA: "The joyless lot are those who are forever digging up dirt, looking for dangers and looking for mistakes. They are afraid of change and renewal. They shun modern methods and ignore the real opportunities for good that are ever present. The joyless lot are always the hapling negativists."

POCOMOKE CITY, MD., WORCESTER DEMOCRAT: "One of the weaknesses of a democracy is that it makes no organized effort to train its leaders—they are usually selected because of personal popularity. We train truckdrivers, lawyers, teachers and engineers, but not the people who direct spending of 80 billions of our dough each year."

Living in a town as small and comparatively isolated as Sonora makes it difficult for one to appreciate the tremendous changes in the life of Texas wrought by the war. This is not to say that Sonora is disinterested or complacent; it is merely to say that unless you have visited other sections, you 'ain't seen nothin'". For example, there are 1250 sailors at A&M learning the radio. Most of them are married, but conditions are so crowded that many of the wives must live in nearby towns and only see their husbands on weekends.

The Devil's River Philosopher Sez..... He Finds Something To Think About In A Proposed New Telephone Law

Editor's note: The Dry Devil's Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on Dry Devil's River reports on a new idea he's discovered.

Dear editor:

Every once in a while somebody comes up with a new idea, and I found one last night buried on an inside page of a newspaper where I had gone to get away from the turmoil on the front page. I don't mind reading about a problem bad enough to get on the front page if it has an answer, but most of the problems being headlined today don't have any answers.

Anyway, a town, I forget its name, has passed an ordinance limiting the telephone calls telephone salesman can make. If you want to sell something by phone, you have to buy a permit and can call only on weekdays from 8 a.m. to noon and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Violators are subject to a $200 fine.

This is a step in the right direction but it doesn't go far enough.

What we need—and I haven't worked out the details on it yet—is a law preventing anybody from calling anybody else unless the called person wants to be called. I don't remember reading a while back the number of telephone calls made each year in the United States and it runs into the billions and billions.

I estimate that fifty percent and maybe three fourths of those calls were to people who had just as soon not be called, some particularly at the time and others not at all.

Now the problem for Congress is to figure out a law that prohibits unwanted telephone calls. I don't see how members of Congress can do it, but it'd give them something to do to get their minds off all those other problems they can't find answers to either.

Meanwhile, if you want to develop strength of character, the next time your phone rings just sit there and let it ring till whoever's calling gives up. If you can resist the temptation to answer, you have conquered one of man's major frailties. Excuse me, I've got to stop, the phone's ringing.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Doyle:
Please allow us the use of the newspaper to say "Thanks" to the people of Sonora.

The donations made by the people of Sonora were a tremendous gesture. It is nice to know that an ex-Sonoran still has an adopted home.

The family is doing fine. The big problem in Seguin right now is housing for many people. I just wish Sonora could have had about half of the 10 inches of rain that fell between Seguin and Canyon Dam. The river is back to normal, but most homes are a long way from being ready to use.

Again "thanks" for the donations to us "river rats."

Sincerely,
Dennie, Mary, Russell,
Laura and Donald Hays

A Bishop Looks at Life

RANDOM REFLECTIONS

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of the Episcopal Church

(Bishop Jones is on a tour of Europe and will send messages from various points along his route)

Corfu - "The visitor to the Greek island of Corfu is a pilgrim, not a tourist. He is willing to let the days lazily unfold, and he loathes the practice of sightseeing."

So says the guide book, and it is true. Here in this beautiful place one is away from the political excitement of Athens, and the archeological excitement of Crete. About the only item of interest is that the patron saint is St. Spiridon, and this is the birthplace of Spiro Agnew. (In fact, every other male on the island is named Spirio.)

Therefore, let me use this leisure to indulge in a few random reflections:

In all parts of the world today people have a hunger to escape from the pressures of city life to the simple joys of uncomplicated living. They are looking for what are called "unspoiled places", those as yet untainted by excessive rush, greed, and business competition.

The irony is that as soon as one of these more relaxed areas is discovered the tourists flock in, new hotels are built, airports are enlarged—and that which caused the attraction may soon be lost. This has happened in both Crete and Corfu, in all the Hawaiian islands, in Bali, and in many other less-known places.

There is a mysterious kinship between those who live close to the soil and the animals which serve them. The most notable example in Europe is that between man and the burro.

This patient beast has a dignity of his own as he carries what seems an impossible load. In spite of all, he seems to have no bitterness toward his human master, who is usually perched behind the load of trudging at his side.

A close second to the burro is the milk goat, especially in rural Greece. The most common sight is a woman dressed in black (usually with dark withered skin) seated on her burro with two or three goats on a tether, each with an udder as large as that of a cow. There is no question about the milk being fresh, for she delivers not only the product but the producer.

At Nazare, a charming fishing village on the Atlantic Coast in Portugal, two large oxen stand on the beach in their harness awaiting the return of the boats. As each heavy boat reaches the edge of the water, the chains are attached and the craft is hauled to higher ground where it is safe from the tide and ready to be unloaded.

Ever hear of a fish auction? At another Portuguese fishing town, Sesimbra, the fishermen return from their morning labors shortly before noon, spread out their catch on the sandy beach, and the local residents, including restaurant owners, gather round to bid for the fish they want.

The Greek landscape is dotted with churches, small chapels and monasteries, usually impressively built on the highest possible location. (The small island of Mykonos has 360 such shrines.) The scene gives the impression (even if it is not fully deserved) that the life of the people is, quite literally, lifted up in praise to God.

HIS FEET ARE ON THE GROUND!

This man can see for many, many miles, but he's not up in the clouds; his feet are on the ground!

The Church gives man stability too—a broader vision. It lifts up his eyes to see God and the eternal values of love, truth, justice and service which God inspires. It gives him a divine perspective from which to view his job, his family, his country—his life!

But the Church always keeps that man's feet on the ground! It accepts him for what he is—regardless of the clothes he wears or the job he holds. It looks evil in the face and sees it for what it is—a devilish cancer which only God can cure. It keeps a man's feet on the ground while it lifts up his eyes to see beyond the horizon.

And this is what the Church can do for you! It can give you greater vision. But it's not up in the clouds. It keeps your feet on the ground!

That old standby—the electric fan—will improve summer comfort. A window fan pushing hot air out of one side of your home, but drawing cooler air from the shady side is particularly effective.

When outside temperature drops below the temperature inside, open your windows to let heat escape.

The attic temperature often reaches 140 to 160 degrees on hot summer days. An attic fan will exhaust this heat and prevent it from radiating down through your ceiling. Attic fans are economical to operate. Some attic fans come with a thermostat to automatically turn on or off. Even if your home has electric air conditioning, you can reduce your air conditioning bill by installing an attic fan.

Another economical way to improve summer comfort is to avoid heat producing inside jobs like cooking, washing, ironing or showering during the hottest time of the day. Turn off unused lights, appliances or television sets.

THE FAMILY LAWYER
Classroom Copycat
 Scene: a college classroom. The professor is delivering a lecture on philosophy. Most of his listeners are paying only intermittent attention to his pearls of wisdom.
 But one alert young man is zealously taking down every word. For he has a great idea. He will gather the lectures together, publish them in book form, and then sell them to students who are less energetic than he is.
 Could the professor block the young man's project if he so desired? This question arose not long ago when a professor actually did go to court against a classroom copycat. He claimed that publication of the lectures would violate his "common law copyright."
 The defendant retorted that the professor had lost the copyright by uttering his words in public, thereby making them "free for all."
 But the court sided with the professor and granted him an injunction. The court pointed out that he had spoken not to the general public, for general use, but to a limited group for limited use.
 Other courts have agreed that a professor does not lose his common law copyright merely by delivering lectures to his students. By the same token, a minister probably retains rights in his sermons after delivering them to his congregation.
 However, a copyright generally protects only the mode of expression, not the information itself. For example:
 A professor of medicine complained in court that a new book contained certain details about surgery that he had described in his lectures.
 But it turned out that the book did not use the professor's language at all—and used his data
