Brush Control Research Seeking 1972 Funds

In 1969, according to local representatives, the Sutton County ranchmen contributed generously toward a State-wide Brush Research fund. The goal was a penny per acre per year for five years. Sutton County, at that time, raised some $7,000 which represented over 7/10 of a penny for each acre of rangeland in the county. In 1970, $4,000 or 4/10 of a penny for each acre in the county was contributed.

This money was used by the State Brush Research Committee to set new research studies in an attempt to determine better and cheaper methods for controlling invading brush.

The local Ranch Experiment Station received $6,100 of these funds, and the Barnhart Station received $5,300.

New brush control and range management studies are under way at both stations, under the direction of Dr. Leo B. Merrill. Funds were not asked for in 1971 because adequate funds were on hand, according to W. B. McMillan, local chairman.

McMillan stated that funds of the third "penny per acre", for continued work in brush control are now being asked for. "We believe that most of our donations will be used close to home and should result in benefits directly applicable to our Edwards Plateau rangeland," said McMillan.

Contributions may be mailed to the Sutton County Brush Control Fund, Box 1036, Sonora, may be left at First National Bank or given to Vestel Askew, Edwin Sawyer, Armer Earwood, George Brockman or W. B. McMillan.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

NORWICH, CONN., BULLETIN: "Observers of the passing scene call attention now and then to the contribution of one Herkimer Baffelback, who pioneered in the technology of making consumer goods hard to get at... At this writing, it appears the honor may fall to a manufacturer of small household items which come encased in impregnable translucent plastic welded to a card that only a strong man can tear. This is not yet certain, however; a firm that supplies its products in heavy cardboard boxes sealed with a substance which glues two spacings together at launch time is in the running."

In an attempt to reform New York's City welfare procedures, Mrs. Evelyn H. Lustig successfully applied for a Medicare card for her Great Dane. Publicity led to a major change... effective November 1971 the state required face to face interviews. However, Mason Lustig (the dog) has since received a second card extending his benefits."

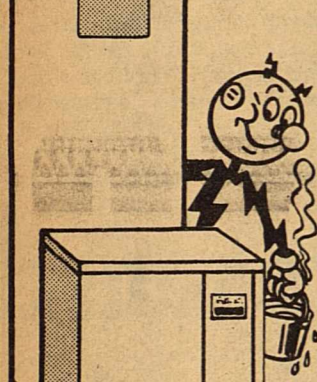

WILSON, N. C., TIMES: "Driving drunk is going to cost money. It is largely responsible for traffic accidents and deaths, so government is pushing the states to punish the repeaters, to take away their licenses for a long time, and to see that they take a cure. Everything else has been tried and with little success. Now just about the most precious thing a man has is his driver's license, and it must go. And if it will stop the highway killings, the sooner the better."

GLENDIVE, MONT., RANGER REVIEW: "You can criticize the President. You can criticize the Vice President. You can criticize the Congress. But you've got to hand it to the Internal Revenue Service."

MOVILLE, IOWA, RECORD: "It is said that national health insurance will cost every family about one thousand dollars a year. Blue Cross and Blue Shield is currently about $400 per year. Why... in the name of common sense do we want national health insurance at $1,000 per year when the present cost is $400. Most programs taken over by federal control usually have a much higher price tag than those operated by private business."

The Devil's River Philosopher Sez....

He's Disturbed Over State Heads' Lack Of Any Pull In Washington

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River may have his tongue in his cheek this week, although it could be chewing tobacco.

Dear editor:
I knew this was the day of the oppressed minorities but didn't know how widespread the thing had gotten till I read an account of the National Governors' Conference meeting in Houston last week. Governors now consider themselves oppressed minority.

It's a fact. According to the Governor of Montana, the national government has gotten so large that governors have a hard time getting heard in Washington. "I can say all I want to by myself and no one will listen," he said at the conference. "The states are getting to be like the many Indian nations of a century ago: they're all listening to the Great White Father in Washington."

Come to think of it, there is something to this. I can name the governor of this state, but blamed if I can think of the governor of New Mexico or Arizona. And if a man wants something done about something in his area, who does he write? He writes his Congressman or Senator. Who else? Who ever heard of writing his Governor? Maybe occasionally they'll write their state legislator, but the governor??

This seems a shame. Men work hard to get elected governor, spending five or six times what the job pays, and the rest of the people ought to pay more attention to them. They ought to at least send them carbon copies of all letters they write to Washington.

Incidentally, the main topic of discussion at the Governor's Conference was revenue sharing. They want Washington to split up some of the tax money it's getting and give it to the states to spend as they please.

This is a good idea, as everybody knows the states certainly have a pressing need for more money and if I was a governor I'd sit down right now and write my Congressman about it. Write it in longhand on tablet paper. They say they pay more attention to simple letters that come straight from the hearts of the unknown constituents.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

A Bishop Looks At Life

INSOLUBLE PROBLEMS

By Everett H. Jones Retired Bishop of the EPISCOPAL CHURCH

When I became a bishop a wise friend who had been a bishop for many years said to me: "If you are to have any peace of mind in your work you must learn to live with a few insoluble problems." I have often had reason to be grateful for this advice.

It is good advice for those in any walk of life today; indeed it is essential for any person who is a concerned member of our twentieth century world.

We do not need to look for examples of insoluble problems. Most of us have them in our immediate personal relationships; they are in our own community, in the nation, and in the world. They are the problems that will not go away; the ones that keep coming back after we think they are solved.

Why is it that we are so reluctant to accept these areas of frustration and therefore continue to live in frustrated anxiety?

One answer, especially among us Americans, is that we always expect quick and easy solutions. In our 200 years of national existence we have solved so many different problems, we have reached such varied forms of success and power, we cannot imagine a situation that is beyond us.

Perhaps it is a mark of our immaturity as individuals and as a nation that we are unwilling to accept any experience that represents defeat or failure. We are even unwilling to admit there have been such experiences!

Let me hasten to add that the bishop friend referred to above did not tell me to give up on the insoluble problems. He did tell me to quit working on them. He told me to learn to live with them!

For the religious person this is the point at which faith goes into action. He says in effect: "Oh God, I am at the end of my own limited ability and I need your help. I put my problem, and my own best efforts, in your hands." In a sense this is what Christ did in his last utterance from the cross: "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our thanks to all the people of Sonora for the help and encouragement you have given to us since the flood. The money you have sent us is appreciated so much and we use it to replace items that we lost, we will hold a special place in our hearts for your friendship. An extra special thanks to those that we cannot contact directly.

More than anything, we are thankful that once again all our lives were spared. With life, with God's help and friends such as you, perhaps it won't be long at all before we will be saying, "Remember the flood in 1972?" But we won't forget how great everyone in Sonora was to us.

Sincerely,
Grosse, Shirley, Collette, Adette, Alan and Rick

Money isn't worth all the bother, but we can't convince ourselves on the point.

the direction of energy

When the big wheel turns clockwise, the little wheel turns counter-clockwise at a greater rate of speed. Thus man controls energy in the physical universe, determining, according to his own will, its direction and effect.

There is a spiritual universe, too. A world in which God, who gave us freedom of will, provides the guidance, help and inspiration which unite our minds with His for purposes which are GOOD.

We realize with trembling in this nuclear age that the physical and spiritual universe are not two—but ONE. We cannot live in the one and forget the other. For the world we know will perish unless man's spiritual vision governs his use of the energy he controls.

Wise and reverent minds have always known this. That is why we have CHURCHES . . . why we share their Life and Work with one another.

THE FAMILY LAWYER
 "You Dirty Crook!"
 Baseball umpires and football referees take it in stride. But there are times when the cry "You dirty crook!"—or words to that effect—can amount to slander. How the courts look upon such outbursts tells a great deal about the law of defamation of character.
 Take this case:
 During an argument at a golf course, one player called another "a lousy crook." The latter filed suit for slander, charging that the epithet had branded him as a common criminal.
 But the court disagreed. At least in this situation, said the court, the words were no more than generalized bluster.
 Oliver Wendell Holmes once expressed the law's attitude as follows:
 "A word is not a crystal, transparent and unchanged; it is the skin of a living thought, and may vary greatly in color and content according to the circumstances and the time in which it is used."
 Accordingly, another court found it was indeed defamatory for a jeweler to say of a rival jeweller that he was "a crook . . . mixed up in some crooked deals."
 This time the comment, made during a business conference, was clearly meant to be taken literally.
 Even in a non-business setting, this kind of language may be defamatory. At a club meeting, one of the members denounced the club president as "a cheat and a fraud." In short order, the president filed suit for slander.
 In a court hearing he pointed out that the remark had been made not merely as a general insult but as a specific comment on his performance in office. The court decided that, since the office was one of trust and honor, the words were weighty enough to support a suit.
 "Those words," said the judge, "cannot but impair confidence in (the president's) ability to hold the office."

Accent on Health
 Sudden infant death is a real disease. Not a mystery killer.
 The pattern is almost always the same. The baby is put to bed happy and healthy. During the night, there is no sign of disturbance of any kind. In the morning, the baby is dead.
 The cause is not suffocation. "No healthy baby will smother by being put in the wrong position," says Dr. Ira Rosenthal of Chicago. "The baby can assert itself and find an airway." Autopsies show no pathology in the lungs or elsewhere, no evidence of vomiting or choking.
 The cessation of breathing in sudden infant death, some experts believe, is brought about by spasms of the vocal cords which shut off the intake of air during sleep. A viral infection in the respiratory tract could cause breathing difficulties and trigger the fatal spasm. Death may result from an inability to breathe through the mouth when nasal passages close. No one knows for sure.
 Whatever the cause, this fatal phenomenon is a real disease that causes as many as 20,000 infant deaths a year in the United States alone. Studies show that the sudden infant death rate is higher in winter than in summer, that it occurs three times more among nonwhites than among whites. Infants fatally affected usually have lower birth weights or were born prematurely. But they all seem healthy before their sudden demise.
 New research shows that certain two-to-three-month old infants—including infant monkeys as well—undergo distinct changes during sleep when they have colds. Attempts are now underway to pass legislation for more research into the problem and to provide counseling for guilt-stricken parents.
 Find out more about all kinds of respiratory complications from your local tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. It's a matter of life and death.
