Three Teams Tied In Little League

After three games of play for each team, it became evident that there will be a real battle for first place this year.

The Indians, Rangers and Astros are all tied for first place with two wins and one loss. The Cardinals were losers in all three games but lost two games by only one run, so their fortunes will take a turn for the better.

It looks as though all four teams are well matched. Each team has some good pitching and good hitters. Hitting is taking the limelight over pitching at the present as seven home runs have sailed over

Everyone is urged to come out on Tuesday and Thursday nights and see the kids put on a good show.

The tine test" was administered to 194 first and seventh grade students, as well as teachers and other personnel in the elementary school May 8. Of this group, six positive reactors were noted. Of the 280+ given the test Sunday, May 20, Dr. Browne said twelve positive reactions were found. He emphasized that this does not necessarily mean that the person with this reaction has tuberculosis...only that some germs have entered the body at one time or other. A positive test by itself does not mean that others will catch the germs from that person, but chest X-rays are then given to determine whether active tuberculosis is present. The tests were sponsored by the American Lung Association of Texas. Big Country Area.

The association claims it takes about 15 minutes for a driver's eyes to become completely accustomed to the dark-but few motorists wait even 15 seconds. They come out of a lighted building, jump into a vehicle and drive off. They are, in fact, partially blind. For minimum safety, 17-year-old drivers should wait two or three minutes and 60-year-old drivers at least five minutes for dark adaptation. Some of it may be justified," comments a National Association of Manufacturers editorial, "but it's safe to say that most of the allegations are unwarranted. American business, laboring under a heavy tax burden, certainly does its share to keep the economy moving. Just suppose, for a moment, that every business in the country shut down for a week-every store, every utility, every railroad, every barber shop, every radio and television station. We all know what happens when just one major industry is shut down by a strike, but what if all business suddenly came to a halt? It's a horrible thought, but it's worth thinking about nevertheless. Viewpoint

by T. DRISKELL

Curiosity led me into some historical research. Good fortune let me interview more than 40 primary sources. Historically, I prefer to get my information straight from the horse's mouth, after very carefully determining which way the horse is facing. Using secondary or tertiary sources, I sometimes find that a unique solution to the horse orientation problem is utterly beyond me. The era I looked at was from twenty-nine to fifty-seven years ago. The specific topic was illegal immigration across the Mexican border. I talked to the participants and insofar as possible, through letters and interviews, their descendants. The overbearing fact which emerged was that although those men and women were small in stature, I was unable to find, in modern history, people bigger in spirit or strong er in determination. They knew that here they would be under the merciless yoke of prejudice. They further knew that for the remainder of their lives they would be restricted to menial, poverty-level tasks, but they came anyway. One couple was sent back four times and each time walked several hundred miles carrying their children and all of their posses sions. Almost to an individual, they answered the question, Why did you come?" with, could have a better life than I could hope for!" Their spiritual and determination stature is the stuff that heroes are made of. Unfortunately, they brought with them a social habit which had flourished in Mexico for almost 400 years. A "not understanding", and the utiliza tion of a separate language habit which the Indians had practiced on the Spanish since Cortez. Prejudice, discrimina tion, and persecution here flowered those habits to evolve into a sub-culture which has served to deny many of the descendants of those immigrants the heritage which the extended expenditure of blood, sweat and tears was made to gain, but not all. Another indication emerged from my admittedly insignificant sample. When the attention was turned to the descendants, some did well, and some did poorly, very poorly, considering the demonstrated characteristics of their ancestors. Looking at the group whi did well (better than the American average), one common characteristic emerged. In their homes, English was spoken, not exclusively, but a majority of the time. The children, it seemed, thought of English as their primary Observing schools! (You might surmise after the "frag grenade" of two weeks ago, I would stay away from schools. In case you haven't guessed--this writing is the honest expression of one man's opinion, not a popularity endeavor. It can hardly bow to folkways or mores without prostituting its intellectual integrity.) Back to the schools, in the American-Mexican border areas there are two distinct performance groupings with the division falling between those students who think of English and those who think of Spanish as their primary language. It confronts the teach er with an almost insurmountable problem, to the detriment of both groups.

Bilingualism is a beautiful ideal, but I am afraid that is all it is -- an ideal. My personal estimate is that only about four out of ten individuals can become truly bilingual. My observation of the French-Flemish division of Belguim and the French-Italian-German division of Switzerland strengthens this conclusion.

The bilingual theory of H. E .-W. is an attempt to correct a condition, but probably it is too little and too late. The unilingual (Spanish) of the various ARAZZA's is neither practical nor realistic. You may not agree -- if not, I invite you to look around. The business in this country is conducted in teach in Spanish? Are all laws written in Spanish? It must also become apparent that a man not having fluency in English is restricted in scope to the border area. Further, this restriction places his economic efforts in the eclipse of the incoming "wets". Even the more enterprising "wets" are pushing into the middle of the country to get away from the later influx of "wets".

I must put it that the present situation is not at all what those hearty immigrants intended. They came here to be Americans, and one of America's greatest assets is that it has one language. Do not get me wrong, I am not saying that Spanish should be abandoned, nor the rich heritage (and oppression) be forgotten. I am saying that if a child thinks of Spanish as his primary language, as an American child, he is at a disadvantage. This is pretty well supported by the Germans who came in prior to and after World War II. Look at Kissinger, von Braun, and others -- you cannot find them anymore as a minority. The difference? Simply, German is now their secondary anguage.

Looking for a remedy, we must turn to the home of the Spanish speaking American, as the most logical place to start. For the students now in school, it's too late, we'll have to weather the storm as best we can.

The Spanish speaking American homes with young children a plea to parents must be made Talk English to that child at every opportunity because the child's education and development is hard enough without family or ethnic barriers." Do not ask your children to completely change worlds every morning and every afternoon, insecurity we have enough of now. Do not force your children to, in addition to their lessons, to overcome the language barrier you encountered. Most of us have only one tool to break the "ring of poverty" with--education. I realize that what I am asking is not easy, at the family ceremony. The double-ring service was held in the Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church of Houston, May 19, 1973 at 3 p.m.

Organist Mrs. William Holford of Houston played a favored selection of music by Bach, the traditional wedding march, and, as recessional, Bach's "Hymn to Joy". An arrangement of pink peonies, white and pink daisies, stock and greenery was the altar decora-

Given in marriage by her uncle, Raleigh D. Huebner of Bay City, the bride was gowned in ivory chiffon in the Empire silhouette with long, full sleeves, a high neckline, and lace beribboned with pink satin at the neckline, wrists, and the front and back of the bodice Her "period" headpiece was of two layers of illusion in picture hat fashion with pink velvet streamers. She wore an heirloom pin of diamond and pearl which had belonged to her late maternal grandmother, Mrs. M. T. Huebner, and carried a designer nosegay of pink roses and baby's breath accented with floor-length pink satin

Mrs. John David Parker of Houston was matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of pale pink voile with a tri-color velvet belt, and her fluff headpiece was of matching tulle. Her wrist bouquet was of a mixture of "old fashioned" flowers in spring shades of pink and red with baby's breath and greenery with velvet bows and ribbons. Thomas L. Barnett of Pasadena was best man. Ushers were the bridegroom's brother, Arthur Trainer of Channelview, and the brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Jack Helmcamp of Buffalo. The mother of the bride wore pink crepe with pearl buttons, accented with a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a floor-length navy and white dress and a violet orchid corsage. The paternal grandmother of the bride, Mrs. W. W. Wilkinson of Bay City, was presented with a white orchid.

A spring reception was held in the Georgian courtyard immediately following the cere-

The color theme of pink was carried throughout in the tablecloth, centerpiece, punch, and pink trimmed three-tiered wedding cake. Members of the houseparty were Mrs. Jack Helmcamp and Mrs. Arthur Trainer. Assisting were the five small neices of the bridegroom, Cindy, Paula, and Jackie Trainer, and Carrie and Annette Helmcamp, all gowned in floorlength dresses and wearing wrist corsages of pink sweetheart rosebuds with satin ribbons.

For their departure, Mrs. Trainer wore an Empire dress of pink and white and an heirloom, century-old Celtic cross from her paternal ancestors. She carried an arm bouquet of long stem red roses and green-

The bride is a graduate of Bay City High School and attended Sullins College in Bristol Saunders of Kerrville, Mrs. Virginia, Baylor University, and the University of Texas where she majored in English.

by MONICA DURUSSEL THE SONORA GOLF CLUB did it again-another wonderful, delightful, fun-loving, hectic tournament. Three big days of it with 48 teams participating! Saturday and Sunday the teams played 18 holes, but Monday 36 holes were played by the Championship and First played their regular 18, then the loosers played the loosers, then those loosers played some more loosers, and so then those loosers-Confused? You bet I was, or am, anyway, I think everybody won something, and I know all had a great time.

In the Championship Flight. first place went to Sonora's George Johnson and Ted Covington of San Angelo.

Second place went to Sandy Gibbs and Lee Emfinger of San Angelo. Consolation was won by the Arredondos of Kerrville.

Shorty Taylor of Sonora, and Ray Fannin of Roswell, New Mexico won first place in the first flight, while Ken and Percy Williamson of San Angelo came in second. Consolation was won by Boyd and Adam Morriss.

Second flight winners were Charlie Jackson and Dayton Alexander of San Angelo. Ken Braden and Bill Tittle of the

Of course we all know that when you're playing golf, that is the big thing; but 'When Day Is Done", comes that super-duper barbecue that Sonora is famous for. It was held Saturday night, and as usual it was the best, and if it weren't for all those wonderful people who donate the meat and the women who come up with all those salads, beans and all other goodies, it just wouldn't be possible. The men who did the barbecuing Saturday night were Corky Schwiening, Pete Thompson, and Bud Halbert-
