Sawyer Range Management Field Day Oct. 11

Edwin Sawyer and the Edwards Plateau Soil and Water Conservation District will host a Range Management Field Day and a free barbecue on the Edwin Sawyer Ranch, Thursday, October 11th. Dalton Merz, local District Conservationist, said the plans include observation of several popular conservation practices on the Sawyer Ranch.

Sawyer has used the Dr. Leo B. Merrill 4-Pasture Rotation Grazing Systems for 15 years. At the tour, Dr. Merrill will discuss rotation grazing systems used by livestock producers throughout the world.

Sawyer has had a Great Plains Conservation Program contract with the Soil Conservation Service since 1971. He has tree-dozed cedar, followed by grass seedings and deferments of grazing. Results of aerial spraying of mesquite done in 1972 and 1973 with Tordon 225 and 2, 4, 5-T will be noted.

Sawyer has also successfully re-vegetated a disturbed area along a gas pipeline right-of-way.

Coffee will be served at 9:30 A. M. and the field tour will start at 10:00 A. M.

A free noon barbecue will be served following the tour. All ranchers and other interested people are urged to attend.

All landowners 18 years of age or older are eligible to participate in the election of directors for Zone 5 of the Edwards Plateau S&WCD. Zone 5 will include the area between the Bond Road, Hwy. 277 S. and Hwy. 55 in Edwards County.

W. B. McMillan is presently serving as chairman of Zone 5.

of Commerce, Little League Baseball, firemen's training school and the Sonora Speech Meet.

The club also engaged in special projects the past year that included improvements at the 4-H Center, orthodontic work on a local child, girl scout camping equipment, Wool Show and the Lions District Eye Bank.

Auctioneer Lem Jones of Arizona was on hand again this year to serve as auctioneer for the sale.

The Mystery Package donated this year by George Brockman brought the highest bid, being purchased by Willie Miers for $500.

A number of items purchased by local bidders, were in turn donated to other projects such as the fire department, Boy's Ranch, the 4-H Club and other's.

A complete list of the sales will be published at a later date.

Goats donated for the barbecue held prior to the sale, were donated by Robert Allison, Lea Roy Aldwell, W. B. McMillan, Robert Zapata, Harrison Ranch, Joe Neil Johnson and Bud Whitehead.

SERVING GUESTS? OR SERVING HIMSELF? Cullen Luttrell seems to be enjoying the barbecue supper served prior to the 36th Annual Lions Club Auction held Tuesday night, September 23. Tim Thorp and Carl Teaff fill their plates while Mark Parker oversees the operation. Lion members described this sale as one of the best in the history of the annual sales.

Junior Varsity Upsets Eldorado

By Curt Mooney
The Sonora Broncos proved themselves again last Thursday night, September 27, as they defeated the pride of the Eagle team.

Playing on a somewhat muddy field, the Broncos kicked off to the Eagles to get the game started. Throughout the game, the Broncos' defense was determined not to give ground. The Bronco offense got the ball and started toward the goal line, with the help of some fine blocking and running.

Despite some penalties on the first possession, the Broncos dove down to the Eldorado 19. But the Broncos couldn't score without the ball, as they fumbled and Eldorado recovered. The first quarter ended 0-0.

The second quarter was roughly the same, until the Bronco defense blocked a punt and revived their well-known spirit. After the ball changed hands, the Broncos scored, with some fine running by Edward Flores, Gil Favila, and John Elliott. The conversion was stopped as Eldorado's defense stiffened. The half-time score read 6-0.

The second half action looked much like the first. The Bronco offense was running wild but being hurt by fumbles, an interception, and penalties. The defense held the Eagles to very few yards and, in the fourth quarter, caused a bad snap from center on a punt to go out of the end zone, giving two points to the Broncos. On the next possession the Broncos got it all together and scored from 23 yards out on a pass from Curt Mooney to Robby Hard. The conversion was good for two points on a pass from quarterback John Elliott to Mooney, which ended the game with a 16-0 score over the Eagles.

Broncos To Begin District Play Against Menard Friday Night

The Sonora Broncos were not able to contain the Ozona Lions Friday night and suffered their fourth loss of the season in Lion Stadium 14-8.

The Lions tallied all their points in the first seven minutes of the first quarter. After taking the opening kickoff the Lions used only seven plays in a sixty-one yard touchdown drive. The big gainer of the drive was a forty-five yard pass to Rick Hunnicutt which set up Romaldo Cervantez's 5 yard touchdown scamper. Lesley Russell kicked true and gave the Lions an early 7-0 lead.

The Broncos were not able to move the ball after the kickoff and were forced to punt. The Lions took over on their 19 yard line and passed into the Bronco end of the field. Cervantez carried to the Sonora fifteen and scored two plays later and with the PAT Ozona posted their final point of the night.

The second quarter was controlled by the Broncos, as the Lions had the ball only one series of downs, but could not mount as serious threat.

The third quarter was more of the same as neither team were able to move the ball. Late in this quarter the Bronco defense pushed the Lions back to their own 2 yard line and had good field position on the Ozona 48 after the punt.

From this point the Broncos picked up two first downs and as the quarter ended were on the Ozona twelve. Four plays into the final quarter Bruce Kerbow scored from one yard out and Paul Browne skirted his left end for the two point conversion making the final score 14-8.

Next Friday, October 5, the Broncos will start district play against the Yellowjackets in Menard. Game time for this and the other district games will be 7:30 p. m.

Who cares whether the telephone company lives or dies? The answer to that should be--just about everyone. The fact that the telephone has become so much a part of life in the United States that hardly anyone ever thinks about it attests to the high quality of service to which we are accustomed and to the significant role that telecommunications play in binding together the fabric of our civilization.

An industry advertisement has noted quite correctly that, "Few businesses are tied as closely to the community and its future as the telephone company." For example, if a town is to grow and provide opportunities for young people and new residents, it must have expanding business enterprise to provide new jobs for a growing population. Unless these new businesses and households are to be without phone service, the telephone company has to grow continually to meet its legal obligations to provide service. It takes around a billion dollars a month of new investment to build and install the plant and equipment required to meet the growing demand for telephone service, and these dollars must be attracted from the investing public, which is constantly comparing the opportunities of investment in one company or industry with another.

A utility industry publication points out that--unlike utilities--industrial corporations are not required to invest in new facilities to meet the increased demand of their customers. They increase their capacity only when there is the expectation that the investment will be reasonably profitable. But utilities have no such option--they have to build to meet demand for service. As the industry publication concludes, the problem is that, "If utility companies are to compete successfully in the securities market, they must also show that their new investment in plant and facilities is being made on a profitable basis. It is up to the regulators to make this possible."

General public opinion ultimately determines what regulatory authorities can do. Many utility companies are requesting rate increases to meet the increased costs of providing essential services. These increases, if granted, will be among the smallest items in the family budget and would enable these vital industries to attract the investment dollars required.

Heart of The System

For the first time in memory--at least in peacetime--U.S. consumers have been faced with the prospect of not being able to have all they want of certain necessities and luxuries they may wish to buy. They face shortages in such things as food and energy. There is, as yet, little public understanding of the dangers implicit in permitting shortages to undermine in any way the efficiency and productivity of the competitive enterprise system.

People wonder, for example, why companies continue to advertise and promote their names and their products or why they continue to seek more satisfied customers. The answer is simple. Even when there are shortages, in fact especially when there are shortages, retailers and businesses of all kinds must work harder than ever before to maintain the economies of scale flowing to consumers from mass production and mass distribution. Only the most shortsighted, to use an illustration, will use shortages as a lever to kill promotion and advertising, which are the foundation of the high volume movement of goods--that means the lowest possible prices to consumers for everything from groceries to gasoline. Those who look with something akin to glee at the prospect that shortages will force businesses to forgo promotional efforts show the least understanding of our modern mechanism of production and distribution. The best possible news is that retailers of all kinds--gasoline and food, for instance--continue to offer such inducements as trading stamps. Even if a service station cannot fill your tank or a merchant runs low on certain items, he makes it clearly evident through the giving of those little pieces of paper that are redeemable for valuable merchandise that he appreciates the patronage of his customers.

This is the heart of the American system, and it would be a sad day indeed for everyone if the time should ever arrive when the American system businessman no longer feels compelled to boost his product and please his customers. These are the factors that, in the long run, are vital to the perpetuation of a high living standard.

Is Sonora going to the dogs? The obvious conclusion, based on observation, is that it is not, in fact, going, but rather in all probability it is already there. For example, during the early morning hours canine traffic on our streets equals or exceeds the daylight automobile traffic. Where do they come from? Frankly, that is, at this time, an unknown, but the assumption is made that they are pets turned out for the night, pets that have been abandoned, and strays which survive on their own. The fact remains that they are indeed there.

Last week, at 2:30 a.m. a dog fight precipitated virtually outside my bedroom window, and the barking and other miscellaneous noises lasted over an hour. I looked at the three culprits through a rifle scope. The temptation was almost overpowering to chamber a round with an explosive bullet (to prevent ricochet) and blast a cur or two. Realizing that we have very specific laws concerning firearms in the city limits, and further that an orderly society requires a personal respect and adherence to the law, with some effort I suppressed the urge. I was left with a bitter taste in my mouth concerning our pet control ordinances, and the fact that another individual's pets were allowed to infringe on my personal rights--the right to a good night's sleep.

There are some overpowering examples outstanding in Georgia and New Jersey of dog packs which have gone completely wild. The deprivations of those wild packs are certainly not pretty things. A few miles from the Florida border, in Georgia, one has killed sheep, calves, deer and tread a few human beings. It is a pretty sad sight to see a young dog, still alive, with her hindquarters eaten away. Such an experience certainly suppresses one's pity of poor stray pooches.

With autumn approaching and the hunting (supposedly for winter) instinct rousing in the canines, it might be well for us to survey the situation. In Sonora, for years and years, we have depended on the local ranchmen for stray animal control. It worked very simply, the population level of curs built up to a point which was economically intolerable to the local ranchmen. At a certain point the ranchmen could not stand it any longer and they began putting out poisoned baits (exactly like predator control) and disposed of all the surplus carnivores in the area. Illegal? Yes, but effective although no discrimination was made between well cared for pets and strays, and many cats were guests of honor at the party. It is shameful when the lack of adequate laws force a man into illegal activities to protect his ability to survive economically. Why should ranchmen be forced to perform illicit duties to achieve a solution to a problem which should be solved by the city?

A rabies tag, what is that? I have seen eleven on the streets of Sonora. Eleven tags, and when thirty-four dogs saunter past an intersection in a two-hour period, the arithmetic just does not balance. The lack of balance becomes thought provoking when you realize that we have had several cases of animal rabies in Texas this year. A rabies epidemic in our local mongrel pack is such a horror to contemplate that one must wonder if it will take that to get the action which represents such overbearing obvious prudence. It can hardly be denied that the potential is there. Must we force the local ranchmen to compensate for our deficiency again?

Recognizing that by now the animal lovers are aroused and the humanists a little stirred up, all that can be said is so be it. I have spent a lot of time with dogs, and I believe that if a man has a pet, he must be irrevocably responsible for that pet and his care. One individual's pets should not be allowed to infringe upon his neighbors nor to provide the children of the community with a potential menace, regardless of how remote. It was an acceptable situation two or three generations ago when the dog was a functional part of rural economic life, and individuals both animal and human had more physical room to live in. The basic fact which must be recognized is that with our population surge, the individual's physical living space, and his or her spatial area of personal rights are collapsing

Law Allowing Televising Of Football Games Needs A Little More Thought

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weed ranch on dry Devil's River must have been riding in somebody's new car, his letter this week indicates. Dear editor:

It's not a world-shaking problem but as you know, Congress has now passed a law allowing the televising of home games in professional football if the game is a sell-out 72 hours before it starts, and as I understand it the owners of the teams aren't happy about it.

They say that even if all the tickets are sold, if the day turns off wet and cold a lot of fans will stay warm and dry at home and watch the game on television, thus cutting down on parking lot fees, hotdog sales, etc., not to mention the dispiriting effect a half-empty stadium has on the players.

There's a remedy for this. Put seat belts in all the seats in the stadium. Rig them up somewhat like the new cars. If the belt isn't fastened, your television set at home won't start, it just emits a continuous buzzing sound. The stadium thus will be filled, either by the ticket holders or somebody they hired to sit in for them, and what difference can it make to the players if they're being cheered or booted by somebody who paid to get in or was hired?

On this law, as with lots of laws, Congress either went too far or didn't go far enough. Speaking of these new car seat belts that make that awful nagging buzzing sound and won't let your car start till they're fastened, I was just thinking, how could the west ever have been won, how would the cattle ever have been herded, how would a stampede ever have been stopped, if, when a cowboy leaped into his saddle, his horse wouldn't start till both feet were in the stirrups? Yours faithfully, J. A.

BREAD OF LIFE

Sunday, all over the world, Christians will unite in Holy Communion.

They won't all agree on the meaning of this sacred act. Nor will they all worship in the same way.

Yet they will draw close to the Lord whose truth and blessing they share. They will come to Him. And in their hearts He will come to them.

No one knows how this communion is possible. Yet each, according to his own faith, believes that it happens. Mystically, symbolically, miraculously, spiritually—men use these different words to express the SOMEHOW that enflames their hearts.

At a Table that spans the centuries, girds the globe, we partake of the Bread of Life—as ONE.

Knits Shape Up As Outerwear

Fall-ing into knits means increased interest in sweater dressing.

"Besides traditional sweaters, pants and dresses, knits shape up as outerwear," according to Marilyn Brown, consumer education-clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Big knit shapes for fall include bulky, knee-length coats and bulky, belted wrap jackets. Also tunics and below-the-hip length sweaters with wide-ribbed midrifts.

"The campus feeling of the '50s returns with the sloppy Joe and varsity sweaters," the specialist continued.

"Another updated fashion consists of a waist length pull-over teamed with a longer cardigan. The zip-front jacket is an additional fall shape."

In general, Miss Brown predicted an abundance of new detailing--including shawl collars on pullovers, dresses and jackets, and high-waist ribbing. Also collars that button into turtlenecks and wide-ribbed V-necks.

Knit textures range from the very softest mohair, angora, rabbit and camel's hair to the brushed shetlands and raised surfaces of boucles, chenille and poodle-stitching, she said.

"Some big, thick worsteds are knitted into heavy hand-made looks--often with traditional cable patterns.

"Acrylics--stitched in flat and bulky knits--rate higher than ever.

"Fall colors, on the other hand, keep pace with the season--featuring nature shades such as rust, copper, beige, camel, off-white, brown, hunter green, maroon, slate and charcoal."

Some solids are contrasted with tone-on-tone combinations --while bright, primary colors accent others, the specialist noted.

"Patterned fall knits boast horizontal and diagonal stripes, jacquards with geometric or old ski-sweater patterns, tweeds, argyles and plaids.

"Watch for novelty jacquards too--such as foulards, chevrons and Art Deco patterns.

"For evening, choose metallics knitted into the nature tones," she suggested.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Bronco Fans:

When I came to Sonora, if anyone mentioned one of my sons playing football, my emphatic reply was, "That will be over my dead body!" It had been my misfortune to live in a town stricken with rabid football--where the adults had attacked their own egos to the football boys' accomplishments. The town was riding high on the victories and acting as though their entertainment and ego trips were the real reasons for football.

No big problem as long as the team was winning, but when they lost a few games, their ardent fans became furious foes blaming anyone in sight--the coaches, the boys, and each other. This knife-throwing gathered momentum, intensifying the pressures on the coaches and the boys until the pressure alone made losing inevitable. Each new loss brought more furious attacks and the vicious cycle continued until the night the star player threw his helmet at the stands and screamed, "To think I've been playing my guts out for three years for a bunch of wolves like you."

There was no way to undo the psychological and emotional damage that had been done to the boys because the adults hadn't stopped to look at themselves. I promised myself that night that no son of mine would ever walk in those boys' shoes.

It took a lot of Bob Snodgrass' time and effort to convince me there was no rabid football in Sonora. For six years he has been right--these last three weeks have revived the question. Is There?

On behalf of every member of the Bronco Football Team and the boys to be on it in the future, I beg you to consider these questions with me:

1. What is the purpose of high school football in Sonora? Is it the physical and psychological development of our boys or is it for entertainment and ego boost of the fans?

2. If the boys are our real concern, haven't we won our goal when they pursue the rigorous mental and physical discipline necessary before they even get to the field on game night? Winning is paramount to the boys, but isn't it supposed to be a by-product of our purpose for having football in our school?

3. Can anyone be stupid enough to think these boys and their coaches would put in the long, grueling hard hours of practice that they have if they weren't trying to win?

4. Can we expect our boys to have the courage and strength of character to take the mental and physical batterings of football if we don't even have what it takes to stand solidly behind them--win, lose, or draw?

5. What is the score on our own performance? Have we stood up to assert our pride in the way the boys and coaches met defeat by buckling down to longer hours and harder practice? Have we suggested to those loud-mouthed critics in the stands that if they can't empathize with our team's failures as well as cheer their successes, they belong on the other side of the field with our opponents?

6. Are the Sonora Bronco Fans going to tolerate having our boys or their coaches degraded with verbal abuse and destructive criticisms?

7. Can we take a real honest look at ourselves and say, "We are showing the Broncos that we have the unity, teamwork, character, and courage that we expect of them?"

Our answers to these questions shown in our attitudes and actions these coming weeks will show our boys and the world what kind of people we are. I believe we are the kind to stand up for our boys and their coaches and let the world know we are proud of their efforts--that constructive criticisms for the Broncos will be appreciated when they are sincere enough to be put in writing to them, but we are not going to tolerate any other kind. I believe we are the kind of people the Broncos can be proud of--win, lose, or draw. Aren't we?

Sincerely,
Jean Thompson

Factors Cited For Fruit Failures

Many homeowners may be wondering why their fruit trees failed to bear this year. The failure can be the result of several different factors, says County Extension Agent D. C. Langford.

The first step in fruit production is to keep the tree healthy by proper watering, fertilization, pruning and insect and disease control. A soil test can determine the proper nutrient requirements for a particular species of fruit in that soil. All-purpose fruit sprays can prevent foliage and fruit damage from insects and diseases.

Most hardy fruit trees need a certain amount of cold weather to break their winter rest period and to promote spring growth. When winters are too mild, spring is delayed, irregular and slow as occurred in 1971 and 1972. Trees grown in climates warmer than their native one often bear poorly because of insufficient cold. Before planting a fruit tree, check its adaptation to your area, advises Langford.

Late winter frosts will kill open fruit blossoms, as experienced across the state this past spring. If temperatures are predicted to drop below 28 degrees after blossoms are open, trees should be covered or some type of artificial heat should be provided.

Another frequent problem is pollination. Some fruits such as apples, pears and plums require cross-pollination to insure fruitfulness. Therefore, two or more varieties of each fruit type should always be planted together. These fruit types are described as "self-unfruitful". On the other hand, all peach varieties recommended for Texas are self-fruitful, and trees of a single variety may be planted.

Occasionally, fruit trees will bear heavily one year and sparsely the next, which is known as biennial bearing. Most trees set more fruit than can be maintained, putting stress on the trees to mature such a large number of fruit. Thinning the fruit annually and especially in heavy years will relieve some of the stress and hopefully keep the tree from falling into a biennial bearing pattern. After thinning, the fruit should be larger and tastier, says the county agent.

Lutheran Churches To Observe World Mission Sunday

Hope Lutheran Church will observe World Mission Sunday with The Rev. Louis Pabor, Vice-President of the Texas District of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod to be the guest speaker. The festivities begin at 10 a. m. with an illustrated lecture entitled, "Rejoicing in Mercy." At 11 a. m. the worship service proper will begin.

Faith Lutheran Church of Ozona will join in the observance. The noon meal will be served by the ladies of both congregations. The people of the community are cordially invited to the meetings and the dinner, according to the Reverend A. B. Wagner, local pastor.

DIVERS WITH THE PADRE ISLAND Underwater Research Project prepare to descend into 20 feet of Gulf waters to search out artifacts which sunk, together with a number of Spanish ships, more than 400 years ago. The state-funded diving project has been conducted for two summers under the sponsorship of the Texas Antiquities Committee.

Archeological Investigation Project On Spanish Shipwrecks Concluded

The second summer of state-sponsored archeological investigation into the historic Spanish shipwrecks sunk off Padre Island has concluded successfully with the recovery of approximately 15,000 pounds of artifacts. The announcement was made by Dr. Fred Wendorf, chairman of the Texas Antiquities Committee, the state agency which funded the operations.

Before the project wound up in August and September divers and Mechanical lifting devices had brought up several hundred artifacts, including an 18-foot section of the wooden keel of a ship; a six-inch, 15-carat gold bar; several huge anchors, one of them welded by encrustation to a cannon barrel; silver discs; cannon breechblocks; silver coins; the handle of a chest; many ballast stones (used for weight on the ships); and a large number of conglomerates. Conglomerates are unidentifiable objects encased in corrosion and shellfish remains which will be cleaned and x-rayed at a later date and are expected to produce numerous important artifacts.

Manuel L. Ruiz, Jr. has completed basic training at Fort Ord, California and will take his advanced training in the field of electronics at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Ruiz is the son of Manuel and Ydalia Ruiz of Azuna, California, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Tele Martinez, and the great-grandson of Mrs. Elena Gomez. Ruiz is a June graduate of Azusa High School and plans to go into law enforcement work at the end of his enlistment.

Churches Observe Communion Sun.

"MORE THAN BREAD" By John Weston This Sunday will be observed by most churches as World-Wide Communion Sunday. The elements of this sacrament represent the broken body and shed blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. The fellowship of the Body of Christ or the Church in which we are one in Christ through faith.

Attend your church this Sunday and renew your life in Him and witness to the fellowship of all true believers.

of the U. T. Medical Branch. The artifacts recovered this year and last are now being manually and electrolytically cleaned and preserved at the U. T. Texas Archeological Research Laboratory. Directed by Dr. Dee Ann Story, the Antiquities Conservation Facility of lab has grown into the foremost facility of its kind in the world since being given custody of other artifacts recovered in 1967 from the same group of ships.

With the end of good diving weather, permanent project personnel have returned to Austin to the headquarters of the Texas Historical Commission to study the artifacts and prepare scientific reports. The Commission expects to inaugurate a new series of academic monographs on underwater archeology some time in 1974.

Also during the summer historical research on the wrecks has been underway at the archives of Madrid and Seville, Spain. Two Catholic nuns and a researcher from Old Spanish Missions Research Library at San Jose Mission in San Antonio have been under contract to the Antiquities Committee to find and translate all available archival records on the ships. It is hoped that such information as a passenger list or cargo manifest can be located in order to supplement the knowledge of the sites obtained by the archeological investigation.

The historical research may also throw light on the date of the shipwrecks and help determine whether, as has been speculated, they were part of a treasure fleet sunk in a hurricane in 1553. The treasure ships were reported to have been carrying 4,000 pounds of silver and 80 pounds of gold. The Spanish supposedly returned on two occasions soon after the wrecks occurred to attempt to salvage them. A more recent salvage operations on the ships began as early as 1967, when an Indiana based firm known as Platoro Limited, Inc., removed a number of artifacts from one of the sites. Legal controversy between Platoro and the State over the ownership of the objects resulted in the passage by the Texas Legislature in 1969 of one of the strongest antiquities codes in the nation.

A federal court in Brownsville is expected to hand down a ruling following a November 1 trial over the ownership of the 1967 artifacts. Depending upon the reaction of the litigants (the State and Platoro), the decision may be appealed all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court.

In their last non-conference game last Friday evening, the Broncos were defeated 14 to 8 by the Ozona Lions. The boys made a large number of mistakes, mostly due to the fact that they had lost their first few games. The Broncos have found it difficult to keep their mental attitudes up and to come back and do a good job, when they played really well in the first couple of games and were defeated anyway.

Now that the Broncos will be getting back into Class 'A' competition and some of the players who have been injured will be playing again, the Broncos are preparing for a victorious season of District play, where it really counts. The coaches are assured that the players are prepared for the conference games and that they will respond well and do a really fine job throughout District competition.

The Broncos will appreciate your presence and support Friday evening as they defeat Menard in the first of a succession of District Victories. The game will be played at the Menard stadium, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

SHS

The Junior Varsity scored another victory this week over Eldorado, giving them a 3-1 record so far for this season. The Broncos will play in Ozona this Thursday evening, beginning at 8:30 p. m.

The Freshman team was defeated last Saturday by Ozona, 30 to 6, and will have an open week this Saturday. Last Thursday the Eighth Grade boys were defeated 26 to 8 by the Eagles. This week the Junior High Colts will play Ozona here, with the Seventh Grade game beginning at 5:00, followed by the Eighth grade game at 6:00 p. m.

SHS

Players of the week for the Llano game were Freddie Virgen for making or assisting on 21 tackles, and Bruce Kerbow, for 156 yards on 11 carries and a 19 yard pass. Players of the week for the Big Lake game were William Thompson and Sergio Gutierrez, both for their blocking and defensive work.

The Bronco Band nominated several girls last week for Band Sweetheart and voted on these by secret ballot. The results will be announced by Mr. John Butterfield at the next home football game, at which time the Sweetheart will be crowned and awarded a bouquet of flowers. The girls who were nominated for the title are Viola Virgen, Ann Villarreal,
