Local Veterinarians Warn

Fifth Rabies Case Confirmed In Co.

Confirmation has recently been received by the Sonora Veterinary Clinic that a fox killed in Sutton County was rabid. This is, according to Veterinarian John E. Fields, the fifth such case of rabies in the county in the past month.

The rabies cases thus far have been confined to the western part of the county in foxes and skunks, but the last killed, a fox, was only a short 12 miles from town. All cases have been getting nearer and nearer to town even though they have all been within a fifteen miles radius.

One Crockett County rancher has reported killing a fox, appearing in the open and the daylight, which is unusual as foxes are by nature, retiring animals. These county cases in the last month are already more than reported in the entire year of 1972, added Fields.

Fields warns all persons owning animals to bring them to the clinic or to any vaccinating clinic for rabies injections. The local clinic has only vaccinated approximately 400 animals this year and any resident realizes there are far more than this amount of domestic pets loose on the streets of Sonora. Due to this, veterinary clinic spokesmen added, makes Sonora the ideal target for a rabies outbreak.

In July, Mitch Trainer, who owns and operates a local grocery store, was bitten in his store by a stray cat and was forced to undergo the series of 14 injections. Trainer reported at the time that the shots were very painful and warned everyone to be on the alert for contact with unfamiliar animals.

Facts about the disease have been clouded in folklore since its earliest recognition but local vets state that a few facts everyone should know about the disease are that all warm-blooded animals are susceptible and thousands of cases are reported each year in the United States alone. Rabies, caused by a filterable virus, is spread primarily by infected dogs, cats, and wild animals.

Once symptoms of the disease develop, it is virtually always fatal. The infected animal transmits the disease to other animals or humans as the case may be, by biting. The virus is present in the saliva of the infected animal. The virus can enter the body only through a break in the skin or mucous membranes. It then travels up nerve trunks toward the spinal cord and finally to the brain.

Symptoms of rabies take two forms in most animals. A change in behavior is seen; timid animals become bold and friendly animals often become aggressive. In the furious form of the disease, animals tend to attack anything that moves. In the dumb or paralytic form the animal cannot close its mouth, drools and may be completely unaware of its surroundings.

There is no sure or easy way to recognize a rabid animal, only laboratory technicians can make a sure diagnosis and this must be done on the animal's brain at the State Laboratory in Austin. Any person bitten by a dog, cat or any animal should consult a physician as quickly as possible for care. The animal doing the biting should be confined for a minimum of two weeks and definitely should not be killed, rather should be allowed to develop full symptoms of the disease. Under no circumstances should

Michael Ellis Enrolled At U.T. Medical Branch

Michael D. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lea Roy Aldwell, is one of 87 students enrolled in the Graduate School at the University of Texas Medical Branch this semester to work toward his Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy degree.

The Graduate School, operating in conjunction with the Medical Branch, offers academic and research programs in eight major fields. Students can work toward their degree in the fields of anatomy, biochemistry, human genetics, microbiology, pathology, pharmacology and toxicology, physiology, preventive medicine and community health.

In addition, a non-degree sequence of courses in the behavioral sciences is offered to graduate students. The sequence provides instruction in human psychological growth and development, social organization and contributions to behavior and an introduction to the objective assessment of human and animal behavior.

Upon entering the UTMB Graduate School, the students are involved in three components of work; independent study, independent scholarly research leading to a thesis or dissertation and general course work. The student chooses one major area of study, although he is expected to conduct supporting work in related fields.

Students working toward their Doctor of Philosophy degree are trained to serve as qualified future faculty members and investigators in the health sciences. The Master of Art's students are generally working on a particular stage of research for more advanced work.

the head be damaged if it must be killed.

Dr. Fields states that the program of vaccination for all dogs and cats is the best possible insurance against an outbreak of the dreaded disease. Modern vaccines are safe and give a high degree of protection if used and handled properly. Remember, all animals must be vaccinated periodically as recommended by your veterinarian. One shot does not last a lifetime.

RAINS TOTALLY AS MUCH AS four inches in parts of the county made some draws in the area unpassable for several hours. A rash of accidents caused by the rising waters in the draws were reported. Shows fell all day Friday with the heaviest rainfall occurring during the evening hours.

Rains Cause Rash of Accidents

A soaking Autumn rain fell in the Sonora area Friday with light rains beginning early Friday morning and continuing into late evening. Heaviest showers came in the late afternoon and evening, dumping a total of four inches in parts of the county with the heaviest recorded rainfall being in the city limits.

Flooding conditions on the Dry Devil's River and Lowrey Draw caused local law officials to have a busy night Friday. A local girl (identity unknown) drove her car into the draw at the end of Main Street and though she had no trouble getting out of the rising waters, a wrecker was summoned to retrieve her water-logged auto.

Returning from work in the early hours of the morning Saturday, Pete Skains drove his pickup into the low water crossing located on Water Street. Skains' pickup was washed some fifty feet before becoming lodged against bridge railings. Skains was washed downstream some half mile before he was able to swim out of the swift current. His pickup and welding equipment suffered heavy damage.

Several other reports of stranded motorists were answered by officers during the night. One local youth, Ray Sanchez, was retrieved from the swirling waters of the draw near St. Ann's Catholic Church. The rains set off major flooding in neighboring towns with Junction and Ricksprings being the worst hit. Junction weather bureau reported rainfall of over an inch per hour. One death due to severe flooding, was reported at Ricksprings. An unidentified ranch hand drowned on the Morris' Taylor Ranch attempting to cross an usually dry river bed.

Screwworm Case Confirmed Most Cases Limited To South Texas

Except for extreme South Texas where 87.7% of the Lone Star States' 1786 confirmed September cases occurred, the Screwworm Eradication Program is having a good year in Texas, says Dr. M. E. Meadows.

He is veterinarian in charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) program to eradicate this pest which effects all warm-blooded animals. Meadows compares last month's 1786 cases to 16,882 spread almost evenly over the state in September of last year.

The heavy screwworm infestation in South Texas, where 811 cases were reported in Brooks County alone, is credited to two inter-related natural factors: an abnormally warm and wet summer, and the highest incidence of the Gulf Coast tick since the summer of 1949.

To combat this pest, 470,663,200 sterile but sexually active flies, produced at the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service's (APHIS) plant at Mission, were released in Texas during September.

Female screwworm flies mate only once during their lifetimes. Eggs produced by matings with sterile males do not hatch them... thus eradicating the pest. Owners are urged to submit samples of larvae found in wounds of livestock or pets for identification. County agents and veterinarians have screwworm sample identification kits.

When screwworms are identified from a particular location, airdrops of sterile flies are made in the area. They mate with fertile native flies.

Hill Country screwworm cases included three in both Tom Green and Schleicher, while Kimble, Bandera, Lampasas, Ward and Sterling each recorded one case.

Cooler winter weather usually slows and eventually stops screwworm case infestations in most areas. To protect all animals from infestation, owners are urged to treat all wounds with an approved smear.

A screwworm case was confirmed on the W. B. McMillan Ranch, 20 miles South of Sonora. The case was in the eye of a cancer eyed cow. This is the fifth case of screwworms reported this year in Sutton County. Ranchmen in the area are being alerted to check all classes of livestock and report all cases of worms found to the Mission Screwworm Laboratory.

Hospital To Operate Ambulance Service

Effective November 1, Hudspeth Hospital will take over the management of the local ambulance service. The ambulance will be based at the hospital and will be ready for immediate emergency service twenty-four hours daily. Two attendants from the hospital will be on call at all times. In cases requiring professional care of the patient, nurses may accompany the attendants to the accidents.

All attendants are in the process of being certified by the American Red Cross. Mr. Louis Olenick is instructing the course.

"The overall objective of this new arrangement is to give the best medical service possible to Sutton County," said hospital administrator Gene Martin.

Sonora Broncos To Host Robert Lee

The Sonora Bronco Football team will meet the Robert Lee Steers in Bronco Stadium Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Heart Association Sets Meeting

Elected to serve as additional directors were Mrs. Charles Browne, Lawrence Hinklea, Tumey Friess, Jerry Don Balch and Hershel Davenport.

Directors will meet again this week to secure a band for the annual Fling Ding Dance.

Conservation Field Tour Held On Edwin Sawyer Ranch October 11

Edwin Sawyer conducted a Conservation Field Tour on his ranch Thursday, October 11th and about 60 people attended.

Sawyer has used the Dr. Leo Merrill Rotation Grazing System on his 10,000 acre ranch for 15 years.

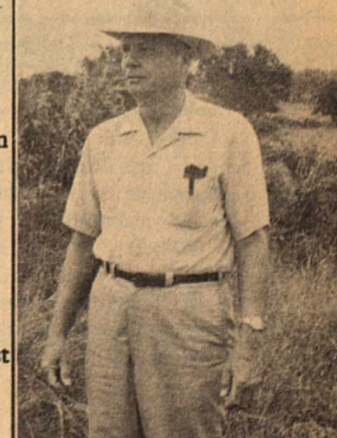

For the last four years, his ranch records show an average of $3.17 per acre net returns. Weaning percentages were 94% for calves, 100% for lambs and 65% for kids. Average feed cost was 54 cents per acre per year. These figures coincide with records at the Sonora Research Station on the Merrill Rotation Grazing Systems.

At the tour, Dr. Merrill discussed the use of grazing systems used by many ranchers. He urged ranchers to use some type of grazing system as a tool for a maximum increase in range improvements and economic returns.

Dalton Merz, Soil Conservation Service, and Edwin Sawyer led the tour. Sawyer had seeded a gas pipeline right-of-way with a range mixture of grasses. Most of the prickly-pear and tasajillo was dead in pastures aerially sprayed with Tordon in 1972.

An excellent stand of grass was noted in a pasture where cedar was treedozed followed by range seeding in 1972.

A free noon barbecue was served by the Directors of the Edwards Plateau Soil & Water Conservation District. W. B. McMillan, was re-

Seventh Grade Colts Win Again

By Chase Snodgrass

The seventh grade colts chalked up their fourth win in a row last Thursday against the Junction Eagles by a score of 12-0. It was a physical game right from the beginning with a lot of hitting on both sides. After the first series of downs, Sonora's defense dominated the game. Dan Lawson, defensive quarterback, and his cohorts Mike Jones, R. B. Alexander, Chase Snodgrass, and Junior Luna combined to frustrate all Eagle attempts to score. At half time the score was 0-0.

Although play was just as tough the second half, the Colts were able to sustain a

Victims Still The Same

The people of the United States use more energy than a good share of the rest of the world combined. U. S. oil wells, producing at full capacity, cannot meet accelerating demand, and so greater reliance on foreign oil in the time immediately ahead is certain. Moreover, remaining domestic reserves are getting harder to find and more expensive to tap.

The bright spot in all this is that the U. S. has almost unlimited opportunities for electric power generation and vast potential fuel resources that can be developed. There is a 50-year supply of oil and gas and a supply of coal sufficient to last several hundred years. There are oil shales and tar sands which could be put to use and new sources of energy, such as fusion, solar and geothermal power. To meet our domestic requirements, 55 to 60 new refineries will have to be built between now and 1980. More nuclear power plants and other kinds of electric generating facilities will be needed to meet the demand for electric power, which it is estimated will continue to increase at a much faster pace than demand for other forms of energy.

The one thing the U. S. doesn't have is a lot of time. It takes several years to develop any of these new energy sources and many must be available by the 1980's. More is at stake even than providing heat for homes, fuel for automobiles, power for industry, jobs and the environmental cleanup that everyone wants. Prolonged and increasingly massive reliance on foreign oil sources could glut the world with dollars to the point that dollars in any number would no longer buy us the oil we must have. We wouldn't enjoy being the world's biggest beggar. The only sure way this nation can have adequate energy supplies, preserve the value of the dollar and maintain its national independence is to develop, by every means, the energy resources that are available to us.

One Clear Choice

There is a new kind of criminal at large in America. His accomplice is not a dim-witted thug with the mentality of an earthworm, but a computer. According to U. S. News & World Report, illegal use of computers is now the fastest-growing white collar crime in the country.

Untold millions are being stolen each year, and the crimes range from simple embezzlement to destruction of official information stored on data banks. Experts say that most computer criminals are challenged by the prospect of "beating" a complex system and overcoming protective devices as much as by any monetary reward. Consequently, their primary targets are government agencies and large corporations, rather than individuals.

Computerized crime is less violent and personal than mugging in the streets, but it is every bit as reprehensible. Combating it requires additional security systems, which add to operating overhead. Businesses have no choice but to increase the prices of the products they sell and the services they perform to make up for these costs. Thus, whether the criminals realize it or not, individual people are still the victims of their illegal actions.

Bad News Is Good

In these days of dreary news-casts and dismal headlines, it sometimes seems as if journalism's prime purpose is to give everyone a good reason for ending it all. But, in fact, the bad news is really good news.

American journalism is based on the public's right to know. The misuse of political power, crime in the streets, upswings and downturns in the economy, skyrocketing prices and taxes are things which everyone should know about for they affect our daily lives and may change them dramatically. By being aware of them in advance, we can prepare for them.

Our right to a free press must be maintained. In countries where it is controlled by the government, most of the news is good, but they way of living is as awful as can be.

News Letter

By O. C. Fisher

Chances for adjournment at the end of November, as had been projected by the leadership of both the House and Senate, took a nosedive the other day when the Senate suddenly decided to take a rest during the last two weeks of October. Rumor has it that it is not entirely coincidental that the NATO Conference in Paris will be taking place during this period.

By a 9-vote margin the House last week approved an $800 million bill, opposed by the administration, for mass transit "operating subsidies." This would be in addition to the $3 billion authorized for mass transit capital grants and $2.5 billion for urban transportation programs which can be used for other aspects of urban transportation, contained in the Federal-Aid Highway Act, enacted earlier this year.

If enacted into law, it appears certain the President will be impelled to veto the measure. Obviously inflationary, the $800 million grant would go mostly to a half dozen of the larger cities. In view of the generous grants contained in the Highway Act, justification for this additional outlay from appropriated funds is extremely weak at this time.

A bill providing for a Land Use Planning Act breezed through the Senate several weeks ago and is now pending in a House committee. Proposed as an environmental protection measure, the Senate bill is fraught with grave dangers to traditional local control and direction by the States and local people. It could involve federal controls of privately owned land for residential, business and industrial uses and could, of course, apply to rural land uses and development.

It is my view we should proceed with extreme caution in this move to expand federal direction and interference with local land uses. There is too much power already concentrated in Washington. There is such a thing as being over-regulated and over-controlled.

Viewpoint

T. Driskell

A friend called my attention to the testimony of a Mr. Sharp (what a misnomer.) as described on the front page of the San Angelo Standard of October 5th. He was testifying in regard to a 1971 stock fraud, and in that testimony he said his role had cost him 30,000,000 dollars. Later in his testimony he said that he and his wife had tried to build a life that would be a credit to their children. How small a capsule can you put what is ailing and destroying our way of life in? Add to that the Agnew debacle, Watergate, the Bobby Baker affair, the milk coats and freezers of the Truman era and an ugly, painful, but very clear picture begins to emerge.

Looking at the trends, one must conclude that it is not a question of whether or not, but only one of degree. It seems with the passage of years the monetary size is increasing, but the dollar buys less these days, as you know. For years the women's libbers have berated the double moral standards divided along sex lines. This problem seems to have passed into inconsequence judging from our social disease rates and other indices.

The basis of our difficulties lies closer to home and, read as I may, I can find no realistic material on the dual morality of individuals which seems to permeate our whole society. This dual morality consists of two (surprise!) parts with the only connection between them being the individual who harbors and nurtures both of them. Part one is a hypocritical falsehood of "preached" morality which all other individuals are expected to adhere to, or to have imposed on them if necessary. Part two is an amoral ethical operational code which the individual functions under. Day in and day out we exist in this atmosphere and yet surprisingly (or in the ultimate hypocrisy) we find the pattern of pathological schizophrenia shocking. Looking at us, it is clear, we all exhibit this dualism to a greater or lesser degree.

Status quo defenders will point out that we have come far in the area of affluence. In retrospect, one must wonder if the fare we are paying is not all out of proportion. Have we not, in this amoral two-faced philosophy of monetary accumulation makes right, indeed lost ourselves? I can remember reading Veblen's "Theory of the Leisure Class" and laughing about it. Yet today, looking around, the humor has become a bitter, dry, parched feeling in the throat. Take a look around you. How many of your friends have a false moral front backed by a totally amoral functional side? While you are looking around do not by any means miss the mirror. How much of what you see is you? Is most of the real "you" obscured by that front erected for the benefit of the external world? Is the false front, so similar to the one on a frontier town saloon, worth its erection and maintenance cost? The obviously painful answer is no.

What can we leave our children (in addition to national bankruptcy)? We can, and must above all, leave them a single, simple, straightforward ethical and moral code which can be applied across the board of their entire existence. They must also have the ability to know themselves, and hopefully like themselves. No material asset passed down to a following generation has any value compared to a good education and a stable workable philosophy of life.

How deep does this dualism extend into our political structure? One can only speculate, but at almost every point where unbiased information becomes available, the evidence indicates a full blown epidemic. Admittedly it is not 100%, but the high percentage creates some doubt about the possibility of stabilization of morality without a cellar to attic reform movement. That reform movement must begin with you and me. Our political moral degeneration is a reflection of us—our individual philosophies and what we will put up with. It looks like we need a clean sweep, personally and nationally. You will find people defending the action of politicians who have engaged in violation of the trust bestowed by their constituents. Listening, however, gives the impression that they are ration-

The Devil's River Philosopher Sez..... Senator Says He's Gonna Change Jobs And Try Ranching For A Change

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on dry Devil's Devil's River discusses ranching this week, or government, one or the other.

Dear editor:
According to an item I read in a newspaper last night a United States Senator—I forgot his name, he'd just been there one term and hadn't had time to get on Face the Nation or Meet the Press—has announced he won't run for a second term because the job wasn't what he'd expected, too many hide-bound customs, too much power in the hands of people who's main assets are they've been there longer than the others.

But what interested me was what he's now going to do. Said he was going to ranch. I hope he knows what he's doing. You reckon this new job's going to suit him? I alizing in defense of their own philosophy, which has brought us to our present status.

It is rather urgent that we adults return to a basis, single, understandable ethical code. Estimates that one American child in ten is seriously disturbed mentally are possibly realistic. If we include minor disturbance, and serious insecurity, how many of the ten are immune? Our two-moral code probably is at the base of American youth's escapism with its associated runaway, drug, drop out, and social revolt problems. A young human being must have an identity, and it must be founded on a solid philosophy of life and ethical code. We adults, with our hangup on monetary legacy (obtained by any means) and a schizoid moral code, simply are not meeting our children's needs. Can we do better? We must!

mean, will he be happy when he pushes a button and nobody shows up to be told where to feed that day?

You know, there's a difference in looking out the window and seeing it rain when you're in a Senator's office in Washington and contemplating getting wet when you race to your car, and in looking out the window on a ranch and seeing it rain when your sheep should have been shorn two days ago.

On the other hand there may be a real possibility here for the whole nation. I mean, instead of electing a Senator for six years in Washington, elect him for four years there and two on a ranch. I don't know what this would do to agriculture, but it certainly couldn't hurt government.

The trouble with a lot of politicians is they get such a firm hold on their jobs they can't remember who they're working for. Well, that's not quite right. They know who they're working for, but it's not you and me.

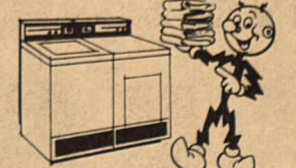

I'm not calling any names, but I can think of several Senators and Congressmen whom it might do good if they worked on a ranch for a while.

I can't think of any ranchers who ought to be Senators. Of course there're lots of editors. Yours faithfully, J. A.

Green News

by Monica DuRussel

I suppose everyone knows by this time the "Over Forty" Tournament has been cancelled due to the rain. It will be re-scheduled at a later date. That storm really played havoc with a lot of golfers, but we won't complain as the rains are always welcome.

Wanda Neville, Bobbie Fawcett, and Sammie Espy are in Abilene this week for a two day Partnership Tournament. Hope they have lots of luck!

We have a new golf member -----Christa Kay Cotten who was born to John and Kay on October 2, and weighed in at six pounds and fourteen ounces. Welcome little one!

Sonny and Ganelle Anderson are mighty grandparents to a little granddaughter who has the pretty name of Misty.

Say! Have you all seen that new carpeting at the Club House? It is really pretty, and we are really proud of it. Hows about wiping our feet and not wearing our cleats on it, O.K.?

You know what else is just about completed? The Cart Sheds! Isn't that great?

I guess Angelo must have had more rain than we did 'cause a number of men from there were here Monday playing our course. Always glad to see our Angelo neighbors.

Things aren't going TOO well

Adults see the intensity of a child's emotion—but seldom understand. Our natural tendency is to assume a child is small and his feelings are just "miniatures" of our own.

To the contrary, many childhood emotions are more intense than anything we feel . . . stronger because the child hasn't yet learned to understand and curb his feelings.

This is the ideal time to begin religious education. Then a child's understanding of himself grows with his perception of spiritual values.

Sunday morning in church is the high point in thousands of "little lives." Things that aren't going too well have a way of straightening out when you're grasping the central truth of Christianity:

JESUS LOVES ME!
This I know!

"Game Plan" For Snacks

Provide nutritious snacks for this football season's armchair quarterbacks.

These television-viewers and other family members can consume up to half of a day's food in the form of snacks.

If they reach mainly for soda pop, potato chips and cookies in the home "concession stand," they'll get plenty of calories but not many vitamins, minerals or protein.

To simplify matters, set aside one shelf in the refrigerator and cabinet especially for snacks and quick meals. Let it be known that family members can come here first when hungry or thirsty.

Keep plenty of fruit juices, cold water and milk around. To keep milk costs down, use dry milk mixed with water. Add chocolate, vanilla or fruit flavors to make it "special."

Other favorite milk foods offer food value as well as good taste--such as ice cream, puddings, cheese and yogurt.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also provide delightful--but nutritious--snacks.

For convenience, fix raw vegetable strips and slices about once a week-- and keep them in the refrigerator crisper. Include carrots, celery, turnips, green peppers, cucumbers, cauliflower, bananas, apples and oranges. They're simple-to-fix, easy-to-eat and high in food value.

If sandwiches make up part of the team's menu, keep bowls of egg and tuna salad handy in the refrigerator. Also keep peanut butter within easy reach.

Cheese and crackers--as well as cheese sandwiches--provide nutrition-packed snacks for nibblers.

So, keep nutrition in mind when stocking up with snacks.

Card of Thanks

A very warm thanks goes out to members of the Sonora Volunteer Fire Department and to J. W. Sutton, who were all so prompt when my washing machine caught fire. We are indeed fortunate to have our local fire department.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Charles S. Brown

Card Of Thanks

It would not be possible to put in words the appreciation we feel for our truly wonderful friends and neighbors for all the cards, gifts, flowers and calls while we were in Houston. We are now back at home and all the thoughtful gestures made while we were away made us truly appreciate our home even more. Our heartfelt thanks.

Accent on Health

Food-borne disease epidemics caused by unsanitary conditions don't happen too often, despite the millions of meals served weekly by Texas restaurants, but when an outbreak occurs it can be costly to an establishment and its patrons.

Suffering from a variety of intestinal ailments may strike the unlucky food poisoning victim, while the restaurant may face economic loss because of bad publicity.

The Texas State Department of Health and local health units, through inspection of food establishments and training of employees in proper food handling techniques, has a big interest in the restaurant industry.

Two years ago the teaching of food hygiene by the Health Department's Public Health Education Division took a new approach. In the past, instruction throughout the state had been given directly to food handlers, cafe and restaurant owners by a specialist from the Austin office.

Now, courses in "Teaching Food Hygiene" are given for health department sanitarians, food and drug representatives, and others to equip them to teach food handling courses at the local level. When a local inspector observes improper food handling, he can schedule his own clinic for personnel in one restaurant or a group of restaurants. The local inspector can count on the support of some $15,000 worth of training films on various phases of food hygiene available from the Health Department's Film Library. In addition, there is a comprehensive teaching outline and a wide selection of printed materials.

Food handlers in all parts of Texas may receive the training which will better equip them to serve the eating-out public with correct food handling techniques.

As a case in point, the Food and Drug Division of the Health Department's Region 10 has initiated a food sanitation program designed to better prepare local health departments to conduct their own programs. It focuses on the nature and causes of food-borne diseases and the proper sanitation methods needed to combat those diseases.

The program, aimed at both local health department officials and restaurant personnel, is based on a three-phase plan.

First, in areas already served by local health departments, sanitation programs are being upgraded by surveys of existing inspection practices. Educational facilities and information in local health departments are being supplemented, and instructor courses in food hygiene are being presented. Phase 2 focuses on areas not served by local health departments. Included in this effort are the education of owners and managers in the needs for periodic inspections and training of personnel.

Phase 3 is aimed at school cafeterias. Inspection of rural school cafeterias, particularly in areas that don't have an inspection program, is planned. And, the food handlers school has been made available on request.

In the Rio Grande Valley served by Region 10, the "grassroots" approach is being taken. Instruction is being taken directly to restaurant personnel to give them pointers in proper sanitation techniques and personal hygiene. To reach as many people as possible, training is directed first to local health officials and sanitarians so they in turn can teach others whom the regional staff cannot reach. Then, when the local sanitarian inspects a restaurant and spots a violation, he can then instruct the restaurant personnel as to the proper sanitation methods they should use.

Aside from general cleanliness, and protection of food-stuffs from insects, vermin and dust, food handlers are constantly being reminded to watch the temperatures of food. Hot foods should always be kept above 140 degrees, and cold foods must be kept at 45 degrees and below. Heating or chilling of food must be done rapidly.

Object of this intensive effort in food handling is to protect you, the restaurant-goer, from any food-borne disease. Recently, in an adjoining state food poisoning occurred in three separate functions: a company picnic, a wedding reception and a service club banquet. Source of the illness was traced to one catering firm. Investigation showed that proper hand washing, plus proper temperatures in food storage, could have prevented the food-borne disease outbreaks.

Outlived Them

"Yes," said the old man. "I'll be ninety-six tomorrow, and I haven't an enemy in the world."

"A beautiful thought," answered the new vicar. "Yes, sir," went on the old man. I've outlived them all."

Dad Knows

Son: "What is executive ability, Father?"

Father: "Executive ability, my son, is the art of getting credit for all the hard work somebody else does."

Personality Quiz

ARE YOU A TYRANT?

There may be a little bit of the tyrant in all of us. When such attitudes play a predominant part in our lives, however, our popularity among friends and associates often suffers a sharp decline. So, if you're trying to minimize your tyrannical impulses, more power to you. The test that follows will give you a good idea of how you're doing.

1. When a child asks his parents for an increase in his allowance, parents should (A) Grant it automatically, (B) Ask the child to explain why he needs more money, or (C) Refuse to give him the increase under any circumstances?

2. If a friend borrows money from you which he has forgotten to return, you should (A) Ask that he return it immediately, (B) Talk to an attorney, or (C) Ask him to return it at his earliest convenience?

3. When the relative of a close friend of yours dies, you should (A) Send flowers to his home or chapel, (B) Send a condolence card to his family, or (C) Make sure that you attend his funeral?

4. If a friend of yours makes an appearance in a new suit or dress, you should (A) Compliment him on his taste, (B) Ask how much the garment cost, or (C) Mention that you recently purchased some new clothing, too?

5. If you're invited to a house-warming by friends who have recently moved in, you should (A) Ask them if there's any way you can help them adjust to the new neighborhood, (B) Determine how much they paid for the house, or (C) Make sure that you present them with a gift.

For the correct answers, see below.

ANSWERS: 1. (B) Asking a child to justify his request for more money builds a sense of responsibility in a youngster. If he's proven his point on why he needs more money, don't hesitate to grant it. 2. (C) Sometimes, people with the best of intentions let money matters slip from their minds. When they do, it's best to give a tactful reminder. 3. (A) Attending the funeral and sending a card should be done whenever possible, but flowers are the universally approved way of expressing such sentiment and are always appreciated by the bereft. 4. (A) Compliment him for his good taste first. After doing so, you may then say that you bought some new clothing, too. 5. (A) Ask them if there's any way you can help them adjust to the neighborhood. A gift is also appreciated, but you may not know what they prefer until you are better acquainted.

As the professional association of most of the licensed nursing homes in Texas and one of the affiliate leaders within the national American Nursing Home Association its membership represents both privately owned and non-profit long term care facilities.

TNHA is dedicated to the continuing improvement of quality health care for the aged, the handicapped and the ill who are recipients of nursing home care. This workshop offers twelve (12) hours of educational credit. Each special session will be supervised by the University of Texas at Austin, Division of Extension, Distributive Education Department.

Walk Extra Mile To Lose Weight

Want to lose ten pounds in the next year?

One way you can do it is to walk an extra mile every day.

The American Medical Association's home health book, Today's Health Guide, reports that a walk of just an extra mile per day for 365 days is a "simple, pleasant device for shedding an extra pound of fat." In a year this would amount up to about ten pounds. The extra mile means just that—a mile of walking in addition to the customary walking you now do each day.

Once regarded as a major factor in losing weight, physical activity was later accorded less importance. It was realized that considerable effort was required to shed even one pound of extra tissue. Would-be reducers found comfort in some expert opinion that calories expended through exercise would be immediately replaced, due to an automatic increase in appetite.

Fortunately for fitness as well as for fitness, exercise has been restored to grace and enjoys respectability. Exercise helps expend calories; within the usual range of activity, it need not stimulate appetite excessively. The energy output required to offset a pound of fat is approximately 3,500 calories, but the weight need not be lost all at once.

Instead of the exhausting, often impossible, 36-mile hike within a span of hours, a walk of just one extra mile a day for 365 days will get rid of that extra pound. Weight gain usually is relatively slow, and the extra mile will—for most of us—help keep our weight down to a reasonable figure.

Exercise also furthers physical, mental, psychological, and social fitness. It provides an outlet for emotional tensions, promotes self-confidence, wholesome social activity, and good sportsmanship. It enhances the sense of general well-being that enables us to confront and master a reducing regimen.

To be effective for both weight reduction and for general physical conditioning, exercise must be a regular part of your way of life, and not something that is overdone spasmodically.

So, if you want to lose ten pounds in the next year, just arrange to walk that extra mile today.

Governor Dolph Briscoe officially launches the Governor's Roundup for Scouting in Texas by serving a Roundup pocket patch on Paul Carr, Troop 233 of Uvalde, who recruited another young man into his troop. Looking on is Dr. Howard Carr, Scoutmaster. The Roundup's goal is 50,000 new members in scouting this Fall.

GOVERNOR LAUNCHES SCOUT ROUNDUP

AUSTIN—The Governor's Roundup for Scouting in Texas—aimed at recruiting 50,000 new members in Scouting this fall—has been officially launched by Governor Dolph Briscoe.

Governor Briscoe pinned the first Governor's Roundup pocket patch on Paul Carr of Troop 233, Uvalde, for recruiting another young man into Scouting.

Troop 233 is sponsored by St. Phillip's Episcopal Church. Dr. Howard Carr, Paul's father, is the scoutmaster.

Governor Briscoe has been active in Scouting in the Concho Valley Council for many years. He is presently a member of the Council's executive board and on the board of directors of the South Central Region, which serves five Southwestern states.

During the Governor's Roundup, which will end December 13, every youth member who recruits a new member will receive a Governor's Roundup pocket patch. Every unit leader who meets his goal will receive a Governor's Roundup coffee mug. Units meeting their goals will receive a Governor's citation and every Explorer recruiting another Explorer post member will receive a personalized citation from Governor Briscoe.

"The most important thing, of course, is that every eligible youth in Texas have the opportunity to join Scouting and to participate in this program of adventure and development," the Governor said.

"Young people in Scouting are learning about today's world, not the world in which Scouting's early images were formed. Tomorrow's Scout will be better prepared to meet the demands of his age than ever before. All of our programs are meaningful for today's youth.

"During the Roundup for Scouting, we are asking every Cub pack, every Scout troop and every Explorer post to open their doors and invite every eligible non-member in their neighborhoods to join them."

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

Ever take binoculars with you on a fishing trip? No, I don't mean a hunting trip—I mean fishing.

Most everybody takes a pair of binoculars when hunting deer and other big game—but very few use them while fishing, unless it be in the Gulf of Mexico. Even there the use is rare.

We highly recommend binoculars to anglers—even if they have keen eyes and can spot fish feeding, see a school of minnows swimming, or shad jumping—from quite some distance away. Most of us can use that extra boost that binoculars give to vision while fishing, even more than in hunting.

In hunting you look for the animal itself, but in fishing you're seeking "signs" of fish—evidence that they are in the area even though out of your sight. You look for movement on the water, or of the water, as well as activities of the live food that fish seek. Birds circling are a definite sign of food directly below them. Quite often it proves to be a school of whites chasing shad, but black bass can be located the same way.

A heron standing statue-still in the shallow waters of a gulf bay, close to shore or perched atop a submerged rock in deep water, means (if it stays there any length of time) that there are small fish nearby. And where small fish are, big fish soon will become feeding time.

A reliable dealer can guide you in selecting the right binoculars. Mainly it's a matter of personal preference as to quality, power and weight.

One thing for sure—a sharp pair of binoculars can, quite often, increase your fishing success immeasurably. Try 'em—you'll like 'em.

MONSTER MEETS MASTER

One legend about the creation of Scotland's Outer Hebrides Islands is even further out than the islands themselves. It involves, according to the Teacher's Scotch Information Centre, a monster with nine heads, a maiden's suitor defiant of the giant, and a waterhorse.

The giant had nine mouths to feed. His favorite food was young girls, and he raided settlements and carried off maidens nine at a time. One such maiden was engaged to be married; the future bridegroom bridled. He went off to a mountain lake which contained a waterhorse, who agreed to aid in the search over the sea for the maiden.

Together they found the giant, and the lad successfully cut off eight of the giant's heads. The waterhorse carried not only the bride but the other eight girls to safety. The monster's skeleton, unable to sink completely, lay until its bones turned to rocks and cliffs.

If you look at the scene today, you can still see a vague outline of bones, with the one remaining head known as the Butt of Lewis. The other eight heads formed Scotland's Outer Hebrides.

You don't have to believe this outlandish story to savor it. Just think of the monster, the young man and the sea-horse as possibly the first Hebrides celebrities.

This would be a wonderful world, with millions of nice people, if men and women would learn to mind their own business.

A Bishop Looks at Life

ABOUT GREAT TRUTHS

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of the Episcopal Church

"It is good, I think, to repeat fundamental truths, and, if possible, bring them into new and fresh focus. A great truth is like a mountain that one walks around, and the changes of its contour as one moves his position only emphasize and revivify its majesty."

This is a quotation from a letter written by N. C. Wyeth, the patriarch of the famous family of painters, to his son Andrew in 1944. It is contained in the volume "The Wyeths," a collection of his letters from 1901 to 1945.

The words struck me as I read them because they are so timely and illuminating. It seems to me they have much to tell us as we face the problems of the church and the problems of our nation.

There is a feeling in some quarters, both within the church and outside it, that the old teachings are so obsolete, so threadbare, that we need to replace them with a whole new up-to-date theology. On the other hand, there are those who would not discard our religious heritage but rather "bring it into new and fresh focus," re-discovering its meaning and wisdom for today. I find myself ardently in this latter group.

The vital religious people I know are engaged in this process of fresh discovery of old truths. They have a growing relationship with God nourished by new insights and new experiences of His love and power.

There is the same need for us to re-discover the great truths upon which America was founded. The need is accentuated by two immediate facts: the approach of our 200th anniversary, and the soul-shaking revelations that have come to us in the moral tragedy of Watergate.

There are two ways of looking at the recent events in American life. One is to say that democracy has failed, that no political leaders can be trusted, that the founding fathers were wrong. The other is to look more deeply and see that the founders were right: they told us that democracy demands moral and religious foundations.

Those in this latter group are praying there will be a resurrection in American life as we re-discover and re-accept the great truths of our beginning.

SONORA ELEMENTARY STUDENTS have enjoyed this month's display case at the school seeing their teachers as they looked when they were youngsters and students. The display case was prepared by second grade teacher, Mrs. Margaret Burch. Pictures were supplied by faculty members.

In 1916 a cube of platinum would have been worth more than $2,500,000. Long considered to be useless, platinum was cheap for many years after it was named in the 18th century.

60 yard drive after receiving the kick-off. Juan Castillo scored from the 3 yard line on a power play up the middle. The extra point attempt failed.

Quarterback Cody Savell began another drive in the fourth quarter as he alternated the calls between Wayne McLaughlin and Benny Granger who punched the ball down to the Junction 13. At that point Sonora was penalized for holding back to the 28. On the half-back pass Benny Granger hit Juan Castillo who caught the ball in a crowd and fought his way into the end zone. Again the extra point was no good.

This Thursday Sonora plays Mason in three games-- 7th grade at 5 p. m.; 8th grade at 6:30 p. m.; and Jr. Varsity at 7:30 p. m. in Bronco Stadium.

We still feel like Sonora is half our home, spent so many years down there. Next time you see Jean Thompson, give her a pat on the back for the article she wrote about the fans and football. Thanks to all of you at the paper for printing it. That's the way the fans of Eunice are. Our boys haven't won but one game so far and the fans are about to eat them alive.
