Ten Well Gas Drilling Program Slated For Area

An initial ten well natural gas drilling program by Lone Star Producing Company of Dallas, was announced last Friday in Salt Lake City, Utah ichita Falls, by Óakridge Exploration, Inc., and by Noel Pautsky Drilling Company.

Colts Take Fifth Consecutive Win By Overpowering Mason 18 - 6

By Chase Snodgrass

Last Thursday the Seventh Grade Colts won their fifth consecutive game by beating Mason 18-6. Excitement began early in the first quarter as the Colts received the opening kick off and returned it to the 46 yard line. In five plays the Colts scored with Juan Castillo carrying the ball the last 17 yards into the end zone on an off tackle power play. The two point conversion attempt

On Mason's first play from scrimmage, Wayne McLaughlin caused a fumble which was covered by R. B. Alexander on the Mason 25. Castillo picked up 6 yards on the off-tackle power play. Then quarter back Pat Street faked the same power play and threw to Benny Granger for the touchdown. Again the conversion attempt was short. Mason received the second half kick off and began their scoring drive by hard running fullback David Martinez.

The final score was made by

Most Costly Fairy Tale

It has been said of late that the energy shortage is nonexistent or has been contrived, that the structure of the petroleum industry is noncompetitive than the general price level... that government has favored the oil industry to the detriment of consumers and even that there has been a conspiracy to drive the independents out of business. Anyone familiar with the oil industry knows that these of these fairy tales-that the charges have been refuted and disproven time and again. They just add to the already for sense and could prove the most midable difficulties faced by the oil industry in meeting soaring petroleum needs.

against the oil industry, one company declares, "..... there is nothing mysterious or contrived about the gasoline shortage. For very understandable and straightforward reasons.... the burgeoning demand for petroleum products simply outran the supply. The United States, which has 8 percent of the free world's population, uses 60 percent of the total free world's gasoline supply, and its use of gasoline is still increasing at a high rate As to the old charge that the oil industry is monopolistic, the company's statement goes to say, "It is nonsense to contend that the petroleum industry is noncompetitive. With over 20 large integrated companies and thousands of small firms operating in one or more of the various activities of producing, refining, transportation, and sales, the petroleum industry is among the most competitive of U. S. industries. No company has as much as 12 percent of the crude production, refining capacity, or product sales in the U. S......Vigorous competition among the thousands of firms in the oil industry has provided U. S. consumers with gasoline and heating oil at prices that have risen over the past decade at a slower pace

One of the reasons for the present energy shortage is the continual dissemination of myths about the petroleum industry which have misled and confused the public for years. The latest gasoline shortage has been contrived --- makes the least costly to the public interest.

In commenting on the charges If Takes All Kinds

No matter what the President of the United States says, and regardless of the rhetorical shot and shell hurled across the aisles on the floors of Congress, the fact that a law is passed decreeing that such and such shall be done to solve a problem does not mean that the problem is then automatically

A few years ago, the federal government declared a war to the death against poverty. Tens of billions of dollars were spent. Some good was done, but poverty still survives and it always will, since it is impossible to make every living human being want to work and live in a way that a majority think is suitable. Some people just don't want to be tied down with a steady job, no matter what it pays. Others like a few chickens roosting in the parlor -- it's easier to gather the eggs or catch a lazy layer for the pot. Some people are different and that makes the world go round. It also means there will always be those considered to live in poverty no matter how many tax dollars are thrown at the problem.

Competing For Food Supplies

Worldwide pressures on short food supplies mean that in the U. S. the family grocery bill is going up. There is no way that the United States can stay isolated from this condition. Wheat prices, for example, have hit an all-time high, and this will inevitably be reflected in the cost of a loaf of bread in the local supermarket.

The chairman of General Foods Corporation has stated that continuation of controls which squeeze processors' and distributors' margins of profit will "only result in reduced food supplies" and aggravate ' the price increases which are inevitable." There has been a graphic demonstration of this in the case of last summer's beef price freezes and subsequent shortages of this basic food item in meat counters across the nation. There seems little doubt that this action will result in reduced supply and even higher retail prices. The food industry executive has recommended a number of specific steps, including removal of a 75 -cent-perbushel wheat-processing tax, unlimited dairy product imports an embargo on food commodity exports until domestic requirements can be met and encouragement of soybean, corn and wheat planting.

Quite plainly, there is urgent need for consistent, longrange policies that take account, not only of worldwide demand for food supplies, but also of the necessity of permitting adequate price incentives to encourage U. S. producers, processors and distributors to stay in the business of providing essential food supplies. At this stage, further prolonged tinkering with the economics of the U.S. food industry could fatally rupture the horn of plenty that has made the United States the best-fed nation in all the years of recorded history.

News Letter

By O. C. Fisher

Rep. Gerald Ford, a 25-year veteran from Michigan, was a popular choice for Vice President. Highly respected by both Republicans and Democrats Halloween Dance Friday in the Congress, Ford's nomination should be promptly approved by the House and Senate. I was one of those invited to the White House to witness President Rodeo October 11-12. He was Nixon's announcement of Ford as his choice.

Gerald Ford is already being groomed as a possible presidential candidate in 1976. But much will depend upon the image he develops during the months ahead. In any event, he will have to compete with such men as Gov. Rockefeller, Gov. Reagan, and John Connally who in terms of sheer capability and capacity for leadership is generally considered preeminent at this time on the national

But history has taught that the best man is not necessarily the choice for nomination by either party. Bloc votes in the big pivotal states under our outmoded electoral college system often influence the actions taken at national conventions.

Whether the Democrats, still plagued by the fallout from the abortive McGovern campaign, can come up with a strong candidate in 1976 remains to be seen. A good many hopefuls are already emerging. For example, Senator Walter Mondale of Minnesota has been making noises. But his colleagues rate him low on the totem pole in terms of qualifications. Senator Edward Kennedy, rated by polls as a front runner at this time, if nominated would probably be another disaster. Senators Muskie and Humphrey, standing by in the wings, are both rated rather low by seasoned political observers. Senator Jackson, of Washington, probably possesses the best credentials among the Senatorial prospects.

But a lot of things can happen during the next two years. New names may emerge in both parties. The old American political maneuverings will be churning away during the month ahead, as various candidates seek the limelight and court public favor.

I have always believed that our government ultimately would degenerate into some form of fascism. Try as I might, the inability to find any positive evidence to repudiate that intuitive hypothesis has persisted. Some solace has been derived from the idle supposition that the deterioration would occur beyond the span of my life. After last week in Washington, one must wonder.

Watergate was a tempest in a tea pot which one could rationalize as stupidly poor judgement on the part of overzealous subordinates. It is becoming more and more evident that the time for ration alization is past. It certainly is a fertile ground for speculation when one considers the constitutional battle gauntlet which was hurled on the congressional table Friday night. The bone of contention is

And I don't understand why the environmentalists haven't leaped to the jackrabbit's defense, for you can be sure that when a species or a man loses his good image each is endangered, as too many people in Washington can now testify. Here's the situation: I have noticed that some television commercials are using the jackrabbit as a bad example. A gasoline company for intance says if you take off too fast in your car when a stoplight turns green you're making a "jackrabbit start" and wasting gas. It shows a live jackrabbit in the act racing a turtle, with the rabbit running out of fuel and holed up exhausted while the turtle wins and has enough money left over to feed its family. A razor blade company says its competitor got off to a jackrabbit start in putting two blades on one side of a razor. while it took its time like any turtle would and came up with two blades on both sides, thereby winning the race.

Since neither jackrabbits nor turtles drive cars or shave, the judge gave a definitive decision, which is beside the point. What I'm saying is that these commercials are Jackrabbits As A Bad Example holding jackrabbits up to public River Philosopher on his bittercontempt and it's unfair. River comes out this week in Jackrabbit starts, while they. no doubt are bad in cars, are life-savers with rabbits. Who's to say turtles wouldn't stay out of soup longer if they could manage jackrabbit starts? Or that jackrabbits' lives wouldn't be shortened if they could make only turtle-starts? Those commercials ought to leave jackrabbits out and refer simply to quick starts and slow starts. To do otherwise is species-ism which, like racism, has no place in the world if all living things are to dwell on this earth in harmony. I've got to add though that I do not include rattlesnakes and brown spiders in this list. They'll put a man in the hospital. Yours faithfully.

You can't help loving this little pup. Maybe it's because he seems so out of proportion. If he somehow were able to flap those ears he might fly away. Perhaps there is a little fellow in your home who is "all ears" in another sense . . . a youngster who takes in everything that's said, including some things he isn't meant to hear. Most children are eager to listen . . . hungry to learn. That is why the early years are so important in the molding of a child's character. The things he hears, whether right or wrong, make a deep impression on his mind. They are soon reflected in his actions and words.

Wise parents take advantage of the Church's program of religious education in implanting those early impressions. They know there is no surer builder of character than religious faith.

NOW . . . while your child is eager to hear and to learn, bring him to church . . . and support the Church in its great undertaking.

In this day of high-powered newspaper and television advertising, modern highways and mail-order houses, it's easy to forget one of the facts of life concerning this community.

Every dollar spent here which stays here is likely to turn up again in the cash register or bank account of a local inhabitant. He, in turn, may pass it on to another local citizen. The longer it remains in circulation the more it stimulates business and the community.

Local merchants don't deserve one's business if they fail to offer comparable goods and services at fair prices; many do that and in these cases the choice should be to keep our money circulating in our own community—for the greater good of all; and the building of a better community.

LOOKING BACK.

By Carol Weston The Broncos galloped over the Robert Lee Steers last Friday night for their second conference victory of 41-7.

The Broncos, both as a whole and individually, made an excellent showing against the Steers and displayed a great amount of spirit and enthusiasm, The team was aided greatly by the addition of three players who had been out for some time. Mike Stewart will be returning to play in this week's game, and Jack Sykes should be back in the action in a couple of weeks.

The coaches feel that the boys will continue to show as much improvement from week to week as they have in the last few weeks and make a really fine showing throughout the remainder of the season.

The Broncos will play in Wall this Friday evening, beginning at 7:30.

The boys and the coaches greatly regret the loss of Bruce Kerbow, who will be out for the remainder of the season due to injuries to the ligaments of his knee received in Friday's game. He underwent an operation in San Antonio Sunday afternoon and will be returning home in a few days.

SHS The Junior Varsity Broncos gave Mason's Junior Varsity a rough time last Thursday evening, but the hard-fought battle ended with the Broncos behind on the score board by a close 6 to 8.

The Junior Varsity will play Big Lake in the Bronco Stadium this Thursday evening, beginning at 6:30.

Once again the two Junior High teams were divided, as the Eight Grade Colts lost to

EXCEPT FOR THE Courthouse, Main Street in Sonora in March, 1939, looked quite different than it does now. Located on the corner where the Ratliff Store now stands was a magnolia service station. Rutledge's Sonora Drug and the City Cafe are two more businesses some might recognize. On the west side of the street stands the familiar Vander Stucken Store. Notice the oak tree at the end of the street, Still standing, this tree has become alandmark of Main Street in Sonora, Another familiar place in Sonora is Sonora Motor Company. Spring. Winter Flowers

With Texas' generally mild winters, numerous flowers can be fall-planted to provide an abundance of late winter and early spring color, says a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Plant the flowers in a well-prepared, raised seedbed. Adequate soil moisture is important when starting the plants from seed. Also, plant seeds closer than in the spring as closer stands tend to survive winter cold better.

Are you renting land...

when you should be renting money?

There are many good reasons why it takes some land of your own to be sure of a future in agriculture. You're always welcome to drop by our office and talk over the advantages of taking out a long-term mortgage on farm or ranch property. Right now could be the best time for you to start using borrowed money to buy land . . . instead of using your own money to rent or lease.
