Three Sonorans Cited By THD

Three Sonora residents, Ray E. Barlemann, James E. Alexander and Milton R. Cavaness, have recently been recognized for their service with the Texas Highway Department. The highway personnel work in the office of Joe W. Lane, Supervising Resident Engineer.

Alexander and Barlemann are both Engineering Technicians V, and have served with the department for twenty years. Cavaness, Engineering Technician IV, has been with the department for ten years.

"It is the dedication of men like these that make the Texas Highway Department a good place to work. I extend my personal appreciation to each of them," said D. R. Watson, District Engineer of San Angelo.

Dr. Andrews Urges Daily Attendance

The average enrollment for the first six weeks totaled 1,034 and an average daily attendance of 968.98 for Sonora Public Schools. This represents an increase in membership of 109 and an increase of 88 in average daily attendance of last year.

"The terms average daily attendance is important to our district for two reasons," stated Dr. Joe Andrews, Superintendent of Schools, "first, if student attendance is good, the pupil's learning ability is improved and, second, the district's revenue from state funds is increased." "For these reasons, parents are encouraged to send their children to school every day," he concluded.

Dr. Andrews attended the Texas Association of School Boards and Texas Association of School Administrators Convention held in San Antonio October 5-6.

Llano Lions Set Pancake Supper

The Llano Lions Club will hold a pancake supper Friday, October 11 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., in the Llano High School Cafeteria. It has been announced by Llano school officials.

The supper will be held prior to the Sonora Llano football game and will be $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for children.

the local 4-H Center, where the building is getting a complete paint job both inside and out. Roof repairs, interior renovation and improved water supply are also scheduled for the center in the near future. Other local organizations are invited to join 4-H in making these improvements "happen" at the local 4-H Center which serves Sonora and Sutton County as a community center.

108 boys and girls participated in 4-H work in Sutton County during the 1973-74 year. Projects included sheep, Angora goats, horses, beef cattle, foods and clothing. Other 4-H educational activities included livestock judging, horse judging, grass judging, range judging and wool and mohair judging.

Many volunteer adult leaders assisted the County Extension Agents in conducting the 4-H programs in Sutton County. Anyone who would like to see the 4-H program expanded to include more youth and new areas of activities can help by volunteering their services as an adult leader for the coming year.

All boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 19 are invited to participate in 4-H activities in Sutton County. Both youth and adults may join the program by contacting the County Extension Office in the First National Bank Building or by calling 387-3101.

The training and experiences in 4-H programs have unquestionably proven to be a rich source of satisfaction and help to more than 33 million graduates in building their adult lives. During this special week, and throughout the year, 4-H deserves the support and cooperation of every American. It is helping to build the human resources that represent the nation's future.

Dove Hunters Still Have Time

Rains and cool weather have scattered mourning dove populations over much of West Texas, but hunters who want to try for some more of these popular game birds still have plenty of time before the season closes October 30.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is reminding hunters that this year's season was set for 60 consecutive half-days from September 1 through October 30, in the north zone which includes West Texas. The season is not split as it has been for the past two years.

Shooting hours are noon to sunset and bag and possession limits are 10 and 20. Hopefully warm October days in West Texas will provide some more good dove hunting as birds move down to the West Texas area from the north.

Official Memorandum

BY DOLPH BRISCOE, GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

GREETINGS:

Texas 4-H members are observing National 4-H Week October 6-11, 1974. The 1974 theme "4-H We Can Make It Happen" expressed the thrust of today's 4-H program as it helps prepare young people to become better citizens in our changing world.

Four-H is a part of the educational program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of Texas A&M University. It is directed at the local level by County Extension Agents who work with volunteer 4-H adult and junior leaders and other local citizens interested in the development of boys and girls.

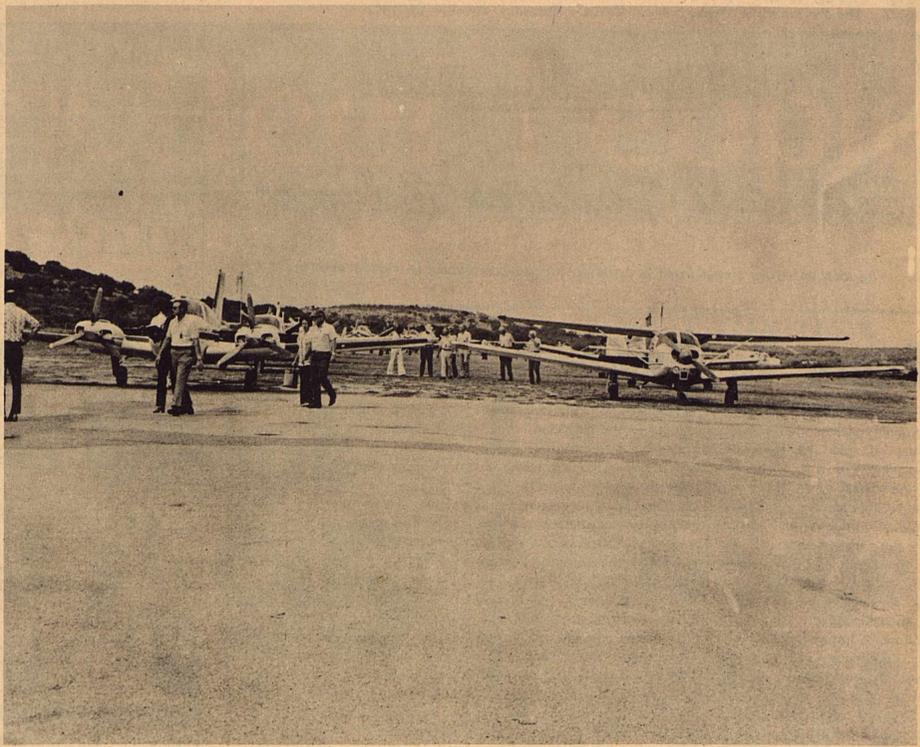

Texas 4-H members working with educational learning-by-doing projects, apply the latest research and scientific information to their work, keeping records, arranging exhibits and giving demonstrations to pass the information to others.

The leadership and citizenship training which 4-H members receive in this program is a valuable asset to our state and to our democratic way of life.

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the period of October 6-11, 1974, as 4-H WEEK in Texas, and urge all our citizens to support and encourage the work of this organization which has as its motto "To Make The Best Better."

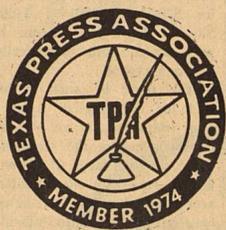

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 26th day of August, 1974.

DOLPH BRISCOE

Aldermen Discuss Zoning Ordinance

Phil Bryant, City Planner and Fred Campbell, Chairman of the City Zoning Commission, met with City Aldermen Walter C. Pope, Lemuel Lopez, Jack Kerbow, Doyle Morgan and Mayor Norman Rousselot Monday, to go over a proposed zoning ordinance for the City of Sonora. Other city officials at the meeting were City Manager Bob Nevill and Mrs. Pat Robbins, City Secretary. Zoning discussion was concerned with land use within the city limits of Sonora, based mainly on present use of land but also to provide the vehicle by orderly expansion.

A public hearing will be held by both the zoning commission and the City Council before taking any action on the ordinance. A public hearing regarding this ordinance may be found on page 5 of this newspaper.

In other business of the Council, Bill Fox, Consulting Engineer, reported on progress of the water storage facilities and sewer improvement programs.

Fox told the council that plans should be ready for water storage tank bids by January. He also made reports on the applications for a federal grant on the sewer plant. He stated that the applications had been filed and that he expected a decision to be reached in approximately 45 days.

Broncos Post Fourth Win

The Sonora Broncos posted their fourth win of the season, against one loss, by downing the Eldorado Eagles 28-7

Friday night in Bronco Stadium.

The Eagles got on the scoreboard first by covering a Bronco fumble on the Sonora 30 yard line and moving quickly down the field with the touchdown coming on a 20 yard pass to Billy Donaldson. The PAT was good and the Eagles lead 7-0 with 50 seconds left in the first quarter.

Three minutes into the second quarter Juan Perez capped a 67 yard drive by scoring from two yards out. John David Cook added the extra point, making the score 7-7.

On their next possession, Bronco quarterback Paul Browne rolled out and scored again on a 47 yard scamper. Cook added the point after and the Broncos held a 14-7 lead at the half.

On their first possession of the third quarter, the Eagles lost a fumble on their own 49 and the Broncos carried down the field on good runs by Juan Perez and Curt Mooney, allowing Browne to score for a second time from three yards out. Cook added the point for a 21-7 lead.

Late in the final period the Broncos covered another Eagle fumble and reserve quarterback, Hector Perez, passed to Larry Finklea who carried to the Eldorado five yard line. Juan Perez scored and Cook added the extra point for the final 28-7 score.

Key fumble recoveries by Bob Whitehead, Elba Adams and Lindsey Hicks, with a pass interception by Scooter Surber, along with a strong defensive effort by Mark Parker and Donald Thompsen, held Eldorado to only 170 total yards while the Bronco offense rolled up 410 total yards.

Sonora will travel to Llano to meet the Yellowjackets Friday night. Game time will be 8 p.m.

Sonoran's Sister Dies In Dallas

Doors To Space Remain Open

When President John F. Kennedy called for national effort to put an American spaceship and U.S. astronauts on the surface of the moon and return them safely to Earth, he caught the interest and captured the imagination of the nation. The American space effort in the years following is part of history and culminated in an achievement that was a mixture of unparalleled technical excellence and personal courage unmatched in the annals of human exploration.

The door to the wonders of space had been cracked open. It will remain open. As a result, our lives and the world we live in will never again be quite the same. In a technical sense, the advances spawned by the Space Age have been legion. Electronic miniaturization has opened up a new era in communications, in the computer sciences and in medical monitoring devices.

Space technology has produced the electronic heart pacer and brought a revolution in navigation and weather forecasting. Materials developed for space are used in surgical garments to prevent infection, and infrared heat detectors help in the early diagnosis of cancer. New techniques will aid in locating oil and other mineral deposits in the Earth through the use of special television cameras in orbiting satellites. There are new insulating materials, lightweight plastics, fireproof fabrics and literally hundreds of other new applications of space technology, which are now being woven into what amounts to a safer, more convenient, better quality of life available to the average person.

In other words, in terms both of national prestige and leadership, as well as earthly benefits, there is much to support the view that the dollars spent on the space program were indeed "well spent."

Now that the Apollo moon landing program has ended, what of the future? An article in Nation's Business, entitled "New Goals in Space" based on an interview with Dr. Kurt H. Debus, who has supervised manned and unmanned space launchings from Cape Canaveral for more than 20 years, attempts to answer this question. It is pointed out that the U.S. space effort is entering a new era, where the emphasis "...will be on the earthly application of what we have learned in the heavens."

The big new program which will make space accessible to hundreds of scientists, researchers and technicians not trained as astronauts will be the Space Shuttle. Test flights are scheduled just four years from now, and the Shuttle will be developed at a cost of $5 billion as compared with the $25 billion Apollo program. The unique thing about the Shuttle is that it will be used again and again. The size of an overgrown DC-3, the Shuttle will be blasted off from Cape Canaveral with a booster rocket, operate as a spaceship in Earth orbit and return to land on a special runway--much like a conventional airplane.

Dr. Debus expresses the view that this new space accessibility will give us the technology, manufacturing techniques and tools needed to solve future problems on Earth--as, for example, in the fields of energy supply, conservation and agricultural production. It is his belief that a high standard of living and the capacity to solve social problems, in our own as well as other countries, will depend on the high-productivity and technical competence, on the new products and industries and new opportunities that will be a direct outgrowth of space exploration and use. He feels that technology is the answer, not the cause of problems that we face.

Perhaps most importantly, mankind's experience in space may bring a greater understanding of the fact that we all are really flying on a huge spaceship called Earth and that we have a common interest in taking care of the vehicle on which we travel. The futility of international rivalries that could result in nuclear incineration of the Earth's surface will become more apparent. After all, the human race as yet has no place else to go.

Business will find new uses for the space environment as, for example, in the production of perfect metal spheres for ball bearings and the growing of perfect crystals for new applications in microelectronics. "Commercial satellites," Dr. Debus believes, "will be launched by anyone who wants one up there: a company, a large farmer, a university, anyone who wants to see more or reach more people. The business world will go into orbit, you might say."

Too much has been heard in recent years about the ever-narrowing prospects for advancement and progress. Pessimists contantly harp on the dead-end road which the human race is traveling leading inevitably to zero economic growth, shortages of food, natural resources and energy and increasing regimentation of human society. Prophets of doom fail to take into account the element of human freedom and ingenuity or the potential of new technologies as yet not in existence.

It is refreshing and inspiring, to hear the views of a knowledgeable authority such as Dr. Debus, who unequivocally expresses his conviction that mankind has the capacity to create a future better than his past. Space provides a challenge without end. Reaching for it may well provide the wisdom to build a better life on Earth. Most of the world's people could certainly use it.

President Ford's shakedown cruise has already encountered some stormy weather. In assuming a national viewpoint, he has run into some trouble.

AFL-CIO's George Meany, after a traditional courtesy call at the White House, is now telling his unions to beware of Ford's battle plans against inflation. He can be expected to blame the President for all our ills.

Ford's amnesty plans are unpopular in Congress and elsewhere. The strings he attaches to conditions for return and disposition of the fugitives may not be as attractive as the renegades had hoped for.

The President's flip-flop on his previous position relating to importation of Rhodesia chrome caught his former colleagues by surprise. In 1971 Ford supported legislation to lift the UN-imposed embargo against trade with Rhodesia, but recently said he now favors reimposing it.

These actions are irritants, but the big tests are ahead. Ford's forthright plans to combat inflation are being well received. And he reiterated his strong support of national defense. In any event, he had his work cut out for him in performing what many believe to be the most difficult job in the world.

Have you ever read a news item when you had to read between the lines to figure out precisely what was meant? Well, the Russians are notorious for making the worse the better reason seem. Here's an example:

The story relates to a sail boat race between the U.S. and Soviet teams, involving one boat each, in which the Americans were victorious. Pravda, so the story goes, reported the humiliating defeat thus:

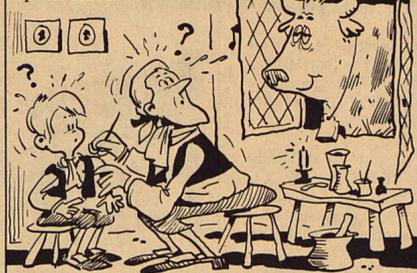

"The gallant and courageous sons of the People's Republic sailed their craft through extreme handicaps, to come in second from the top. Another ship, sailed by reactionary capitalists from the USA came in next to last!"

the MIND to imagine...the SKILL to do!

Until 1796, when Dr. Edward Jenner, a modest country physician, had the skill and imagination to vaccinate a small boy with cowpox, smallpox would break out unchecked all over Europe for centuries!

Another killer that took a big bite out of the world's population was rabies. Despite violent opposition, Louis Pasteur was the man with the skill and the imagination to combat that death dealer with the world's first injections.

Today, heart diseases are striking down hundreds of thousands of Americans every year. Most of them die during the first critical hour when medical aid is far away. The people at Motorola had the minds and skills to invent a Coronary Observation Radio that lets the victim be treated on the scene. With this device, his electrocardiogram gets to the hospital before he does!

Viewpoint

By T. Driskell

One looks at Britain after an absence of nine years with a jaundiced eye. Our inflation is bad, but less than that suffered by the English. The prices of some standard commodities compared with nine years ago are: $1.15 a pound against 49c for bacon; butter 50c a pound against 35c; gasoline, $1.29 gallon versus 58c; T-Bone steak, $1.58 versus 70c a pound; eggs, 86c per dozen versus 40c. Some of the prices seem below our prices, but when you stack them against a national average wage of $57.60 a week, inflation hurts. Even against such inflation, the average man on the street seems better dressed and the number of families owning automobiles have increased 200 percent, the question must be raised about the money source. It must be concluded that most wives work and then the nutritional level in the average household must have slipped considerably.

Britain, once the best source of antiques in Western Europe, has gone. Junk shops are precisely what their name implies and the merchandise purveyed is adequately defined by the signs. The antique shop prices will curl even my straight hair. Candlesticks that used to sell for $10 a pair now sell for $50. Clocks that sold for $25 now sell of $400. Silver? Don't ask. China is very scarce both numerically and qualitywise.

Still, there is much to be said for the English people. They demonstrate an almost total absence of the strained, tense, nervous faces so evident in the American metropolitan areas and when you encounter an Englishman on an individual basis, you can almost invariably depend on him to react in a courteous rational manner, be it on the highway or a footpath.

Overall, about the only thing that has not changed in nine years of absence is the toilet tissue provided by British Railways...it still serves beautifully as a substitute for airmail stationery. It is quite obvious that the most stringent point proved by this trip is the fact that regardless of how hard a man twists, he simply cannot turn the wheels of the clock backward. Time moves on and man must either move with it, or be mercilessly crushed by it.

Getting back to the frightening inflation, I am told it is much worse in France, as bad in Germany, and twice as bad in Italy. Thinking it over, the light more or less comes on. We are all living in the sphere of petroleum based economies and the Arabs and South Americans have almost tripled the price of crude.

The inflation we see is the adjustment or failure to adjust. Can the Western capitalistic societies adjust? The Saudi Arabians evidently doubt it since they keep advocating lower oil prices. It is clear from Western Europe that an adjustment must be made and there seems to be a growing

THE DEVIL'S RIVER PHILOSOPHER SEZ.....

The Word Competition Has Now Achieved A Complete Flip-Flop

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-wood ranch on the Dry Devil's River this week admits he's behind the times.

Dear editor: I knew the times were out of joint but I didn't know how far--even if a steer on the hoof does bring only 20 cents a pound at the ranch and $2 a pound three months later at the supermarket--until I read last night what's happening in the newspaper business.

According to it, one of Canada's largest producers of newsprint, the paper you print the Devil's River News on, has just raised its price $25 a ton, making it the fourth raise this year and bringing the price up to $260 a ton in carload lots.

But what caused my mind to flip over backwards was the response of another paper company when it learned the Canadian firm had upped the price. "This is a highly competitive business," it said, "and if one goes up in price and can make it stick, the other companies usually follow."

You can see how far behind the times I am. I didn't know that competition now means you have to charge more than the next guy to keep him from getting all the business. This sounds like I've got it backwards but that's exactly what the paper company said. To meet competition today you've got to raise your price every time somebody else does, particularly if he can make it stick.

There's the point. If he can make it stick. And with the psychology of inflation what it is, he probably can. Raise the price--who knows, the public may grumble but still go ahead and shell out. Let's everybody get ahead while we can, then if a depression hits we'll be in good shape.

Sooner or later somebody's going to have to throw a monkey wrench into this spiraling system, but the trouble is very few companies are now making monkey wrenches and the few that are made are sky high and a man would have to think twice before throwing one.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

The nursing home celebrated their monthly birthday party September 25. Four residents were honored this month. They were Maysie Brown, Jesse Roberts, William Radel and Baltazar Sanchez. The auxiliary served cake, coffee and juice and Jan VanderStucken provided music for the occasion.

Our thanks to all the ladies for their help. Everyone had a wonderful time and it is so good to be remembered on one's birthday no matter how old we are getting.

NHN Residents and nursing staff were entertained September 26 by the Junior Girl Scout Troop 205. The girls sang their scout songs and visited with all the residents. Troop leaders are Rebecca Sisk, Mrs. Wanda Halford and Mrs. Wanda Cook. It is wonderful to see the young people take an interest in the nursing home and give their time and talents for us. We thank each one of you and hope to see you again in the near future.

NHN Nursing home residents are having a contest as to when the first snow will fall here in Sonora. A prize will be awarded to the resident coming the closest to the date. Names and dates are posted at the nursing home.

Nobody Made a Nickel

Too many pressing responsibilities in the Lord's work. The congregation couldn't afford to have its church painted. But painted it was!

That was a glorious Saturday—no picnic or ball games, just hours of hard work. And what with the paint supplied at cost by a local dealer, and the brushes loaned by the very painter who might have hoped for the contract—nobody made a nickel!

But the remarkable thing is that nobody in town thought all this remarkable . . .

You know Christianity has had a deep influence on the life of a community when we begin to take for granted the zeal and sacrifice of Christian neighbors. The next step is to add our strength and faith to theirs in the worship and work of the Church.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Someday, Man may be able to predict, and even to control, the fury of the storm. But for now, violent storms remain an unpredictable threat to our homes and families. And the most dangerous time of the year lies just ahead.

We've been lucky this year. Texas has been spared, so far, from the frightful toll of natural disaster. Neither tornadoes nor hurricanes have struck, although we have had some unusually heavy rainfall, flooding and hail in some parts of the state. As the hurricane season approaches, your State Health Department reminds you to stay vigilant--the worst might be just ahead.

Any natural disaster is capable of causing unforeseeable numbers of victims, requiring immediate medical attention, food and shelter. A natural disaster also can result in disease, unsanitary conditions, the disabling of public utilities, contamination of water supplies, and the disruption of medical services. Floods can produce a rapid buildup in the population of water-borne pests, such as mosquitoes, which aggravate the health hazards.

When a disaster strikes, the Health Department joins with other state and local agencies and organizations to fight back with efforts to restore affected areas to normalcy. State disaster headquarters is in a sub-basement at the Department of Public Safety in Austin, where a core of public officials coordinate disaster activities.

In the State Health Department, the Disaster Health Services Program of the Emergency Medical Services Division provides additional resources at the point of need. This is a part of the Texas plan for disaster health and medical care.

Seventeen disaster relief districts, each with a physician directing disaster medical care, are tied into a district Civil Defense Council which coordinates activities of state agencies with disaster functions. In case of disaster or severe threat--such as an impending hurricane along the coast, the Civil Defense Council is mobilized. Within each district are zones from which supplies and personnel requests emanate.

The State Health Program sends representatives of the Disaster Health Services Program to each disaster area to help coordinate activities of other health department personnel. In the case of hurricanes, program personnel are pre-positioned in cities along the Texas coast to await and plan for the expected arrival of the storm.

Always quick to arrive on the scene are engineers of the Sanitary Engineering Division whose primary function is checking water supplies. Investigators from the Food and Drugs Division check damaged food and drug products, and Communicable Disease Services Section personnel may be assigned, and local health departments put physicians, nurses, sanitarians and others on duty immediately.

Within minutes after a tornado dipped down into the heart of Lubbock the night of May 11, 1970, nurses and others picked their way through the rubble to check and salvage vaccines and get them to pre-planned emergency headquarters. A disaster health representative of the State Health Department was on the scene of the tragedy within two hours even though city telephones and electricity were knocked out and transportation disrupted.

The Corpus Christi Nueces County Health Department had its personnel on duty when Celia slammed into that city on August 3 of the same year. The State Health Department was also there. The personal automobiles of two representatives of the Disaster Health Services Program, who were in Corpus Christi awaiting the storm, were severely damaged. In addition, district engineers and personnel from state headquarters were on the scene.

Equipment from a Packaged Disaster Hospital was set up in a church at Aransas Pass to provide needed medical equipment after Celia.

Just recently the Health Department took over the medical inventory of 101 Packaged Disaster Hospitals, similar to the one from which equipment was used during Celia.

A major disaster isn't the responsibility of one agency but demands the coordinated efforts of many to snap back after tragedy. During spring tornadoes which hit Burnet and Hubbard last year, for instance, the Texas National Guard responded quickly with trucks, personnel and helicopters. Representatives of the State Health Department were on the scene within an hour of notification, coordinating disaster health relief.

The State Health Department and its local and regional units have responded quickly and effectively in past disasters. With the resources and personnel at its command, it stands ready always to meet the future emergency needs of the citizens of Texas.

"...now days it seems that most politicians will say anything about their opponent to get elected. Bob Krueger is different."

Alan Rompel, New Braunfels

Tired of negative politics? Disgusted with politicians tearing America down? Bob Krueger, the independent democrat for U.S. Congress believes it's time to build America up. He believes, like most citizens, that this nation has suffered long enough because of divisiveness and negative politics. Krueger has travelled this district and spoken out on the major issues facing all Americans.

- For the right to work
- For a strong national defense
- For the oil depletion allowance
- For restoring a government worthy of public trust
- Against a guaranteed annual income
- Against federal land use planning
- Against a national system of socialized medicine

Governor Dolph Briscoe said: "Krueger is the best able to represent the concerns of the broad 21st District. We need him in the U.S. Congress." Congressman O.C. Fisher said of Bob Krueger, "I feel that Bob Krueger has more maturity and business experience. He carried his home county of Comal by a majority of 2,573 to 452 in the primary, which shows what his own home folks think of him. I believe he is our best bet."

Bob Krueger needs your time and your dollars. Please send your contributions to Friends of Bob Krueger, P.O. Box 667, New Braunfels, Texas 78130.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

Consumers whose gas and electricity bills are soaring have a tool to assist them in conserving energy—a new energy conservation labeling program.

The program is designed to give customers, for the first time, the information they need to choose household appliances that make the most efficient use of energy.

For individual consumers, buying more "energy efficient" appliances could mean significantly lower monthly gas or electricity bills.

And, since about 20 percent of all energy used in the U.S. is used in apartments and homes, and since in 1973 alone, more than 43 million major appliances were sold in this country, there is a potential for energy saving on a nationwide scale.

The energy conservation labeling program for household appliances and equipment was begun this past summer by the Department of Commerce as a voluntary cooperative venture between consumers, retailers, and manufacturers.

Although the labels that tell how much energy an appliance uses were designed mainly to help consumers make buying decisions, the program also aims to encourage retailers to stock such supplies, and manufacturers to design and produce products that waste less energy.

Since the program now is entirely voluntary, its success depends on the cooperation of all three groups to make it work.

*Manufacturers who participate in the program will be labeling household appliances to show how much energy they use and their relative efficiency compared to similar models.

A bill approved last year by the U.S. Senate would also require appliance manufacturers to state energy use in dollars and cents on the labels, although manufacturers say different rates of use, and regional variations in utility costs would make such information useless.

*Retailers cooperating in the program will provide information on how the energy conservation labeling program works, and will use the energy efficiency information in advertising and point-of-purchase material. Some retailers are cooperating by distributing booklets on energy conservation published by local agencies.

*Consumers can use the energy efficiency information to compare appliance models and see which will cost less to operate.

Sometimes an appliance may cost more initially than a competing brand, but operate so much more efficiently that within a few months it has made up the difference by reduced energy bills.

For example, a major appliance that costs $40 more than a competing brand may use only $10 of electricity a month, while a cheaper brand uses $20. In only four months, a consumer could have made up the difference in price. After that, the appliance that initially seemed more expensive would actually be more economical.

The first appliances to be labeled with energy consumption information under the new program were room air conditioners. Eventually, other household appliances that use large amounts of energy and vary greatly in efficiency between models will also be labeled. Refrigerators and freezers, washers and dryers, dishwashers, kitchen ranges and ovens, water heaters, space heaters, and central air conditioning and heating equipment have already been proposed for the energy conservation labeling program.

Consumers can look for three letters on appliances covered under the program to show operating efficiency: EER. They stand for "Energy efficiency ratio."

Their appearance on room air conditioner labels this past summer indicated that a unit had been tested and certified by the manufacturer in accordance with program standards for cooling capacity and electrical power requirements. To get the EER for room air conditioners the cooling capacity (BTU's) is divided by the power needed to run the unit (watts). The higher the EER, the more efficient the unit.

The energy conservation labeling program, if it is a success, will be a good illustration of what can be achieved when consumers and businessmen work together toward a common goal.

If you have a question about the possibility of misrepresentation in labeling, or have other consumer problems, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney or your local Better Business Bureau.

A Bishop Looks at Life

By Everett H. Jones, Bishop
Episcopal Diocese, West Texas

Do You See Other People?

There's a moving passage in Thornton Wilder's Our Town when Emily, who dies as a young woman, is allowed to come back to live over again one day of her life.

She not only can live that one day over again, but she can watch herself do it. She chooses the day; it will be her twelfth birthday.

And so the day begins. Emily's mother and brother are there in familiar surroundings. The conversation flows on, a conversation in which no one really seems to notice anyone else.

After a time Emily says quietly, "Oh Mama, just look at me one minute as though you really saw me!" Then she adds: "I can't, I can't go on. It goes too fast. We don't have time to look at one another."

We often ask ourselves, "If I could live my life over again, what would I do differently?" I have answered to myself, "I would try to see other people more clearly."

All around me I see problems that are due to this kind of blindness. Husbands and wives do not see each other; they do not have the perception and imagination to see the other's needs, insecurities, defeats, dreams and secret aspirations. Parents do not see their children; employers do not see their employees; doctors do not see their patients (in the wholeness of their illness); clergymen do not see the special spiritual needs of their people. (It had been said that many sermons answer questions people are not asking.)

If you want to be a people-seeing person, what can you do about it? You can remember that every person you meet is infinitely precious in God's sight. You can also remember that every person wants you to see him or her—the real inner him or her.

I find that reading a good novel or biography helps to cultivate the habit of looking for the whole story behind each individual.

In looking at other people it requires an extra effort to see all that is admirable and not concentrate on some more apparent trait or characteristic we do not like.

Some people increase their people awareness by keeping a list of those whom, at a given time, they are most anxious to see and hear and help. It is sometimes called a prayer list.

In Moslem tradition, a great fish supports a bull which supports a ruby underlying the world.

Eggs, Cholesterol...No Conflict

Since cholesterol is a normal body compound, consumers need not avoid eggs in their diet, says a poultry marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Healthy people can handle cholesterol efficiently and can thus enjoy eggs. High cholesterol in the blood develops when the body metabolism fails to function properly. Of course, excessive intake of any food is the real culprit as far as nutritional imbalance is concerned.

GROUND WATER-STUDIED

Ground water management received major consideration during the recent Water for Texas Conference at Texas A&M University. Speakers, headlined by Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, noted that proper planning is essential to avert a serious water shortage. Major problem areas with regard to ground water resources were listed as subsidence, pollution and depletion. A revision in the Texas Water Code is intended to encourage local solutions to local water problems.

Rains Brighten West Texas Fishing Picture

Heavy, general rains that fell over most of West Texas in September have pushed lake levels up in that area, providing more water for stocking with fish and improving the fishing outlook for next spring.

Probably the most notable example is North Concho Lake, just outside the city of San Angelo. The lake, almost dry at 500 surface acres just before the rains came, went from that size to 5,000 surface acres in a week's time. With the added water, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department stepped up the stocking program on that impoundment, putting in 4,500 super bass—a cross between Florida and Lake Murvaul bass—along with 20,000 Texas largemouth bass, 100,000 catfish and 100,000 hybrid sunfish.

Other lakes that received good run-off from the rains include Twin Buttes and E. V. Spence Lakes, also near San Angelo, and Red Bluff and Balmorhea Lakes in far West Texas. Balmorhea, in Reeves County, was completely filled by the rains and Red Bluff, at last report, had risen 22 vertical feet with water still running into the lake from the Pecos River.

Prior to the rains, department hatcheries in West Texas, because of a good fish production year, had a surplus of channel catfish. With many public waters in the area so low as to not need further stocking at the time, the department had been putting some of these fish into private waters. But this program has been halted until all of the public lakes that suddenly have higher water levels have been adequately stocked.

Some of the lakes, once they have settled, could provide some good fall fishing for fish that were stocked previously. And the added water and stepped-up stocking program certainly should be a boost for fishing next spring.
