

DST Ends Sunday

You can finally get back that hour of lost time Sunday, October 28 when Daylight Saving Time is over again...at least for the time being.

Daylight Saving Time normally comes around in April and ends in October. Last year it was begun again in December after only two months' reprieve, following emergency issuance in an effort to help alleviate the energy crisis.

Before retiring Saturday night, clocks should be set back one hour, or those who choose may sit up until 2 a.m., then make the clock change.

Broncos Win Over Crane In First District Game

Early in the first quarter of the game, good drives by the Sonora Bronco offense set up a touchdown pass off the arm of quarterback Paul Browne to fullback Curt Mooney that gave the Broncos a lead they held all night against the highly rated Golden Cranes of Crane. Following the TD, John David Cook put the ball through the uprights to make the score 7-0 for the Broncos.

After a series of downs by both teams, Sonora again was on the receiving end of a Crane punt. Browne's pass to Mooney was good for 20 yards only to have a 15 yard penalty called on them. Passes following the penalty to Mooney and tight end Bob Whitehead, put the Broncos on the 5 yard line and Juan Perez carried the ball over for the Bronco's second touchdown. Again Cook's PAT was good, giving the Broncos a 14-0 lead.

A Crane fumble in the second quarter of play was recovered by Whitehead, putting the ball on Sonora's 30 yard line. A pass to end Larry Finklea set the Broncos up again in easy scoring position and on the next play of the game Larry Kirby moved in for the final yardage needed to score another six points for the Red Hosses. Cook's kick was wide of the goal, leaving the score at 20 to 0 with little more than one minute left in the half.

Perez kicked off to the Cranes and their desperate passing dive was thwarted by the Broncos in the form of an interception. Sonora was on the Crane 25 when time ran out in the first half of play.

Crane came onto the field after half time with more deliberation and took only eleven plays to move to the three yard line. Lindsey Paul Hicks, however stopped their scoring attempt when he fell on a Crane fumble and turned the ball back over to the offensive unit.

Sonora's back-up quarterback Hector Perez and his unit were held to four downs on the next possession and turned the ball back to Crane who, after several attempts, connected with end Bill Lewis on a pass, giving the visiting team their first score of the night. Their extra point was good and the score was 20-7.

Neither side scored again until the fourth quarter when Robbie Hard picked off another Crane aerial setting the Broncos up in scoring position again. Juan Perez carried the ball on a side sweep and ran through the Crane line to score six points. The PAT gave the Broncos a 27-7 lead with only 8 minutes left in the game.

The final score of the game came on a blocked Sonora punt which put the Crane team on the Bronco's 20 yard line. A series of short passes enabled split end Willie Neal to score the TD and their PAT was good.

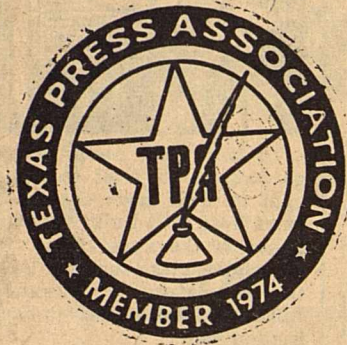

Sonora took over with only seconds left in the game. Time ran out with the Broncos taking a 27-14 win in their first district game of the season. They racked up 303 total yards, holding Crane to 225; had no interceptions, lost no fumbles, and completed 7 of 14 passes.

The Broncos will travel to Ozona Friday night where they will play the Lions at 7:30 p.m.

Quarterback Paul Browne drops back to throw one of his many passes Friday night which enabled the Broncos to get on the scoreboard early in the game and hold the lead throughout the game against the highly rated Golden Cranes. Browne suffered a shoulder injury shortly before the half and Hector Perez replaced him for the remainder of the game.

Fall Screwworm Buildup Hits Hardest In West Texas and Hill Country Areas

The fall screwworm buildup arrived in September with 1,098 laboratory confirmed cases in Texas livestock. The biggest share of these were in the hill country and West Texas, says Dr. J. E. Novy of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The pattern continued into early October with 41 cases confirmed in Val Verde County the first four days of the month. This followed 132 confirmed cases of the live flesh eating parasites in that county during September.

Shearing season for sheep and goats, and its attendant wounds, is underway in the region. Female screwworm flies oviposit their eggs on edges of wounds. Hatching larvae enter the wound to feed for about a week.

Climatic Change Brings Various Explanations

As the morning sun burns away the night, nomads of the Sahara begin to comb the sand, grain by grain, for food air-dropped from European planes-and a small girl in nearby Niger, her belly bloated and limbs shriveled, moves one day closer to death by starvation. These grim scenarios are but a taste of life in 16 drought-decimated African nations, where one virtually rainless year has followed another since 1968. In fact, the entire global weather pattern has shifted dramatically and unpleasantly in recent years. In the United States, severe climatic changes have ranged from drought conditions in the Farm Belt and some southern states to the worst flooding in the Midwest in centuries.

Theories to explain the phenomenon abound. As Mr. Tom Alexander of Fortune magazine notes, "What makes the temperature fluctuate at all is a matter of intense debate. It is known that the world's climate is a delicately balanced system, full of sensitive feedback mechanisms, and that the climate depends primarily on the amount of solar radiation absorbed by the earth and its atmosphere. This is determined by the planet's overall 'albedo,' the measure of its reflectivity. The greater the albedo, the colder the earth." Since white matter is extremely reflective, clouds, snow and ice are important contributors to the albedo-so are airborne particles, especially very fine dust, much of which remains in the atmosphere for months or years. And this is where controversy flares.

While experts agree that the world has reached the end of one of the most favorable weather periods in its history, they differ on the causes and duration of present weather patterns.

A widely-held theory states that more air pollution leads to significant weather changes. Many climatologists, or weather scientists, trace the past warming trend to a marked increase in atmospheric carbon dioxide from the burning of fossil fuels. The "greenhouse effect", as it is known, occurred when the carbon dioxide absorbed heat from the sun. However, according to Mr. Reid Bryson, director of the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin, since 1930 the dust blanket has become too thick, and it is filtering out many of the sun's rays, which could account for the present cooling period.

Mr. Bryson also blames "...slash-and-burn farming in underdeveloped lands." The Wall Street Journal reports, "Additional man-gathered dust is stirred up when drought strikes marginal lands that are overfarmed, as in the African Sahel." As Mr. Alexander writes, "Whatever its source, dust has a...pronounced cooling effects on the polar regions...and this, in turn, alters the vast, integrated system of winds that sweep about the planet, changing the pattern of weather -- including floods, droughts, and blizzards--everywhere."

In disagreement with the air pollution thesis are other climatologists like Mr. J. Murray Mitchell, Jr., of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA). He contends that most temperature deviations come strictly from natural causes and that the present cooling trend will soon reverse itself. Carbon dioxide is seen as a threat only if it is not controlled in coming years. Still other scientists link climatic changes to the influence of the sun itself as it undergoes its turbulent sunspot cycles--a hypothesis which is not well-accepted by most experts.

At this point, the temperature fluctuations in our century have still been few compared to the overall geological history of the planet. In the past million years, gigantic glaciers have periodically descended from the poles. As the Wall Street Journal notes, the last two intervals between Ice Ages lasted 10,000 years--almost exactly the same amount of time since the last glaciers froze much of North America and parts of Europe and Asia. No one knows if the current cooling trend heralds another Ice Age or not. But the climatic changes of the past three decades have upset agriculture, as in the famous Dust Bowl drought of the 1930's which three hundred of thousands of American farmers into bankruptcy.

Scientific response to the worsening world climate had led to the establishment of a small, far-flung network of NOAA observatories around the world. These are equipped to detect every atmospheric variation deemed most likely to affect long-term changes in climate, such as carbon dioxide concentrations, solar radiation, air turbidity and dozens of other elements. Elsewhere, U.S. satellites are keeping track of weather tendencies, especially over the African drought areas. Scientists from the United States and USSR are also working on joint studies of what causes inclement changes in nature, including the consequences of man-made pollution.

What the future will bring is anyone's guess. In the world of Mr. Alexander, "...most climatologists agree that a diminution of the sunlight as small as one percent would suffice to initiate a cool period and, some think, perhaps even major glaciation." With a hairline balance like that, we cannot afford to be indifferent to the weather.

News Letter

BY O. C. FISHER

After grinding out a passel of bills in the last week of the session preceding the 30-day election-day recess, members returned wearily to their respective districts to confront the voters.

Risking a possible immediate recall of Congress by Presidential order, the House persisted in an amendment to a non-related bill, which would stop military aid to Turkey unless Turkish troops are promptly withdrawn from Cyprus.

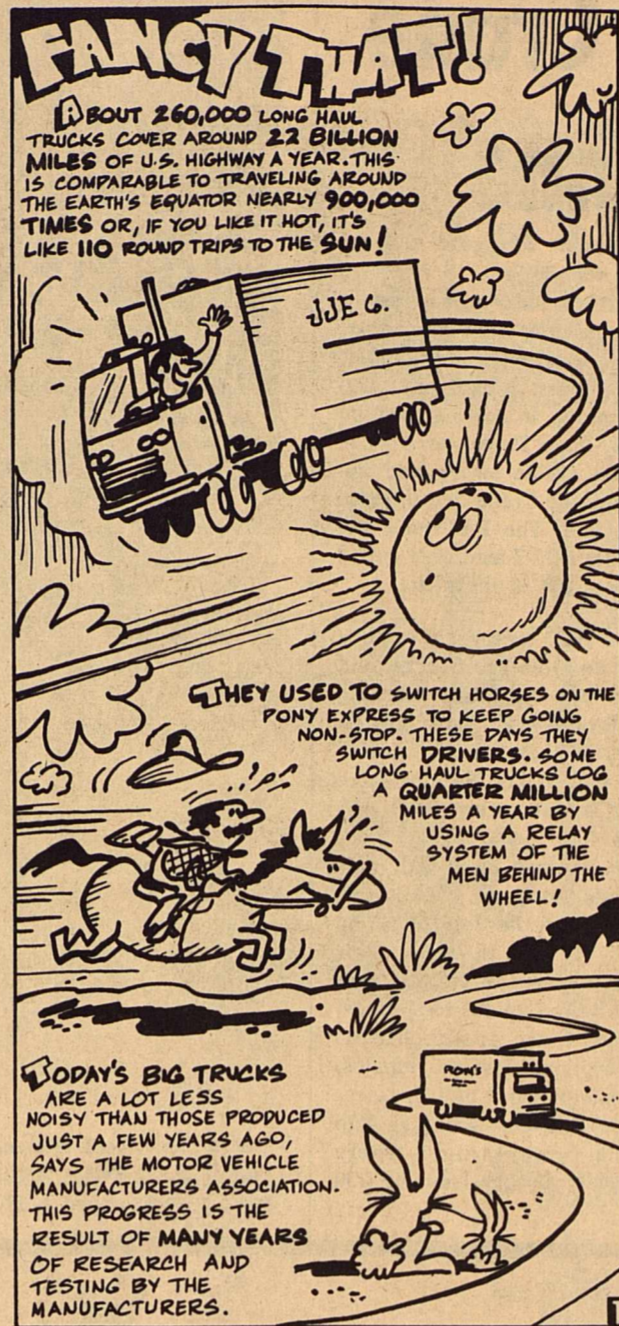

We all want to see those troops removed promptly. But it must be done by negotiation between Turkey, Cyprus, and Greece, now in progress. It is feared the precipitous House action, if permitted to stand, will harden the Turks and make successful negotiations far more difficult.

This tampering with foreign policy could conceivably trigger events which might cause Turkey to withdraw from NATO and seek a rapport with Russia--thereby seriously endangering the future of Cyprus, Greece and the entire Middle East.

Remember the good old days when the "Farm bloc" was rated a powerful factor in Congress? It was that way when I came here. But times have changed with the unprecedented shift from farm to city.

The Census Bureau informs us that in the slightly more than 50 years since the farm population was first enumerated, the proportion of the national population living on farms has fallen from 30.1% in 1920 to 4.5% in 1973.

The shift trend has subsided, however. The 1973 estimate of the rural count was only 240,000 less than that of 9.7 million for 1970, a rather insignificant decrease.

Viewpoint

BY T. DRISKELL

A little late paying my bill to Divide Cable Corporation, I worried about them cutting off my cable connection. Second thoughts, however, allayed my apprehension because considering the quality of reception I enjoyed during Texas A&M's upset of Texas Tech, and the first two world series games, it was concluded that severing the cable connection could not hurt reception that much. It boils down to whether one prefers static to a blank screen.

One must essentially look at the performance of the cable company and wonder. A little over three days of two channels was lost or 6.6 percent of my month's services--no adjustment. What sort of agreement in the form of a franchise does our city have with Divide Cable Corporation?

Is the required audio and video quality spelled out, and if so what sort of policing is maintained to protect consumer interests?

It was noted that after three and one-half days of very poor video and audio, the corporation mustered its technical staff and corrected the fault. It is obvious that the company has the capability to maintain the service, yet we are left with a serious time lag apparently without penalty.

It is evident that the cable company derives appreciable revenue from this area, which makes time lags in the restoration of service somewhat difficult to comprehend. Is an adequate technical staff maintained in the local area to remedy these faults? Alternatively one suspects that the company has a central technical staff covering an area which might be stretched a little too much in the interest of economy and profits.

The monopoly of a unique franchise, particularly a long term one is virtually loaded with objectionable characteristics. The usual result is that the consumer is forced to accept whatever level of service the company with the monopoly sees fit to provide. What are the alternatives? Perhaps it is a question for the city government to answer. If you watched the Texas A&M - Texas Tech game and the first two world series games with me--any alternatives whatsoever becomes somewhat more palatable.

THE DEVIL'S RIVER PHILOSOPHER SEZ.....

He Is Amazed At What He Finds In Rockefeller's Financial Statement

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitter-weed ranch on the Dry Devil's River tries to read a financial statement this week, we suppose.

Dear editor:
Human nature being what it is, people have a natural curiosity about other people's money, such as how much you reckon ole so-and-so is really worth, did you hear what his-name has borrowed his limit at the bank and is having trouble paying his bills? Things like that.

So naturally nearly everybody in the country was interested in how much money Nelson Rockefeller has, and many were delighted to have him nominated for Vice President just to find out. Rockefeller was pleased too because up to now he wasn't sure how much he was worth either.

Anyway, just to be doing, I read his financial statement which all the newspapers published and despite the fact he has a net worth of 218 million dollars or 116 million or something, more or less, depending on what stocks are worth today, the price of cattle in Argentina, what you can get for vacant lots in New York, paintings by the old masters, and that sort of thing, still, down at the bottom of one column under liabilities was: notes payable, $1,667,600.

I nearly fell over. You mean to tell me that Rockefeller owes money at the bank? Does he buy on time? I knew times were hard and money tight, what with inflation and all, but I didn't know we were in that shape. I guess we've all got our problems.

Speaking of hard times, I've been reading articles lately saying inflation is world wide, that the entire human race is faced with run-away inflation and if it isn't brought under control, total economic collapse is staring us in the face.
All right. Say it happens, everybody and every country goes under. What I want to know is, if the whole world goes broke, who gets title to the property? It's something to think about.
Yours faithfully,
J. A.

BUDGET STRETCHING IDEAS!

As the value of the dollar goes down, the money-saving imagination has to work more. But stretching the dollar can be fun, if you do it creatively. For example, many people have found that making clothes is great fun. They can become their own personal fashion designers. And they never run into the embarrassment of bumping into somebody in the same outfit!

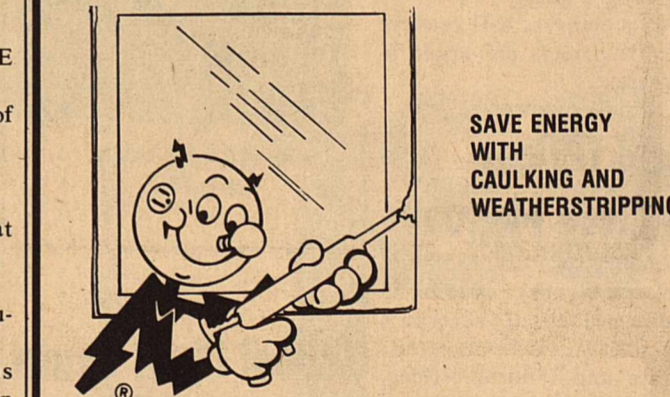

To make your energy dollar go farther, don't let the sunlight in. Pull down shades so extra heat isn't built up. Dim lights for the same reason. In the winter, make sure you keep the temperature moderately warm, not blazing hot, to save heating fuel.

CONSERVE ENERGY With Proper Insulation

Proper insulation helps to keep OUT heat in the summer, cold in the winter, helps to reduce outside noises, and absorbs inside sounds.
Adequate insulation can save over 40% on energy costs annually. You should have at least 4" in walls and 6" in ceilings. Heating and air conditioning duct-work should be wrapped with insulating material.
Insulation can pay for itself with the savings from operating costs in about 1 1/2 years. Your home will be cleaner because insulation will help to keep dust and dirt pollution from sifting in.

SAVE ENERGY WITH CAULKING AND WEATHERSTRIPPING

Check all windows and doors. If a cold draft indicates you are losing heat, install weatherstripping and caulking where needed. It will save on both heating and cooling costs.

An almost invisible 1/4" gap at the base of a standard 36" outside door is equal to a nine square-inch hole in the side of your house. There are a number of easy-to-install felt and foam rubber products on the market to draft-proof doorways.

There's a nip in the air, and sleepyheads are harder to rouse. Dress up a package of "store-bought" doughnuts with Honey Coconut Butter Frosting, and breakfast is a breeze. Made with Baker's Angel Flake coconut and honey, this sweet and lovely frosting is enough for a dozen doughnuts. Good on cupcakes and layer cakes, too.
Honey Coconut Butter Frosting
1/2 cup butter or margarine 2 tablespoons honey
2 cups unsifted confectioners sugar 1 1/2 cups (about) flaked coconut (toasted, if desired)
1 tablespoon light cream
Cream butter; then add part of sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add remaining sugar, alternately with cream and honey, beating after each addition until smooth.
Spread over tops of doughnuts; then dip them in coconut. Or spread between layers and over top of cake. Sprinkle with coconut while frosting is still soft. Makes 1 1/2 cups frosting, or enough to cover 12 doughnuts or tops of two 9-inch layers, top and sides of an 8-inch square cake, or about 2 dozen cupcakes.

Saturday Morning Bricklayer

My neighbor Marty is a certified public accountant. He is also an assistant scoutmaster. And treasurer of the Civic Association. Hard worker for local charities. And—oh yes—Marty is a Saturday morning bricklayer. He can build a mighty fine wall to set off that patio he put in last summer.
You'd think that a man so capable and versatile wouldn't feel dependent on anybody or anything. Not so.
It is usually the folks like Marty—the ready, willing and able ones—who are first to recognize their spiritual needs. Nor are they ashamed to admit their dependence on God—and His Church. You'll hear Marty and his wife give credit to their religious beliefs for the strength of their marriage and for the ideals that inspire their family life.
In fact, it's Sunday morning, rather than Saturday, when they do their most important building. How about joining them at church time?

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

There's a revolution happening in emergency medical care in Texas. Until a very few years ago, the only ambulance service in any Texas city was operated by a private company--in many cases, a funeral home. That's still true in the vast majority of Texas communities. In many instances ambulance services had neither the training nor the equipment to provide complete emergency care in the field.

In recent years, more and more local governments have assumed full responsibility for providing emergency medical services.

The City of Dallas provides an illustrative example. That city assumed responsibility for emergency ambulance service in 1972, but, of course, it didn't happen overnight. Months of planning by a committee preceded the first day of the new operation. The committee included representatives of the County Medical Society, the Dallas Fire Department, the Dallas City Health Department, and the Southwestern Medical Center of the University of Texas. The elaborate planning process included a computer simulation of the projected 25,000 ambulance calls that would be received the first year, to determine the optimum location for the ambulance stations. Even though the first year actually saw nearly 40,000 calls, instead of 25,000, the computer analysis was so accurate that the average ambulance response time was less than five minutes.

The most important step in providing the new ambulance service was to provide trained ambulance crews. It had already been decided that the Dallas Fire Department would operate the ambulances, and 105 new firemen were hired to permit more experienced men to be trained for emergency ambulance duty. The training was provided by another cooperative effort, with the Dallas City Health Department providing overall coordination, the Southwestern Medical Center providing most of the faculty, and the Texas State Health Department contributing its advice and counsel based on past experience.

Anyone who had been a fireman for more than a year was eligible for the first level of training as an Emergency Medical Technician, or EMT. There were more volunteers than there were openings in the first class. So far, 120 Dallas firemen have received EMT training, and eventually every fire company in the city will have at least one EMT.

The second stage was to upgrade the EMT's to full fledged paramedics. The first paramedic class was held in 1973, and again there were more volunteers than there were places in the class. In less than two years, Dallas trained enough firemen to provide a minimum of one paramedic and three EMT's on every shift in each of the 16 ambulance companies.

Firemen-EMT Brian Dorethy, an ambulance driver at Fire Station 6, described the EMT training as consisting of "What it takes for a body to exist biologically. How to get air into somebody, to keep the blood circulating, heart massage, breathing for somebody--that's basically what they teach, to sustain life, to get them to the hospital."

According to the firemen, the paramedic training is considerably more advanced and more difficult. In fact, according to paramedic Pat Sullivan of Station 6, "A lot of people didn't want to volunteer until they heard how excellent the training was. I, frankly, wasn't head-over-heels about it, but I didn't want to miss out on anything new that was happening."

Fireman Dorethy explains, "The primary purpose of this whole training is to keep these ambulances from driving 60 or 70 miles an hour with an attendant back there looking at somebody dying and not doing anything about it. These ambulances aren't designed to go fast. The purpose of the training is to get someone in an ambulance and stabilized, then get them to the hospital. There's a lot of people in this world who are really sick and they don't know how to help themselves. It's gratifying to know that you can help people."

Another fireman-paramedic, David Stambaugh, also feels that the training he received was excellent. "I don't think the training could have been any better," he says, "with the equipment we've got and the training we have, I don't think there's any way you can count the number of lives that are going to be saved." Like his colleagues, Stambaugh is proud of his job. He says, "I love it. You couldn't pay me enough to quit."

Saving lives is the real purpose of the Dallas Fire Department's emergency medical service. The Texas State Department of Health salutes this outstanding program, one of several similar emergency medical services now in operation in Texas. The State Health Department also offers to provide technical assistance, guidance, and training services to every community in our state that wishes to undertake a similar program. It's one of the ways the State Health Department seeks to promote and to protect the health of the public.

"...The great majority of us know Bob Krueger because he's visited here so many times. Negative politics might fool some people, but not many."

Phil George, San Angelo

America has gone through some tough times in the recent past. Negative, misleading political campaigns have caused many of us to question the integrity of people running for public office. And, without question, irresponsible fiscal management has been the major factor in this inflationary squeeze. Bob Krueger is different. Coming from a small town, he's straight-talking, honest, hard-working, and independent. And he wants to represent all of us in the U.S. Congress. Krueger wants to:

- Restore a government worthy of public trust.
- He's the only candidate to release to the people his full income tax statement for the past four years.
- He campaigns on what he believes, and he doesn't try to tell the voter what other candidates believe.
- Insure responsible control over the money presses.
- Prevent future sale of "cheap" wheat to the USSR.
- Cut back foreign aid to unfriendly nations.
- Return to a supply and demand economy.

If you want an honest, conservative-minded, hard-working Congressman, Bob Krueger needs your dollars.

Send contributions to Friends of Bob Krueger, P.O. Box 667, New Braunfels, Texas 78130.

Seven-Day Lemon Aids For Beauty

As you get back onto a busy fall schedule, you may find it harder to find time for your beauty routine. Here's how to make every day count, using just a few minutes of your golden time and a golden ally from nature: fresh lemons from Sun-kist Growers. Lemons can make you feel beautiful inside and look beautiful outside. To prove it, here's a seven-day schedule of Lemon Aids to Beauty . . .

Monday, start the new week brightly with a breakfast cup of hot lemonade swizzled with a cinnamon stick. Add enough boiling water to the juice of one lemon to make a cupful, then sweeten to taste with either honey or sugar.

Tuesday, treat yourself to the weekly manicure and pedicure. To help make cuticles more pliable and to remove stubborn city grime from under nails, begin with a Lemon Soak for both hands and feet. Fingertips should be soaked in warm water to which you've added juice of one-half lemon for five minutes at the start of a manicure. Before a pedicure, soak feet in a basin of warm water to which you've added juice of one whole lemon. You'll notice that skin feels softer and smoother. Nails are easier to work with too.

Wednesday, give your face a thorough, deep-down cleansing to remove surface impurities and excess oils. Nothing beats a home-made Lemon Oatmeal Facial Mask. Mix juice of one whole lemon with white of one egg. Add dry oatmeal gradually until you have a soft paste. Mix with chopping motion, then allow to set a few minutes till moisture is absorbed. Apply to face, avoiding area around the eyes. Let dry about ten minutes, then rinse off with clear, warm water. Regular skins can use this mask once a week. Oily skins can use it oftener. As with all skin care treatments it's best to try a simple test to be sure you are not allergic to any of the ingredients. To check your reaction to lemons, squeeze a couple of drops of lemon juice on a cotton ball and apply to a small patch of skin. If no irritation occurs within 24 hours, it is safe to proceed.

Thursday is a good day to beautify the kitchen and make sure that your lemons are always easily available. Add a garden atmosphere by creating a hanging garden of lemons. In one corner of the ceiling (or any area where structural support is sufficient), place three or four large metal hooks. Fill flowerpots with lemons, and cradle these pots inside macrame holders. Sling the holders from ceiling hooks, and voila—a hanging garden of lemons! Hang at different levels for best effect. Intersperse lemons with pots of trailing ivy or ferns if you like greenery. Once a week, check your garden. Wash the plants, and restock your lemon supply so you have enough for the following week.

Friday is beautiful hair day. Most hair can benefit from a Lemon Rinse after your shampoo. Squeeze juice from half a lemon, strain, then add to a glass of warm water. Pour directly on hair and massage well. Rinse thoroughly with clear, lukewarm water.

Saturday, you'll enjoy taking this Lemon Beauty Bath. Slice half a dozen fresh lemons and float them in a tub of hot water. You'll love the fragrance rising all around you and the way this Lemon Bath softens skin all over. While you soak, use wedges of fresh lemon to rub over callouses on elbows and feet.

Sunday, make a beautiful centerpiece for the table using natural ingredients in brilliant harvest colors. Lemons and tiny-striped gourds mix beautifully with sprays of bright Autumn leaves.

Lemons have something to offer seven days a week. Use them all the time, any season, and lemons will keep you in a sunny frame of mind.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

The "I Was Drunk" Defense

"Yes, I did beat up my wife," acknowledged the repentant husband in court, "but I was drunk at the time. The whiskey loosened my inhibitions, so I just wasn't myself."

But the court threw out this defense and found the defendant guilty of assault and battery. The court said:

"Although the use of intoxicating liquors does to some extent blind the reason and exasperate the passions, yet, as a man voluntarily brings it upon himself, he cannot use it as an excuse for crime."

This is a widely accepted rule of law, rejecting intoxication as an across-the-board defense against criminal charges. Nor is it an excuse that the defendant drank to "nerve" himself for a deed he would not have done if sober.

As another court put it: "All that the crafty criminal would require for a well-planned murder would be a revolver in one hand to commit the offense and a quart of liquor in the other to build his defense."

Nevertheless, most courts will take intoxication into account if the crime is one that requires a specific intent—to see if that intent was really there. Consider this case:

A man was accused of stealing an automobile. He had sat down drunk in the parked car of an acquaintance, noticed the keys in the ignition, and commenced to drive home.

There was no doubt that he had taken the car without permission. But the court said he could not be convicted of theft if he had been too drunk to have any notion of stealing it.

Furthermore, intoxication may be a good defense if it was not voluntary.

Suppose, for example, that a man committed a crime after innocently imbibing a "Mickey Finn." If the drink was potent enough to put him out of control, he could not be found guilty. In these circumstances, says the law, neither the intoxication nor the crime itself was truly his own act.

Love Thy Neighbor

You're not the only one who gets hot and bothered on a warm day. Surprise the newsboy when he comes to collect with a cold drink or an ice cream.

After getting the number you want from the information operator, say: "Thank you. Have a nice day."

Can you sing or perform? Volunteer to entertain at the hospital. (If you're shy, start with a small group in the children's ward.)

Many patients at hospitals would love to receive flowers from you. Be sure to tell your florist to "please FTD it." It doesn't cost a nickel extra, and the flowers will be sent by the Florists Transworld Delivery Association network.

Some people used to use fig juice as a cure for ringworm and toothache.

Impossible Dream

If everyone were practical all of the time, many great things that have been done would never have been tried. Would Charles Lindbergh even have attempted his solo trip across the Atlantic in The Spirit of St. Louis if he hadn't believed in something that the average person at the time would have said was impossible? But Lindbergh landed in Paris, and the world was never the same again.

Americans, inspired by that historic flight, were asked just 14 years later to man the greatest air armada the world had ever seen, the U.S. Air Force of World War II. The impossible age of the atom and space came next in fast succession, and the world moves on.

Progress now often seems to be carried forward by teams of people. But somewhere at the heart of things, there is always an individual who can believe in impossible things, and then, usually with a lot of hard work, dedication and skill, make them happen. It is this kind of individual who, in the final analysis, still moves the world forward.

If you tie or tape a stick to a paintbrush before setting it in paint remover, the bristles won't become bent while sitting.

If you have a problem with a chair-leg joint coming out and it's too loose for glue to hold well, do this: Hammer a small wedge into the hole. As the wedge is forced into the hole the wedge will sink into the wood and widen it, thus making it hold better. Glue is always a necessity for a joint like this.

If you're trying to put a screw into a hole that's too big, stuff into the hole some wooden matches, or toothpicks broken off to fit and dabbed with glue, and try again.

Benefit Dance Set For Nov. 2

Plans have been announced for the first annual benefit dance for the Concho Valley Home For Girls. This year's festivities will be held Saturday, November 2 at the San Angelo Coliseum, according to Dr. Darlene Hunter, president of the board of directors.

Mr. George Skeet of Water Valley, chairman of the event, said that a large crowd is expected to be on hand for the dance, with proceeds going to help meet the expenses of the Concho Valley's only home for hardluck girls. Skeet said that the Cavaliers, a local group, will provide the dance music from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Board members emphasized that anyone is welcome to attend the affair. Tickets can be obtained at the door, or may be purchased at a number of stores in the San Angelo area. A minimum donation of $7.50 per couple is requested. Both Skeet and Dr. Hunter expressed the feeling that this first annual benefit will give everyone an opportunity to have a good time in addition to helping a very worthwhile cause.

The Concho Valley Home For Girls, a non-profit charitable institution, is now in its second year of operation, and has received widespread support from all over West Texas and the Concho Valley.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

Many consumers in the market for a new car are wondering just what it is that the new emission control devices do, why they are needed, and most of all, how they affect a car's performance and cost.

First of all, the controls are needed to make the new car emissions come within the standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency under the Clean Air Amendments passed by Congress in 1970.

These amendments set strict limits for the hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen oxides emitted by cars. Although the EPA hasn't required any particular devices in order to meet these strict standards, most of the new cars will be using single catalytic converters to neutralize polluted emissions by trapping and treating them after they leave the car's combustion chamber.

How will these emission controls affect the performance of this year's car models? The EPA says that some new cars may be a bit harder to start in cold weather and somewhat slower to warm up. They may also be a little more hesitant in operation.

The new cars will require the use of a different type of gas, one that is unleaded and phosphorus-free. Unleaded gas is expected to reduce the health hazard of lead emitted in auto exhaust, especially in many urban areas, where cars are the major source of lead in the air. This new gas will cost more, but its extra cost may be offset by the fact that its relative cleanliness compared to standard gasoline means sparkplugs and mufflers should last longer. Some '75 models may get better gas mileage with emission controls and unleaded gas, others may not. The main factor in determining gas mileage is the car's weight. A car weighing one-half as much as another will get about twice the gas mileage as the heavier car. Air conditioning and automatic transmission may also lower gas mileage. On heavier cars, the new controls may lower gas mileage slightly, but the fuel economy of smaller, lighter cars won't really be affected.

The Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division lawyers say that consumers who are serious about getting better gas mileage should plan fewer short trips, avoid fast "jackrabbit" starts, keep cars tuned up, consider purchasing radial tires, and drive at a steady speed of between 30 and 50 m.p.h., depending on driving conditions. All of these can result in a more efficient use of gas.

As for price of the '75 cars with emission controls, a National Academy of Sciences report estimates that the new equipment will raise the sticker price about $140. Inflation and any optional equipment would be additional.

The EPA cautions that tampering with the emission control system of a new car can hamper performance and fuel economy and could cause engine damage. Also, under the Clean Air Amendments, auto manufacturers must provide a five-year or 50,000 mile warranty on emission control systems in new cars, and tampering with the system might void this warranty.

In addition, the Clean Air Amendments make it illegal for anyone to remove or render inoperative the emission control system of a car before its sale, or for the manufacturer or dealer to do so after the sale. A fine of up to $10,000 can be assessed for each violation.

Texas Air Control Board regulations also prohibit tampering with emission control devices. The Attorney General's Environmental Protection Division, which represents the Board, warns that violation of these rules are punishable by civil penalties of up to $1,000 a day.

Both the environmental protection and consumer protection divisions of the Attorney General's Office recently notified garagemen, service station owners, and publishers of a book on emission control by-pass methods of such penalties. They also pointed out that additional civil penalties could be assessed for violations of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Consumer Protection Act if misleading claims are made regarding fuel economy for bypassed systems.

Consumers who believe their car's emission control system has been tampered with should contact the Attorney General's Environmental Protection and Consumer Protection Divisions.

A Bishop Looks at Life

by Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of Episcopal Church

WE NEED TO EVALUATE OURSELVES

Alistair Cooke, the British-born journalist and author (now a naturalized U. S. citizen) proved himself a perceptive student of our history in the award-winning "America" television series, which has also appeared in a handsome book edition.

Cooke again demonstrated his timely insight when he spoke to the House of Representatives a few days ago in Washington. He bluntly said that we in America would be making a foolish spectacle of ourselves if we spent the Bicentennial Year proclaiming to a bored world that we are unique and holier than anybody else.

"We should remember," he said, "that our history, like that of all nations, is sometimes fine and sometimes foul. The important thing is to know which is which."

It would seem that this reminder is hardly necessary after we have passed thru the "foulness" of Watergate. But experience tells us that one of the hardest things for nations or individuals is to make an honest evaluation of themselves.

Cooke has suggested a form of anniversary observance we could all begin to join in immediately. As we review the past 200 years (and already many books and magazines are engaged in this process) we might ask ourselves about each major event of the past: Was that fine or foul? How should America's behaviour be graded in that instance.

We might even do this from day to day as we read our newspapers or listen to news or television. We might grade the actions and statements of leaders in government and business. We might ask such questions as these: Is this more evasion and delay? Or does this represent real statesmanship and constructive leadership?

I suggest that we go even farther. The ancient Greeks said that the beginning of wisdom is for a person to know himself. I am constantly amazed at how poorly people evaluate their own actions. They do not recognize their own strengths and weaknesses. They do not dare an honest self-examination, facing their words and deeds with the question: Was that fine or foul?

The first step toward a greater America, and toward greater individual Americans, is the kind of self-evaluation Alistair Cooke has proposed.

Cattle Raisers' Association Passes Disapproval of Cattle Destruction

Disapproval of intemperate protest acts such as the proposed wasteful destruction of hundreds of cattle in Stephenville, was passed in the form of a resolution at the quarterly directors meeting of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association October 2-3 at College Station.

More than 250 cattlemen and their guests from around the state attended the two day event. Hilmar G. Moore of Richmond, president of the association, presided over the general session.

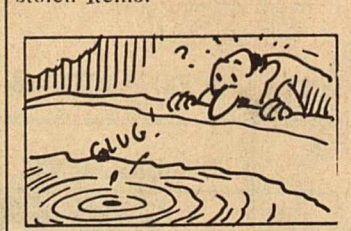

The resolution stated that in lieu of protest acts such as the aborted destruction of approximately 1,000 head of cattle in Stephenville, other action should be taken. These included prohibition of unrestricted meat imports, allocation of more funds for beef promotion, increased research efforts for the industry, fiscal responsibility at all levels of government and continued efforts to fight inflation so that the average consumer will have more disposable income.

In addition, Moore announced plans to travel to Washington to meet with Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and to New York to meet with vice presidential designate Nelson Rockefeller to brief them on the cattlemen's plight.

In other association business, resolutions were passed requesting the State Legislature to honor the biennial budget request of the State Agricultural Experiment Service to further research identified with the beef cattle industry, including range, forage and wildlife research; to meet the biennial budget request of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to further research of the beef cattle industry as well as various aspects of agricultural engineering; to strengthen the present fever tick force in the southern part of Texas along the Mexican border; and to support the recently proposed USDA beef grading standard revisions.

Don C. King, secretary, general manager of TSCRA, reported that the association records a total of 14,550 members owning more than 2 million head of cattle. During the eight months of 1974, he said, the association's field inspector force has recovered a total of $664,167.29 worth of stolen items.
