Does Sonora Need A Recreational Program?

tant role in the expanding development of any community, and the City of Sonora is no exception. As our city grows larger with each calendar month, so does the need for leisure time recreation.

The daily 8-5 working day, in most cases, leaves one with only the same routine to follow day to day, without an outlet to relieve tensions and to remain physically sound. Recreation seems to be the only answer to may...both young and old... that are caught with idle hours.

The City of Sonora is blessed with the necessary facilities to take care of a recreation program that can consist of various individual and team activities for the youth, teenagers, and adults of our city.

Such a program has benefits other than doing away with inactivity and keeping one

One of the standard bits of advice given to any political figure is "never admit you made a mistake." But that sort of old politics attitude has been changing, and it's refreshing to see an important public official have the honesty to recognize that he acted in haste, and that he has changed his mind.

I'm thinking of Russel Train, Environmental Protection Agency Administrator, who announced last week that his agency made a mistake in forcing the catalytic converter on 1975 model cars to reduce pollution. New findings show that the sulphuric acid which results from these converters probably does more harm than the pollutants from earlier model cars without converters. Therefore, he is delaying until 1980 in imposing tougher standards on the car industry.

I think it's also time for an attitude that is willing to admit some past mistakes in the dialogue between the president and the congress. Some congressional leaders have criticized the President for lack of leadership, even when he was presenting a program which, though not popular, did set a direction for the country. At the same time, the President criticized Congress for inaction even though a dozen major bills have already been passed by this Congress. Yet, when President Ford was minority leader of the Congress two

A second new student is a junior named RHONDA SNY-DER, Rhonda loves living in Sonora and being a part of the community. Before moving to Sonora she lived in Odessa. Business Principles is her favorite class during school hours. She also admits that Mrs. Prugel is her favorite teacher. Most of Rhonda's spare time is spent riding around and listening to the radio. CATHY RUSSELL, a junior class member moved to Sonora from Kerrville. Her hobbies include being outdoors and "being close to nature", and just being with friends. College seems to be a goal for her after graduation. She plans to attend a university in Colorado and major in Forrestry. 'But" she added "I'm in no real hurry to leave my family

Math is Mel's favorite subject and Donald Patton is his favorite teacher. Once again a reminder to read next week's Teen Scene for more spotlights on new students.

Laura Gibbs and Nancy Mooney seemed to be having a few minor problems this past week as both had a hard time getting up and down stairs. Both girls would appreciate someone helping them.

Purple Martins Pay Their Rent

Purple martins are ideal tenants who pay their rent in an ususual way...each bird eats thousands of mosquitos.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials say it is not to late to prepare for these helpful birds although, ideally, martin houses should be put up or cleaned in the fall.

The birds are presently winging their way back from South America to look for honeymoon cottages. Some already have arrived. Their requirements are rigid, so any old bird house won't do.

If you already have a martin house, give it a good cleaning with soap and water, and make sure it is securely fastened to the pole. If you don't have a martin house and would like one, they are available commercially, or you can build one yourself. Most libraries have house plans, and the completed structure should cost less than $10.

Although some bird lovers have had good success attracting martin with hollowed, long-necked gourds and plastic milk cartons, a house with at least six compartments for nests seems to be the best bet.

Each compartment should be at least 6x6x6 inches, and the openings should be round and not more than 21/2 inches in diameter. The house should be placed in an open area at least 15 feet above the ground. Martins like lots of wide, open spaces free from obstructions such as trees and buildings, and many times failure to attract martins can be attributed to the tight conditions around the house.

Will Your Child Be Hungry In 1985?

[Editor's note: Last week Mrs. Jean Thompson's news letter, written for the Independent Cattlemen's Association, ended with the question of who is going to replace the labor force of farmers and ranchers when the little man is pushed too

If America's food supply goes solely into the hands of big conglomerates or corporations, what will the price of food be when this work has to be done by union workers on eight hour shifts, five days a week, supervised by management personnel? And can wages motivate people to do this kind of work?

Publicity on the world food situation during the World Food Conference produced a most curious reaction of an outcry for governmental controls over land and food production. Every governmental control affecting food production in the United States has achieved only disruption of food production. And if any amount of bureaucratic control could produce food, Russia wouldn't be buying it from us. She has absolute bureaucratic control and has had our agricultural technology since World War II. She has certainly proven her mechanization capacity and yet, with 50 percent of her working class growing food, she cannot produce enough to keep her people feed. China has 80 percent of her population working in agriculture and last year had to conscript more from the cities into the fields. Shouldn't that be sufficient evidence that no kind of any amount of bureaucratic controls can insure adequate food supplies?

In fact, Russia's experience ndicates there is an inverse ratio betwen governmental intervention and food production. She had been viewed as the breadbasket of Europe before introducing large scale collectivization, but has been unable to solve her agricultural production problems since then. For the past three decades, the rate of growth in her population has exceeded the rate of growth in agricultural production.

What is the explanation for the amazing productivity of American agriculture which so far exceeds other nation's food production with so few food producers? What does the American farmer and rancher have that the Russians do not have? Only freedom and incentive for motivation. Both of these are being endangered. The importance and practical can be seen by examining the way our food production chain works. Government funded research develops new ideas for improvement and its Extension Services brings them from Experiment Station into the field. Then the food producer studies these new ideas to see how they can be tailored to fit his particular locality and situation. To implement them, he has to gamble his own financial investments and work on his ability to adapt the new techniques to his unique environmental conditions. This is a powerful and two-fold incentive. He is motivated by both the necessity to protect his financial investments and the challenge to his ego to prove out in practice the soundness and validity of his

No two farms or ranches are alike. Soil, climatic conditions, and interaction between the two, vary widely from place to place. Ideas that prove highly successful on one place can be total failures on another. The very best of theories will not grow food unless they are woven into the whole of highly varied conditions nature presents in each location. Amer-
