Texas Taxes

By BOB BULLOCK, State Comptroller

Austin—For too long and in too many ways, state government has treated Texas cities like stepchildren at a family reunion.

But the one outstanding thing the state has done for cities came in 1967 when the Legislature gave them the right to levy a one per cent city sales tax by a vote of the people.

This came when our municipalities were strapped financially and property taxes, their only major source of revenue, were strained to the breaking point.

Very quickly the sales tax proved to be a great asset, and if any tax could ever be called "popular", this proved to be it. More than 800 cities, from the smallest to the giants, voted in the tax.

These 800 cities last year received more than $200 million in city sales taxes. For some cities the local sales tax revenue represents as much as a third of the city budget.

Quite properly, collection and administration of the city sales tax was put in the Comptroller's office. Unfortunately, at that point the rush to help the cities bogged down in bureaucracy and sluggishness.

The Comptroller at the time adopted a system of sending cities their money on a quarterly basis—anywhere from 60 to 90 days after the sales taxes were actually collected from the public by retail merchants. For instance, taxes collected by merchants in the calendar quarter of October, November and December were sent to the Comptroller at the end of January but the Comptroller wouldn't get money refunded back to the cities before late March.

These checks were so late that a few of the major cities flew people to Austin every time to wait around for their checks and fly them home to the bank.

We have now changed the system. In our first effort to speed up the payments, we got the October-December, 1974, quarter's payments out before the end of February. This was done simply by speeding up our processes all along the line and by setting an earlier cutoff date, meaning that some late payments by merchants were left over for the next payment period.

Now, starting this month, we have perfected a monthly system which I felt should have been used all along. The first round of payments totaled $16.1 million. Again, we accomplished this just by administrative improvements.

A great number of city officials have expressed appreciation for the new system, saying it will help them greatly with their budgeting, their cash flow and their planning ahead. We are grateful for these comments.

Even if a city doesn't need its monthly payment to meet current bills, the money can be invested and earn interest. I know that many cities have very good investment programs for their cash balances and I'm glad the state can give them this additional input.

On many other matters besides the sales tax all of us in state government should remember that 80 per cent of the people of Texas live in cities, and anything we do to help city hall helps nearly 10 million Texans.

THE DEVIL'S RIVER PHILOSOPHER SEZ..... Government's Figures On Minimum Income Needs Are Way Too Small

Editor's note: The Devil's River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the dry Devil's River reviews some figures on the cost of living this week.

Dear editor:
According to the latest government figures, a family of four requires an annual income of $14,300 to maintain a moderate standard of living and $20,800 if it wants to enjoy a few luxuries. If it can abide living at an austere level, it can get by on $9,200.

Some people have scoffed at these figures, saying they're way too high, but I have confidence in them because they were prepared by government workers in Washington making from $40,000 to $60,000 a year and claiming they can't get by on that.

People who think these figures are too high don't understand the thinking of the men who established this government 200 years ago. For example, everybody knows their main plank was the right of every person to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

All right, how can you pursue happiness sitting on the bank when the fish are biting out in the middle of the lake? Clearly, the Founding Fathers intended for everybody to have a motorboat. There goes a thousand dollars right there, if you can abide the austere level. Five or six thousand if you want a few luxuries.

Maybe through ignorance or low standards some people were willing to open up the west riding in un-air-conditioned covered wagons with two-wheel brakes and no power steering and a busted guitar for music, but start out on a trip today in August in a hot car with no radio and two kids in the back seat and everybody knows you're pursuing misery, not happiness. If the principles on which this government was founded mean anything, they mean a man is entitled to take a vacation trip in comfort. Add another thousand dollars to the cost of living.

I could go on, but you can see how hard it is to get along on $20,000 a year, not to mention $14,000. And that's just for the ordinary way of life. If you want to run for Congress it takes around $150,000 in some states. For a Senator, anywhere from $500,000 to one million. For President, 10 to 20 million, on the austere level; 40 million if you want a few luxuries. Washington is out of touch with the cost of living.
Yours faithfully,
J. A.

A Bishop Looks at Life

by Everett H. Jones, retired Bishop of Episcopal Church
IS THERE A TEST FOR RIGHT AND WRONG?
In a recent cartoon in The New Yorker four men are standing around a desk engaged in making a business decision. One of the men reaches for the telephone and asks: "Can you send someone to tell us the difference between right and wrong?" I thought to myself: "It is at least encouraging that the question was asked. Hopefully it is being asked more often not only in business and politics, but also in individual lives."

Then I asked myself what I would say if I were requested to explain the difference. There was a time when there was such general agreement on right moral behavior the question did not need to be asked. Certainly we are not living in such a time today. Moreover, it must be admitted that there are "gray areas" (neither black nor white) where even ethical experts differ on what is good and what is bad. I am old-fashioned enough to believe there are still some valid guide-lines, and I believe we all need to be reminded of them, especially our young people. I would begin with the Ten Commandments. Here is a moral code that has endured for at least thirty centuries. Rightly understood and interpreted, these ancient standards still provide invaluable foundations for a moral life. Then I would point to the life and teachings of Jesus. His key word for the good life was "love": love for God and love for others. That action is right which represents love in action. He further explained his moral standard in what we call the Golden Rule: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise." (St. Luke 6:31) For me there is still greater help in trying to think as Jesus did. As St. Paul put it, "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 2:5) One of the best simple tests, which can be understood by young people as well as adults, is to ask these questions: "Does this decision or action represent my best self? Is this the kind of person that in my best moments I want to be?" I know a mother who always said these words to any one of her children who was going from the family for a period of time: "Remember who you are and what you stand for." Not a bad kind of remembering for all of us all of the time!

A caterpillar crawls along a branch. So unsightly and useless is he that at best he is scorned, at worst, exterminated. A grain of sand, one of an infinite number, lodges within an oyster's shell. It is coarse and hard, worthless and unwanted. And then, there are people. They are restless, a bit lonely sometimes, and apprehensive about the future. They enter churches and speak to God. From the cocoon, a gaily-colored butterfly emerges. People paint pictures of it; children try to claim it as their own. From the oyster, a pale, creamy pearl is taken. It is admired, sold for a small fortune, prized. So, God changes the lowly caterpillar and richly clothes the grain of sand. How much more can He change the lives of those who ask it of Him! God awaits you. Come meet Him in church this Sunday.

Reddy's helpful tips for your Room Air-Conditioners

Your air-conditioner will operate inefficiently if filters are not cleaned regularly. Dirt and lint, collected on the filters, restricts air flow to the coils. Clean filters every two weeks.

Let nature help you save energy by shading your home with trees and shrubs to help cut down on summer cooling costs. Draw draperies against afternoon sun.

Remember to keep outside doors, windows, and fireplace dampers closed. If you have window units, close the heating vents near the floor, as cool air falls and can escape through vents.

You purchased fine-home comfort when you bought your air conditioning unit. Properly maintained, it will offer you years of efficient service. A once-a-year check-up by your dealer pays dividends in savings on operating and breakdown costs.

News Letter

By Bob Krueger

A lot of people criticize a great many government welfare programs, and with good reason. But it's equally important to recognize when government programs are well-directed, and two bills passed by the House last week should help people in our area.

The Older Americans Act recognizes needs of some older citizens that cannot always be met by either family or local community. Its Foster Grandparents Program pays the minimum wage to certain older Americans needing financial assistance who are seeking an opportunity to give their attention and affection to young people. Foster Grandparents spend time with children in hospitals, by working with children from broken homes, and by assisting in other ways young people who, through no fault of their own, come from families where they do not get adequate attention.

We all know that young children need love, encouragement, and the attention and wisdom of older people, and that older Americans want to keep a sense of their usefulness. Here is a program that helps young and old together, to the benefit of both.

There are other useful programs in this Act: one, Meals-on-Wheels, brings hot meals to shut-in elderly Americans who are unable to prepare meals for themselves. Another gives part-time jobs to older Americans in rural areas assisting in conservation projects.

A similar bill passed this week that offers continuing assistance to people with developmental disabilities. This act has, in the past, provided exceptionally good evaluative and organizational aid to the many state and private programs for the disabled, as well as establishing successful demonstration projects for treatment. People with cerebral palsy, autism, dyslexia, mental retardation, and other life-long disabling conditions will stand to benefit from this legislation which is, in my opinion, a model for the appropriate role of the federal government in health and welfare.

Problems remain in the way these programs are presented. Bills are often written with automatic funding increases from year to year, and that builds in automatic inflation. These programs require continued scrutiny and the best efforts of your representative to try to keep costs under control; but they also require him to be responsive to the needs of older Americans for whom private industry still does too little and to those with special and costly needs in our society and to see to it that these people are not overlooked by their government.

If you would like information about any of these programs, I hope that you will not hesitate to call on your district congressional offices in San Angelo, Del Rio, San Antonio, or New Braunfels.

Congress Passes Educational Bill

A legislative appropriation of approximately seven billion dollars, earmarked for educational purposes, was passed by the House April 16, according to Bob Krueger, Congressman of the 21st Congressional District.

Krueger explained that the educational bill proposed supplement funds for the fiscal years of 1976 and 1977 for elementary and secondary schools, and including support for adult education and the handicapped.

Krueger stated that the bill will also provide $649,000,000 for school assistance in federally affected areas or Impact Aid, and subordinate funds to insure continuation of the many excellent bi-lingual and early childhood development programs in the 21st district.

"I am extremely pleased that Impact Aid and early school aid funds that Sonora has depended on for the education of school children has been fully endorsed and authorized by the Congress," Krueger said.

The education bill also provides supplemental opportunity grants for the many middle income students who otherwise would be unable to meet the substantial increase in college costs and further provides assistance to both public and school libraries.

"This application for education, though costly, is the best investment we can make in America's future", Krueger concluded.

The valuable prizes being given away are part of the special promotions planned by Foxworth-Galbraith during the

It's the night of the big dinner party, and Fred and Felicia Foolhardy have a problem: what to do with an exposed extension cord.

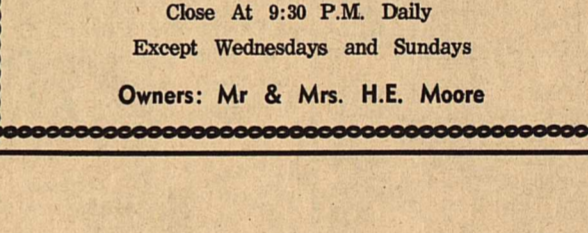

Fred compounds his error by smothering the cord through the door. A cord that is not exposed to air is likely to overheat—and an unseen cord may be stepped on or otherwise damaged by an unwitting passerby.

There's a right way to use an extension cord, say experts at Underwriters Laboratories, a safety organization with over 80 years of experience in testing electrical products with regard to public safety.

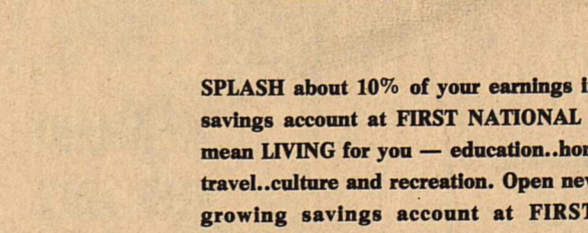

With the help of these important tips about extension cord safety, the Foolhardy's dinner party should be as safe as it will be enjoyable.

Extend the cord away from the path of people. Place it on top of the carpet, and make sure it is not coiled or bunched up!

Now I can use an outlet in the next room. Shut the door, and forget about it!

Safety is often a matter of knowing what to do and doing it!
