Two calls came in at 8 a.m., from White's Auto and Braden Motor Company. The front plate glass window at White's Auto had supposedly been broken with a mop found at the scene of the crime. A hole large enough to crawl through had been broken out in the window where a burglar or burglars entered the store taking a record player, radio, cassett for the building, a ladder and recorder and some tennis shoes. The radio was found in an alley by Jack Kerbow, one of the owners of the store, when he started to open up the store shortly before eight

Rogers said the estimated cost of supplies taken was near $1,000.

Rate Increase Sought By Lone Star Gas Co. The Railroad Commission

Lone Star Gas Company's representative, J. T. Morgan, has requested Sonora city officials to enact an ordinance to raise residential and commercial gas rates by about 19.8 cents per thousand cubic feet. Services Held Monday For L. S. Sosa

Mr. Lorenzo S. Sosa, resident of Sonora the past 35 years, died July 26 in a San Angelo hospital.

Funeral services for Mr. Sosa were held Monday at St. Ann's Catholic Church with burial in Sonora Cemetery. He was born January 1, 1917 in Boerne and was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include four daughters, Linda Sotello of Morgan Hills, California, Rebecca Garcia of Eldorado, Yolanda Sosa of San Antonio, and Ysabella Siquieros of California; one son, Lorenzo Sosa of San Jose, California; two brothers and 13 grand-authorized Lone Star to increase its intracompany 'city gate rate' to $1.0399 per thousand cubic feet of gas. According to Morgan, the city gate rate applies to natural gas delivered by Lone Star's Transmission Division to its distribution divisions for sale to residential and commercial users. The new rate replaces a temporary emergency rate of 94.19 cents per thousand cubic feet set by the Railroad Commission on May 1, 1975.

Morgan explained that the new rate will increase Sonora residential customers' gas bills by about $1.21 a month. Morgan further stated that his request is a minimum application covering only the gate rate charge.

Included in the most recent Railroad Commission order was the authorization to increase Lone Star's automatic pass-on of increased gas costs to 85 per cent adjusted monthly. Lone Star was formerly allowed to only pass 65 per cent of their increased costs for gas every six months. Morgan said that Lone Star was also seeking to have this provision included in the new city rate ordinance.

Morgan noted that the $1.0399 figure authorized by the Railroad Commission was evidence which reflected $1.20 as shown by the Company, and 94 cents as testified to by the cities. In addition to the increased rates for residential and commercial customers, Morgan said the Railroad Commission's order is designed to provide Lone Star an 8 per cent rate of return on the fair value rate base set by the Commission.

Change Proposed In Brucellosis By Bob Krueger

Interested Texas cattle producers will have an opportunity to express their views on proposed changes in the state's brucellosis eradication program during a public hearing September 4 in Austin, scheduled by the Texas Animal Health Commission according to Dr. H. Q. Sibley, executive director.

On July 1, 1975, 24 Texas counties had qualified as bovine brucellosis free areas and 23 other counties had no known infection. Current regulations do not contain provisions for protection of these clean areas, Sibley emphasizes.

The TAHC has proposed a number of major changes in the brucellosis program. The Commission voted to propose the regulation changes to bring the Texas program more in line with national brucellosis standards contained in the "Uniform Methods and Rules" for eradication recommended by the United States Animal Health Association.

Changes under consideration include:

1. Outlining the manner in which cattle may move into, within, and from certified areas to protect the status of these areas. If an adequate number of breeding cattle are being sampled at the time of slaughter from a clean area, the Commission could allow cattle to move from these areas without further tests.

2. Authorizing testing of all eligible test cattle prior to loan, lease, sale, or any change of ownership except, (a) breeding cattle that are consigned from herd of origin directly to slaughter and (b) animals originating in certified brucellosis free herds. These changes would give the Commission flexibility in handling the various situations that occur in different parts of the state.

3. Requiring "S" branding of brucellosis exposed cattle only when going on permit to slaughter or to a quarantined feedlot. This would comply with federal regulations which became effective on April 22, 1975.

4. Authorizing and providing for using supplementary tests in certain phases of the program. 5. Allowing official brucellosis calfhood vaccination down to two months of age instead of the present three months of age. 6. Outlining provisions to move breeding cattle from a county which has lost its modified certified free status.

7. Providing for methods of handling brucellosis negative cattle at livestock markets by keeping them separate from infected, exposed, or unknown status cattle.

The proposed changes will be posted in every Texas courthouse for at least 30 days prior to the September 4 public hearing, said Sibley.

The Texas Animal Health Commission also is planning a series of information meetings throughout the state to explain these proposed changes to livestock owners.

Questions concerning the brucellosis program should be directed to the Texas Animal Health Commission in Austin (78701) or to TAHC field veterinarians.

News Letter

As I write this, we in the House are engaged in one of the most heated debates of this session. The debate centers on the comprehensive energy bill on which I have been working for the past five months. The outcome is not vet certain, but several observations can be made.

First, it is extremely difficult to win agreement in Congress on a national energy policy for three reasons: (a) the oil and gas industry is disliked by a number of congressmen who allow their bias against an industry to prevent rational national policy; (b) issues often are decided on regional rather than national bases-New England voted against encouraging new domestic production because they lack such production, for example; (c) the awareness of energy as a national problem is so new to so many members that they have little expertise in the area; and, (d) many members vote for what is popular with constituents before the next election

need for sometimes painful decisions now that will serve the entire nation in the long-run. Secondly, a strong dependency still exists to try to divide positions as being either Democratic or Republican, or conservative or liberal. Frequently, however, national policy cannot be decided according to these over-simplified labels. In my judgment, an intelligent energy policy has to have the following characteristics: protection for the consumers against sudden overwhelming price increases; encouragement for domestic oil and gas production to reduce our dependence on Arab imported oil; a policy that will help to develop a market system in which consumers and producers can make their own choices instead of being tied up in expensive and cumbersome governmental regula-

This past week, I offered a national policy alternative regarding our national oil consumers and encouraged domestic production. My version had strong bipartisan support and was supported by every member from Texas except one, but failed narrowly. Those Republicans who opposed it were all from pricing system which

believe would have protected

New England while the Democratic opposition similarly came largely from non-producing states. The opposition was voting for price rollbacks which would save 1c or so per gallon in the short-run, but by 1980 would make us so far more dependent on imported oil than we are now. After my proposal narrowly failed, I succeeded in removing the other pricing provision from the bill and at this time we are still seeking to find a compromise position. I have met four times in the last five days with Frank Zarb, head of the Federal Energy Administration, to work out a proposal which would find both majority support in the House and could be signed into law by the President. I have good reason to believe that my proposal would have been signed by the President had it passed. At this writing, I am hopeful that a compromise between the President and the Congress may still be possible and that I may be able to prove helpful in this regard. Our nation needs not a congressional policy nor a Presidential policy on energy, but a national policy that will provide for our present needs and that of future genera-

He Takes A Sad Look At Low State Lying Has Fallen Into

River Philosopher on his bitterweed ranch on the Dry Devil's River examines truth and its absence in his letter this week. Dear editor:

For some time now I've been studying the part of the lie in national and world affairs and the way it looks to me lying has just about been

It used to be that one of the worst things you could call a man was a liar, but nowdays let one politician call another a liar and people just shrug: so what, they're probably both right. You read a headline: Editor

Harold Smith Denies CIA Role, and people's reaction is, You know he's guilty.

Admit something is true about what you're accused of and people will say "Yeah, he's just admitting that to cover up something he's done that's worse." Nothing seems to work any more. Not even No Comment. Ask a politician a sharp question and if he says "No comment," people say, "Ahhah, he's guilty as sin." If he says, "I neither deny or confirm it," people say he's just confirmed it. It has got to the point where if somebody accuses you of something, the best thing to do is get out of sight. If you hang around to deny it, you're a goner. No use issuing a statement through your campaign manager. He's already under indictment for accepting illegal contributions to your last campaign.

Understand, this isn't just a national condition. Lying

Editor's note: The Devil's has become such a habit among the world leaders that a nation caught telling the truth will be accused of just trying to befuddle the others. 'What're they up to this time?" the others will say. 'Something's going on there we don't understand. Better have our undercover people look into it.'

In other words, lying as an instrument of personal, national and international policy has been ruined. It's like sleeping pills. The more you take the more you need, till finally nothing works.

If you're from Texas, boast about the little things too.

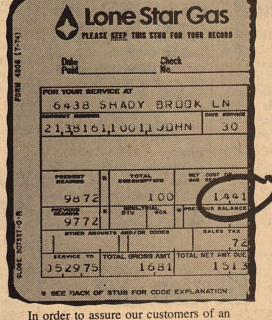

Everyone knows that things in Texas are "bigger and better" than anywhere else. But has anyone ever heard a Texan boast about something smaller? 'We mean natural

Right now in Lone Star's service area, our customers are paying one of the lowest general service rates for natural gas anywhere. And in these inflationary times, that's something to boast about.

Of course we're lucky to be living in the Southwest, where the majority of natural gas reserves are located. And that's one of the reasons for our dependable service and adequate supplies. So you wonder, "If natural gas is so accessible to us, why are gas rates going up?"

It's simply costing much more to obtain natural gas these days. Higher prices for deeper drilling. Higher prices for the transportation of gas. And stiffer competition for new supplies.

Natural gas is a premium fuel, but it hasn't always been priced at its real value. Lower prices in the past are one of the reasons that demand for natural gas has exceeded available supplies. Some years ago it became unprofitable to drill for natural gas, so many producers were forced to reduce their investments in exploration. But now that natural gas is almost priced competitively with other energy sources, exploration has begun to increase.

In order to assure our customers of an adequate supply to meet their needs, higher natural gas rates are inevitable. It's simply going to cost more than it has in the past. But it's worth it, because natural gas is one of the most efficient, non-polluting fuels available. And that's one of the big things in Texas we like to boast about.

Headed for the "Majors" - that's his dream. But don't count on it, even if he stays in baseball!

For in thousands of cities and towns across America we know that baseball isn't just the major leagues. We know boys on their way up...and men on their way down... and fellows who have gone about as far as they can go. A real ball player is one who gives his club his best-in any league.

How close this comes to a fundamental conviction of the Church!

Christianity gives a man solid footing for his faith in God and in himself. To achieve the full potential of our God-given talents is primary; to fulfill every dream is secondary.

The Church promises no man earthly success. But it helps us to appraise the gifts God gave ... to use them honestly and unselfishly. And, startlingly, it points the way to new goals, far beyond our dreams.

Strawberry Ice Cream | Cherries Sparkle In Custard Ring

Plump and sparkling Northwest fresh sweet cherries fill the center of a delicate baked custard ring. Served chilled, this refreshing dessert will be a favorite for hot summer days.

The season for fresh sweet cherries from the Pacific Northwest begins in mid-June and continues into August, with the peak supply in July. To keep them at their best, store fresh sweet cherries in plastic bags in the refrigerator. Wash only as they are

Because the fresh sweet cherry season is so short, plan to freeze some of these summer jewels for year 'round enjoyment. Simply pack whole washed cherries into freezer containers, leaving pits and stems intact. Cover securely and freeze. Pitted cherries may also be frozen, using either a dry sugar or syrup pack.

Sweet Cherry Custard Ring

2 cups Northwest fresh sweet 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla cherries 2 cups milk, scalded 3 eggs, slightly beaten Mint, for garnish 1/4 cup sugar

Store fresh sweet cherries in plastic bag in the refrigerator until time to use. Wash just before serving. For custard, combine eggs, sugar, salt and vanilla. Save Money At Laundry Time Follow some simple energy-saving tips at laundrytime to save money, too! Here's how:

Wash clothes in cold water. There's no noticeable difference in laundering results between hot and cold water washes.

. Do only full laundry loads. Several small loads of laundry use more water and electricity than one big load. Sort clothes according to amount and kind of soil. colorfastness and type of fabric. A regular laundry load will need a full 10-minute

Don't over-dry laundry. Besides wasting electricity, over-drying wrinkles clothes. Take full advantage of clear, warm days and hang your wet laundry outdoors to be air-dried.

. Save on ironing, too, by folding clothes while they're still warm from the dryer. Wrinkles can be "pressed out" by hand if they don't have time to set.

Uninsured Motorists May Suffer Loss Of Driving Privileges

Uninsured motorists involved in traffic accidents resulting in death, personal injury or property damage in excess of $250 may be subject to suspension of their driving privileges and vehicle registrations under a revision to the Texas Safety Responsibility Law.

Colonel Wilson E. Speir, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said the new law--which was enacted during the recent Legislative session--requires DPS to evaluate traffic accidents (meeting the above criteria of seriousness) to determine if there is a "reasonable probability of judgement" against one or more of the drivers. If such a finding is made, and if the driver or owner has no liability insurance meeting the state's minimum requirement of $10,000/$20,000/ $5,000, then the DPS must require the uninsured motorist believed at fault to satisfy the security provisions of the law. This may be done in one of the following ways:

By submitting a written release signed by the other damaged parties.

By filing an installment agreement made with the other damaged parties in-

By depositing security in a sufficient amount to take care of damages sustained by others and maintain proof of financial responsibility for a period of five years from the date of the accident.

By filing copies of civil damage judgement obtained against other parties involved in the accident, or a judgement of non-liability. When the security prosatisfied by the uninsured owners and operators, and the DPS determines there is 'a reasonable probability of judgement" against such persons, the following provisions of the law become applicable: A written notice of future driver license and motor vehicle registration suspension must be forwarded to such persons by certified mail. Such a notice will advise that a hearing will be granted upon request.

Upon receipt of a request for hearing, the DPS will notify the persons requesting same to appear before the traffic court judge in their precinct of residence, and it will become the responsibility of the traffic court judge to determine whether or not there is "a reasonable probability of judgement' and, if so, the amount of security to be deposited with DPS by the uninsured

Any suspension invoked by the DPS in motor vehicle accident cases of this type will be stayed by a request for hearing until such time as the matter is finally resolved through administrative hearing or the courts.

Speir said the new law was enacted to enable Texas to comply with a U.S. Supreme Court decision. The decision had invalidated portions of the previous Texas Safety Responsibility Law because of a lack of "due process" provisions in the old law.

A Bishop Looks at Life

By Everett H. Jones, Retired Bishop of Episcopal Church How Do We Recover Our Self-Esteem?

There are times when we desperately need a vote of confidence, an assurance from someone or somewhere that will restore our damaged self-esteem. Depreciation of our self-worth is as serious as depreciation of our money.

The damage may come from a variety of causes: a broken marriage or one in the process of breaking up; the failure to receive an expected promotion; a sense of rejection by a friend or loved one; the enforced withdrawal from satisfying activity due to illness or old age.

Today one of the most widespread causes for this kind of low morale is unemployment. Even worse than the suffering in financial terms is the low self-evaluation that comes when a person finds that he has no marketable value. In a culture that identifies a man with the work he does what is left of a person when he has no work?

If you face this need for secrets of maintaining selfesteem (and we all have this need at times in life), here are some practical sugges-

Cling to those who love you and believe in you whoever they may be. Give a new priority to the "maintenance love" you have taken for granted. Be generous in expressing the love you feel and be grateful for the love that comes back to you. Many a crisis has been weathered by this kind of love given and

If possible, find a way to express your concern for others, in order to escape from your concern for yourself. For example, volunteer for some needed service in your church or in a community social service agency. Do something that you can do well and that wins approval. As social beings we need the approval of others if we are to approve of ourselves.

Take an honest inventory of yourself, both positive and negative. Recognize and appreciate your own abilities (even if at the moment they are not recognized in the marketplace.) Face some of your own limitations and consider what you can do about them. If you have some free time, look into courses of study or forms of training that will interest you as well as prepare you for a better future. Treat self-pity as a cardinal sin, and pat yourself on the back when you deserve it.

Remember that, ultimately, the best cure for damaged self-esteem is a spiritual one. It is to know that God loves you, believes in you, has a plan for your life--that you are important to Him. Faith, prayer and worship are good for the soul at all times, but in a period of self-depreciation they are indispensable.

Health Tips Texas Medical Association

With the increase in food prices has come an increase in home canning, as families buy foods in bulk at their peak seasons to save on the grocery bill. And with the increase in home canning has come a serious health hazard--botulism. Botulism is during storage there is plenty a serious form of food poison of time for the fatal toxin to that produces critical illness be produced. and is fatal in one-fourth of all cases, the Texas Medical

Unless strict precautions are followed, home-canned food may be contaminated with the spores of Clostridium botulinum. The danger does not come directly from eating the bacteria themselves. In fact, a great deal of fresh food contains the spores of the bacteria which, when eaten, pass harmlessly through the digestive tract. However, under special conditions Clostridium botulinum produces a toxin, a substance which may be the most lethal human poison in existence. Food canning, if improperly carried out, can provide perfect conditions for the production of this poison.

Association states.

The problem of botulism is prevented in commercial canning by use of equipment producing a combination of temperature and pressure capable of killing the spores so they cannot grow into

Home canning can be carried out safely if correct procedures are carefully followed. A pressure cooking device is recommended for obtaining the combination of temperature and pressure which can kill the botulinum organism during the canning

If you have a supply of nome-canned food, you can make sure of its safety by one simple precaution--boil before using! Although the bacteria boiling, the highly dangerous toxin is made harmless by ordinary boiling--10 minutes at sea level, longer at higher altitudes. Make sure every particle of the food is heated at the boiling point in order to destroy all of the dangerous toxin.

Botulism kills through the paralyzing action of its toxin upon the nervous system. Control of the muscles is lost. beginning with those about the face and neck. Loss of the ability to swallow makes it impossible to eat, leads to choking which may intorduce foreign materials into the lungs, and usually produces death in several days. Most patients give a history of having eaten food which tasted spoiled, followed in a few hours by nausea and vomiting. Later the symptoms of muscle weakness begin to appear. If medical aid is quickly obtained and the correct diagnosis is rapidly made, it may be possible to save the patient. A serum may be injected which, while may not be destroyed by it cannot help the nerves already damaged, is sometimes able to limit further paralysis.

But the best treatment for botulism is prevention. Commercially canned food can be considered safe. If you are given some homecanned food you can make sure it is safe by boiling at least 10 full minutes before use. Those who do their own canning should review their procedure to make certain it protects against botulism, even if they have been canning for years without incident!

Never taste preserved food which appears to have spoiled for a very small amount of botulism toxin can produce illness. When in doubt, throw

PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT

Application has been made to the State Banking Board of Texas to form a new state bank in Sonora to be called the Sonora State Bank. The initial directors of that proposed new bank are listed below.

The original applicants for the proposed Sonora State Bank firmly believe that a second bank to serve Sonora, Sutton County and the surrounding area is needed to help take care of the growth of this area. The competition that will be afforded by a second bank will be healthy and will be aimed at meeting the banking needs of all of the people of this community.

The proposed Sonora State Bank will be locally owned and locally operated for the benefit of the local people. The purpose of this announcement is to invite all interested citizens of this area to participate in this community venture. The original organizers of the Sonora State Bank have decided to increase the capitalization of that proposal in order to permit stockholder participation by any local citizen who is interested.

All stockholders will come in on an equal footing. Any new stockholders will pay exactly the same price for their stock -- no more and no less -- than did the original subscribing stockholders.

Anyone who is interested in subscribing to the stock of the proposed Sonora State Bank should either contact one of the members of the initial board of directors listed below or sign and send in the enclosed form. The board of directors has established September 1, 1975, as the deadline for taking additional subscriptions.
