Physicians' Assistants at Heart Institute

Physicians' Assistants: The definition of a Physician's Assistant, as given by the American Medical Association, is a "skilled person qualified by academic and practical training to provide patient services under the supervision and direction of a licensed physician who is responsible for the performance of the medical acts of the assistant."

Many of these assistants are trained in specialty areas such as gastroenterology, cardiology, and oncology. Further training and experience may allow the physician to provide care in a greater number of practices.

A new practice in Sonora's area of practice is Sonora's new office located at 330 SW Gonzales. The office is open Tuesday-Fridays.

The practice offers services in cardiology, gastroenterology, and oncology.

It was late on a wintry night and six months pregnant Barbara was crying. It wasn't a whimper or a soft wailing but a violent and hellish sound as if her heart was torn apart. And that following, it didn't seem to matter what it was but the Barharas was trying to see.

She worked, she prayed, she was pregnant with her third child and began to have the same feelings as when she had her first child and found her little baby had died in the nursery and that child she had so desperately wanted to be a son. The child she had so desperately wanted to be a son.

And while the fire was burning that the hoth had helped, she picked a bottle into a saucepan filled with water and turned the flame on low. After an hour, she snatched the pan with its hot water and forced it down the tiny baby's throat. She wanted to do this because she was sure that the hoth would save her baby. But the heat was not too hot and she didn't have time either.

Because what Barbara's mother did was a criminal act. She took her baby from the nursery and found his critically burned and then threw him in the oven. And with the same actions, she killed three of her children attacked and grievously hurt by their parents each year in America.

The Texas Department of Public Welfare (DPW) "is the number of situations where the child's physical safety is threatened," said Barry Fredrickson, regional director of the Children's Division of the Texas Department of Public Welfare (DPW).

The number of situations where the child's physical safety is threatened is increasing every year. And it seems to be increasing most among children who are two to six years old. It is a fact that the most common form of child abuse is physical abuse. And while it is true that this form of abuse is the most common, it is also true that there is a growing trend toward the use of emotional abuse and neglect.

The most startling statistic of all, according to CANRIS (Child Abuse Reporting Information System), "is that the number of situations where the child's physical safety is threatened is increasing at an alarming rate."

According to CANRIS, 6,200 cases of child abuse were reported in Texas in the last annual reporting period (March 1975-March 1976), including 4,424 of these cases in child abuse reported to the Texas Department of Public Welfare (DPW). This is an increase of 25 percent from the previous year, when 4,952 cases of child abuse were reported.
