City Council Discusses Water Problem

Sonorans have been lulled into believing there's no water problem in our town. This is true to an extent, according to city officials in a meeting of the City Council held Tuesday morning.

We do in fact have plenty of water, according to city manager Bob Nevill. The only problem is getting it to the surface.

Nevill said, "Our water problem is not a matter of supply but a matter of distribution."

Some areas of town are without water during certain times of the day. Feeling the most pinch are persons in the Castle Hill Addition and in the extreme western parts of the city. These areas seem to affect homes built in hillside additions.

Part of the city's water problem is the new well that has been drilled and the water storage tank next to it. The city has spent numerous dollars to alleviate the problem and when the new well was first drilled a test was made and the water was pure.

Early in June when the well was put into working order the water contained a strong odor that made it unusable. City officials feel the water is not contaminated but is unsuitable to drink.

Water being pumped from the well is leaving a yellow residue on the areas surrounding it, and various testing on the content of the water had brought no results at this time.

Since the early drilling and testing of the well, city officials note that the only change in the area is one gas well drilled in less than a mile from the site. It has not been determined that this is the cause.

City Manager Nevill did state that the city at present, has four water wells and while these wells have always provided our city with enough water, they are now proving to be inadequate in some areas of town.

Part of the reason for this is city customers are using 15 to 20 percent more water than they did at this time last year. During the month of June Sonora customers used a total of 55 million gallons of water.

City council members have several avenues they are pursuing to alleviate the problem until such time the new storage tank problem can be solved.

One of the temporary solutions would be to build a temporary line from the 10 thousand gallon tank near the Doyle Morgan residence. This would solve the problem in the Castle Hill area for a short time. Another solution would be to build a line from the well on the Rip Ward property acquired by the city.

The most important and the quickest, is the temporary rationing of water. Persons in Sonora are urged to go on a rationing system that requires no watering of yards on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. This will enable storage tanks to fill to capacity instead of depleting water in these tanks as quickly as it is pumped in.

Water customers will be receiving letters in their mail asking for their support in this matter and in the meantime city officials are working to alleviate problems.

In other action of the council was talk of flooding in areas near and adjacent to the Murphy Draw. Homes in that vicinity are often flooded during heavy rains like the five inch downpour that occurred during the recent hail storm.

City officials stated that study was underway at this time regarding the situation which they are well aware of.

Joe Turnbull, representing Dowell, approached the council stating that his firm desired to purchase city property located adjacent to their present building. Council was in agreement with his request but told him city property would have to be let for bids.

A public hearing was set for 9 a.m., August 1 for the purpose of city budget planning and to review plans and specifications for the latest sewer construction grant.

Some discussion was also held on upgrading the city's retirement system. This will also be reviewed at the budget hearing.

Some 500 signatures appeared on a petition presented to the council regarding a traffic light at the intersection of Popular and Crockett Streets. This request was previously denied by the Texas Highway Department who stated that there was not enough traffic in that area to merit the light.

Council did state that a letter would be forwarded to the highway department asking them to reconsider the proposal.

A request from Halliburton Services for annexation in to the city limits was granted.

The property is a ten acre tract adjacent to the west side of the airport where they plan to start construction on a bulk plant next month.

City officials asked that utility users be reminded that the night depository is useable so that customers may pay their bills in this manner.

Hershel Davenport, mayor pro-tem; aldermen Mary Owensby, Lemuel Lopez, Jack Kerbow and James Trainer were present at the meeting, along with city manager Bob Nevill and city secretary Pat Robbins.

City Hires 2 Patrolmen To Fill Vacant Positions

Two city patrolmen have been hired by the City of Sonora, both coming from the Odessa Sheriff's Office.

Roy Gladden will assume duties August 1. He began his service with the Odessa Police Department in 1972 and went to work for the Odessa Sheriff's Office in 1976 where he was on patrol for a short period and for the last one and a half years he was associated with the criminal investigation department.

Gladden attended numerous schools, several of them crime prevention schools and a homicide school.

He has twenty college hours through Odessa College and is married to the former Gail Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hamilton.

Bill Ware, also coming from the ECTOR County Sheriff's Office, will assume his duties here August 15.

Ware joined the Midland Police Department in 1969 and remained there until 1975 when he joined the Odessa department.

He has been in criminal investigation the past 16 months.

Chief of Police Jerry Kemp says that both men come highly recommended and are fully qualified for the job.

Foxworth Galbraith Changes Managers

Jim Parker, who has been serving as assistant manager of Foxworth Galbraith Lumber Company for the past two years, has been promoted to manager of the firm.

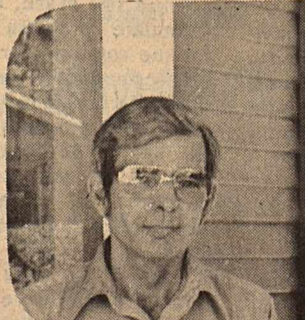

Parker replaces Ted McClung who retired from Foxworth to enter private business in Abilene.

Parker has been with Foxworth 5½ years. He and his wife, Julie, have one son Terry, age 14 months.

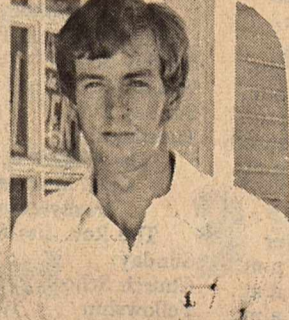

David Sentenna, who had been with the company for only one year, has been promoted to yard foreman.

Also new at the local lumber yard is Bobby Gaylord, who comes to Sonora from Oklahoma, with his wife and two daughters.

Gaylord is a manager trainee with Foxworth Galbraith and will serve as assistant manager here.

Retiring recently from Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Company was Sonora's local manager, Ted McClung. Replacing him in that capacity is Jim Parker [right].

Youth Held In Stabbing

A fifteen year old juvenile female is in Crockett County Jail being held in the juvenile detention ward after being identified as the assailant in a stabbing incident that occurred at a local motel Saturday morning.

Penny Sumner, 18, was treated at Hudspeth Hospital by Dr. Charles Honore.

The doctor stated the girl had been stabbed a total of nine times and required 34 stitches. She was released Sunday afternoon.

Chief of Police Jerry Kemp, who investigated the incident, said the initial argument started at the River Dance between the two girls and a friend of the victim.

The juvenile was arrested by Kemp and Officer Brent Gesch shortly after the call came in from the motel.

David Sentenna, a one year employee of Foxworth Galbraith Lumber Co., has been promoted to yard foreman.

Sunday Shopper Tells The Story Customers Swarm Sonora Floral, Fashions

There are several ingredients for successful advertising and it appears Effie Harle used them all for her big sale this week.

"Fantastic response, one of the biggest days we've ever had," Effie comments about the sale she advertised in last Sunday's West Texas Sunday Shopper.

Effie found out, as have other advertisers, that the Shopper's saturated coverage of Sonora and Eldorado, plus the combined readership of the Devil's River News makes for a winning combination.

You'll find out why so many people look forward to their West Texas Sunday Shopper when you see all the bargains our merchants offer...watch for it this Sunday.

Second Thoughts

by Tom Driskell

If you, as a Texan, look in your mirror for one reason or another, look carefully. The framework of your mirror encloses a picture of; at worst a victim of mental retardation, or at best a long eared beast of burden with abnormally short ears. Yes, it is you and all the rest of we Texans for that matter. You disagree? Very well, let's lay the facts out and look at them.

Texas, if you check statistics, produces and controls about 37% of the petroleum products which are domestically produced. The finished consumer products have rigid price controls on the interstate market. You and I therefore are in virtually the same position as the arabs-- a depletable product from a semi-arid steppe. Our only solace lies on the fact that when all the petroleum is gone, the country we will be left with is not quite as dry as the arabs' deserts (if it rains here before then). The required actions are quite plain, and the total inactions in that area is too obvious.

We are denied the option of taxing interstate commerce. It is not so clear, however, that the restriction extends to a well-head tax on Texas produced petroleum products. The tax might be on the operation on the well-head equipment, prorated according to production. Admittedly, remembering the oil lobby screaming about the refinery tax, and the ovine to the lobby, the possibility of action is remote. A wonderful opportunity to have a Texas tax revolt at the expense of the consumers of our natural resources will just go stumbling by.

It is a pleasure to note that the apparent mental deficiency does not extend to all of the other 49 states. Montana it seems has just put a tax on coal on excess of 15% and a similar bill is reported to be on the Wyoming Legislature. The effect will be two-fold; San Antonio's utility bills should become orbital and the state treasuries of Montana and Wyoming should become more affluent.

What we need in Texas is quite plain. First, we need federal law putting one price on all petroleum resources produced, and regardless of what those outdated contracts say, the landowner should be guaranteed a certain percentage of that price. Is it not peculiar that our representatives (if that is truly what they are) in Congress have never brought that up? They play the big oil theme song (all out for decontrol) and never utter a word about what is becoming a shameful rip off of their constituents, the land owners and tax payers.

Our second need is on the state level a tax at the well-head equipment on petroleum products, or on the operation of the well-head equipment. One cubic foot of gas and/or one barrel of oil (crude) should have one price, and every Texan should benefit from its removal through reduced taxes. The well-head tax could be passed back to everyone through reduced property taxes or sales taxes or state income taxes. You will point out we do not have a state income tax-- quite true. If, however, we keep passing up gold mines like this and making those gigantic donations to Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, and New Mexico because we do not tolerate parimutuel betting--we will.

Seriously, the bottom line likens itself to almost Victorian colonialism by the major oil companies--rule by lobby. Little can be confirmed about our Legislature beyond at least one trip to Austin per year. One is almost reluctant to admit that he or she supported a pay raise for the Legislature. That support becomes positively shameful when one realizes that the raise was not even on the proper specie. Philosophically, one must suppose that with the drought green dollars are easier to obtain than alfalfa.

Paisano Baptist Encampment To Hold 58th Yearly Session

The historic Paisano Baptist Encampment will hold its 58th consecutive session July 24-30, with some 2000 people from a wide area of West Texas expected to attend.

Located mid-way between Marfa and Alpine, at the mile high Paisano Pass, the encampment is set in the beautiful Davis Mountains. Bible teaching, music, preaching and fellowship will be included in the daily program of activities.

Featured preachers for this year are Dr. James Flammang, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Abilene, and Dr. Daniel Vestal, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Midland.

Encampment music will be directed by Dr. Euell Porter, music professor at Baylor University, Waco.

The Bible teacher for the adults will be Dr. Virtus Gideon, professor of New Testament at the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth. This is his fourth year to teach at Paisano.

A large group from Sonora's First Baptist Church will be attending the camp.

Reflections

by Rev. Jim Miles
 This week I will be taking part in our judicatory's Small Church Conference, an event I have been able to help plan. The thrust of the conference is designed to help congregations of less than 150 members see their situation as one of opportunity rather than futility. In short, delegates will be asked to assess their assets and liabilities, and then come to their own conclusion about their particular situation.

Small-in terms of numbers--can be beautiful. Ministry to a few score of people can be more viable than ministry to hundreds of people. It is especially more personal.

Success in many things is a matter of attitude. We can either see our cups as half full or half empty. We can see only the sunset, or we can look forward to its rising once again the next day.

The difference that attitudes make in the ability to function-in businesses, institutions, and in personal lives-is immeasurable. We perform within the parameters set by our own self-limiting understanding of our capabilities.

This is not to say that if we think "big" we are big. Neither is it to state that there are inherent advantages to staying small. Neither of these statements is truth. The presence of a healthy, objective attitude about one's situation simply allows that person or organization to "max out" to make optimum use of talent and resources.

This is something each of us should attempt to do in our own lives.

Paula Friess To 6th 4-H Congress

More than 40 businesses of the Fort Worth area will open their doors to tours and visits of some 500 4-H members and 50 adult sponsors during the sixth annual Texas 4-H Congress, July 18-21 in Fort Worth.

Representing Sutton County at the statewide youth educational event will be 4-H member Paula Friess. Accompanying Paula to the 4-H Congress will be Sarah Mahon, County Extension Agent.

Theme for the 1978 4-H Congress is "Our Western Heritage and Horizons." The conference will be headquartered in the Fort Worth-Sheraton Hotel.

"Tours of the Fort Worth area businesses should enable 4-H members to better understand the heritage of our western culture, and also afford them new opportunities and horizons for future careers and employment," said Sarah Mahon, County Extension Agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

This year's 4-H Congress will feature a variety of cultural events, including a Fort Hood cavalry unit giving a display of 19th Century drills and movements; the stage play, "Paint Your Wagon," and visits to art, science and history museums.

Final major events will include a banquet and the Congress Ball, both to be held in the Fort Worth Convention Center. Installation of newly-elected Texas 4-H Council members will be a feature of the banquet. "Among the special benefits of 4-H Congress include the opportunity to visit important centers of business and culture and to study new opportunities in career fields," Sarah added.

Terrys Attend 33rd Annual Cancer Meet

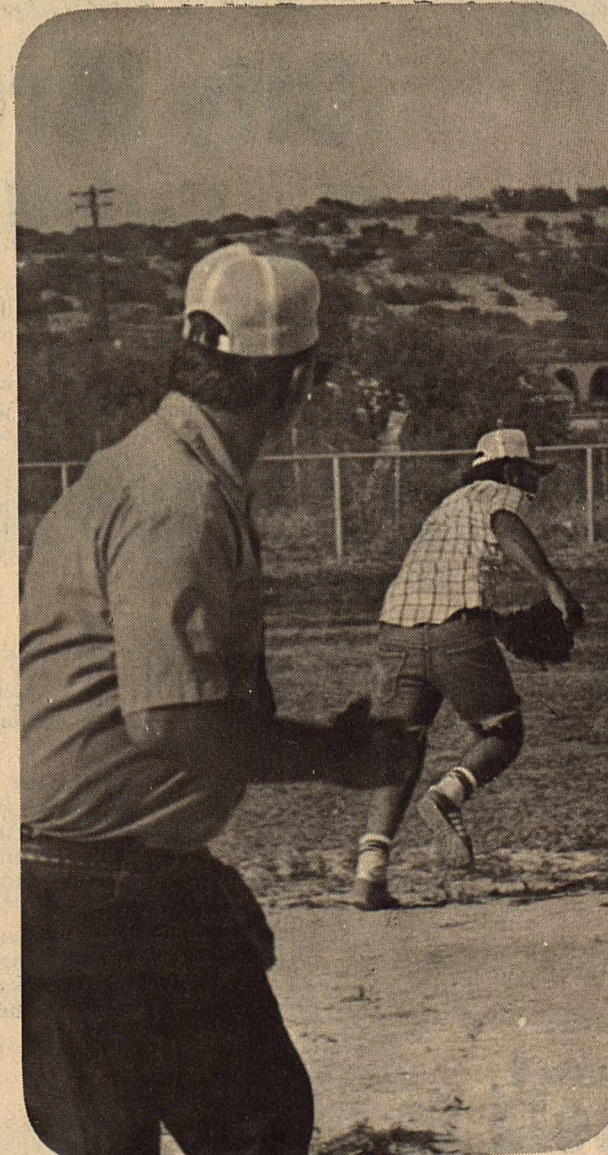

The Rev. and Mrs. Paul Terry attended the 33rd annual meeting of the American Cancer Society, Texas Division, held in Houston July 12-13. Rev. Terry was the voting delegate from the Sutton County Unit.

The annual meeting is held each year to elect a new board of directors and officers, to recognize outstanding volunteer work around the state, and to formulate program plans for the coming year.

Encouraging reports were heard concerning the continuing progress made in early detection of cancer, as well as new methods of treatment which offer hope of more cures.

One of the volunteers honored for 30 years of service to the American Cancer Society was Dr. Charles F. Browne of Sonora.

The Sutton County Unit was recognized as No. 2 in the state in per capita funds raised for the society.

Third baseman Keith Nolen and shortstop Charlie Draper hustle into play as they chase a hit ball against the Whiz Kids in action Monday night. The WK won the game 16-11. In other action, OFT won a forfeit from Hooper Trucking.

Man Found Dead on Bacon Ranch

The body of a man found dead on the Joe Bacon Ranch July 9 has been identified as Alfonso Contreras Trejo, 33, an illegal alien from Zimapan, Hidalgo, Mexico.

Trejo was found by another alien, Maximino Vega Franco, who told authorities that he and the dead man had been working on a ranch and decided to move.

The duo walked to a windmill on the Bacon Ranch and Trejo drank a large amount of water, telling his companion he did not feel well. The men then bedded down for the night.

Authorities from Sutton County were the first on the scene until it was discovered that the location of the windmill where the body was found was in Schleicher County.

Law officials called for autopsy to be performed in San Angelo and reports were that the man died of natural causes.

Anyone been to Six Flags lately? According to statewide news someone is accusing the well known amusement park of having snakes dropping out of trees biting people and scaring the wits out of others.

existence it could not be proven that anyone had ever been bitten in the park.
In fact no one could really say that any snake has ever been found in the park.
Whoever this person was may have been a person of my nature who assumes that anything that crawls on its belly is automatically a snake of poisonous variety and waiting under every rock and obstacle to devour its victim.

Now, not to be out done, Sonora has its own interesting snake story. It has been reported (not authenticated) that Juno, Texas, just a few miles west of Sonora, has snakes with two heads...one on either end...that are poisonous from which ever end they might choose to bite the victim from.
No one but a person like me would give second thought to such a tale but if I were to travel in that direction I'm sure the power of suggestion would make me wary of where I stepped.

A couple of weeks ago we decided to go back to mail delivery of the newspapers...mainly because it was just too hard to keep carriers.

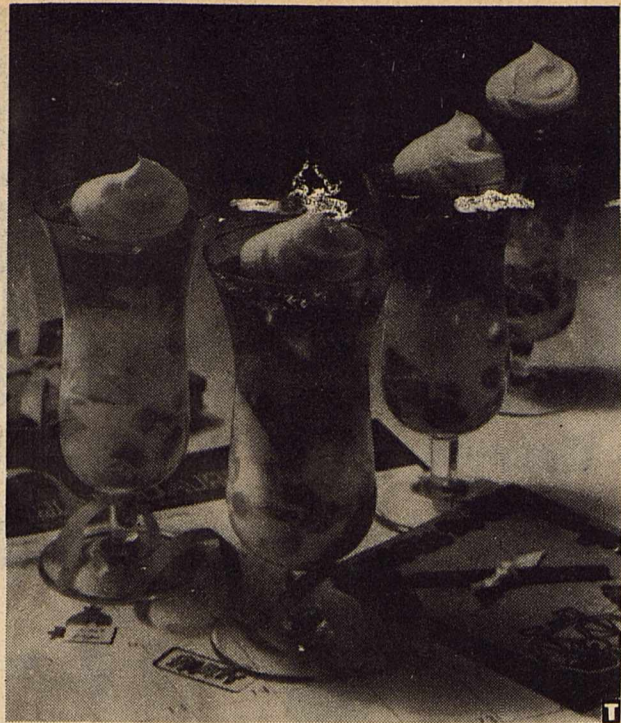

By the time we got one person trained, where almost everyone entitled to a paper, and a few who weren't, got one, they quit and it was training time all over again.
At that time we took Crockett Street as a border line and all papers on the west side of Crockett were put back in the mail. A great number of these subscribers did not get their mail at the address we had on file...therefore no paper. If you are one of these, please call and we'll try to rectify our mistake.
Starting next week other subscribers will begin getting their paper in the mail, either at home if you have home delivery of mail, or in your post office box.

If for some reason you do not get your paper, call the News office, do not assume that your postman just didn't deliver it.
Besides the postman you challenge may be mine. (husband that is)

Good to see Wayne Brasher back home after a long stay in the hospital. He looks a little trimmer than before but I'm sure Nita's good cooking will remedy that.

Americans Aren't Getting Their Money's Worth

A top Texas energy official declared Americans aren't getting their money's worth out of Washington when it comes to regulating oil and gas industries or stimulating the development of additional energy supplies for the nation.

Railroad Commissioner Jon Newton, one of three elected members of Texas' energy and transportation regulatory agency, raised the charge in a speech prepared for delivery before the American Gas Association Legal Forum.

Actually, Newton maintained, an arm of the federal Department of Energy has impeded the flow of increased natural gas supplies in Texas into the interstate market. And, he described federal regulation of the oil and gas industries as costly and inefficient.

"In Texas," he cited, "we regulate 38 percent of the nation's oil and gas production at a cost equal to almost three cents per person in the United States. The cost of the federal Department of Energy, on the other hand, equals to $57 in taxes for every man, woman and child in this nation."

"It makes me wonder just how much federal regulation the American people can afford."

Newton pointed to two actions with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission which, he said, raise barriers to greater supplies of gas to interstate pipelines.

"We have had great success in using 60-day sales to increase gas supplies in the interstate market," Newton reported. "Such sales have provided interstate pipelines with the opportunity to plan their supply needs and prevent curtailment."

"Now, the FERC staff has proposed changes which will limit 60-day sales to a 'narrow class of situations.'"

Under the proposed changes, Newton said such sales would not be available for general pipeline systems needs or for summer storage requirements.

Such a regulatory approach would destroy the flexibility built into emergency programs necessary to react quickly in time of major threat to service, he warned and added:

"Moreover, defining an emergency in terms of effect on ultimate end users...along with a requirement that emergency purchases be assigned to specific customers...ignores some low priority users who do not have the facilities to use alternate fuels."

Newton said a recent FERC action with respect to limited-term certification of a proposed sale to an interstate pipeline "with the worst record of curtailment" is even more puzzling.

The Texas official traced the efforts of the cities of San Antonio and Austin, along with the Lower Colorado River Authority, to sell surplus gas in the winter of 1977 "at exact cost" to the pipeline. Sixteen months after the application was filed, FERC denied a 12-months, limited-term certificate.

"One of the reasons given for the denial was that there was no showing that the price was reasonable...even though it was exact cost, no profit at all," related Newton.

"And, FERC never had a hearing on the application to see if, in fact, the price was reasonable."

Newton continued: "The gas was eventually sold in the intrastate market as boiler fuel. Federal regulation prevented gas needed in other parts of the country from getting there."

Newton reported gas production has increased in Texas recently but the level of output probably will not reach the rates of the late 1960's. "But we are seeing the dramatic drop of the early Seventies to level out," he related. "In fact, Texas currently enjoys a surplus gas deliverability. Some estimate that this surplus may be as high as three billion cubic feet per day."

Whether Texas will have a gas surplus in the future will depend on the kind of federal energy policies that come out of Congress, Newton advised.

"If we see reasonable regulation which encourages production, then we will continue to be in good shape on gas supplies," he said.

But, Newton warned, "if we see energy regulation based on political considerations rather than economic and geological realities, then we could quickly slip back into an era of gas curtailment."

The Texas official expressed fear, however, that the proposed natural gas bill before Congress "is more concerned with political control of natural resources than it is in producing and distributing those resources for the public's benefit."

2 Highway Employees Recognized

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (DHT) recently presented Certificates of Service and lapel pins to two employees at the Sutton County Residency office in Sonora.

John W. Joy, Engineering Technician V, received the award for 25 years of service. He began his career in 1953 as a roddman. During this time he has steadily advanced to his present position of Engineering Technician V.

In 1974 Joy received a certificate as a Senior Engineering Technician. In March of this year he was presented a seven year safe driving and a 3 year no-injury award.

John and Mrs. Joy (Avis) have four children and one granddaughter. They are active in the Methodist Church.

The hobby John enjoys most is working on his ranch. He also likes to hunt when he can find the time.

Supervising Resident Engineer Joe W. Lane received the award for 20 years of service.

Lane went to work for the DHT in Colorado City, District 8, in 1958, after graduating from Texas Tech in Lubbock with a Civil Engineering degree.

In 1963 Lane transferred to the Howard County Residency in Big Spring as resident Engineer then in 1964 transferred to the Sutton County Residency where he has been every since.

In March of this year Lane and his men were presented a certificate of merit for 2000 days without a lost time accident and he was presented a seven year safe driving and a 19 year no-injury award.

When Mr. Watson presented the service award he remarked "it is hard to improve on the remark made by former Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Yett when he said "Mr. Lane is to be commended for the interest and diligence he exhibits. It is men like Mr. Lane that make me proud to represent the State of Texas."

Lane and his wife Anita have two daughters, Flaire and Marche. Flaire is a sophomore at Texas Tech and Marche will be a sophomore in high school next year.

District Engineer D.R. Watson of San Angelo expressed his appreciation of the work these men have done and "wished them many more pleasant and productive years with the DHT."

FOR MID-JULY TO MID-AUGUST 1978

Questionnaires to Ranchers

Cattlemen in a 36-county West Texas area are being asked to assist Texas A&M University's Remote Sensing Center in assembling information ranchers can use from satellites.

Approximately 4,000 questionnaires were mailed July 3 from College Station to ranch operators and managers along a 110-mile wide band from Childress to Sanderson and Wichita Falls to Del Rio.

Responses will be used to design ways of making new range information available from National Aeronautics and Space Administration satellite data.

Harold Chilton, principal investigator, said three NASA satellites will be used in the study, called the Landsat Range Resource Information System Project. Each can process different information on range forage and other data useful to ranchers in daily range management.

Chilton said responses from the cattlemen are very important to the success of the project. The cover letter is signed by Bobby J. Ragsdale, range specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and W.E. Boyd of the Remote Sensing Center.

Glen Fisher's

Wool & Mohair Report

by Glen Fisher
This week the topics will be strength, character, and color of wool as it relates to the value of the wool.

Strength is very important in a given lot of wool, because as the wool fibers are aligned in the first steps of processing some breakage can occur if the fiber does not have sufficient strength. Two types of weaknesses can appear in the wool.

A definite break is evident by slight examination and thus causes the wool to have to be used for purposes that utilize the broken length. Of course this is highly undesirable and causes a severe price reduction. Breaks are caused by fever and/or other stresses put on the sheep such as cold spells, lambing, change in feeds, etc.

"Tender" wool is more difficult to determine but is just as undesirable as "breaking" wool. Tender wool shows lack of strength throughout the fiber but may be more obvious at a specific spot on the fiber. Various degrees of strength are found in tender wool and some may be strong enough to comb, but usually the fiber will break at some point in the processing.

This past spring we found a lot of tender wool primarily due to the dry conditions and subsequent lack of adequate nutrition.

Character and color are of lesser importance in final price determination but still carry some significance. Character generally refers to the crimp or natural waviness in the wool fibers. Color is important because stained wool cannot be used to make very light or white-colored fabrics. Wool should be white to creamy-white.

This completes a brief, concise description of the factors involved in determining the price of wool. Using all the factors is not an exact science but it gives the trade a method to price wool clips individually on their own merits.

Most important in obtaining a wool clip with all the desirable traits is the management that goes into the flock throughout the year; and of course the breeding of the sheep must be such that they contain the necessary inherited characteristics. Next week, I will discuss mohair.

Screwworm Case Confirmed On Sutton County Ranch

Another screwworm case has been confirmed in Sutton County...this one on the James Hunt Ranch, 12 miles north-east of Sonora. The sample was taken from a sheep and reported by S.M. Loeffler. County Agent Clint Langford issued another plea this week to area ranchers to take special precautions to protect livestock from open wounds during this critical time.

"Not until the first solid frost will we have any room to breathe easy," Langford commented.

Sheepman Should Consider Wool Vote

Sheep producers who haven't yet given much thought to the upcoming wool referendum would be well advised to do so.

The referendum will be August 21 through September 21. The issue? Raising the incentive payment deduction from the current 1 1/2 cents per pound of short wool and 7 1/2 cents per 100 pounds of unshorn lamb sold to a more inflation-reflective 2 1/2 cents and 12 1/2 cents, respectively.

The money is deducted directly from incentive payments and therefore offers no bookkeeping headaches for the producer, nor is it as noticeable as it would be if he already had the money in his hot little hand.

It's also a good investment. The deductions fund the American Sheep Producers Council, and the Council receives no other funding.

The ASPC, based in Denver, employs a staff of promotion, advertising, merchandising, education, public relations and sheep production experts. Their job, indeed that of the ASPC itself, is to create and implement promotional programs for the industry. Promotional efforts often bear a reputation for conforming only slightly with reality, particularly the realities of economy, but ASPC doesn't fit the mold. Partial proof of that is the fact that ASPC once had 40 employees and now employs only 21--a less realistic organization would almost certainly show just the opposite figures.

One reason for the Council's responsiveness to the real world is its makeup and roots. ASPC is comprised of 20 states and area sheep councils which in turn represent the producers themselves. A total of 102 voting delegates are selected from these councils, and these delegates chose 48 individuals from their own ranks to serve on the ASPC board of directors. The directors in turn elect a president, vice president and secretary-treasurer from among themselves.

These three officers appoint the chairmen of the two basic committees, the wool and lamb committees. The chairmen and officers, along with directors designed by the National Wool Growers and National Lamb Feeders associations comprise the council's Executive Committee. This group monitors programs approved by the board of directors, as well as implementation of these programs by ASPC staffers.

Sound complicated? Well, it's complicated enough to assure that everyone has someone else keeping an eye on him. It also assures that even the top brass are aware of what goes on in a sheep pen because they've all been there.

In all, it's a pretty safe outfit to trust with a few cents worth of deductions, particularly when they do so much with them.

Sonora Little League All Stars Whip San Angelo Southern 6-4...Head for Ozona

by Kay Holdridge
Led by Marney Sorenson's two home runs and pitching, the Sonora All Stars will advance to the second round of All-Star competition against Ozona in Ozona Wednesday by virtue of a win over Southern San Angelo 6-4.

The game see-sawed as the score was tied one-one at the end of one inning of play and three-three at the end of three. San Angelo grabbed the lead 4-3 at the end of four innings. The SA pitcher loaded the bases on walks and infield errors and was removed after four innings of fine pitching. The two SA sub pitchers had control trouble as Sonora scored three runs in the fifth and played fine defensive ball from then on to the end of

to prevent SA runners from stealing home. Starting first baseman Tom Dean was dependable, as were the second-basemen Mark York and Billy Hoggatt. Jeff Tidwell handled the third base chores and Scott Miller nailed down center field. Drew Wallace came in at right field to catch a clutch fly ball. Rodney Jones, at first, Sonny Dean in left, and Russell Ethridge at third came off the bench to aid the Sonora unit in the win. Speedy Phillip Vargas was the starting short stop.

The Sonora All-Stars are coached by Tim Ponsetti and Frank Gamba, both of the league winning Astros.

Marney Sorenson receives congratulations from the San Angelo Southern catcher as he touches home after one of his two home-runs. Sorenson pitches six complete innings allowing SA only four runs. Sonora won 6-4.

Girls' All Stars Match Managers

All Stars of the girl's minor league softball team will be pitted against their managers and coaches Friday night at the Little League Field.

No admission will be charged.

All stars playing from the Holy Terrors are Rebecca Hulsey, Lara Lee Kordzik, Tammy Martin, Carrie Sorenson and Traci

Hulsey. Members of the HNG/BG team are Linda Wilson, Candy Phillips, Margo Hinton and Sedona Ridgeway.

From the team of Sonora Auto Parts will be Tammy Duren, Shannon Payne and Stacey Miller.

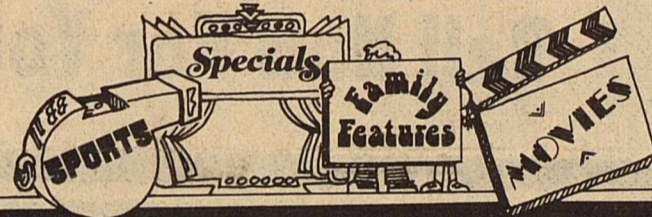

Bill and Pam Martin and the Rev. John Haffermann are coaches of the team.
