ATPE cited proposed cutbacks for TRS

A state education leader voiced concern that campaign promises made to strengthen the quality of public schools, in Texas already are being compromised. Mike Morrow, executive director of the 35,000 member Association of Texas Professional Educators, (ATPE), cited proposed cutbacks in Teacher Retirement System (TRS) funding and lower percentage increases for teacher salaries.

Commenting on the Legislative Budget Board (LBB) recommended cuts in the salary increases requested by the State Board of Education, Morrow said, "These cuts will definitely make it impossible to achieve stability among the ranks of those who have dedicated their lives to the future of Texas. We can't build quality education by verbalizing support on one hand while fiscally raiding it with the other."

Just one month after the election, during the general public as well as the education community was led to expect that education would be a priority with the 68th Legislature, the LBB recommended paring the state's contribution to TRS by $210 million. Recommendations include reducing the employee contribution to TRS from its present level of 6.65 percent to 6 percent and reducing the state's matching contribution from 8.5 percent to 7.1 percent.

The Education Agency's request for a 6.8 percent increase in teachers' salaries each year of the next biennium was reduced to 5.5 percent by the LBB in its final recommendations for the upcoming legislative session.

"The general public as well as Texas educators expect campaign promises to be kept," Morrow said. "We can only hope that efforts to improve public education will receive the same priority by the elected members of the Texas House and Senate as was demonstrated during the November elections."

ATPE supports local control of public schools and is not affiliated with a national organization. The association is against collective bargaining for school personnel.

Tower announces areas to get financial help

Small business in a 12-county area of East Texas will be eligible to receive financial help through the newly created Deep East Texas Regional Certified Development Corporation, U.S. Senator John Tower (R-Texas) announced today.

The corporation has been certified by the Small Business Administration and will be authorized to lend up to $500,000 per qualifying business for fixed assets. To qualify, the borrower must provide 10 percent of the investment package and obtain financing for another 50 percent from a commercial lending institution. The remaining 40 percent would come from the Regional Development Corporation, Tower explained. The Regional Development Corporation portion of the loan can be for up to 25 years, although the commercial loan must be for at least half the period of that loan.

"The availability of long-term financing from the Regional Development Corporation should make it easier for businesses to get the required loan from a commercial institution," Tower said.

"This Small Business Administration program establishes a partnership between private and public resources. And is particularly valuable because it will spur economic development in the Deep East area, and is an excellent example of federal funds being used in the most effective manner possible," Tower concluded.

Harvey Davis of Temple named executive director

In action taken by the five-member board of directors of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board on December 20, Harvey Davis, 55, of Temple was named executive director of the agency.

"Davis' appointment is effective January 1, 1983," said Joe Antille, chairman of the board.

"Not only does Harvey have a wealth of experience in guiding our agency in the administration of Texas soil and water conservation laws, he will be bringing back to us even greater experience gained as a result of his heading the Texas Department of Water Resources," said Antille.

The Williamson County native served as the first executive director of the TDWR from November 1, 1977 to December 1, 1982. The TDWR was created by the 65th Legislature when the Texas Water Development Board, the Texas Water Rights Commission and the Texas Water Development Board was combined.

Davis previously worked for the TSSWCB 23 years, 16 of which he served as executive director prior to his employment as agency head of the TDWR. In total, Davis has worked 33 years for the state government.

As executive head of the TSSWCB, Davis will assume agency responsibility for coordinating the programs of Texas' 201 soil and water conservation districts.

Following service with the Air Force, Davis received an Associate in Arts Degree from Blinn College in 1949, a Bachelor of Business Administration Degree in 1951 and a Master of Business Administration Degree in 1953 from the University of Houston.

Davis is a member of the First Methodist Church of Temple. He is the father of four children: Rex Davis of Waco, Mrs. Jim (Pam) Hacker, Ray Davis and Charles Davis, all of Temple.

Interest rates at Federal Land Bank to be reduced

Interest rates on Land Bank variable rate loans will be reduced to 11.25 percent on farm loans and to 11.75 percent on farm-related business and rural resident loans, said Wade Mosley, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Sonora.

These rates become effective January 1, 1983.

"The Land Bank's objective is to provide credit to Texas agriculture at the lowest possible cost, consistent with sound business practices," said Thomas H. Benson, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas in Austin.

"For over two years the Bank's average cost of funds consistently has been higher than the loan rate," Benson continued. "However, for the past four months, we have begun to see a decline in bond costs."

"As a result of this decline, we are able to reduce the Bank's loan interest rate," he said. "We hope that the decline in bond interest rates will continue, allowing us to make further reductions in the loan rate."

The Federal Land Bank Association of Sonora makes long-term real estate loans on farm and rural resident property in the counties of Sutton, Schleicher, Crockett, and Edwards.

Internal Revenue

Keeping accurate financial records is probably one of the best tax saving actions that a taxpayer can take, the Internal Revenue Service advises.

When the time comes for filing a federal tax return, good records can mean the difference between filing an accurate return or an inaccurate one, the Internal Revenue Service says. Also, good records can ensure that taxpayers take all the deductions and benefits to which they are entitled.

Most geologists believe the Great Lakes were once river valleys enlarged by glaciers during the Ice Age.

Seeing Red

by Elizabeth Allen

Well, the big event last week (besides Christmas) was the famed Peppermint Ball: This dance, held in the 4-H Barn here in Sonora, is surely one of the most popular high school age dances around. Sponsored not by the school, but as a private activity, the Peppermint is hosted by the parents whose sons and daughters are on the guest list. This isn't a bad deal, because if you're on the Peppermint guest list, you automatically get invitations to dances all over this part of the country, and vice-a-versa. Talk about instant popularity. Some of these distant and not-so-distant dances are the Snowflake Ball, held in

Eldorado, the Spring Round-Up Ball, held in Ozona, the Cactus, the etc., etc., etc.,

And these dances are well-known. Once I was talking to a person from Midland who, I assumed, had never heard of Sonora. When I told him where I lived he said, "Sonora, home of the Peppermint?" Shock! He told me that most people knew of Sonora because they had heard of the Peppermint. Well, it seems that the Peppermint is a pretty popular activity and a fun one too, thanks to all those adults who helped decorate, provided food, and provided music. You've helped make the Peppermint a well-known, fun event.

Interested in Job Corps?

At a time when most communities are experiencing severe blood shortages, the city of McKinney, a town of approximately 16,000 located near Dallas, Texas, has established a community blood bank. Blood banks are created when more blood is available to a community than is needed.

Local officials credit participation by the McKinney Job Corps Center as a major factor in the establishment of the blood bank, which is a first for the City of McKinney.

The McKinney Job Corps Center, a federally funded job training program, initiated its quarterly blood drive in September of 1981. Since that time, over 1070 pints of blood have been donated by students and staff.

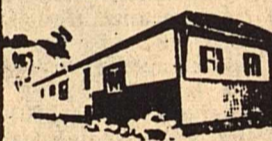

Participation in the blood drive is strictly voluntary with all blood collected donated to the community blood bank.

Describing student participation in the blood drive program as "better than even we had hoped for," John Crosby, Director of the McKinney Center, stated, "We feel this is one of the best ways we can show our appreciation for the support McKinney has given our Center."

Job Corps is a program designed to train young men and women in skills which will enable them to obtain a job with a future.

Mark White reports

The future Governor of Texas, Mark White, said recently, "the utility companies have had a good time for a long time, but the party's over" in quote. White told a reporter that if he's successful in repealing the fuel rate adjustment pass-through rule, it would not guarantee a reduction in utility bills. He did say, however, he thought it would force the companies to shop around for less expensive fuel to generate electricity. White also commented that the utility companies haven't had to compete in so long that they don't know how.

TRC questions gas companies

Texas Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace says gas companies should do something to help the poor pay their gas bills. Wallace wrote sixty utility companies urging them to institute some of the programs tried by utility companies in other states. In the letter, he said residential natural gas prices have gone up 350 percent in the past eight years and blamed the Natural Gas Policy Act as being largely responsible for the increase.

Most of the programs in other states are funded with voluntary contributions from utility companies and customer who

Drinking & Driving

The Department of Public Safety estimates that as many as 95 persons may die on Texas streets and highways during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Colonel Jim Adams, director of the DPS, said the Department will continue to concentrate on DWI enforcement during the holidays.

"Although the accidents caused by DWI are increasing, we are also finding an increase in the arrests for drunken driving. During the first nine months of this year, almost 21 per cent more DWI arrests have been made by the Highway Patrol and that number is increasing," he said.

The DPS Statistical Services Bureau has estimated that 52 traffic deaths will be reported during the 78-hour Christmas period and 43 during the 78-hour New Year holiday.

"We know that many of these tragic deaths will be alcohol-related. But we are finding that the public is rapidly losing sympathy for the drunken driver and is starting to take a dim view of their fellow citizens who insist upon drinking and driving," the DPS director pointed out.

Adams says the DPS is constantly getting telephone calls and letters urging the police to "get the drunks off the road."

"This indicates a significant ground swell of support from the public for stronger DWI legislation, expanded law enforcement efforts and certainly of punishment within the courts. It is high time we look upon the problem as the criminal offense which it really is," he said.

"A man ought to read just as inclination leads him, for what he reads as a task will do him little good."
Samuel Johnson

In other news, OPEC met and decided to keep their benchmark price of $34 a barrel for oil and set an overall production ceiling of 18.5 million barrels a day. There was no agreement at the meeting on quotas for individual countries and this left the door open for a price decrease by next spring. Industry analysts say that OPEC just postponed the time when they will have to cut production or see prices drop even further.

And, well completions for the United States will set a record in 1982 with 86,000 compared to about 81,000 in 1981.

The national rig count has increased eight straight weeks and now stands at 2,674 rigs. We don't have a Permian Basin rig count this week because of the holidays.

chip in a little extra to help the poor pay for gas.

In other news, the new Secretary of Energy, Donald Hodel, says the Reagan Administration will propose in January to decontrol gas prices and renegotiate certain gas contracts. Most industry observers think that natural gas decontrol could only come about with a windfall profits tax.

And, Amoco expects plans to be ready by next spring to construct the Bravo CO2 well to be used in the Permian Basin for enhanced oil recovery.

In the Permian Basin our rig count for this week was 366. Last week it was 356. One year ago it was 497.

Making friends with computers

Making friends with a computer is easy for these children in Palm City, Florida. They're among some 10,000 kindergarten and first-grade students who are taking part in a national evaluation of a computer-based system designed to help develop their reading and writing skills.

of the vocabulary which children already have when they enter elementary school. The concept has been under development for six years by long-time educator Dr. John Henry Martin of Stuart, Florida.

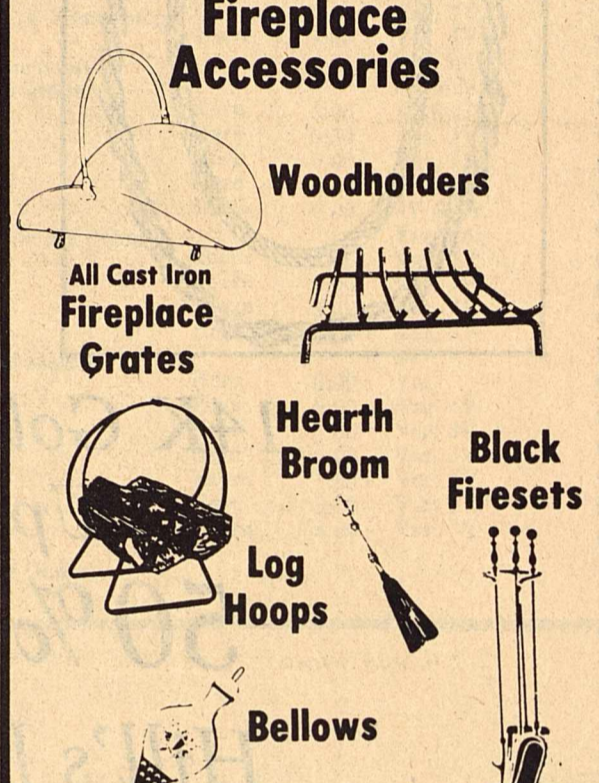

For the evaluation, more than 100 schools in Florida, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New York, North Carolina, Texas and the District of Columbia have been loaned 300 IBM Personal Computers, instructional programming and support materials.

Prompted by cues on the computer's video monitor and by voice instructions from the computer, the students use phonetic elements to form words and then turn to work journals and IBM Electric typewriters to develop writing skills.

Dr. Ben F. Gearhart, Jr., a Marfa rancher, will take the place of Heinie A. Bade of Cuero as the Production Credit Association representative. In addition, Roy A. ## Health Update

Elderly people with mental problems don't always get medical care they need because their families think nothing can be done to help them, says Baylor psychiatrist Charles Gaitz, M.D., a specialist in treating the aged.

But loss of mental alertness is not normal at any age and elderly people who begin to show signs of mental confusion (dementia) should receive prompt medical attention, said Gaitz, head of the Gerontology Center at Texas Research Institute of Mental Sciences.

"Too often we stereotype older people as inadequate," said Gaitz. "We want to do things to them and for them, rather than identifying them as our peers—people who can discuss the decisions that affect their lives...older people who can discuss the decisions that affect their lives...older people aren't children—they are survivors who have coped with life's problems longer than we have."

Many people wrongly assume that an elderly person's forgetfulness, confusion about time and place, and impaired intellectual abilities are just a natural part of growing old and therefore incurable, Gaitz said, although many illnesses can produce the mental infirmity labeled "senility." This term has little meaning today, he said, because it doesn't convey the idea that other material conditions cause changes in the brain that produce dementia.

Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's disease and brain tumors have a direct effect on brain function.

Vitamin B12 deficiency, and cardiovascular, lung and kidney disease can affect the brain, producing the same mental symptoms. Gaitz said a physical examination and laboratory tests can spot these disorders.

Brain damage can be reversed, but Gaitz said that medicine, good nutrition, dental care and exercise can improve mood and ability to function, even in seriously afflicted patients. Helping to restore failing eyesight and hearing can also improve an aged person's quality of life.

In addition to physical illness, he said that a combination of psychological and environmental stress often contributes to mental problems of the elderly.

Financial distress, isolation, loss of social and work roles, and loss of friends and loved ones may compound the aged person's physical burdens. Gradual loss of control over the daily decisions of life are a source of anguish.

Effective treatment for elderly persons depends on support from family and community organizations, Gaitz said. The aged person depends on support from family and community organizations, Gaitz said. The aged person may need outside help with meals, transportation, or with making his or her home safer to prevent falls and accidents. But above all, he said, they must be treated with dignity and respect.

Jerry Lackey's Country Folk

On a cold and rainy wintry day last week, a large gathering of West Texas assembled to memorialize the passing of a good friend.

Jim Franklin, owner of M.L. Leddy Boots of Texas, was a giant among the country folks and a leader in the West Texas community. He died at his home in San Angelo at the age of 56.

Franklin began his career with M.L. Leddy, one of the largest custom bootmakers in the country, more than 35 years ago. His wife, Joyce, is the daughter of M.L. Leddy, founder of the company.

In February 1981, Jim purchased Hollis and Dale Leddy's partnership in the store. The purchase made Franklin owner of retail stores in Midland and Fort Worth and, of course, the headquarters in San Angelo.

The firm was founded in 1921 when M.L. Leddy purchased a shoe repair shop for $25.

Before buying the business, Franklin served as the company's buyer and sales manager. He began working in the western retailing business when he was 21.

I first met Jim Franklin over 25 years ago. Following recovery of foot and leg injuries resulting from an auto accident, my doctor told me that I must wear high-topped shoes or boots the rest of my life. Well, certainly boots were my choice.

I came into Leddy's on crutches and with a brace on my left leg which came to my wrist. Jim seated me and started measuring. "A left boot with a zipper on the inside, a 1 1/2 inch build up and a rocking heel (because of no ankle joint)," he said.

Some 20 pairs of boots later, and we are still ordering new boots from that first measurement.

We worked together on projects for the San Angelo Stock Show and the Riding Club through the years. About six years ago now when I started working with Shelley Smith and the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, I went to Jim Franklin seeking advice. He told me he would help me anyway he could.

Well, a short period later, I asked him to head up the Cattleman's Round-Up for Crippled Children in the Southwest on behalf of WTRC. He thought about it a day or so and called me to come by his office. "I'll do it if you will help me with the leg work," he said.

Together, we put the wheels in motion to establish the annual CRCC Barbecue in August each year which serves as a kickoff for the annual fundraiser. Jim met with his close friends like Jerry Stokes at Handy Packing and others and put the whole show together. Shelley brought Rex Allen in from Hollywood to entertain.

A couple of years ago before the San Angelo Stock Show was over, Jim asked me to come by the boot shop. He wanted to get some businessmen to go in with him and purchase the champion steer. A month or so after that "we will put on a good feed with prime rib and a nice evening and raise some money for the Rehab," he suggested.

Our team work was the same assignment. He would make a few calls and I would do the leg work. Despite someone else taking the credit for the success of the events, Jim and I worked very quietly behind the scenes.

I was his photographer on a number of projects as well. But more, he was a good friend to me and thousands of others across the Southwest. To say he will be missed is an understatement.

San Angelo receives ag equipment

Congressman Tom Loeffler announced December 17 that through his efforts and those of the Mohair Council of America and the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, equipment used in research on wool and mohair will be transferred from Albany, California, to the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in San Angelo, Texas.

Loeffler and the interested parties began working toward this goal when it was determined that research activities in Albany would terminate.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture notified Loeffler that San Angelo had been selected, from among a number of contenders in other states, to receive the equipment. Relocation to San Angelo will ensure the fullest possible use in the furtherance of animal fibers research.

San Angelo is one of the major centers involved in the production of wool and mohair. Texas production represents fully 60 percent of the total U.S. wool production and over 99 percent of mohair production nationwide. This location will enable the Department of Agriculture to continue necessary wool research on breeding, nutrition, shearing, and handling.

"I am delighted that the Department has selected San Angelo and salute all of those who worked with me to achieve the transfer," said Loeffler.

"The equipment had been in California for several years, yet the research there failed to yield sufficient useful information to continue that operation. There is already in existence in San Angelo ongoing State and industry-sponsored research at the Texas A&M Research and Extension facility which exceeds $1 million annually, and this ongoing wool and mohair research was a very important factor in the selection of San Angelo. This additional equipment will lead to improved quality and handling techniques for animal fibers, and a stronger and more competitive domestic wool and mohair industry."

Beltwide Cotton Conference Jan. 3-6

The 1983 Beltwide Cotton Conferences are set for January 3-6 at the Hyatt Regency in San Antonio.

The conferences feature special sessions on cotton research the first two days followed by a day-and-a-half program oriented mainly toward cotton producers and industry leaders, says Dr. Bob Metzger, cotton specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University system.

The research sessions the first two days will deal with cotton insects and pest management; cotton physiology, including plant nutrition and plant growth regulators; cotton dust; engineering research, including cotton harvesting, storage and ginning; and cotton weed science.

Several top USDA officials will kick off the production program Wednesday morning, January 5, says Metzger.

Featured will be Frank W. Naylor, USDA under secretary for small community and rural development, who will speak on "Financing the '83 Crop." He will to Move U.S. Cotton to Market" by a panel of speakers representing different segments of the cotton industry.

Highlighting the Wednesday afternoon session will be a panel of cotton producers from different states who will discuss "How I Dealt with the Cost-Price Squeeze in '82." Representing Texas on this panel will be Homer Easterwood of Sinton, president of the South Texas Cotton and Grain Association.

Other topics to be discussed that afternoon and the following morning will deal with drip irrigation, the new LEPA (low energy precision application) irrigation system, use of vegetable oils in pesticide applications, HVI (high volume instrument) cotton classing and fiber needs of the textile industry.

Chairing the three general sessions of the cotton production conference will be Thomas N. Wolfe, president of oilseed processing with the Anderson Clayton Co.; Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; and Cecil Williams Jr., executive vice president of the Agricultural Council of Arkansas.

According to Metzger, the annual conferences are rotated among the major cotton producing states and are sponsored by the National Cotton Council and the Cotton Foundation.

Gathering lines approved

Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while a trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect.

Thirteen of the newly-permitted lines will transport gas, one will move products, and another will transport other materials.

Private pipelines accounted for 13 of the permits last month, while one was for a gas utility and another for a common carrier.

In October, four permits each were granted to operate pipelines in Southeast Texas and deep South Texas, two each in the San Angelo and Midland areas.

and one each in East Texas, West Central Texas, and North Texas.

Gathering lines approved:

Lapco Oil and Gas Co., Houston, gas, Madison County; Wellhead Ventures Corp., Kingwood, gas, (two lines—one in Fort Bend County and one in Orange County; Associated Gathering Systems Inc., Houston, gas, Coleman County; Teco Pipeline Co., Houston, gas, Hidalgo County; The New Energy Co., Midland, gas, Upton County; Matador Pipelines Inc., Breckenridge, products, Nueces County; Pronto Compression Co. Inc., Abilene, gas, Young County; Pipeline

Specialist Inc., Carthage, gas, Rusk County. Trunk transmission lines approved: Cibolo Gas Co., Midland, gas, Kimble and Menard counties; Esperanza Transmission Co., Corpus Christi, gas, (two lines—one in San Patricio County and one in Kleberg County.

Other lines approved: Koch Hydrocarbon Co., Wichita, Ks., gas, Mitchell, Sterling, and Coke counties; South Texas Gathering Co., Houston, gas, Walker County; Transmission Systems Inc, Houston, carbon dioxide, Pecos County.

HNG announces successful completion of gas well

HNG Oil Company, a subsidiary of Houston Natural Gas Corporation (HNG), has announced the successful completion of a gas well in the Atoka Formation of the Apollo Field in Winkler County, Texas.

The HNG University

Block 21 - Gas Unit #231 had a flow test of 4.5 million cubic feet of gas on a 8/64 inch choke. Perforation tests were made at depths of 13,204 to 13,307 feet in the Atoka Formation. The well had a flowing tubing pressure of 8650 pounds and a shut-in pressure of 8900 pounds. HNG Oil, which is the operator, has a 56 percent working interest and gas call. Arco Oil & Gas Company, Getty Oil Co., Hunt Oil Co., Louisiana Land & Exploration, and Maralo Inc. hold the remaining interest. HNG Oil has significant adjacent acreage to the north of the discovery.

HNG is a world-wide energy related company involved in natural gas transmission; oil and gas exploration; marine transportation, services and construction; industrial gases; and coal mining.

ESTAR to construct natural gas transmission pipeline in Alaska

Governor Bill Sheffield of Alaska and ESTAR Corporation announced that ESTAR's Alaska gas utility has signed two 15-year natural gas supply contracts which will increase the utility's reserve life to 20 years from the current seven years. The parties also announced that ESTAR intends to construct a 105-mile natural gas transmission pipeline in Alaska to provide additional gas supplies to Anchorage and to initiate natural gas service to several communities in the Matanuska-Susitna Borough north of Anchorage.

The new contracts include an agreement with Marathon Oil Company to purchase approximately 250 billion cubic feet of gas principally from Marathon's interest in the Beaver Creek field on the Kenai Peninsula south of Anchorage. The second contract is with Shell Oil Company for approximately 220 billion cubic feet of gas from Shell's interest in the Beluga River field located west of Anchorage. Since the Company's present gas supply contract expires in 1992, the two new contracts are of particular importance in providing uninterrupted service to the utility's customers.

The new contracts, which are subject to approval by the Alaska Public Utilities Commission, contain similar pricing provisions and provide for a base cost of $2.32 per MCF at the field with future adjustment to be determined by changes in the price of heating oil in the Anchorage area. Both contracts provide for substantial flexibility in the rate of daily deliverability which is critical to meet severe winter peaking requirements in Alaska.

Marathon's Beaver Creek field has already been connected to the utility's existing transmission system and purchases will begin as soon as public utilities commission approval is received. Shell's Beluga River field is located on the west side of Cook Inlet and will require the construction of a 105-mile transmission pipeline to connect with ESTAR's distribution system in Anchorage. The transmission pipeline will be owned by an ESTAR subsidiary. Deliveries of Beluga River gas will begin after the completion of the pipeline, probably in 1985. The Shell contract is subject to ESTAR's subsidiary obtaining financing for the new piping, which is expected to cost approximately $70 million.

Pipeline permits granted in Nov.

Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent has announced that 12 permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in November.

Through the first 11 months of this year, the Commission has issued 164 permits to operate new lines. For the same period last year, 160 permits were approved.

Five of the permits in November were for gathering pipelines, four were for trunk transmission lines, and three were for other types of lines. Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while a trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect.

Eleven of the newly-permitted lines will transport gas, while one will move crude oil.

Private pipelines accounted for 11 of the permits last month, while one was for a common carrier.

In November, three permits were granted to operate pipelines in Southeast Texas, two in deep South Texas, and one each in East Texas, East Central Texas, North Texas, and the San Antonio, Refugio, Lubbock, and Panhandle areas.

Gathering lines approved:

Ladd Petroleum Corp., Houston, gas, Dimmit County; Bengail Inc., Corpus Christi, gas, Nueces County; W. Murphy Jr., Denver, Colo., gas, Webb County; Cities Service Co., Jackson, Miss., gas, Leon County; TSPI Inc., Borger, gas, Carson County.

Truck transmission lines approved:

American Pipeline Co., Houston, gas, (two lines—one in Galveston County and one in Calhoun County) Amoco Gas Co., Texas City, gas, Galveston County; Wesco Pipeline Co., Denver, Colo., crude, Brazos County.

Other lines approved: Amoco Production Co., Levelland, gas, Garza County; Southern Crude Operating Co. Inc., Fort Worth, gas, Gregg County.

What can be contributed to diseases

There are an estimated 315,000 people nationwide who have asbestosis and silicosis and other forms of pneumoconiosis--diseases related to repeated exposures to fibrous dusts at the workplace. An estimated 30,000 people have byssinosis (brown lung) disease, a hypersensitive reaction to cotton bract.

And while tuberculosis is no longer the national health problem it once was, it remains a chronic lung disease concern in this country. There are 28,000 new cases of tuberculosis reported every year, including over 2,000 cases in Texas, Robertson said.

"In addition to the chronic respiratory diseases, millions more Americans suffer from short-term respiratory illnesses," she said. "In 1980, there were more than 107.5 million incidences of influenza and close to 126.5 million incidences of the common cold across the country. Illnesses of the lower respiratory tract, such as pneumonia, acute bronchitis and bronchiolitis, affected over 13.5 million people that year."

With the support of Christmas Seal contributions, the American Lung Association of Texas continues its battle against lung disease. Its programs include the Family Asthma Program, a seven-week session of group learning and physical activity, and "SUPERSTUFF", a unique self-help kit for children with asthma; Freedom From Smoking, a program of clinics and self-help guides for adults who want to kick the nicotine habit; and monthly Better Living, Better Breathing Clubs for people who have breathing problems, their families and friends; and research in lung disease cause, treatment and prevention.

"Texas residents can join our fight for healthy lungs," Robertson said, "by contributing generously to Christmas Seals. It's a matter of life and breath."

Forty-seven million Americans of all ages suffer from one or more chronic respiratory diseases at a total economic cost-including lost work days and medical expenses--of $48.8 billion a year in the U.S.A., according to the most recent statistics from the American Lung Association of Texas...The "Christmas Seal" People.

"Chronic respiratory diseases are found in all age categories, from infancy through later years," said K. Joy Robertson, M.D., president of the American Lung Association of Texas. "And we're dedicated to changing that fact and reducing the statistics. There are an estimated 800,000 people who have one or more chronic respiratory diseases in Texas," she said.

Among the facts reported by the Lung Association:

Sixteen million Americans--adults and children--suffer from Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD), which includes asthma, chronic bronchitis and emphysema and of the 6.8 million Americans with asthma, 2.3 million are children under the age of 17.

The single most common cause of death and disease in infants during the first month of life--the neonatal period--is Respiratory Distress Syndrome (RDS), in which immature lungs fail to function properly, collapsing after each breath. RDS affects 50,000 newborns in the U.S. and was responsible for 5,000 infant deaths in 1981.

Better Breathing

Practice pursed-lip breathing! Learn how to cough. Exercise your muscles. These are just a few of hundreds of suggestions in "Help Yourself To Better Breathing", a new free booklet offered by the American Lung Association of Texas especially for persons with emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Chock-full of excellent "how-to" hints, this large-size, 24-page booklet is illustrated by famous artist Roy Doty. There are first-person stories about how people have learned to cope with breathlessness. And specific directions on how to clear breathing passages of mucus.

Exercises for postural drainage and building stamina are illustrated.

Another section of this bright, helpful booklet identifies troublemakers, such as air pollution, extremes of weather, infections, and smoking and how to avoid them.

"Help Your Medicines Help You" described various medicines and the importance of working closely with a physician. There are spaces within the booklet to write individual directions for taking each medicine.

Breathing aids, such as nebulizers, respirators, oxygen, humidifiers, and vaporizers are described. There is even a section on eating to feel better.

The "Keep Living Your Life" chapter can help people suffering from chronic bronchitis or emphysema lead full, enjoyable lives despite their illness.

The booklet is used by participants in the Lung

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

The drive to conserve energy has attracted the interest not only of cost-conscious consumers but also of manufacturers and sellers of home insulation products.

While most are honest, there are a few who reportedly are trying to earn a fast dollar through deceptive trade practices. Not only can this cost the consumer money and fail to produce energy savings, but fire safety officials report that inefficient or faulty insulating materials being used by some unscrupulous installers can result in serious fire hazards to users.

Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys point out that many conflicting claims are being made about various types of insulation. Our lawyers caution that no responsible seller of insulation can make a flat claim of savings applicable to all homes.

Some sellers are also exaggerating the efficiency of their product, its price, and warranty coverage.

Most experts agree that when insulating the home the least expensive and most efficient approach is to make certain attic insulation is sufficient to insure maximum retention of both heat and cold.

Until recently most homes were insulated with an "R" (for resistance) factor of 15. Some electric utility companies now recommend the equivalent of six inches of "R-30" value insulation. In most homes, this would mean a substantial increase in insulation.

When deciding on insulation material, you should beware that the "R" factor is the most effective way to compare types of insulation and prices. If you pay more for one particular brand of attic insulation, you should get more "R" value for your money according to the amount of square feet you have in your attic.

Remember, too, to get at least three bids on insulation jobs, since insulation usually is a major consumer purchase that can run into hundreds of dollars. You should also compare warranties on both material and labor.

One controversial device often installed in combination with insulation is the power attic fan. Theoretically, it draws hot air out and cool air into the attic, but some homebuilders say power ventilators can consume more energy than they save. Check with persons who have attic fans to learn if they are satisfied.

It pays to be cautious if someone offers you an unusually low cost insulation program that is supposed to "dramatically reduce your energy cost." You could end up spending a lot more money and still have high heating and cooling bills.

If you have a complaint about a possible fraudulent insulation sales pitch, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Office nearest you.

Texas Department of Community Affairs announced job training

The Texas Department of Community Affairs (TDCA) announced that programs are still in operation for job training to meet the needs of private business and industry.

Under the authority of new federal legislation entitled the Job Training Partnership Act and the sponsorship of TDCA, local employment and training contractors serve 122 counties in Texas. These counties are in such regions as the Panhandle, South Plains, Texoma, North Central Texas, North East Texas, Brazos Valley, Deep East Texas, Concho Valley, Upper and Middle Rio Grande Valley and the Golden Crescent area of Victoria.

The Job Training Partnership Act provides a one-year transition period to put the new program into effect by October 1, 1983. Funding for job training and employment will continue at the present level until final appropriations for the new program are made by Congress prior to that date.

The Job Training Partnership Act was signed by President Reagan in October of this year. Job training will continue to be provided under existing CETA regulations through September 30, 1983.

The new act relies heavily on business and industry which represent the majority of available jobs and education to help meet unemployment and under-employment needs. Programs under the new act will be developed by business leaders, educators and government officials to meet state and local job training needs. Emphasis is placed on developing programs and plans at the local level.

For the past year, the current job training and employment program (CETA) has emphasized involvement by the private sector. Using the theme of "Texas Working Partnership," the Texas Department of Community Affairs and local job training contractors have encouraged business and industry to hire and train eligible workers in fifteen geographic areas throughout the state.

The program and funding are administered locally in all areas under TDCA sponsorship, comprising towns and counties of less than 100,000 population.

Under current guidelines, if a worker qualifies for the existing job training program, the employer can be reimbursed up to fifty percent of the worker's wages for training costs. In addition, if the employee qualifies under one of seven specially targeted groups, such as Vietnam veterans or the handicapped, the business could be eligible for additional tax credits.

Businesses wishing specific local information about the job training and employment program may contact Concho Valley Council of Governments, which administers the program in the following counties: Coke, Concho, Crockett, Irion, Kimble, McCulloch and Mason.

Also, Menard, Reagan, Schleicher, Sterling, Sutton and Tom Green counties.

The Concho Valley Council of Governments can be reached at 944-9666, in San Angelo.

Right of Way acquisition

A major policy change in the acquisition of right of way for US and State highways has been announced by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

Local levels of government now may request the department to accept initially an amount equal to 10 percent of the cost of needed right of way. The department will accept the voluntary contribution and take responsibility for the acquisition of the land.

Previously, local governments were required to purchase the right of way and were later reimbursed at least 90 percent by the department. Some counties and cities have had difficulty funding the purchase prior to reimbursement thus delaying needed projects.

Commission Chairman

Robert Dedman said the new procedures will take financial pressure off local governments and should speed up projects by allowing a more orderly effort in acquiring needed right of way.

Dedman emphasized the commission action was offered as an optional alternative to present procedures of right of way acquisition.

IRS advice

Like to stop paying taxes?

That's a very tempting idea, and proponents of this notion are making speeches and offering seminars around the country on the "how-to's" of tax evasion. The Internal Revenue Service, however, has some words of advice on the subject, too.

Working toward tax reform certainly is not illegal, the IRS points out. For example, urging changes in every individual, as is arranging one's affairs to pay the lowest possible tax within the law. Also, if you hold securities so as to have a long-term instead of a short-term capital gain, the law supports your move.

However, illegal tax protest, such as advocating or participating in a scheme that results in the unallowed underpayment or non-payment of taxes, or not filing required tax returns, is illegal, the IRS states.

The IRS has the duty and tools, given by Congress, to enforce the Federal tax laws. When some individuals remove themselves from the law, the burden of taxes is greater for those who willingly comply. In the interest of fairness for all taxpayers, the IRS says it will continue to enforce all Federal tax laws, including laws governing those who place themselves above the law by illegally refusing to pay their just share of tax.
