Three choir members to audition for state

Three members of the Sonora High Choir were chosen for the area choir and will audition for the state choir January 11 in Bryan, Texas.

Peter Chavez, Rachel Chavez and Shellie Lykins represented Sonora last Saturday in Stephenville.

The trip however began much sooner. The students arrived in Stephenville at 4 a.m. Saturday morning. Practicing began at 9 and ended at 12. Auditions started at 2:30 and lasted for almost 3 hours.

A concert was presented. "What Happened on Saturday" was sung and the announcement that everyone was waiting for—the all-Area choir.

Rachel was named 2nd chair, Shellie 3rd and Peter 4th.

At state competition these three will be vying for the right to sing in the state choir in San Antonio on January 15.

Peter said, "It was a surprise to be chosen, but I'm glad. The long hours of practice were well worth the effort. Now comes the hard part, making the state band. I hope we all can make it. I think it will be a really honor to sing with the best in the state. Mrs. Griffen has done a fantastic job with us. We all appreciate her so much."

Other singers competing from Sonora were Glen Love, Jose Gomez and Brandi Ware.

All are to be commended for their dedication and hard work.

Coaches White and Berry will leave here Saturday with their herd of Bronchos to meet the highly-touted Junction Hi aggregation. Junction, it is remembered, knocked the Del Rio Hi the tune of 12 to 7 only last week, and no doubt feel a bit cocky over the victory. They will have the confidence and will go on the field probably over confident and that will mean that they don't expect to fight the Bronchos very hard.

When I regained part consciousness, I thanked her for the information and asked if she thought I could get a slight reduction if I sent over and got say a dozen or so. I wouldn't give ten thousand dollars for the basket they had Moses stored away in the bullrushes in.

Homemaker Update

Help children understand love

"Love begins in the home," is an old, but true saying. The foundation for love starts with caring parents in the first years of a child's life.

Child development experts agree that the ability to form lasting relationships grows from infancy through close contact with one distinct caregiver, usually a mother. The security of this primary love relationship allows the child to develop love for others—the other parent, brothers, and sisters, grandparents and other relatives, friends and much later a marriage partner.

Capturing some of the many special events in your family's history can help your child better understand and appreciate family love. A family history does not have to be elaborate to serve this purpose.

You can start by simply telling stories about family members involved in local events or historical times. Grandparents and other older family members can exchange tapes or letters about their childhood with youngsters.

Older children will enjoy working on a family tree; as well as reviewing and hearing stories about the photographs in the family album. As we mark National Family Week, November 24-30, it might be a good time to start a celebration of your own family history.

Parents should share financial information

More middle-aged people are finding themselves "sandwiched" by financial obligations to both their elderly parents and their college-age children, says family economics expert Nancy L. Granovsky.

"Saving for a child's college education has become a part of financial planning for many middle-income families, but these plans can be sidetracked by the impact of a parent's unexpected medical expenses or need for financial assistance," says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service Specialist.

"Some good, honest money talk between adults and their aging parents can help the entire family plan for the future," advises Granovsky.

The specialist also recommends that parents let their children know how they feel about life-prolonging measures, any preferences about their funerals and the location of their wills and financial papers.

"While this may be a difficult subject for many families to deal with," says Granovsky, "honest talk about finances and the future may be necessary so families can meet the needs of both their older and younger members."

She suggests that adult children ask their parents the following questions:

*Do you have assets or debts I don't know about?

*Do you have enough income and have you considered ways you could get more, if necessary?

*Is your health insurance, life and homeowners insurance adequate? Do you have health insurance coverage for medical expenses not covered by Medicare?

*Do you know the eligibility requirements for receiving government aid?

*Do you know how to manage your money? This may be an especially important question if a widowed parent was accustomed to letting his or her spouse handle the finances.

"One of the best things aging parents can do is to share financial information with their adult children, for everyone's peace of mind," Granovsky says.

She suggests that elders tell their children who, if anyone, has been appointed to take care of their affairs if they become incapacitated.

1st Assembly of God

Every morning I see people walking or jogging up and down the street. Most of these people are walking for their health. Walking is good exercise. Experts will tell you that walking every day will be beneficial to your health.

It's significant that the spirit-filled life is described as a walk and not a 50 yard dash. The Christian life is a 7 day a week, 52 week a year program and the Lord knows we could not sprint that long--so he calls us just to walk.

Galatians 5:25 says, "If we live in the spirit, let us also walk in the spirit." In other words, our spiritual lives should be given to the Holy Spirit, so that He can lead us for the glory of God.

As we walk in the spirit, we can lift our eyes and enjoy the scenery. Our walk with God does not have to be drudgery.

As you walk, count your blessings, not your burdens, and you'll have a spring in your spiritual step.

Let me also suggest that you set some goals. When you go walking and just begin to wander, you'll get bored, return home, and be completely worn out. Set out with a destination, and you'll find yourself going farther and faster without getting weary.

Have some spiritual goals. Make it a point to pray each morning; to read a certain amount of scripture; to befriend someone; to witness; to do a certain job at Church. It will make your Christian life zestful and rewarding.

When you go walking, take someone with you. God's companionship and presence makes the walk more enjoyable.

In the midst of your walking take time out for recuperation. You need to pause regularly for spiritual rest and renewal. Just praise the name of the Savior. Take a deep drink from the river of God's spirit.

"But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." (Isiah 40:31)

Life is a gift to be received with gratitude and a task to be pursued with courage. Those words from Presbyterian confession of 1967 offer room for you in our church.

For whether you are receiving your life with gratitude and would like to share your joy, or whether your life is a burden, and you need someone to share that burden, our doors are open to you.

The Presbyterians of Sonora gather every Sunday morning at 10:00 a.m. to express praise and thanksgiving to God for the gift of life, and to seek God's wisdom and strength. We invite you to join us.

Blood donors needed for good cause

Our good health is too often taken for granted. When we are young, the prospect of experiencing a tragedy, needing an operation or undergoing prolonged hospitalization is barely conceivable. But as we grow up and older, these possibilities become more real. In our later years, "good health" becomes a goal we all strive for.

Expert medical care is a must for a speedy and complete recovery from a tragedy, operation or hospitalization. One important aspect of that health care is an ongoing blood program like the one administered by United Blood Services (UBS) of San Angelo.

United Blood Services furnishes our area hospitals with the fluid of life itself...blood. In addition, this non-profit organization provides specific blood components such as plasma, platelets, and clotting agents which are needed by some patients to save or prolong their lives.

Lifesaving blood products would not be available in our area if it weren't for the unselfish giving of all-volunteer blood donors in our community. It takes a special kind of person who happily interrupts his or her work or family time and gracefully accepts a small amount of physical discomfort. It takes a person with a sharing nature; one who gives without asking for great recognition. It takes a "quiet hero." It takes YOU!

Please come by the 4-H Center today between 1 and 6 p.m. to share your good health with others less fortunate.

Women to be focus of 1985 Great American Smokeout

The Great American Smokeout is aimed at all smokers, but this year, because of a grim "first" expected to occur in 1985, women are a special focus of the event. According to the latest annual estimates announced by the American Cancer Society, lung cancer is expected to overtake breast cancer as the leading cancer killer of women for the first time in U.S. history.

The Smokeout is Thursday, November 21, the ninth year as a national event. A variety of Smokeout activities are planned for women who smoke. The Sutton County unit will be hosting a booth at the Health Fair Nov. 13th at the 4-H Barn. A film will be shown and material passed out.

National Smokeout Chairman Larry Hagman, who is serving his fifth consecutive term as the event's leader, urges everyone to make a particular effort this year to reach women who smoke—from the very young to the very old. "We've got to put a stop to this unnecessary waste of lives," says Hagman.

The American Cancer Society estimates that between 1950 and 1982, the lung cancer rate rose 373 percent for white women and 335 percent for non-white women. If lung cancer statistics are excluded, death rates for all other cancers fell 16 percent for white women and 14 percent for non-white women. In 1985 alone, 38,600 will die of lung cancer, whereas breast cancer will kill 38,400. And lung cancer is a largely preventable disease. The Society estimates that 83 percent of the deaths from lung cancer could be avoided if individual never took up smoking.

"The vast majority of women who smoke want to quit," says Lou Falls. "Let's give them every opportunity this year, and all kinds of help to make quitting easier and more fun."

The American Cancer Society explains the rising number of women affected by lung cancer as a direct reflection of the increasing numbers of women who took up smoking during the years since World War II.

Social Security News

People who are thinking about retiring at the end of the year should start making some serious plans now, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently.

And those plans should include Social Security, Upp said. There are several factors a person should consider.

First, a person under 65 considering retirement should remember that his or her Social Security benefit will be permanently reduced if received before 65. The amount of the reduction depends on the number of months a person gets benefits before 65.

The reduction to 20 percent at 62, 13-1/3 percent at 63, or 6-2/3 percent at 64.

Other factors can influence a person's decision to retire, Upp said. Availability of a company pension could be a factor. So could the person's ability to continue working.

At any rate, a person should contact Social Security 2 or 3 months before reaching 65 to arrange Medicare Health Insurance protection even if there are no plans for retirement.

A person should have certain information ready when applying, Upp said. The person needs his or her Social Security card or a record of the number. Next, a person needs proof of his or her date of birth. An official record of birth recorded before age 5 is best, but other documents can be used if this is not available.

Form W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement) or self-employment tax returns for the past 2 years should be available. These are needed so that all of a person's earnings can be considered in figuring benefits.

A husband or wife who is also applying should have the same documents. Birth certificates of any eligible children are also needed.

Do not delay applying if all this evidence is not available. Call the Social Security office. The San Angelo office is located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608. The people there can tell what other evidence can be used.

A person who returns to work after beginning to receive Social Security retirement checks may be entitled to increased benefits as a result of the additional earnings, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently.

Social Security automatically refigures the benefit after the additional earnings are credited to the person's record.

"These people are also eligible for a special credit that can mean a larger benefit for them," Upp said. "This credit adds 3 percent a year—or 1/4 of 1 percent for each month the person does not get benefits because he or she worked after 65. This additional credit also increases the payments made to widows and widowers."

"For workers who become 65 in 1990, the delayed retirement credit will gradually increase until it reaches 8 percent," Upp said.

More information about delayed retirement credits can be obtained at the San Angelo Social Security Office

The full Social Security benefit retirement age is currently 65, but a person can retire early as age 62, Franklin H. Upp, Social Security manager in San Angelo, said recently.

"For those who do retire before 65, however, the amount of the retirement check is permanently reduced. In addition, payment amounts are reduced if a wife, husband, widow, or widower starts getting payments before age 65. The amount of the reduction depends on the number of months the person receives checks before age 65."

Beginning in the year 2,000, the age at which full benefits will be payable will gradually increase until it reaches 67. This means that people born in 1938 and later will be affected.

"Reduced benefits will still be payable at 62," Upp said, "but the reduction will be larger than it is at present."

More information about reduced benefits can be obtained at the San Angelo Social Security Office located at 2214 Sherwood Way. The telephone number is 949-4608.

34-6 Broncos tame the Lions

The mood of last Friday's game against Ozona was set on the opening play. Sophomore Alex Duenes intercepted the first pass with 11:48 left in the first quarter and ran 25 yards for the first score of the evening. Esau Ramirez' kick was good and the Broncos were ahead 7-0.
 This was the Broncos last game of the year. They came away with an impressive 34-6 victory over the Ozona Lions.
 A mere 40 seconds after the first touchdown the Broncos scored again but in a different manner. Senior Abe Carruthers and junior Billy Collins teamed up to sack the Lions for a safety. This raised the score to Sonora 9, Ozona 0.

 The scoring for the Broncos was not over as Senior John David Martinez ran 12 yards with 5:44 remaining for yet another touchdown. The conversion failed but the Broncos went into the second quarter with a comfortable 15-0 lead.
 Ozona scored first in the second quarter on a 21-yard pass from Harvey Fierro to James Sanchez. This made the score 15-6.
 Martinez scored with 1:44 remaining in the half on a 3 yard run. The extra point attempt failed but the Broncos raised the score to 21-6.

 Another interception brought about yet another Sonora score. Senior guard Wayne Collins nabbed the Fierro pass and ran 20 yards for the touchdown. Ramirez' kick was good and the Broncos increased their lead to 28-6 going into the last half of play.
 The scoring slowed quite a bit as the second half progressed. The only touchdown came on a punt return by Ramirez. The play covered 55 yards.
 There was no scoring in the final period as the Broncos enjoyed a 34-6 victory.
 The football team this year was lead by the seniors. They are: Jim Cooper, Esau Ramirez, Sonny Samaniego, Wayne Collins, James Lee, Manuel Duran, Mike McBride, Abe Carruthers and John David Martinez.

 The Broncos had a very respectable 7-3 overall record. Their district record was 2-2. The losses came at the hands of Crane and Ballinger who will both continue into post-season action.
 Ballinger won the district battle while Crane was runner-up. Ballinger beat Coahoma 45-0 and Crane defeated Colorado City 28-7 in their respective games.

MARY HAECKER

Wildlife Technician assigned to this area

"Oh, give me a home..." could be what you hear if you should meet Mary Haecker.

She could be singing it because her job as a Wildlife Technician for the Texas Park and Wildlife affords her, the opportunity to do what she really enjoys...riding the range.

Or she could be singing it because hoping to locate in Sonora, she really is looking for a place to live.

Haecker has been with the Parks and Wildlife since 1983 and has just recently been assigned to this area. Her duties, as a technician, will be to set bag limits according to census, offering technical guidance to landowners regarding wildlife management and taking population count on wildlife.

Having graduated from Stephen F. Austin with a degree in Forestry, special emphasis on Wildlife management, Haecker says she feels most fortunate. Not only does she get to do what she enjoys, she gets paid for it as well.

Taxidermy Tips

Bob McWilliams, Taxidermist

Every year I see many mounts ruined or damaged because of the lack of knowledge by the hunter in taking care of his trophy in the field. With this article I would like to discuss some of the problems that can be incurred in the field after you have downed your trophy.

First of all let me introduce myself. I am Bob McWilliams, a taxidermist, I was raised in the heart of the hill country between Junction and Sonora, on the J.P. Rieck ranch. I have been a commercial taxidermist for seven years but have dabbled in it for most of my life, first being introduced to the "art" by an old gentleman of the name of George Cox of Hext, Texas when I was only four or five.

Being raised around whitetail and exotics that is what my shop specializes in. I do all of the mounts myself trying to make the most realistic mount possible utilizing the most advanced techniques in the field of taxidermy today. I attend conventions on the state and national levels trying to obtain the latest in taxidermy advancements. So, armed with this knowledge and year after year of sewing up the trophy hunters mistakes with a knife, I will offer a few ideas here that might either save your trophy or make it a much more attractive mount.

Actually you have to start thinking about your mount before you pull the trigger. During the long summer period between hunting season you have a chance to dream about that trophy to put on your office or living room wall. Usually when you see the animal standing or working his way through the brush you already have an idea whether you are going to mount this animal or not. If and I realize that it can be a big if, but if he gives you the opportunity for a standing or broadside shot, shoot him behind the shoulders. For some reason some hunters think it is prestigious to break the animals neck. As a taxidermist I am telling you to forget about that and you will have a more prestigious looking mount on the wall. By shooting him behind the shoulders you take away number one, the possibility of shooting a horn off and the possibility of blowing the side of his neck away when your bullet exits. This can usually be repaired but sometimes will be noticeable, especially if there is hide missing.

After you have downed your trophy, please don't cut his throat! This can also be repaired but there can be a seam left showing on some animals (especially thin haired deer). Besides, if you shoot the animal in the heart or lungs he has bled thoroughly in the body cavity anyway! Think about that before you cut!

After you have shot your trophy of course you must field dress him. Again, use caution here. When you make the incision up to the brisket of the animal do not cut too high. Go on further than the back of the legs. You will have to reach up in the chest cavity to remove the heart and lungs, but it could save you some problems on your mount.

After your deer of exotic has been field dressed you have to decide whether you are going to quarter up the animal or bring it in to the processor to be processed. If you are going to skin the animal and he is to be mounted here is the correct way to cape a deer.

(1) Peel the hide down from the rear in the usual manner until you get to about 4 inches behind the animals shoulder. You should make an incision here all the way around the animal's body.

(2) Then take each leg and split down the "back of the legs," to the incision that you made around the body. Notice that I did not say the inside of the leg. More capes are ruined each year because of this mistake than any other reason. I had hunters bring me the whole hide but split down the inside of the leg and think that they have plenty of hide. The reason that you go down the back side of the leg is that the area on the brisket will be left in front where it is supposed to be. If you split down the inside of the leg, part of this brisket area, which is vital in today's modern full shoulder mounts, ends up on the part that is cut off and there is no way to sew it back. This leaves your cape too short, when seemingly you have plenty. Please do not ask me to do a neck mount. They are not attractive by today's standards in taxidermy.

(3) When you have made these cuts, just peel the hide down around the neck and cut the head off. Leave the hide on the head and let your taxidermist skin this out. You should refrigerate this as soon as possible or get it to the taxidermist. The longer you wait the more of a chance you take for the hair to slip because of bacterial action that begins as soon as the animal is killed.

TURKEY

If you are fortunate enough to kill a nice gobbler this year here are the proper procedures to make sure that he gets to your taxidermist in good shape.

(1) Plug the mouth with cotton or tissue.

(2) Plug open wound with cotton or tissue.

(3) Wrap the turkey in newspaper to keep his feathers lying down and protected.

(4) Refrigerate, freeze or take immediately to your taxidermist.

If you should have any questions, you may call me at (915) 387-2317 or come by 502 Wardlaw in Sonora. I will probably be spending most of my time at the Branding Iron Smokehouse deer processors hopefully skinning out deer heads. You can bring your trophy by there and I will be glad to skin the animal for you. He should be field dressed though.

With the rains that come this year the hunters and the taxidermist should have a great year. Good Luck!

School administrators attend workshop

Over 100 educators from eight school districts attended a two day workshop at the Del Rio Chihuahua Center Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 6 and 7. The in-service training sponsored by the Region XV Education Service Center of San Angelo, centered upon techniques of classroom observation. This workshop is one in a series of training sessions mandated by the Texas Education Agency.

Public school administrators from Novice, Winters, Veribest, Sonora, San Angelo, Comstock, Sterling City, and Del Rio received instruction from Ann Ray and Mima Gonzalez during the two day-long sessions. Ray is an instructional leadership consultant with the Region XV Education Service Center, and Gonzalez is the assistant personnel director for the San Angelo I.S.D. Assisting the workshop leaders were David Smith, program director and Judy Meador, inservice program director; both with the Region XV Education Service Center.

Filing videotapes, and overhead transparencies were used to enhance the learning process.

The classroom observation workshop covered such topics as "Instructional Lesson Plan Format", "Student Behavior", "Teacher Effectiveness" and "Principal Responsibilities". These items, as well as other components of classroom observation, followed three basic improve, principals want to be instructional leaders, and training can make a difference.

Others in attendance were Clyde Warren, executive director, Jackie Burkshire, curriculum consultant, Ann Recshaw, special education consultant, and Lynn Finkbeiner, special education curriculum consultant, all of Region XV Education Service Center.

Electricity decrease effective in November

The price of electricity for residential and commercial customers of West Texas Utilities Co. will decrease slightly in November as the company's winter rates go into effect.

Beginning with November billings, base rates will be reduced by 3/4-cent per kilowatt-hour. Residential base rates will drop from 3.97 per kilowatt-hour to 3.22, while commercial base rates will drop from 4.18 to 3.43 cents per KWH.

Results of the base rate decreases and slight adjustments in the fuel cost factor will be an 8.2 percent reduction in costs for residential customers. For example, a customer using 1,000 kilowatt-hours will be charged $6.56 less than for the same amount under the summer rates.

The summer-winter rate differential for the two classes of customers was established by the Public Utility Commission of Texas during negotiations in WTU's rate case during the fall of 1984. Seasonal rate differentials have been used by many companies for many years. The main reason is that the cost of providing services is higher during the peak usage season, or summer months when air-conditioners are in use.

Winter rates will be in effect from Nov. 1 through April 1986.
