The bad news is...

DEAR COMMISSIONER NABERS: Last week I fired my receptionist. She had been working for me for almost a year, but I never was pleased with the way she handled her job.

Her typing was awful. She often forgot to write down the appointments she scheduled and as a result I was overbooked much of the time. She stayed on the phone a lot talking to friends and I finally just told her I did not need her any more.

Today she filed for unemployment benefits. What can lexpect?

Dr. J.N.D. Amarillo

DEAR DOCTOR: The Bad News is that it sounds like you have done everything wrong! You can probably expect the worst.

If you were never pleased with the employee's work, it will be hard to explain why you kept her on your payroll so long and then terminated her at your convenience.

Was she aware that you were displeased? Did you counsel her about the problems you mention? Is there any documentation in her personnel file to support your complaints and/or attempts to correct the situation? Was she ever told that her job was in jeopardy?

You will be asked all of these questions and more because TEC must now rule on whether the termination was justified or not.

Keep in mind that this particular law was not written for employers. It was written to protect unemployed workers and the burden of proving misconduct falls squarely on an employer.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

by T. Driskell

Sonora's economy is an etherial thing, but at the present, a four or five year projection looks like it did in 1969 or 1970. If our level of bungling in Washington continues, especially the multifaced unconstitutional congressional foreign policy and Reagan's adherance to obviously inaplicable concepts, we might well see another boom that will make the 1978-82 period look like a D.A.R. tea party.

Our possibilities, surprisingly similar to agriculture, are a chancey ball of wax. We depend on a number of factors. The major factor is any interruption of oil flow from the Persian Gulf. In that case, world demand will shift to our suppliers such as Mexico, Venezuela and Nigeria with our estimated cost going to 65 to 100 dollars per barrel.

As graduating seniors, we are now at an important step in our lives. We are frightened and unsure of what is to come, but looking forward to what lays ahead. This feeling of uneasiness and anticipation reminds me of stepping onto the track for a race.

In a sense, life is a race. The race does not begin with the gun, but with the preparation. An important part of our preparation was our parents, teachers, friends, and relatives who acted as the coaches. They set an example for us to follow. They picked us up when we had stumbled and encouraged us when we were down. A special thanks goes to these people for their love, support, and hard work they have given us during our high school

In all of my years in athletics, I have never known a coach that did not demand excellence. To obtain excellence, we must have dedication, some ability, but mostly determination. We cannot be afraid of hard work or be unwilling to make the necessary sacrifices. In life, we must also have these qualities to achieve

Confidence is also important in our race. It is so easy to quit because we are afraid of failure, afraid we are not good enough to achieve all that we have set forth as our goals. This poem stresses the need for confidence:

To have this confidence, we must know that we are ready for our race. We have worked hard and have earned an education. We have sought wisdom and experience to prepare us for our race. Our first goal has been completed and now we can set new, higher goals for which to strive.

The time has now come for the gun to sound. We are dedicated. We have the ability and the determination to do our best and be successful. We are confident, for we know that we are able to accept the challenge and run the race of life.

Salutatory address

by Kelly Cahill

Welcome. On behalf of the senior class of 1987, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to each of you in attendance here tonight. I would especially like to thank the faculty, the school board and all the parents who have encouraged and supported us during these past years. With your help we have arrived upon the threshold of tomorrow. We must now assume responsibility for our lives

Ralph Waldo Emerson said:

"What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us."

In each of us is a spark which determines what we will make of our lives. Regardless of the career we choose, our success will be determined to a great degree by our attitude. Therefore, it stands to reason that we should devote time and a sincere effort toward building a proper foundation for our attitudes.

Enthusiasm is an attitude. The word "enthusiasm" comes from the Greek works "EN THEOS" which means "God within." It is no wonder we can accomplish so much so easily when we are enthusiastic. People always enjoy being around someone filled with enthusiasm. It is contagious and it makes everyone feel good--about--themselves, their projects, and other people. It is an attitude of inner faith and trust in oneself.

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Thus, an enthusiastic, positive attitude draws success and happiness to us--just as optimism, another positive attitude does.

However, we must learn to avoid apathetic attitudes. Graduation is so often the time that is associated with one's gaining of social maturity, but to demonstrate this maturity, we must show interest and concern for our fellow man. An apathetic attitude has no place in a mature, successful society.

Responsibility. We often do not think of responsibility as an attitude, but it is very important that we accept and maintain the attitude that we are responsible for everything in our lives. If we are successful and happy, we have ourselves to thank. But if we are unsuccessful or unhappy, again, we have only ourselves to thank. When we can accept the responsibility for our failures, as well as our successes, we have truely learned from them. And isn't that what life is all about?

As Zig Ziggler said:
"If you learn from a defeat, you haven't really lost."

And "Best of all, what you get by reaching your destination isn't nearly as important as what you become by reaching that destination."

Remember:

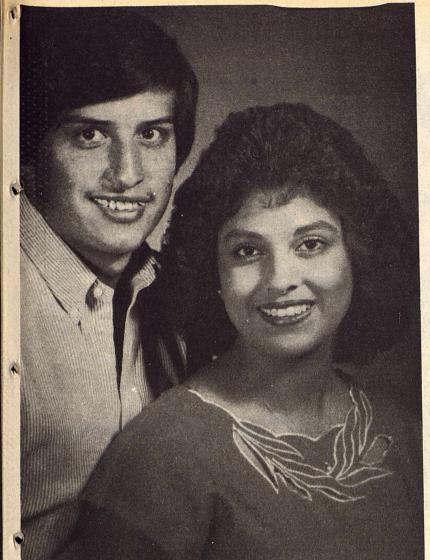

"You are the only one who can use your ability. It is an awesome responsibility."

I believe that our class has proven that we have the potential to meet our futures with an enthusiastic, mature, and responsible outlook, thus sending each of us on the road to success.

Again, I would like to thank all who have helped us to reach this point in our lives.

And, Seniors, I charge you to accept the responsibility of the challenge of our future....
Thank you.

Sonora ISD's overall operation receives excellent report from auditing team

The long-awaited report on Sonora ISD's overall operations as scrutinized and evaluated by an accreditation team from the Texas Education Agency last spring reveals that the local public school system is progressive and effective in its primary purpose-educating the young people of this

The three-member team went over the entire district, from maintenance of the buildings to the hour-by-hour teaching assignments of the classroom teachers, with a fine-toothed comb in order to unearth possible noncompliance with TEA and State Board of Education directives and rules. As a result of the auditing team's search for the good, the bad, and the ugly, only a few technical faults were found, with the district being commended in nearly all areas of major importance.

One of the truly outstanding areas as recognized by the auditors is this community's support of educational facilities and of a dedicated, caring instructional staff. Most highly commended were those classroom teachers who carry on the everyday, sometimes humdrum business of teaching children the basic three R's--plus the sciences at all levels, history and social studies, computers, trig and geometry, drama, typing, plus homemaking and the vocational trades to add a little spice and variety to the curriculum and to the lives of the

The physical plant was one area that shone in the audit. To quote directly from the audit report,..."The community, Board of Trustees, and staff are to be commended for their commitment to provide facilities supporting the district's instructional program.

The new high school campus, with its quality facilities, has greatly enhanced the kind of environment that is conductive to learning."

In addition, the renovation and upkeep of all buildings used in instruction are commended within the report, especially the fine condition of the rock building built in 1908.

Among the more highly-touted programs in place in Sonora were the special education program, the special reading program, and the enthusiasm for learning found in the students, in the faculty and in its administrators and Board.

To cite two paragraphs of the report: "The monitoring team commends the entire staff on its display of concern in providing an instructional program based on all needs of students attending Sonora Independent School District."

"The entire staff displayed a positive attitude that was reflected in the positive learning environment on the campus and in the classroom. Also, teachers displayed a cooperative spirit in working together for the improvement of learning. There was evidence of a caring faculty for the students in Sonora ISD. The student body was wellbehaved, polite, friendly, and appropriately dressed. Overall, there was a positive school climate observed on all campuses."

Among the areas of concern were the students' apparent lack of interest in the tutorial program, and expansion of the academically gifted program to all grade levels. (The Board of Trustees has just recently approved a plan which will result in the gifted and talented program being expanded to all grades by the 1988-89 school year, or a full two years before the state requires it.)

The tutorial program, mandated by the passage of HB #72 in the summer of 1984, is to give extra time and help to those students who are in academic need of it. However, due to scheduling problems and to Sonora's comparitively large bus population, before-and-afterschool tutorial sessions are sparcely attended. It is anticipated that the next school year will see some effective changes in the program, and that it will be better utilized by those who need it.

According to Superintendent James Bible, the excellent report by the auditing team was to be expected, considering the quality of staff and students and our up-todate curriculum. He added that the district's administrators have spent many hours in study and attendance at area workshops to insure that Sonora is fully in compliance with state directives as they are issued.

Bible closed with the observation that it was the support of the citizens of this county, the dedication of school personnel, and the quality of the student body which made Sonora the first-class school system that

The conception and birth of the Outdoor Drama Group occurred earlier this year.

The group is made up of various local residents and is open to everyone. The only requirement for membership is a willingness to work toward the goals established by the Group.

The primary goal of the Group is to capture the heritage of Sonora, Sutton County and surrounding area to be presented in an outdoor epic drama during the Centennial Celebration in 1990. The ultimate end is a two-fold project with the first being an important part of the hundred year festivities. The second to be the establishment of an outdoor drama as a tourist approximately ninety flyers to campgrounds and 300 press releases to newspapers throughout Texas. Interest has already begun from out of town with calls for additional information.

As with any endeavor, help is always needed. A list of volunteers is being compiled for this summers performances. Each evening will require the services of at least five to six persons to take tickets, help with parking, seating, clean-up of the area after the performance and various other "show-time" tasks. The Sonora Chamber of Commerce has sent out

Summer clothing features wrinkles

The new summer fashions are out in local stores, and the comfortable, casual look is "in."

According to Dr. Ann Beard, a clothing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, "The trend this summer is toward denims, khaki, and other casual fabrics. The "wrinkled: look is also back, so you can put away the iron until the new fall fashions arrive."

Wrinkles aren't found only in cotton and cotton blends this summer, she says. They also are showing up in silky looking clothing. These wrinkles are heat set into the fabric so they won't come out after washing. Wrinkles make garments easy to care for, and cooler since less fabric touches the skin.

Puckered seersucker is coming into vogue and is popular for many of the same reasons as the "wrinkled" look.

"Denim is showing up everywhere this summer," says Beard. "It's no longer a fabric just for jeans, and it isn't being restricted to it's traditional colors. The soft, wasked look seems to be very popular, but some of the stronger colors are being worn more often."

Color combinations are changing too. Summer fashions will bring olive and khaki together, as well as olive and peach. These combinations are enhanced by the primitive looking prints that are part of the new trend, says the specialist.

"The hip slimming effect of shoulder pads also is featured in summer fashions; and the oversized look is still popular though the sizes aren't as exaggerated as in the past," Beard

According to Beard, botique prints will always be fashionable, but this summer, the primitive look is what's selling.

Be prepared for cool, comfortable summer fashions, and give the iron a rest, unless of course, wrinkles weren't intended by the manufacturer.

Mutual funds--Shareholders services

Mutual funds offer a convenient way for anyone with limited time or money to place investment dollars in the hands of professional money managers and to leave the decisions to them. The long-term investment results of select mutual funds have proved to be a rewarding choice for millions of Americans. In addition to the investment logic of mutual funds, most mutual funds offer their shareholders numerous services, usually at no cost. These services, which are outline in the fund's prospectus, can mean lifelong investing without ever having to sell your fund or move from the mutual fund family. Of course, to do so, you must understand and properly utilize these services.

Because of these available services, it's important to examine all the products managed by a "family of funds" when selecting an investment. That way, should your financial circumstances change, you can easily restructure your investment program by transferring your dollars to other funds in the "family." This shareholder services is called an exchange privilege and can usually be accomplished at little or no

Another shareholders service, called automatic reinvestment or distribution, allows all your dividends and capital gains to be automatically reinvested. This services provides your money additional potential for growth through compounding and can usually be accomplished at no charge. You can also use this service to make automatic monthly investments by authorizing the fund to draft your checking account for a specified sum each month.

Load funds, or those funds which charge a one-time acquisition cost, often offer attractive discounts on large investments made at one time or over a period of time. These investments usually valued at $10,000 or more, can either be invested in one fund or a combination of funds within the family. Through a service called the right of accumulation, you can add any new purchase within the family of funds to the value of your present shares to qualify for a quantity discount. Or, if you intend to make a sizable deposit over a 13-month period, you can, without obligation, sign a statement of intention that offers the maximum quantity discount applicable to the total dollar amount you plan to invest.

To help you with the record keeping of your fund, you receive a confirmation statement every time there's activity in your account. And, at the end of each year a 1099-DIV is sent which shows the amount and tax status of distribution paid to you during the year. Mutual fund share certificates can be held for you by a custodian bank at no cost. This eliminates the costly problem of lost or destroyed certificates.

To help shareholders take advantage of tax-saving retirement plans, most mutual funds offer IRS-approved trusteed prototype plans for Individual Retirement Accounts (IRA), Simplified Employee Pension Plans (SEPs), retirement plans for employees of non-profit organizations (403bs), and retirement plans for selfemployed business people.

As you see, mutual funds can offer a wide range of services in addition to the management of your money. If you own mutual funds now, or plan to invest in them in the future, take the time to understand shareholder services. They can offer fantastic benefits at a price you can't refuse.

News from the Nursing Home by Doris Cahill

Our Activities Director, Lilia Gonzales, made a suggestion last June, and as a result we are recognizing the 1st anniversary of "Over the Hill Gang".

Sunday the 14th devotional was led by Rev. Kent Kepler, First United Methodist Church, in the lobby at 4 p.m. Holy Communion was offered, and Leona Bishop played the piano for singing.

High lighting my recent activities was a gathering on June 14th, at the Alta Loma Hall, in San Angelo, Tx. Four generations of the late Albert Jackson and Alta Purcell Owens' family, from the four winds (including California, Nevada, Oklahoma, and Arkansas), many of whom had never met, enjoyed one another's company. We didn't wave any banners this Flag Day, but were clamorous, exhausted ourselves conversationally, and agreed there are numerous accomplished cooks among us. A traditional cookbook of favorite family recipes, is in the works for the next reunion in 1989, in San Antonio, Texas. Five of the Owens children: Ellen Ray (oldest), Viola Randle, Wilson Owens, Violet Needham and Lillie Pitts (youngest) and thirty-nine "in-laws" and "outlaws", were present. One birthday was celebrated, but 2 year old Carrie Cunningham took the cakein fact, she poked her fingers in it, and was caught in the act by an alert uncle with a camera.

Much appreciation for the floral arrangements brought from St. John's Episcopal Church. Their beauty is remarkable.

Residents were weighed Monday, and the new hydraulic lift was put to good use. "Thinnies"-eat up! "Fatties"-for shame! The simplest diet of all is-"if it tastes good, spit it out"!

Doris Cox was asked to conduct Bible Study Tuesday a.m. and prayers were said for those who are ill. That afternoon, we congregated and aired our views on this, that, and the other in the news, but no mind bending efforts were made.

We were amazed when we noticed, in last week's column, that "we keep persuing"! What a difference a few little letters can make! We DO pursue the paper daily-all over the building-but we peruse it, too, when we find it.

Celeste Prugel has been at it again. We savored the salad she brought for our supper early in the week, and the fresh green beans, cooked especially for us, couldn't have been better. Thank you

There are usually at least 12 Bingos made every Wednesday, the lucky ones were: Bruton 3, Drennan 2, Ray 2, Rodriguez 1, Cox 1, Hardy 1, Hinojesa 1, and Cahill 1, Lilia called, and Wanda assisted.

Leona Bishop always strikes the right notes on the piano at every Sing-Along she attends, and as a slight deviation from the normal of the past few sessions Scott Gilmore (Administrator) was here to sing for, and with, us Wednesday. He promised to bring his guitar next time around, and really liven things up. At one point, a voice from the nurse's station-sounding suspiciously like that of a certain Dr. L.-joined in, Lilia, and Maria Porras (Dietary Consultant) also sang along.

Lilia, Ethelda Holland, and Gertrude Webb were our beauticians Friday and Gertrude shared some interesting experiences, and pictures, from her recent sojourn in Switzerland and South Africa.

The Sawyer family is preparing for their annual exodus to Maine for the rest of the summer, and Lura arrived at our door with h-ea-p-s of reading material, continued encouragement of our mental beautification. We surely are going to miss her.

Saturday we enjoyed popular piano music selections played by Alice Hardy-Melvin so much so that he delighted us by "conducting" through out.

Members of the 1st Baptist Church presented a "Father's Day" program in the lobby Sunday afternoon. Rev. Jim Stephen delivered the sermon, George Morris (Music Director) was pianist, and Kyle Viertel (School Band Director) led singing, and sang solo "How Great Thou Art". We were regaled with refreshments of Lilia's specialty-chocolate cake with cherry topping and coffee.

Registed in our new book were-

In the spring long wool was consigned on an 8 and 8 1/2 cent advance, and fall advance represented a substantial increase.

Farming pays in Sutton Countythat is, if farming pays anywhere, for real crops can be made in Sutton County, as proved by the work of A.J. Faught, one of the few men in the county to take the tilling of soil seriously.

On his place 10 miles northwest of town Mr. Faught this year produced 25 bales of cotton on 30 acres, and it was good cotton. He had it ginned at Bailey Ranch in Schleicher County.

His corn, part of which he gathered in a boat after the submersion of his field in big rains, made 35 bushels to the acre. Kaffir corn was good, and each acre produced 800 bundles-of the size that a man keeps for his own use.

Buzz Saw Captures Interest

In the midst of a game a runaway buzz-saw captured the interest of the spectators completely. A wood saw in a neighboring pasture suddenly went haywire, the blade came loose and was whirled several hundred feet into the air, with a most unusual noise. Fortunately it alighted in the road at the side of the field, and did not seriously endanger people witnessing the game.
