Drug dealing trials to start next week

More than seven months after police arrested 14 suspected drug dealers in a massive roundup here, the accused are getting their day in court.

The jury selection process is scheduled to begin Monday, with the first defendant likely to be presented Tuesday.

Presiding over the trials will be 112th District Court Judge Brock Jones.

The roundup, which eventually resulted in 20 arrests, began with an undercover investigation initiated in November, 1988.

On March 6, a Sutton County Grand Jury returned 28 indictments for delivery of various illegal drugs including methamphetamine, cocaine and marijuana.

The day the indictments were returned two dozen law enforcement officers from sheriff's departments from Sutton, Crockett and Schleicher counties, the Sonora Police Department, and the Texas Department of Public Safety gathered to coordinate the roundup.

Each team of officers was supplied with arrest warrants and consent-to-search forms for residences and vehicles.

The first arrest was made within 15 minutes after the officers set out for their respective quarries, and the last suspect was placed in custody about three hours later.

Police made the arrests without incident.

Although most of the suspected drug dealers have been released on bond, one defendant remains in custody. Tomas "Tiny" Hernandez Favela still remains in Sutton County Jail after several unsuccessful attempts to have his $50,000 bond reduced.

District Attorney J. W. Johnson Jr. said he will consider plea bargains, but some of the defendants may not consider his offer much of a bargain.

San Angelo man dies from rollover injuries

A San Angelo man was killed when the pickup truck he was riding in rolled over late Saturday night on Highway 277 about 7 1/2 miles south of Sonora.

Jimmy Don Lohse, 39, was pronounced dead at 1:55 a.m. Sunday at Lillian M. Hudspeth Memorial Hospital by Dr. Jaime Vasquez, according to a Department of Public Safety spokesperson.

The driver of the vehicle, Lohse's nephew, Robert Lee Lohse III, 18, also of San Angelo, was transported to the local hospital by one of two Sutton County EMS ambulances dispatched to the scene. He was later transferred to Angelo Community Hospital.

Lohse remained in an intensive care unit Tuesday, but further information about his condition is being withheld by request of his family, a nursing supervisor said.

Both men were thrown from the 1985 Ford pickup, which had been traveling south when the driver apparently lost control. The vehicle veered across the highway onto a shoulder, crossed back across the road and rolled over into a bar ditch.

VALIANT EFFORT - Although the Broncos' running game was a mighty valiant effort Friday night, the points were gained by the foot and not the yard. Manuel Martinez' foot was responsible for 10 points in the victory over Colorado City.

HIS HANDS ARE FULL - Trey Wardlaw had his hands full during the Sonora Sensation Saturday and Sunday. Wardlaw suffered some bad luck, and wasn't among the winners in the weekend event.

Local pro shoots Sonora Sensation

The Sonora Sensation might appear to be just another rodeo for photographer David Jennings, he put as much time and effort into the local event as he does the biggest national competitions he is often chosen to shoot.

And his work reflects the effort he makes to produce top quality results.

Two hundred performances a year is not enough to keep Sonora-based Jennings from being one of the top rodeo photographers in the United States. As a fifth generation Sutton County rancher, Jennings and his wife Dedra are deeply committed to capturing traditional western ideals and the American sport of rodeo.

Fascinated by photography, since childhood David became interested in rodeo from a picture book by famed rodeo photographer De Vere. After shooting the San Angelo Roping Fiesta as a college project, Jennings choose to pursue a career in rodeo photography.

DAVID JENNINGS

A perfectionist, David constantly strives to improve his art. "It's not for the money. It's the country you see, the people you meet, and the photos I put in my own notebook," says Jennings.

Jennings' credits in five years as a Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association member include major rodeos like the Calgary Stampede; Pendleton Round Up; West of the Pecos; Super Bull, and the "ultimate test of a photographer," Cheyenne Frontier Day. Jennings was selected to photograph the Texas Circuit Finals; Canadian Finals Rodeo; National Finals Steer Roping, 1988; and the National Finals Rodeo in 1988.

Jennings favorite event in rodeo is the bullfight because, "anything can happen, it's always different and intense." David also enjoys picking and putting as pastimes.

Jennings captures the western action from a cowboy's point of view. "Timing toes out and form are the essential combination in a Jennings Rodeo Photograph."

After spending the weekend photographing the action at the Sonora Sensation, David spent Monday printing photographs for the Devil's River News Oct. 6 edition.

See page six for Jennings' Sonora Sensation photographs.

Hightower praises guard donkeys

"Guard donkeys are no longer a novelty in Texas," stated Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. "They are an effective method of predator control among Texas sheep and goat producers. We estimate that 1800 producers are using guard donkeys in Texas today."

Hightower said that donkeys don't work every time. "In fact there are some circumstances where donkeys are almost guaranteed to fail. But when properly used, donkeys are an inexpensive and humane way to keep coyotes away from farm animals."

"In January of 1988 TDA announced a comprehensive predator management program from Texas sheep, and goat and lamb producers. We paraded a bunch of dogs, llamas and donkeys on the grounds of the state capitol. The skeptics said that maybe I should have been on the other end of one of those leashes.

"But given time and hard work and producers' willingness to try something a little different, we now

Sonora wins number four; Ballinger also undefeated

As homecoming fans cheered until the bleachers rattled, the Sonora Broncos stayed a foot ahead of the Colorado City Wolves Friday night.

The foot belonged to senior Manuel Martinez, who scored 10 of Sonora's 16 points with three field goals and one PAT.

Although the Wolves were high spirited at the beginning of the game, they let out a few howls and eventually left the field with their

Colorado City edged Sonora in total yards, but lost whatever advantage they might have had with four penalties that cost them 40 yards. The Wolves' errors included three fumbles and one interception.

Jake Kimbrel, David Mirike and Tracy Love recovered the fumbles, and John Terry made the game's only interception.

Love, with only 1:34 left in the game, scored the Broncos only touchdown.

Sophomore Danny Mata, replacing Chacho Cahill at fullback, led Sonora with 76 yards on 18 carries. Cahill was sidelined with a knee injury.

It was the fourth straight victory for Sonora, who face their biggest challenge this Friday when they play undefeated Ballinger.

Ballinger, also 4-0, flattened Stamford 67-0 Friday night.

'SELF' CONTROL

by J. Michael Fish

Americans at every level of our culture follow in the tradition of Ponce De Leon in his search for the mythological fountain of youth. Today, billions of dollars change hands annually as a result of people's desires and aspirations regarding aging, immortality and looking younger longer. The various advertising media teem with diets, pills, creams, resorts, surgical procedures, cassette tapes or altering undesirable beliefs and self hypnosis and more.

Under ideal conditions the average American could live to be 120 years old, possibly 150. With the average life expectancy of today being 72, our problem would be more aptly termed "premature aging." The solution will be found in preventative measures, and "prevention" will be a key word in each of our futures.

The degenerative process of aging is well underway at the time of birth. It begins with the first cell of death as the fetus develops within the womb. Accordingly, the process continues until the last cell dies, long after the clinical death of the body.

Regeneration, or growth, gradually slows during youth until the body no longer produces cells as quickly as it loses them. Aging usually overtakes growth in most Americans during their early to mid 20. At this point, the symptoms of aging begin to appear and body functions gradually become less efficient.

We cannot stop aging, but certain measures can retard and prevent premature aging, "adding years to your life and life to your years." The National Institute on Aging outlines several ways in which to increase the odds of having a long, healthy, happy life.

1.) Don't smoke. Besides being linked to heart disease, emphysema, cancer and just about everything imaginable, smoking strips the body of valuable nutrients such as the B and C vitamins, and trace minerals. For every cigarette smoked, 25 milligrams of Vitamin C is destroyed and eliminated from the body. So, if you smoke, take enough "Cs" to compensate for the loss of what the body would normally require, plus vitamin B-1, and an amino acid called cysteine. It should also be noted that your need for vitamin B-12, B-6, C, E and calcium is greatly increased.

2.) Eat a balanced diet, maintain a desirable weight and supplement your intake with vitamins and minerals. Every cell in the body requires nutrition for regeneration and division. Older person may have problems absorbing supplements, in such cases a rest period or quiet time may be required after ingestion.

Spread supplemental intake throughout the day, after meals is the recommended time, and select a variety which is time or sustained released. Vitamins from natural sources are better absorbed by the body and the inexpensive brands will suffice as well as the higher priced, 'exotic' brands. Your drug store will often stock a variety formulated for the area in which you live.

3.) Exercise: it is a good tranquilizer, helps prevent disease and retards the aging process. It helps maintain coordination and aids in organ functioning.

4.) See your doctor regularly and as soon as a problem is detected. Follow medical advice. Get second opinions and have a PDR (Physicians Desk Reference) available because doctors are humans subject to error. If a disease cannot be prevented, it can be treated and even cured.

5.) Stay involved with family and friends, don't retire any sooner than you have to, and make new friends of all ages. People are not meant to be alone; to do so invites depression, loneliness and loss of purpose. The young can learn from the elderly and older persons can be motivated by the young. Stay active with work, hobbies or other activities and recreation, for it is the excitement, goals and the anticipation in each day that keeps one feeling younger.

6.) Allow time for rest, relaxation and enough sleep.

7.) Drink alcohol in moderation, if at all. Aside from the obvious health risks, it depletes the body of valuable nutrients.

8.) Avoid exposure in excessive amounts to the sun and cold.

9.) Practice good safety habits at home, in travels and at work. What good is it to survive a bout with cancer only to die on the highway because you didn't use seat belts?

10.) Plan ahead for your financial security. Many elderly people are unable to maintain a proper diet due to economic stress. Need you be reminded of the high cost of medical care these days?

11.) Maintain a positive outlook on life, expect to live a long life, and find what it is that makes you happy and DO IT. What would be the worth of extending your years without the ability to enjoy them? Look forward to the wisdom and inner strength you will attain by confronting and overcoming the challenges that lay in store. Trust it, share it with others and let it take you into the future full of hopes and dreams for life yet lived.

In an interview with Belle Steen, who celebrated her 102nd birthday on Oct. 4, I asked her for the secret to living a long life.

Her reply: "Secret? Just live your life."

With emphasis being placed on "live," the simple statement seemed somewhat enigmatic because the term could be taken to mean so many specific and varying things. Maybe Belle did not know how to reply to the question and make her reply a general one. Maybe, ...Did she know exactly what she was saying.

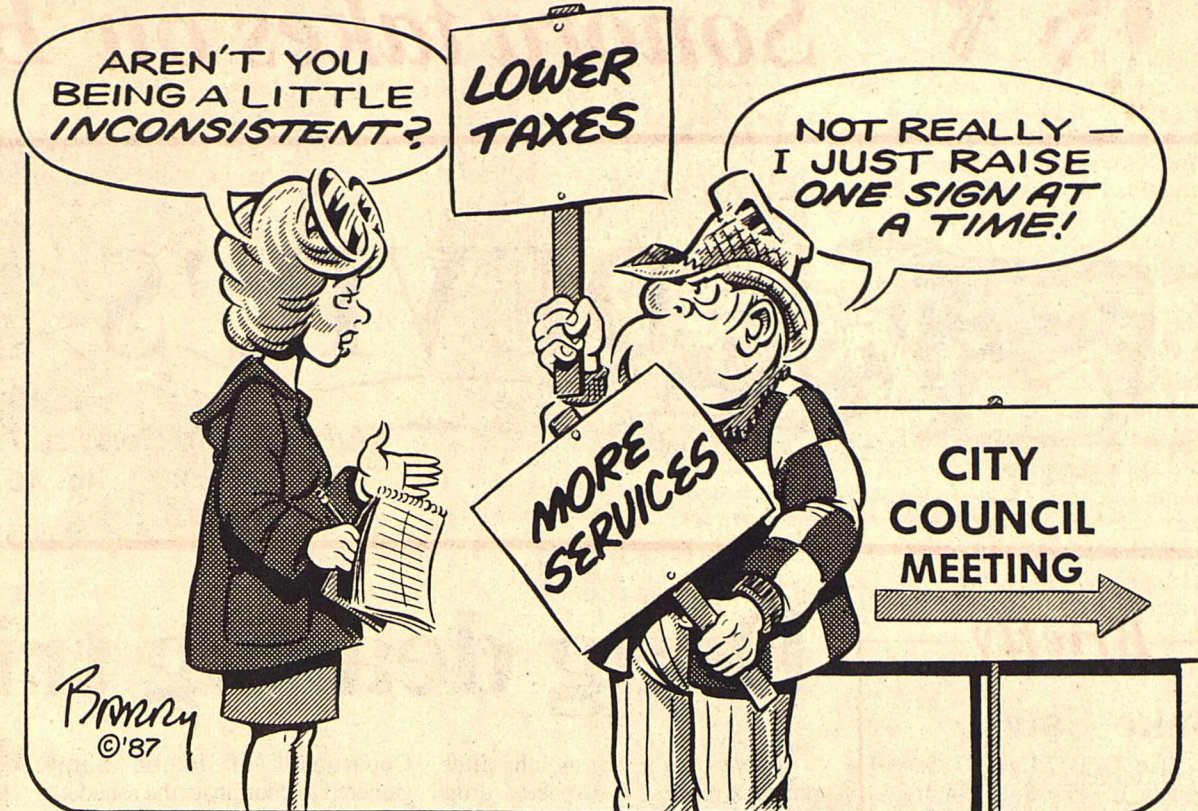

"Just live your life." Actually, nothing more need he said. Don't worry about it, don't procrastinate in the things you want to do, don't let other live it for you: "Just live your life."

The science of gerontology and research on aging are in stages of infancy, and answers are few in coming. However, we can benefit from present understanding and prevent premature aging with proper care for our bodies and minds.

I cannot emphasize nutritional supplements to the diet enough, in order to get quality service from it. Furthermore, it goes without saying that good attitudes play a significant role in having a long life. Of the 25 texts, the various magazines, articles and brochures I read in researching these articles, I found few clear-cut facts, almost all conclusions were based on theory, but all confirmed one another concerning the importance of diet and mental attitude.

No, there is no fountain of youth, no pill, no magic spell to make us immortal. Nonetheless, we were engineered with everything we need to lead long, healthy, happy lives. Aging is as inevitable as time itself. You are born, you live and you die; it is what you do in the interim that makes the difference.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

by T. Driskell

If a man makes a positive statement in this society, he is the recipient of many comments; mostly brick-bats, with an occasional approval. This is the thirtieth anniversary of my recognition (not reached in silence) that our system of education is adequate for our needs in the competitive world of the "free-traders". Since that time, I have collected enough brick-bats to build a warehouse.

President Bush's address to the governors on education shows that at last, the destructive shortcomings are being considered. Is it in time? Considering the capability for rapid action that we possess; probably not. It is the same problem which confronts the prison system that is now outgrowing the taxpayers' pocketbooks. There is a vast zone of misunderstanding between what is thought of as mercy and the realm of majority rights, economic feasibility, and national survival.

The first school problems are in the area of concepts. Buildings have no connection with education, except possibly to deter it. Secondly, the additional money must go into the area of people and equipment, not piles of brick. Thirdly, there must be adaption of the programs to the needs of the students determined, form their probable greatest benefits and personal desires. This is the hard nut that must be broken, and cracking it will cost untold billions because it will require two totally different programs after about the sixth school year. There will have to be different teachers, orientation, and courses of study. You have not seen the fun yet, stand by.

The authoritarian agreement with, and the ability to state that previous information was supplied (a fifty cent way of saying: "I told you so") certainly provides balm for the brick-bat knots on ones head.

Our system of comparison of our high school graduates with the European gymnasium graduates is absurd. Our 12 year students are not their equal, nor should they be compared. The Europeans have had the advantage of two or three screenings to pare deadwood, and continual monitoring to re-route non performers. We make our top students survive in spite of the system, but they start the university about two years behind their European competitors. It surely shows up in graduate level, especially PhD fellowships where their students outnumber us as much as four to one.

The loudest condemnation, it seems, always comes from the responsible parties. Parents, I put it to you, give that student all the support you can, and recognize that learning, not interscholastic league, is the objective of our school system. Blame should be placed on the school only after you have done everything possible to support your students. In most cases it is not the teachers. It is sheer nonsense to use them as an excuse for deficient performance of students and parents and misplacement of priorities. Your standard of living depends on correction of all educational deficiencies, wherever they may lie.

Publishers Comment . . .

It may be a premature observation, but it seems there was a lot more spirit around here 100 years ago.

Sure, there's plenty of enthusiasm during regular events like the Bronco games, rodeos and homecomings, but what about a big event that will be upon us in a few months - The Sonora Centennial?

The clock is ticking, and yet there appears to be a general malaise about celebrating what has all the potential of being the biggest, proudest birthday party ever seen in these parts.

Maybe everyone is keeping the excitement well concealed. Maybe the celebration-to-be is one of the best-kept secrets ever.

But maybe we're all waiting for someone else to start the ball rolling.

There's been talk about a cattle drive, about parades, a special Sutton County Days incorporated into the general celebration, a frontier days week of wild west reenactments.

The Sonora Chamber of Commerce is working feverishly to put a program together, but it doesn't seem like one group should have the responsibility of inspiring the entire county.

The Devil's River News will also be 100 years old in 1990, and we would like to celebrate in style. We will be honored to be able to assist in whatever way we can, but so far not much has been said.

If you have some ideas, please let us know.

Mike Snyder

Just about everyone has their favorite member of the Bronco squad, and I'm no exception.

Well, almost no exception. Most fans favor one of the players who excels in passing, receiving, rushing, blocking or tackling.

I favor a guy who will never be voted Most Valuable Player, who will not receive a football scholarship, who is never cheered.

In fact, he doesn't even wear a uniform. This young fellow does, however, perform a valuable service for the Sonora Broncos, and he virtually saves my life at every game.

He's LeeRoy Sanchez, the student who runs back and forth at every game keeping track of his team's statistics - like how many passes thrown, how many yards rushed. He's also taken it upon himself to make sure I understand what's happening out on the field.

This is, you see, the confession of a (former) non-footballer who's trying to make some sense out of the game, so he can photograph and write about it.

I assure you it isn't easy. Without LeeRoy, it would be impossible.

This embarrassing deprivation of mine began a long time ago. Where I grew up, high school football was unknown outside of fairly big cities. Our high school favored soccer, a sport I dabbled in until I was distracted by fast cars and pretty girls.

Long ago I watched two college football games, one at the University of Connecticut, and one at Yale. But I couldn't tell you who they played - or who won. While I attended college in Colorado, I went to a couple of Bronco games, but it was pretty much the same.

I don't remember who they played - or who won.

To tell the truth, before I moved to Sonora, I had never seen a high school game. I couldn't tell you how many players there were on a team, and outside of the quarterback, I really didn't know who did what.

Thanks to LeeRoy, that's changing.

Like helping a man overboard, he graciously threw me a lifesaver of valuable information the first game I went to. And he did it like a gentleman: he never once shook his head in disbelief, rolled his eyes or laughed outright.

I don't know what he did when he got home, but at least he concealed his mirth while in my presence.

Either he feels sorry for me or he respects his elders. I don't really care, as long as he continues to help me out every Friday evening.

While it might seem funny, the first game had me in a panic. I was trying to photograph with inadequate equipment, and keep notes at the same time. For me, that's about like trying to read a book while riding a motorcycle.

I quit taking notes before I crashed.

A brainstorm had me using a small tape recorder for the next game, but when it was all over I couldn't interpret the gibberish. Fortunately, LeeRoy provided the information I needed.

Now all I have to worry about is getting a couple of acceptable shots out of the inadequate equipment, and even that is less of a concern with Bill Hazelton photographing the home games.

The sad part, I think, is now that I understand the game I'm really enjoying the action. It's exciting to watch the Broncos play, to listen to the fantastic Sonora band, to add to the roar of the crowd.

But the football season will soon be over, and we'll be into basketball.

And I don't know a thing about basketball.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Sonora Community:

Once again, a special thanks to the citizens of Sonora for your time and effort in making your blood drive as successful as it was. The demand for blood and blood components is steadily increasing everywhere. You can be assured the blood collected will help save numerous lives in our area.

As you may already know, 79 people generously volunteered to donate. We actually collected 68 units of blood. Each unit will be separated into several components, and these donations will soon be on their way to help many patients.

The Community blood program's success depends on the caring actions of volunteers like you. More than 75 units of blood are needed each day to meet patients' needs in the 21 hospitals we serve. Thanks to the help of committed coordinators (like you) in organizing and promoting blood drives, this tremendous responsibility is met every day.

A special thank to Graham

Resources and Glenda Lowe for their help in sponsoring this drive. Paula Kennemer Community Relations Manager

Editor,

I can say I'm very disappointed in the person or persons who removed our sons Bronco sign from our front yard. We, as parents, made an effort and gave our time to paint, re-touch and perform other details that go on the Bronco signs.

It is alot of work, and we made sure there was a sign in the front yard of each varsity player before deadline.

In my opinion, I though that was a very sick joke. I can say I have my suspicion, but thank God I don't go on my own instincts and start pointing my finger. I must go on facts that will stand on solid ground. All I can say now is God be with You. Open up your heart to God for he will listen. Maybe then your day's will be brighter.

Sincerely,
Claudia F. Perez

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the Downtown Lions Club of Sonora, I would like to extend this note of appreciation to the kind-hearted people of Sutton County and surroundings, who whether in the form of donations, purchases, or effort, contributed to the success of our recent auction. It is through your generosity that many causes; ranging from pure charity to augmentation of our youth's activities, make this annual event a worth while cause.

It makes us proud to be part of a community that is so caring and philanthropic in nature. Your gift is our pledge, as well as challenge, to make a piece of life better for, those who are deserving of your support.

Sincerely,
Gary Hardgrave

On Oct. 9, 1989, I Tomas A. Favela (Tiny), am scheduled to stand jury trial at 2:00 p.m.

I have been charged with delivery of drugs to an undercover agent. I have been in Sutton Co. Jail since my arrest on March 6th, without being able to post an excessive bail set upon me.

HEALTH CARE

by Scott Gilmore, Hospital Administrator

Myth: Alcohol has less of an effect on an older person.

Truth: Older people have a diminished tolerance to alcohol because their bodies can no longer process it efficiently.

Myth: Most people who live past 65 become senile.

Truth: Approximately 10 percent of all people over 65 are affected by senility or dementia (which with the proper medical care may be treatable).

Tips for increasing your longevity

For your body: be physically active nearly every day; eat three nutritional balanced meals every day; don't smoke; watch your intake of alcohol.

For your mind: read something interesting every day; be flexible in your daily activities; stay in contact with other people--be social.

"We'll only plea bargain for penitentiary time," he said. "If you delivered you're going to go to the pen."

But, Johnson added, there may be an exception for special "hardship" cases.

"We may have one or two," Johnson said.

Jurors may be surprised, however, when the prosecutor addresses them during the sentencing stage of each trial. Johnson, confident of the convictions he is seeking, said he will ask for 99-year sentences for the alleged drug dealers.

Johnson said the 99-year sentence request is necessary because of the reduction in time actually served by convicted felons.

"If you're sentenced to 99 years, you'll probably get out in seven," he said, adding that it is not uncommon to have someone sentenced to 20 years serve as little as 18 months.

"But we're not allowed to tell the jury that," he said.

The defendants about to go on trial are Sonorans Buddy Lee Nichols, Mike Carl Lopez, Roy Borrego Luna, Richard Carl Harris, Robert Ybarra Barron, Pete Don Lopez, Jose "Primo" Alfredo Galindo, Tomas "Tiny" Hernandez Favela, Norman Laurence Barbee, Jefferson Almon Harris, Ernesto Castillo Ramirez, Jose Armando Contreras, Eriberto "Beto" Sanchez Bernal, Stephanie Adriana Neill and David Pendleton.

Other Sonora residents not included in the March roundup but scheduled for trial are Harlan Welch Johnson and Cleveland Thurman Jones IV.

The two out-of-town defendants are Vicente Montes, of Houston, and Rafael Garcia Vera, of Snyder.

Fields, Pool attend seminar

Sutton County Judge Carla Fields and Emergency Management Coordinator Lenora Pool attended a Disaster Preparedness Seminar at the National Emergency Management Institute in Emmittsburg, Md on Sept. 18-22.

Preparing for and responding to disasters and major emergencies at the local level of government is a situation that requires careful planning and coordination among local agencies. This seminar enables chief executive officers and their emergency program staff to evaluate the existing emergency management plans and programs in their own communities, through presentations by national experts.

Former Maryland Congressman Lawrence Hogan was one of the several speakers at the Disaster Preparedness Seminar. He spoke on formulating policy and major legal decision-making topics in a crisis situation.

Other topics were disaster case studies, developing local emergency action plans, and interorganizational conflicts and relationships.

Housing and most travel expenses are provided by the Federal Emergency Management Agency for students accepted in the National Emergency Management Institute.

Experts in the field will discuss every phase of production from ewe and sire selection to seeing the product in the retail meat case.

Faris, encourages sheep producers to strongly consider attending this symposium and will be coordinating travel arrangements from his office for the meeting.

Luz Martinez of Fort Worth, Lilia Pompian of Freona, Tx., Gloria Guerra, Cata Luna and Oralina Galindo all of Sonora; two brothers, Moises Galindo and Arturo Galindo both of Sonora and 21 grandchildren and 7 great-grandchildren.

H-2A program to begin

The Texas Ranchers Labor Association, Inc., is preparing applications for H-2A worker contracts to begin in early January of next year. Anyone interested in applying for an H-2A worker to begin work at that time should contact the Labor Association very soon.

The H-2A program currently involves payment of $459/month as wages to the workers, plus free room, board and workers compensation insurance. Also, after a worker has completed 50% of his work contract, the employer must reimburse the worker for his transportation in getting to the ranch, and advance the transportation cost when the work contract is completed. Another basic requirement of the program is that the ranch jobs are offered first to qualified U.S. workers, and H-2A certification to import the foreign worker of the rancher's choice is issued for each ranch job not filled by a qualified U.S. worker.

The annual wage survey of sheep & goat ranch workers is being conducted by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service and Dennis Findley Director, states that the survey will be conducted from the middle of September through early October. This survey will provide the basic for a new wage rate for the H-2A program. This new wage rate will be applied to the H-2A applications that the Labor Association will file in November for work contracts to begin in January.

Thus, the January contracts, may have a wage rate different that the $459.00 per month. A very large number of Texas sheep and goat ranchers will be surveyed as to the wages and benefits provided to their temporary and seasonal ranch hands who live on the ranch, checking and tending sheep and goats or occasionally other livestock. The Labor Association strongly encourages everyone contacted in this survey to cooperate fully and give thorough but precise answers.

While ranchers' H-2A applications are being prepared by the Labor Association, the wage rate for the January contracts will not be known. The Labor Association stresses that no H-2A applications will be filed for the January contracts until the new H-2A wage has been announced and each rancher-applicant has been individually contacted and has approved the filing of his application under the new wage. But it is very important that everyone wanting to participate in the January contracts contact the Labor Association in the next few weeks to initiate preparation of their applications.

The Association's first H-2A "master" application, filed December 19, 1988, involved 33 ranch hand jobs. Of those 33 jobs, 29 were certified for foreign H-2A workers. The success of this first set of applications has reinforced the belief that the H-2A program can provide sheep and goat ranchers with a reliable supply of qualified foreign labor where there is an insufficient number of U.S. workers.

The Labor Association recently filed its second "master" H-2A application and has obtained 10 H-2A certifications out of the 19 ranch hand jobs under that

BRONCO TAILS

News from Sonora High School
by Christi Spain

Congratulations to Christie Adkins. Christie was crowned 1989-90 Homecoming Queen Friday night at the big homecoming game. She was selected by the Bronco football players and says this about winning the title, "I was very excited last Friday night when I was crowned the 1989-90 Homecoming Queen. I feel that it is a very unique honor and I feel very privileged to represent my school in this way."

Christie was not the only one, however, who enjoyed the homecoming festivities. Numerous fans did also as they watched the Sonora Broncos accomplish their fourth victory of the season against the Colorado City Wolves. Thanks to what Mr. Kirkpatrick calls "the man with the million dollar leg and the golden toe," Manuel Martinez, and his three field goals, plus Tracy Loves' touchdown, the Broncos won with a score of 16-0 over the Wolves. Many people are impressed by the Broncos' winning streak. Shanna Patton, head cheerleader says, "The Sonora Broncos have had a terrific season so far. I sincerely think that with their awesome ability the Broncos will win District, and hopefully, win state. I am proud to be representing them and cheering them on to victory!"

The Junior Varsity also won last week in Brady with a score of 6-3 thanks to an intercepted pass that resulted in a touchdown made by Larry Chalk in the last 51 seconds of the game.

Both the Varsity and Junior Varsity will play the Ballinger Bearcats this week. The J.V. will play here on Thursday night at 6:00 p.m., and the Varsity will play in Ballinger at 8:00 p.m. on Friday. Good Luck to these boys.

Congratulations to choir members, Monica Chavez and Carmen Burch who were named last Saturday to the All-Region choir. Also, to Sherry Hocutt who was named alternate. These members will compete for All-Area Choir at a later date.

As you all know, the Mighty Bronco Band performed a half-time show at the Angelo Sate University football game last Saturday night and sounded wonderful. The band will go to Marching Contest in Brady on October the 28th.

Some future dates that you might want to put on your calendars are: Oct. 9-Senior Conferences begin; Oct. 12 & 13-Six Weeks Tests; Oct. 17-Open House; Oct. 21-Juniors take PSAT; and Oct. 25 & 26-TEAMS test for all Juniors.

Also, Bronco yearbooks are now being sold. They are $20.00 each and you must pay in full. And Senior pictures are in progress at this time. There are bulletins posted all over school that list your name and time if you aren't sure when you are scheduled to go.

even the skeptics," Hightower said.

Hightowers' statements were based on two recent surveys, including one of 500 Texas sheep and goat producers.

"Texas lead the nation both in number of sheep and goats and in wool and mohair production, with Texas ranchers now producing 3.6 million animals and reaping annual sales of more than $150 million," Hightower said. "Unfortunately, until we launched this comprehensive program, these same producers were also losing more than 190,000 animals, valued at over $9 million, every year to predators."

"Now we have evidence that predator control can work. Dogs and donkeys can keep coyotes away from sheep and goats in many situations."

Based on responses to the surveys, Hightower estimated that 2,400 of Texas' 11,000 sheep and goat producers have used donkeys, with 1,800 producers currently using them.

"Responses to the survey varied widely. We have a bunch of success stories, and then we have some instances where donkeys just don't work. Less than ideal husbandry practices and unrealistic expectations by the producers probably contributed to many failures as much as any inadequacies of the donkeys. Some producers expect a donkey to guard more than 1,000 head of sheep or goats scattered in pastures larger than two sections (two square miles). This is an impossible task."

"TDA's training program helps

Texas sheep and goat producers identify the cause of livestock losses, whether it is disease, starvation, exposure, predation or other reasons, and then to help choose the control technique or combination of techniques that will work best to further control livestock losses, Hightower said.

Since launching the new predator control program in January 1988, TDA has conducted 71 training sessions around the state attended by more than 1,200 Texas sheep and goat producers.

STILL UNOPENED - The Sonora Lions Club found a temporary purchaser for its "mystery package" at the Lions 51st annual auction Sept. 19. The package was originally donated by Berry Duff in 1945, and auctioned off every year since then. It was purchased that year for $55 by W.L. Miers, but the bidding reached a high of $1,650 in 1977 when it was claimed - temporarily - by Mack and Addah Cauthorn. In the last 44 years the unopened package has earned the Lions more than $17,000 for charitable causes.

EMS News

In addition to the new ambulance, the EMS has purchased, through generous donations given by many Sutton County residents, an advanced life support system, LifePack 5, consisting of a heart monitor and defibrillation equipment. These items will greatly add to the care able to be given by the members of the EMS. All members are currently undergoing training sessions in the operation of the LifePak 5, and the advanced equipment will be put into use as soon as training is completed.

Advanced equipment such as the LifePak 5 is very unusual in smaller counties, which are operated primarily on a volunteer basis, due to the high initial cost of the equipment. Sutton County EMS members feel very fortunate and grateful that the citizens of Sutton County have seen fit to donate monies to the service sufficient to purchase such an important item. Anyone wishing to donate money to the Sutton County EMS can do so by stopping by the EMS Building or by contacting Lenora Pool, EMS Coordinator, at 387-5132.

Sutton County EMS is always ready to serve you. The organization operates with three trained volunteers on call at all times, to ensure sufficient personnel and rapid service to anyone needing an ambulance. To call for an ambulance in the case of an emergency, call the central dispatching service at the Sutton County Jail at 387-2288. Response time to calls in town average from 3-6 minutes, and vary according to location outside of city limits.

Have you seen the new blue ambulance? Sutton County EMS members are proud and excited about the new ambulance recently purchased by the County to replace an older model that had been in service several years. The new ambulance is blue and white, instead of orange and white color of the one replaced. The EMS currently runs two ambulances, one blue and white, and the other orange and white, to provide emergency medical services to county residents and to those who become ill or injured while in Sutton County.

Chief offers burglary tips

Burglary is a serious crime to which all of us are vulnerable...city or rural, high or low income, homeowner or apartment dweller. And the chances of being burglarized are increasing every year. According to FBI statistics, there's a residential burglary once every 15 seconds somewhere in our nation.

Burglary is probably the most preventable of crimes. The problem is that many of the victims make it easier for burglars to carry out their work. In addition, many people don't worry about burglary because their insurance covers theft losses. But insurance can never replace keepsakes or family heirlooms. And let's not forget about family security...not all burglars are just thieves. Two recent incidents in Junction, resulted in shootings, and even death, involving burglaries and thefts.

Some precautions that you should take:

1. Contact the police department and have a trained officer inspect your home and make suggestions on how to make it more secure.
2. Do not leave door keys hidden outside your home in "secret" hiding places. Burglars know where to look.

3. If you're going on vacation...(a.) Notify the police department at 387-3888 or 387-3889 and be placed on the Housewatch Program; (b) ask your neighbors to keep an eye on your home; (c) Don't publicize your travel plans in such a manner that strangers will know that you will be away.

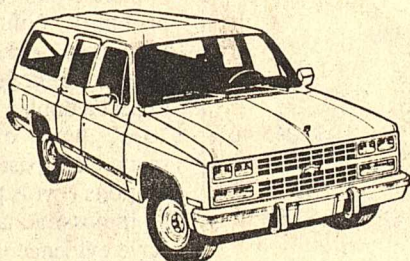

4. Keep a detailed inventory of all your personal possessions. Include a photographic likeness of all jewelry and items that are not easy to describe or identify.

5. If you notice anything suspicious in your neighborhood call the police department at 387-3888 or 387-3889 immediately.

Mayfield named Rancher of the Year

Stanley Mayfield was recently selected as Rancher of the Year by the Edwards Plateau Soil & Water Conservation District. Armer Earwood, chairman of the Edwards Plateau SWCD, presented him with a plaque at the Lions' Club Auction in September. The Sonora Downtown Lions' Club annually provides the plaque for this award.

Mayfield was chosen because of his continuing efforts toward conservation of our renewable natural resources. He owns and operates approximately 11,000 acres in Sutton County and has been a cooperator with the Edwards Plateau SWCD since July 15, 1970.

Among the conservation practices completed on his ranch are miles of cross-fences, dozing of nearly 2/3 of the cedar on the ranch, and distribution of water in all pastures so livestock does not have to travel more than 1/2 mile to water.

Mayfield has also practiced proper grazing use and wildlife habitat management for many years. A planned grazing system is an integral part of his range management, and he believes in managing his ranch so as to obtain his sustained forage production for his livestock and wildlife.

Extension service to offer Ranch management school deadline set for Oct. 9

According to County Extension Agent Preston Faris, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will be sponsoring a Total Ranch Management School here in Sonora during October. The school offers eight days of intensive training in ranch management principles for success.

"I am convinced that this is the most realistic, integrated, potentially profitable educational effort ever offered to ranchers," Faris said.

application. These contracts began August 14, 1989, so it is too early to know the final number of H-2A certifications which will be obtained under this application. The Labor Association is also continuing development of an H-2A worker program for Texas cattle ranchers.

The efficiency and effectiveness of placing qualified workers under the H-2A program is directly related to the level of participation by ranchers. Higher participation increases the opportunity of placing qualified workers while decreasing the time and cost per worker. For this reason, the Labor Association strongly encourages your inquires about H-2A. The Labor Association will carefully review your operation with you to assure that H-2A is an appropriate program for you to enter.

After the January 1990 H-2A contracts, the next set of H-2A applications are expected to be filed no earlier than April for contracts to begin in June 1990. So, if you do not participate in the January contracts, your next opportunity to obtain workers under the H-2A program will be the June 1990 contracts. Anyone interested in applying for H-2A certification for contracts beginning in January should contact the Labor Association as soon as possible. Call Allen Moody at 915/655-2624.
