Librarian concerned about overdue books

It's not a matter of throwing the book at anyone.

The Sutton County library just wants its books back.

According to librarian Florie Mesa, almost 25 percent of the library's annual budget is lost because of unreturned books.

Many of them are lost forever.

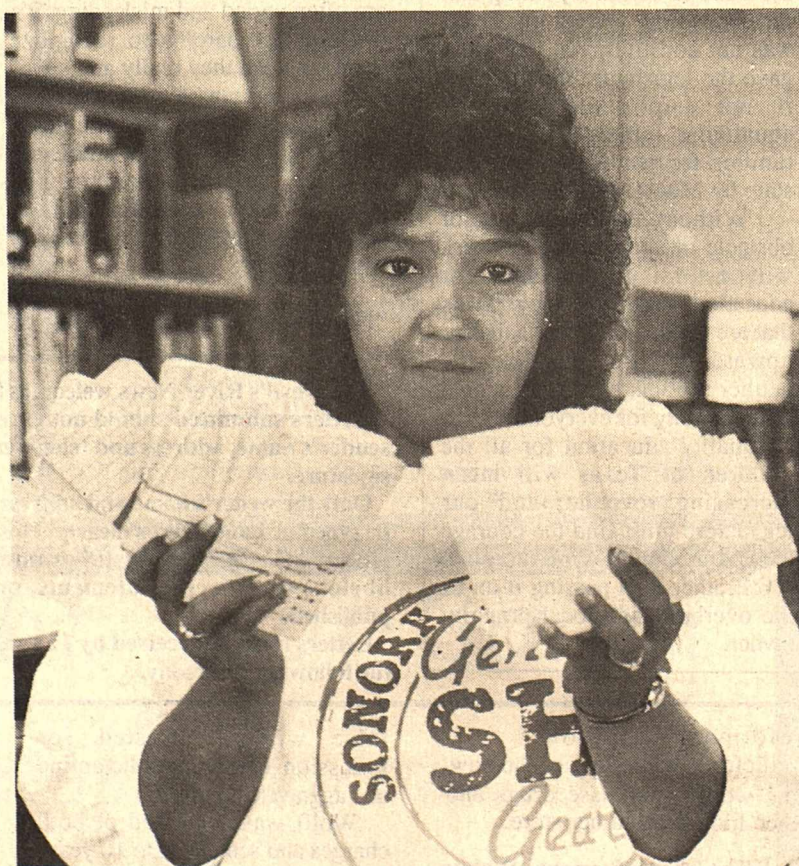

Due to recent changes in tax laws, warehoused books are subject to tax. As a result, as soon as books are out of print, they are out of the market and cannot be easily replaced.

"We send out notices and we call people with overdue books," said Mesa, "and there's not much more that we can do."

The librarian said she has no intention of referring overdue book culprits to the county attorney for legal action. Some public libraries vigorously prosecute offenders, but Mesa considers the measure extreme.

"We want to encourage people to use the library," she said, adding that if the situation doesn't improve she may seek permission to periodically publish a list of borrowers whose books are long overdue.

A HANDFUL - Sutton County Librarian Florie Mesa displays cards on nearly $5,000 worth of overdue books accumulated since 1985. Although Mesa wants the books returned, she is unwilling to consider some of the more severe measures used by other libraries - including prosecution of borrowers who refuse to return county property. Mesa said, however, that she would consider publishing the names of persons ignoring repeated requests to return overdue library books. It would be much better than having their names appear in the weekly police report...

After deciding Tuesday night Tomas "Tiny" Favela was guilty of selling methamphetamine to an undercover informant last January 13, a seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated less than two hours Wednesday before recommending the 28-year-old Sonora man be imprisoned for 90 years.

While more than two dozen of Favela's supporters listened, 112th District Judge Brock Jones read the jury's decision aloud.

"We the jury, having found the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt..." Jones began, including the fact the jury believed Favela had previously been convicted of burglary, a charge Favela had denied.

Jones set the formal sentencing date for Wednesday, Nov. 15.

Favela's trial began Monday. His lawyer, Joseph Montemayor, of Dallas, said the best chance of defending his client was by attacking the credibility of the paid undercover informant who claimed he purchased a small amount of methamphetamine from Favela on Jan. 13.

But Montemayor was unable to make the informant, William Lonnie Hood, contradict his testimony that he paid Favela $125 for the methamphetamine.

Hood, a balding, middle-aged man with a mustache, testified he began his undercover work here after being interviewed and hired by Sutton County Sheriff Bill Webster on Nov. 1, 1988.

He said that he targeted Sonora's "hot spots" - The Fiddlers and The Rock Inn bars - as places to frequent in his quest to buy illegal drugs.

Hood said he made his first drug purchase three weeks after arriving here. As a result of Hood's undercover work, a Sutton County grand jury issued indictments against 14 people who were apprehended in a March 6 roundup of suspected drug dealers.

Favela was among those arrested, and was the first to be tried.

Montemayor repeatedly questioned Hood about the informant's 17-year career as a free lance undercover drug purchaser.

Hood, who was paid $2,200 a month for his work, said he has never been commissioned as a peace officer in the state of Texas. He testified he has worked as a paid informant in New Mexico, South Dakota, Kentucky, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

"And you're not licensed by anyone?" Montemayor asked.

"No, sir," Hood answered.

Montemayor's only apparent triumph turned out to be insignificant. While Hood told of the sequence of events involving the Jan. 13 purchase, he testified he reported to "Deputy Foster."

"You're sure his name is Foster?" asked Montemayor.

"Yes, sir," replied Hood.

"You're absolutely sure there's no question about that?" Montemayor asked.

"No, sir," said Hood.

It had been revealed in earlier testimony that Hood had been assigned to Sutton County Deputy Sheriff Rusty Frasier.

"He was an usher on Sunday and a dope dealer during the week," Johnson told the jury. "He's a chameleon."

The jury returned a guilty verdict Tuesday night, and returned to the courtroom Wednesday afternoon for the punishment phase of the three-day trial.

The prosecution presented evidence that the 28-year-old Favela had been convicted of misdemeanor marijuana possession in 1981, and served six months in jail. More damaging testimony, however, was that Favela was convicted of a felony burglary charge and

Johnson named in $12 million civil rights suit

A federal judge has ruled that a woman can sue Upton County's former sheriff and current district attorney in a civil rights case stemming from tainted evidence in a 1985 drug case involving methamphetamine.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton issued the summary judgment Oct. 9, in Mary Turner Hind's $12 million civil lawsuit against the county, former sheriff Glen Willeford and 112th District Attorney J.W. Johnson Jr.

Bunton ruled the woman cannot sue Upton County.

Hind contends her constitutional rights were violated when she was arrested in August 1985 near McCamey and charged with possession of the controlled substance.

It was erroneously reported in the San Angelo Standard Times last week that the charge was dismissed in March 1987 after Hind alleged Willeford and Johnson conspired against her by planting evidence.

The Associated Press wire report failed to mention that the charges against Hind were dismissed after an investigation initiated by Johnson revealed the Loss blamed on moon, Fri. 13th

Some diehard Bronco fans blamed it on the full moon. Others said the team spent all its bullets on the Ballinger game.

"No," commented one downcast witness to Sonora's 21-7 loss to Fredericksburg. "Today's Friday the thirteenth, that's all."

Whatever it was, the result was the same: the Battlin' Billies butted Sonora to a 4-2 record, and 0-1 in district play.

The Broncos had been favored, but the team never seemed to generate the energy and fighting spirit required to control the field. Fredericksburg had more first downs, more rushing yards and passing yards - and fewer penalties.

It was a combination that spelled victory for the Billies, who scored three touchdowns in the first half. Sonora came back in the third quarter with Chacho Cahill scoring the only touchdown, but the Broncos were never able to recover.

The Broncos face Llano in the second district game of the season Friday. Llano, like Sonora, has a 4-2 record for the season, but is 1-0 in district play.

Don't be 'had' by another bad ad

It's one of those ads that makes me grit my teeth:

Cruise ships now hiring all positions. Both skilled and unskilled. For information call (615) 779-5507. Ext. H-1288.

MIKE SNYDER

I'd like to take the ad request and the check that accompanied it and flush them both. But if I did, I might be scanning the help wanted section looking for a job on another newspaper. Advertisements, you see, are the lifeblood of newspapers, regardless of how bogus they may appear (the ads, not the newspapers).

And this cruise ship ad is about as bogus as they come.

Out of curiosity I called Louisiana to inquire about the jobs. A woman answered the phone and immediately went into her pitch. Reading from a form, she filled my name into the blank so the whole thing would sound more personal.

To me, it just sounded silly. I was told jobs were available, and listening to the woman I could easily envision myself strolling around the deck of Loveboat with a bevy of gorgeous passengers vying for my attention. The best part, however, might be the financial remuneration. The faceless woman with a voice like Tammy Bakker informed me room and board were free, and by the time I got back from a delightful cruise, I would be able to afford a nice car.

I had visions of dumping my old yellow station wagon for a sporty red roadster.

She informed me the job required that I be away from home for extended periods of time, which to me sounded pretty reasonable. It would sure be hard to convince hundreds of fun loving cruise ship passengers that we could only go on day trips because I wanted to spend time with my family.

Well, before the woman had finished, I wanted to find out how

I could become a well-travelled, suntanned steward. But I was never able to find out.

The ad, although it was to be placed under "Help Wanted," should really run under "For Sale." No, it's not a pipe dream being sold, it's a listing of cruise ship companies that probably have less of an employee turnover than the Devil's River News.

The chances of your getting a job by buying the $25 listing is about as slim as my becoming the editor of the New York Times.

Stalling for time, I asked the woman if she could send me a little more information about the cruise ship jobs before I committed myself to parting with $25.

No, she told me, the only thing she had was the $25 book. It began to sound like the ship was leaving without me.

I finally hung up thinking about how absurd the whole thing was. It sounded like misrepresentation, at least, but it must be legal. I've seen the ads - and others like it - in many publications.

Make millions stuffing envelopes in your spare time; Double your income by cleaning carpets; Don't answer this ad unless you want to become a millionaire; How to retire in Mexico on $400 a month!

Well, you can be sure these people will never get a cent out of me. Unless, of course, I happen across an opportunity like:

Earn big money by writing small ads. Learn the tricks of the trade so you can avoid arrest for postal fraud. Start your own shady business today!

I hope that I come across it soon, because it looks like the field is really getting crowded.

'Red' propaganda stirs patriotism

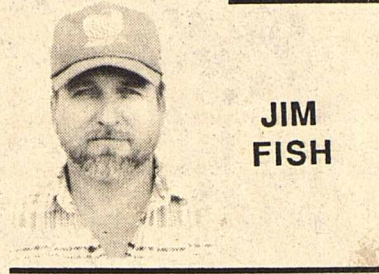

"Howdy, Tex," came the familiar greeting from behind the darkened bar. It was early evening in Schoeningen, about 6:30, and I had just entered the gasthaus for what must have been the hundredth time.

"Hey Sosh," I called back, closing the door from the foyer. "Was machen zie diese haute abend?" - What are you doing this evening, I asked, still unable to see because my eyes had not yet adjusted to the darkness.

A dim light hung over each booth. The booths, consisting of thick wooden tables and benches, lined three walls of the small tavern and a "U"-shaped bar jutted from the back wall with a door on each side. The door on the right led to the restrooms while the other opened into the storage area and a long-since-used kitchen. Stained glass windows adorned the front wall on either side of the entrance and foyer. Twelve-inch beams, joists and supports were joined together by thick metal plates painted black and riveted in place. There must have been a couple hundred steins and mugs hanging from pegs in the beams, some dating back to the mid 1800s. The gasthaus itself was first opened when Lincoln was president of the U.S.

Being his only customer, I sat at the bar and joined Sosh who was watching an old Russian film on the East German television station. With nothing being said, he filled a tall glass with the stout German brew from a time-honored spigot and set it in front of me.

Sosh, short for Sasha, had been a Russian border guard in Berlin until he defected by crossing the "Wall" into the French sector of West Berlin in 1962. In his forties, he was somewhat portly, stood about six feet, bearded, rough complexion and dark brown hair. His brown eyes were deeply set under thick eyebrows that joined over his large nose.

While exchanging remarks of regular customers who had not yet arrived, I noticed a scene on the black and white tube depicting children marching in front of a backdrop of the wavering Russian flag with its hammer and sickle.

"Look at that!" I exclaimed. Sosh, temporarily sidetracked by preparations for customers to come later, glanced at the screen and looked at me as if to say, "What?"

"What do you think about that?" I asked, thinking, "What do you think about those 'Commies' brainwashing those children with such blatant propaganda?"

"It makes me miss my home, L'vov," he answered, as his eyes assumed a distant stare in silence that told me he had slipped into memories of the Carpathian city.

"They teach the children to love Mother Russia and show Russian pride," he continued, looking back at the television. "Russia is beautiful, L'vov is beautiful."

"Then why did you leave?" "I leave because leaders bad for people. People work for not much money, food cost too much. But I love my Russia, my mother and father live there."

"The children go to school and learn to love Russia, to work for a good motherland, to be good Russians, to love Russian people," and concluded his explanation as a group of customers entered.

I continued to watch the program until it occurred to me that I had been educated in exactly the same manner. Every morning the Pledge of Allegiance was said with our right hands over our hearts before Old Glory. Our history books were replete with patriots who often suffered great hardships or gave their lives in the name of the U.S.A. My membership in the Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers 'drove home' the attributes of good citizenship.

As a soldier, my emotions and patriotic beliefs were at a peak when I arrived in Viet Nam and at an all time low when I returned to a student demonstration protesting the war and calling us "Baby Killers." Until that evening at Sosh's, my feelings toward my country were wrought with a great deal of bitterness, based on the demonstrators, what I felt was corruption and betrayal by our leadership and the treatment received by veterans of the war.

Though no great realizations were afforded me, the couple hours I spent there that evening rekindled some forgotten beliefs and began the process of altering my negative concept.

Now, I know the actions of a few students did not reflect the feelings of an entire nation, nor did the corruption in our administration constitute the state of our country as a whole.

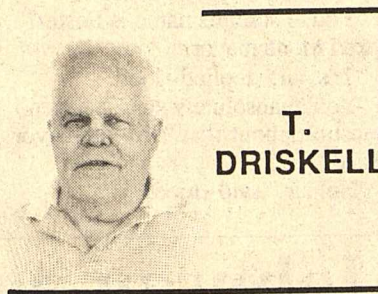

It seems ironic that the rebirth of my patriotic concepts was due to a Russian 'propaganda' documentary.

Horsing around with race tracks

Brady's first race was successful, but it leaves an apprehension that we are about to see the rerun of a United States curse that came off the boat with the pilgrims and puritans; the concept that morality can be legislated.

The ultra-conservatives of the society, acting in behalf of the majority, for the good of that majority of course, have repeatedly pulled the chestnuts of criminals out of the fire and abetted the organization of crime. I rationalize that it is only Texas' utter ineptitude in blending political with economic spheres. What is your opinion? We can spread the case on the table and take a look.

The organized racing and pari-mutuel system was voted into being to do three things: First, to stem some of the flow of money out of Texas into bordering states and to entice out-of-state money into Texas. Secondly, to give us a tool to minimize the inroads of organized crime into Texas and combat illegal bookmaking, not through more ineffective legislation but destructive competition. Thirdly, to give Texas horse producers and trainers relief from the necessity to take their wares out of state to show them.

T. DRISKELL

The conservative political factions launched a media campaign that the state was not going to make much money in the racing program. Initially, considering the buildup costs it is a true statement. Defeated at the polls, an oral campaign has continued to date.

The conservative factions in power did far better, to avoid organized crime, of course. They appointed a racing commission with no racing experience to license the tracks, it was a damaging blow, backed by our legislative expertise, it was devastating. You can pick out the obvious flaws.

The authorities did not realize that the big money spent by racing buffs is not at the track, but for housing, meals, and amusements in the racing park vicinity. As a result they put the state's percentage during the development so high they drove off the genuine entrepreneurs.

The commission in order to avoid organized crime approved licenses in small towns with no capacity whatsoever to handle large groups of out-of-state visitors.

The pari-mutuel system was established, and then its capacity to combat illegal book making was destroyed by a decision the system could not display odds and take bets on televised races, only those at the track. This decision denies a state-run pari-mutuel system where a racing buff can go to any track or a betting parlor in a large city and bet on any race in Texas. This decision effectively destroys the pari-mutuels effectiveness.

One is left with the question whether it is just gross incompetence, or an intended program of disenfranchisement of Texas' voters, for their own good of course. In any case it sets up a situation where there will be much controversy in our political circles. Out-of-state track owners and our illegal gambling interests will be laughing -- all the way to the bank.

imprisoned in Huntsville in 1984.

As further proof Favela has a "bad" reputation here, jurors heard testimony that Favela had been arrested 21 times in 1979 for being drunk in public.

Six character witnesses for Favela offered what one person called "the other side of the coin." Instead of a drug-dealing burglar with a reputation for constantly being in trouble with the law, the witnesses painted a picture of a motherless young man who participated in church activities.

"Tiny's helpful. He's a good guy," said Ernest Barrera.

"I consider him a friend," testified Joe Garcia. "To me, he's a good person."

Others said Favela attended church regularly, and served as an usher and a member of St. Ann's yard committee.

"Who in the community can best judge if someone commits acts injurious to the community?" asked 112th Judicial District Attorney J.W. Johnson.

"God," promptly answered witness Pete Paredes.

In his final summation, Montemayor asked the jury not to take Hood's word over Favela's.

"Tiny does not deserve to go to jail for life," Montemayor concluded.

But Johnson had the last word.

Saying Favela received a fair trial "regardless of the makeup of the jury," (there was only one Hispanic out of the 12 jurors) Johnson called the defendant "two-faced" and a "hypocrite."

"He was an usher on Sunday and a dope dealer during the week," Johnson told the jury. "He's a chameleon."

The district attorney called Favela "a good example of the revolving door in our criminal justice system."

Asking the jury for the maximum sentence, Johnson said "Send him for 60 years and you'll think you're a champ - and he'll think you're a chump."

"He's had the proverbial three strikes," Johnson said. "How many more chances do we have to give him? Let these dope dealers know what social justice is all about."

"We don't want mercy, we want justice," Johnson concluded. "That's a verdict to send him to the pen for life."

informant in the case had provided false evidence.

Edgewood vs. Kirby

by Charles Russell

The recent Texas Supreme Court ruling on the school finance lawsuit, Edgewood vs. Kirby, is certain to have far-reaching effects on education in the State of Texas. By ruling that the financing system in Texas was not constitutional, the court gave the legislature the difficult, if not impossible, task of equalizing educational opportunities for students across the state by May 1, 1990.

Without doubt, the major obstacle in undertaking this task will be raising revenue for education. Hopefully, the reforms that are forthcoming will equalize upward and not penalize the better schools by setting a goal of mediocrity for everyone.

Quality education for all the children of Texas will mean increasing revenue, and our legislature must find the courage to accomplish this at the state level rather than passing it on to the overburdened local property owner.

informant, approved by Willeford, who claimed he saw the woman purchase drugs and then hide them in her store.

When the informant, Walter Wolff, 23, failed to appear at Hind's trial, Johnson had him subpoenaed. After the informant ignored the subpoena, he was arrested on a bench warrant.

During the trial Johnson became suspicious of the informant's testimony, and following an investigation by his staff, determined the informant's story was not true.

The district attorney then had the case dismissed, and had the

Suicide can be prevented

by Scott Gilmore

Pediatricians say kids today definitely show more signs of depression than kids 20 years ago.

Because the signs of depression are often varied and misleading, it's difficult for parents to recognize them for what they really are.

If problems with depression are left unresolved, they may culminate in behavior or emotional problems, or even suicide attempts. To prevent such tragedies, it is important to recognize this possible warning signs:

*Noticeable changes in eating or sleeping habits.

*Unusually severe, violent or rebellious behavior.

*Withdrawal from family and friends.

*Persistent boredom and/or difficulty concentrating.

*Unexplained decline in the quality of schoolwork.

*Neglect of appearance.

Suicide is preventable and depression can be relieved. The first steps in helping are to listen, share feelings, and to seek help from a health care professional.

The Oct. 11 story that appeared in the Standard Times has been copied and distributed around Sonora by friends of some of the 16 alleged drug dealers arrested here in a March 16 roundup.

A number of questions arose during our discussion of the "Fun Money" promotion for the Christmas season. In talking with several people that have experience with the program, I learned the concept we discussed has not been tried in other communities.

Previous promotions included a program whereby the "Fun Money" was distributed to merchants on an as needed basis, and was given away on purchases to be used to obtain discounts in participating stores. Another concept has the "Fun Money" bills given away as prizes to be redeemed for cash. These promotions were operated in this manner to steer away from questions such as the ones we had about the program. I should also point out that "Fun Money" promotions get off to a slow start and build after several promotions. I hope this information helps the committee draw some conclusions.

The coordinator for this event was Sally Teel of Junction who is also the director of the Tri-County nutrition program in Sonora, Eldorado, Menard, and Junction. Besides making many new friends and seeing a few old friends like former Sonoran, Mozelle Wright, the campers took a side trip to Lost Maples State Natural Area where they hiked and enjoyed the beautiful foliage. Age did not prevent anyone from having a fantastic time.

School Halloween Carnival planned

Bronco Tails by Christi Spain

As the second six weeks begins at Sonora High school, many activities are in progress.

First of all, report cards will go out on Tuesday, Oct. 24. Also, the TEAMS pre-test will be given at 7:30 a.m. this Thursday and Friday, and Saturday, Oct. 21, the PSAT will be given to all interested Juniors.

The Student Council met last Tuesday to discuss plans for the Halloween Carnival. Coach Snodgrass is the sponsor of the organization and the officers are: President, Keith Wallace; Vice-President, Chacho Cahill; Secretary-Christi Spain; and Treasurer, Shanna Patton. They will have a brown bag lunch in the gym next Tuesday to finalize these plans.

The date for the Halloween Carnival has been set for Tuesday, Oct. 31. On that day we will be dismissed at 2:30 p.m. to prepare for the carnival. The Halloween Queen will be elected on Monday, Oct. 30, and next week I will announce the candidates who will be running for this title.

Concerning the football game, the Broncos had both bad and good luck last week. On Thursday, the Jr. Varsity played and excellent game against the Brady Bulldogs and ended up winning 21-0. Also, I might add that they are undefeated at this point in the season. The Varsity on the other hand, played the Fredericksburg Billies and ended up with their second defeat of the season. This was only the first district game, though, so if we win every other district game we still might have a shot at the district championship.

This week both the Jr. Varsity and Varsity will play out of town. The J.V. will play at Del Rio at 6:00 p.m. this Thursday night, and the Varsity will play at Llano this Friday night at 8:00 p.m. Even though you will have to travel, come out and support the Broncos!

Last Saturday the Sonora High School Choir had a very successful car wash at the Pizza Hut. Mr. Zimmerman and the choir would like to thank Pizza Hut and those who participated in the car wash. This Saturday, Oct. 21, will be "Sonic Choir Day." Members of the choir will be car hopping from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. and working for tips to raise money for new uniforms. And watch next week for the new member of "Sounds Unlimited" to be chosen!

This is the final week to buy your 1989-90 Bronco Yearbook. This year marks the 100 year anniversary that classes have been held at Sonora High School, so this is all the more reason to buy a yearbook and share the memories. Kristi Lykins, Yearbook Editor, explains, "This is the last week to buy your 1989-90 Yearbook. In my opinion, the yearbook is sure to be a success this year because of the hardworking and eager staff that I work with and also, because of our creative sponsor, Mr. Warren Kirkpatrick. I encourage you to buy a yearbook and to not miss out on the wonderful memories of this year!"

And don't forget, there will be a noon pep rally this week due to the fact that the Broncos are leaving early.

Public Notice
NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR A CLASS I HAZARDOUS WASTE STORAGE FACILITY PERMIT

U.S. AIR FORCE/LAUGHLIN AIR FORCE BASE, 47 ABG/CC, Laughlin AFB, Texas 78843-5000 has applied to the Texas Water Commission (TWC) for a permit (Proposed Permit No. HW-50258, EPA ID No. Tx 2571524105) to operate a Class I hazardous industrial solid waste management facility at Laughlin Air Force Base. The permit would authorize operation of an existing all-weather container storage building having a total capacity of 18,000 gallons. The wastes managed at this facility are industrial hazardous wastes such as waste solvent, which are incidental to the maintenance and support of aircraft used to train U.S. Air Force pilots. The wastes managed are acutely hazardous, ignitable, toxic, corrosive, reactive, and EP toxic liquids, sludges and solids. Authorized wastes may be received from off-site federal facilities.

Laughlin Air Force Base occupies a 3,908-acre tract of land which is positioned along the southside of U.S. Highway 90, approximately 5.0 miles east of the Highway 90/San Felipe River Bridge in the City of Del Rio, Val Verde County, Texas. This location is in the drainage area of Segment 2304 of the Rio Grande Basin (north latitude 29°21'15", west longitude 100°47'30").

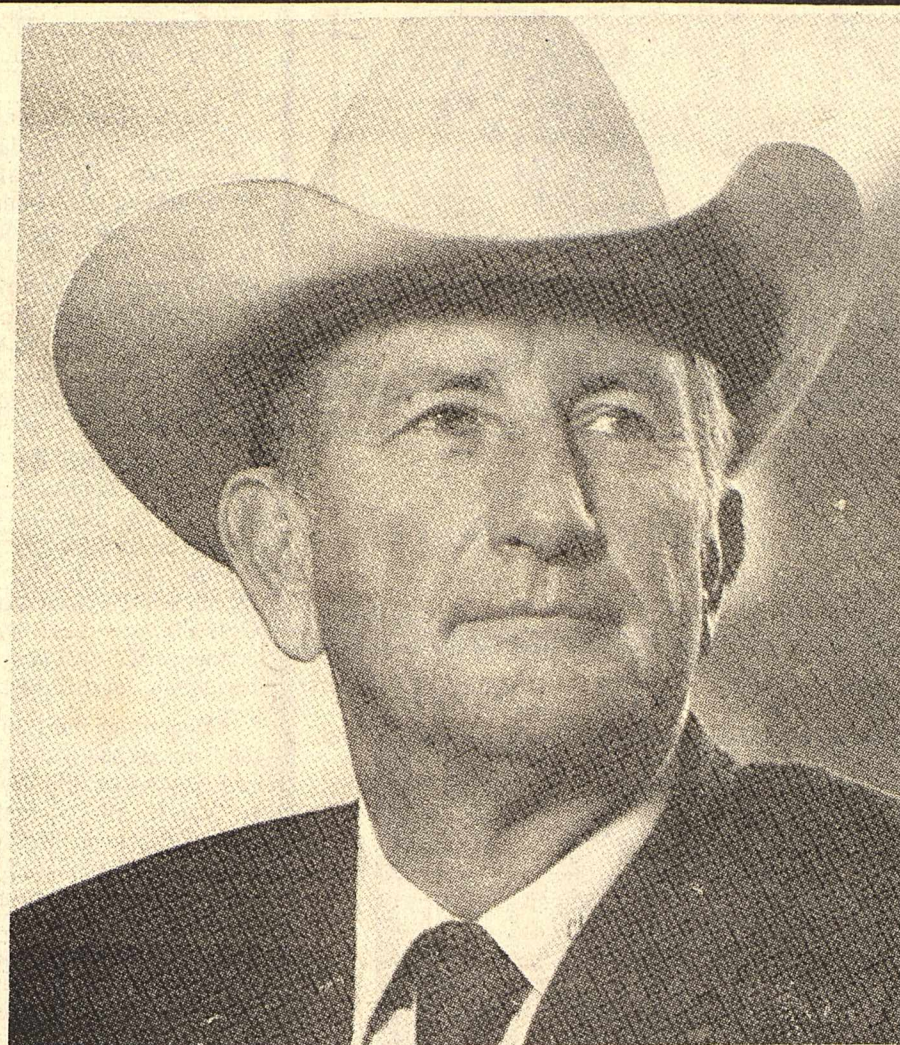

The Executive Director of the Texas Water Commission has prepared a draft permit which, if approved by the Commission, will authorize the continued operation of this facility under the terms described above. The Executive Director has also prepared a summary of the applicant's compliance history at this facility, copies of which are available upon request.

Legal Authority: Section 26.028 of the Texas Water Code, as amended; Section 4(e) of the Solid Waste Disposal Act (Article 4477-7, Texas Revised Civil Statutes; 31 TAC Chapters 305 and 335 of the Rules of the Texas Water Commission.

This notice satisfies the requirements of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), as amended, 42 U.S.C. 6901 et seq. and 40 CFR 124.10. The draft permit, if issued by the U.S. Environment Protection Agency (EPA), will implement the requirements of the Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendments of 1984 (HSWA), amending the Federal Solid Waste Disposal Act, as amended. The TWC and the EPA have entered into a joint permitting agreement whereby permits may be issued in Texas in accordance with the Texas Solid Waste Disposal Act, Article 4477-7, V.A.C.S. and HSWA until the State hazardous waste program receives interim or final authorization under RCRA to administer the requirements of the HSWA. In order for the applicant to have a fully effective RCRA permit, both the TWC and the EPA must issue the permit. All permit provisions are fully enforceable under Texas law after issuance by the TWC. Permit requirements implemented under the HSWA will be enforceable by EPA.

The TWC will provide an informal public hearing session if a written notice of opposition and request for hearing is received within 45 day of the date of publication of the notice of application. The written notice of opposition and request for such hearing must be accompanied by a statement that an aesthetic, conservational, recreational or economic interest of the requestor is or may be adversely affected by the granting of the application. It is presumed that residents, property owners or individuals doing business in the local area meet this test. Any person will be allowed to make oral or written statements at the informal public hearing session. The Executive Director of the TWC will consider any information submitted in making a final recommendation and will respond in its recommendation to the TWC, and subsequently in writing at the time the final decision is made, to any significant comments made at or in connection in the informal public hearing session. EPA may participate in the informal public session of the public hearing.

No evidentiary public hearing will be held on this application unless an affected person who has received notice of the application has requested an evidentiary public hearing. Any such request for an evidentiary public hearing shall be in writing and contain (1) the name, mailing address and phone number of the person making the request, and (2) a brief description of how the requestor, or person represented by the requestor, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application. If the TWC determines that the request sets out an issue which is relevant to the permit decision, or that an evidentiary public hearing would serve the public interest, the TWC shall conduct an evidentiary public hearing, after issuance of proper and timely notice of the hearing. If no sufficient request for hearing is received within 45 days of the date
