High school baseball strikes out

Nearly a dozen proponents of high school baseball watched in disappointment Jan. 16, as the Sonora Independent School District Board of Trustees rejected the idea of increasing the number of athletic activities to include the all-American sport.

Baseball enthusiasts, although sensing defeat, argued for more than 40 minutes trying to convince board members that baseball would be supported by both students and the community at large.

Thanking board members he had talked with individually, former teacher David Patton said, "I have just one question. Are we going to give students the opportunity to develop their God-given skills and talents to the best of their ability?"

Board members, however, remained skeptical about the negative effect baseball would have on other sports, and voiced concern about travel and scheduling problems.

"It's a hard situation," said board member Michael Smith. "We've heard every reason in the world for and against (baseball)."

"There are more important issues for the school district," Smith added.

Pointing out that it's more important for students to learn to "compete in the workforce," Gary Hardgrave said "You do that academically."

Saying she had been approached by groups favoring soccer, swimming and volleyball, board member Becky Johnson expressed concern about burgeoning athletic activities.

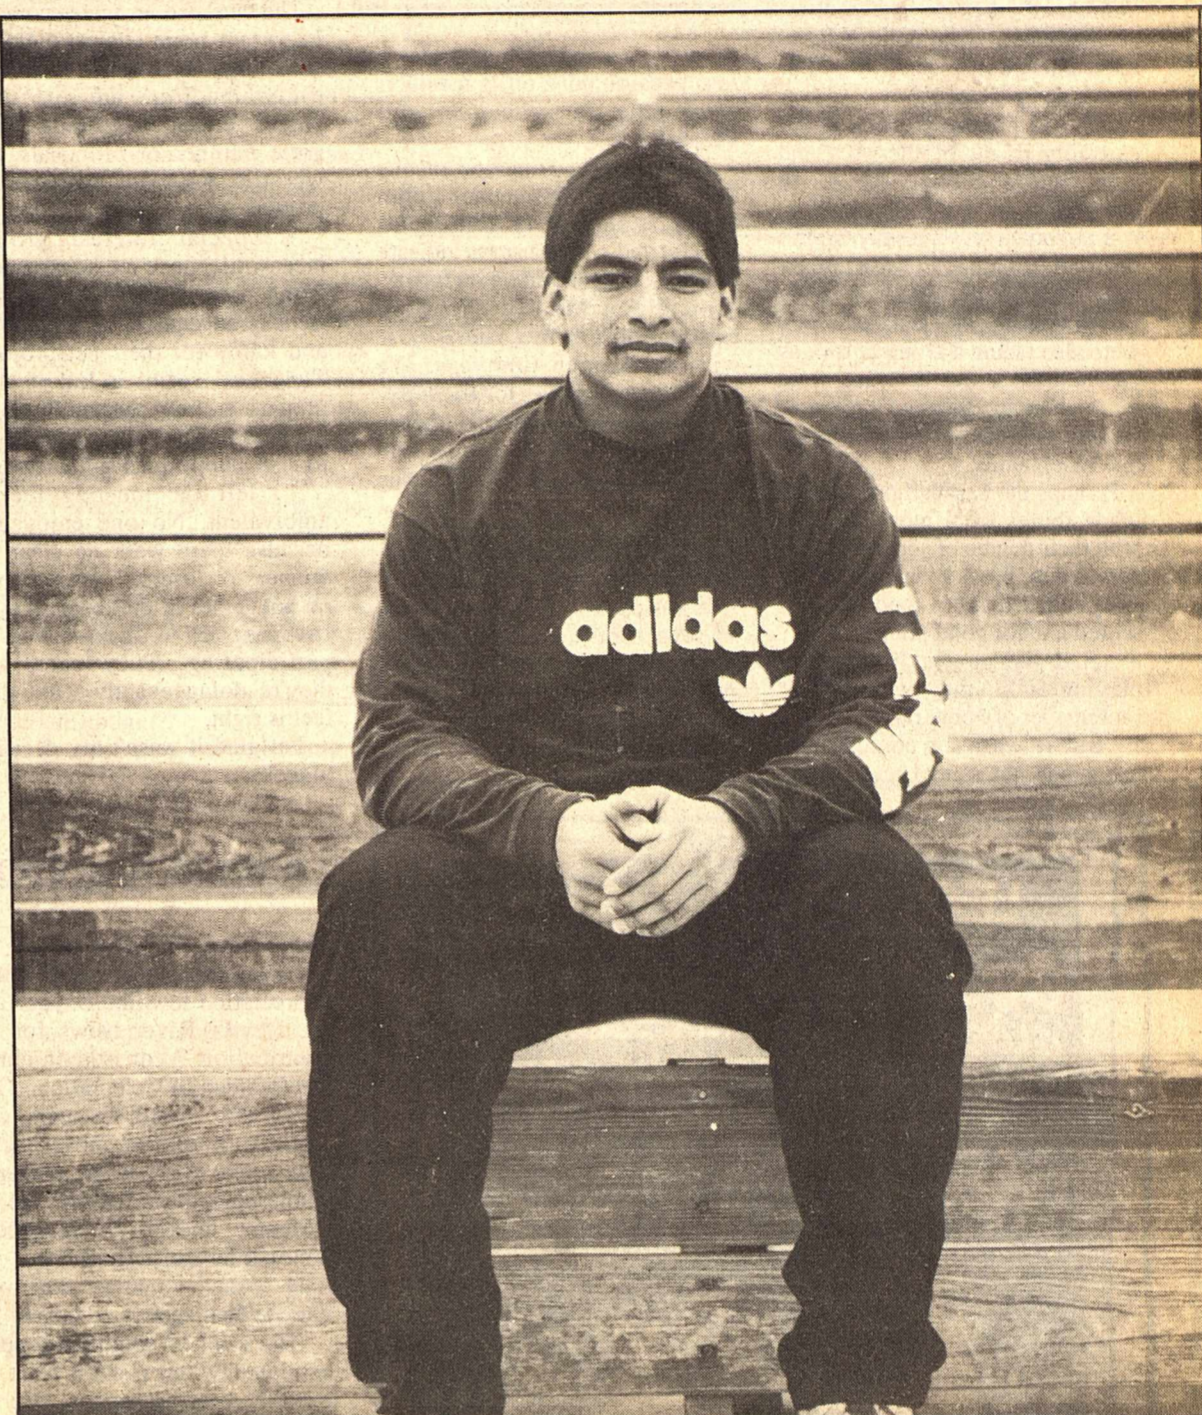

"I feel personally we're opening a gate," Johnson said. "If we do this something else will be down the line."

Smith said the board had spent an inordinate amount of time on the baseball issue. "I don't like waking up at 4 a.m. thinking about baseball," he said shaking his head.

At 7:44 p.m. the issue was put to rest.

"You deserve a vote," Smith told the audience. "I'm not going to let it die for lack of a motion. I move that we add baseball to the high school spring sports schedule for the 1990-1991 year."

None of the five remaining board members seconded the motion.

Super Team's Sentenna: more than football

The 1989 San Angelo Standard-Times All-West Texas Super Team combines all the aspects of a winner - size, speed and power.

That Sonora Bronco offensive lineman Sammy Sentenna was selected for the Super Team by the Standard-Times sports staff comes as no surprise for local football fans. Even though there were only eight 3-A players on the 38-man team.

Sentenna, it seems, has a reputation as a winner both on and off the field.

Born in Eldorado on Halloween, 1971, the soft spoken senior has been involved in sports since he was old enough to ride a bicycle. He began playing organized football in the seventh grade.

By the time he reached high school, the 5'10", 220 lbs. Sentenna had developed a quiet discipline that impressed his teammates. Along with his size, speed and power, he possessed a serious attitude. His teammates recognize him as a friend and a leader.

When he's not playing football, Sentenna is working out to stay in shape. He is a member of the school track team, and puts himself through a daily series of situps and pushups - along with weightlifting - to keep fit.

A remarkably well-rounded young man, Sentenna has brains as well as brawn. A member of the school band, he has played the coronet since he was a fifth grader. Sentenna also competes in U.I.L. science and math, and plans on majoring in biology at Texas A & I this fall.

It's not surprising that he wants to be a high school football coach. He credits former coach Bob Snodgrass for helping him when he needed it. "I learned just about everything from him," Sentenna says.

There is a very average side to this All-American student: in his spare time he likes to "ride around" with his friends, watch TV and shoot pool at his cousin's house. He'll undoubtedly be watching TV this Sunday, rooting for his favored (and favored) San Francisco 49ers.

Sentenna discussed last season's games, the best of which he feels was Sonora against Ballinger. The worse game, he says, was the loss to Llano. This year, he suggests, local fans should keep their eyes on Mirike, Terry, Crenwelge and Burch.

Although football season is over, Sentenna is staying pretty busy. He recently began working as a waiter at La Mexicana Restaurant on Mondays and Tuesdays. His thoughts are occupied with moving to Kingsville, where he hopes to play football at A and I.

As busy as he'll be adjusting to college life, will he think at all about Sonora?

"I'll probably miss it," he admits.

And, like other departed gridiron heroes, Sonora is going to miss Sammy Sentenna.

Sonora receives high grade in research institute report

The Petersburg school district (in the panhandle) is the "best" school district in Texas, with 100 percent of ninth grade students there passing statewide tests of minimum skills. But the San Elizario school district (near El Paso) is the "worst" school district in Texas, with 88 percent of the students failing the tests.

These are the conclusions of Report Card on Texas Schools released last week by the National Center for Policy Analysis, a research institute in Dallas.

The Sonora Independent School District, with 85 percent of its students passing the tests, was identified as one of the 52 "best" school districts in the state.

More than 800 school districts were included in the study, putting Sonora in the top 5 percent of Texas schools.

By comparison, neighboring San Angelo had 70 percent of its students passing the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills tests, while Del Rio scored only 47 percent. The statewide average was 62 percent.

According to the NCPA report the top rated schools districts are those in which at least 85 percent of the ninth grade students passed the TEAMS tests. The 37 "worst" school districts are the ones in which more than 60 percent of the students failed the tests.

The TEAMS tests are administered each year to students in grades 1,3,5,7,9 and 11. All students must pass the eleventh grade test in order to receive a high school diploma in Texas.

"Overall, Texas schools are doing a poor job," said NCPA president John Goodman. "Four out of every 10 ninth-grade students in Texas are failing to meet standards in reading, writing and mathematics."

"Minority students are the principle victims of the failure of

WISHING YOU WELL - The Sutton County Emergency Medical Service is the recipient of the "wishing well" money gathered last year at the Caverns of Sonora. Caverns co-owner Gerry Ingham presents a check - which will be used to purchase two chair stretchers - to County Judge Carla Fields. Joining the ceremony last week were EMS member Lenora Pool, Caverns manager Brenda Valliant, and EMS member Leslie Thorp.

Keeping score of the baseball issue

The Sonora Independent School District Board of Trustees has voted against adding baseball to the present list of athletic activities here, and some proponents of the great American pastime are hopping mad.

It was an unfair decision, they cry, displaying gentlemanly frustration and fury usually reserved for nearsighted umpires.

Was it unfair? Were the baseballers thrown a curve at the behest of the district's chief academician, who admittedly is more interested in TEAMS scores than batting averages?

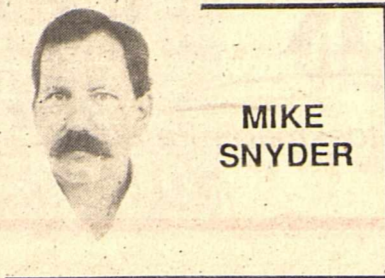

Or did board members listen carefully to all of the pros and cons before making the tough decision?

I attended last Tuesday night's board meeting, and it wasn't much fun. The board members were faced with a tough task, and they were also facing a group of serious baseball fans. But the fans were more than just fans. They were friends, neighbors - and in at least one case, family.

Perhaps the baseball proponents made things even more difficult with their degree of sophistication, persuasion, passion and erudition. They sounded pretty good and they scored a lot of good points.

Had the contest been on a playing field, they would have scored a lot of home runs.

But it wasn't a contest, and fortunately the school board didn't lose because none of its members were able to articulate well enough.

I waited for someone on the board to say "We see your point. There is obviously significant interest and enthusiasm to indicate that baseball should be included - probably at the expense of an existing sport or two. However, it will not happen this year. We have other priorities for the 1989-90 school year which include the hiring of a school nurse, the upgrading of our computer systems and the development of a program for dyslexic children."

It was painful to watch the faces of several of the board members. They aren't paid a farthing for the work they do, but they are expected to perform like seasoned professionals and experts in the education field.

I couldn't help but notice that many of the baseball buffs, after not getting to first base, immediately left the meeting. It's as if the only part of the educational process they were concerned with involved RBIs and aluminum bats. To their credit a few stayed for the rest of the somewhat dull meeting, feigning interest in the need for pre-kinder kids to learn how to pull up their zippers and play hopscotch.

The fans' exodus underscored an important point. Board members are obligated to show interest in everything from tubas to toilet paper, consider the merits of a great number of proposals, and wrestle with a plethora of problems.

Special interest groups, meanwhile, have the advantage of being able to focus on isolated issues and causes, rally support, and lobby for their pet projects. They can spend a lot of time preparing their presentations so the board will appear intimidated, foolish, uninformed and uncertain.

I left the meeting feeling ambivalent. No one enjoyed it because there were no clear-cut winners or losers. I admire folks on both sides of the fence: they're interested, and they're participating. They care, and they're doing exactly what they feel is right.

I'm glad it wasn't my decision to make.

Thanks for the help

The Jan. 17 concert performed by the United States Air Force Band of the West was well received in Sonora, but it wouldn't have been a success without some help.

The Devil's River News would like to extend its sincere appreciation to Charles Russell for making the high school auditorium available, and to the school staff that aided in the concert's preparation.

Of particular help were Mark Nelson and Bryant Harris.

If anyone deserves to be singled out for special recognition, it must be Gene Turney of KHOS Radio.

Gene helped promote the concert as a public service, and his efforts became obvious when music lovers began streaming through the doors last Wednesday night.

Thank you all for helping to give Sonora a memorable evening.

UNEMPLOYMENT CONSULTING FIRM BOON OR BOONDOGGLE?

Dear Commissioner Nabers, I received the enclosed survey from a consulting firm offering to save me money by lowering my company's unemployment tax rate. This company maintains that I am paying much more than I should and if I use their services they can keep my rate low. Please review the enclosed sales literature and tell me if this would be a good deal for my company.

W.M. Austin, Tx.

Dear W.M., You should approach this firm just as you would any other business - which is trying to sell you a service. What does it offer that you cannot get for yourself more economically? Is the time and hassle you save by not doing it yourself worth the fee you pay? Upon what are the company's promises of a lower tax rate really based?

In the area of contested claims, for example, an employer should always be prepared to offer firsthand testimony and documentation concerning the work separation. No one else can provide this for you or relieve you of this responsibility because no outside party is going to have firsthand knowledge of the events. What this means is that you will have to work WITH the consultant to give him information that you yourself could just as easily write on the form or present at a hearing.

The sales literature also promises to "hold your hand" throughout the appeals process. Some employers may feel better about being represented in a quasi-judicial process, but there is a mountain of literature from the agency and from my office that is free and available on request. You might look it over and see if it makes you feel any more confident about representing yourself. I would especially recommend a pamphlet prepared by my office entitled EMPLOYERS GUIDE TO APPEALS SURVIVAL, which outlines not only the TEC appeals procedure, but also includes suggested hearing strategy.

COMMISSIONER Mary Scott Nabers.

TEXAS BUSINESS TODAY

The company which contacted you promises you a lower tax rate. It has taken the amount of state unemployment tax paid by your company last year and compared it to the minimum tax rate available during that year, implying that you will have the minimum unemployment tax rate under their program. Look at this carefully. The fact that you, an experience rated employer, had a higher than minimum tax rate means that your company had chargebacks from unemployment claims during the last three years. Were these claims from layoffs? If so, the charge were UNAVOIDABLE. I many of these claims rest from a firing that you feel should have disqualified (ex-employee from receiving benefits but did not? Do understand where the weaknesses were in those case Did you lose any claims because you missed the deadline for responding or appealing? Chargebacks from these situations may well have avoidable.

Are you unclear on just chargebacks you have on record? Drop our Rates Department a line and request a printout of your chargeback history.

Your rate is a reflection of your company's experience with unemployment claims - one can guarantee that your company will never have a chargeback. You must judge how much your inattention the claims process is costing your company and determine whether it is worthwhile to someone to work with you on

As a closing thought, remember that my office is here specifically to help employers. We have a toll number, 1-800-TEC-MAR and it's our job to answer questions. Don't hesitate to call us.

Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers represents all Texas employers. If you have any questions you want answered please write Commissioner Nabers at: TEXAS BUSINESS TODAY, 614 TEC Building, 15th and Congress, Austin, Tx., 78778.

the Texas public schools, Goodman said. "The longer and Hispanic students stay in school, the worse they perform relative to our expectations."

According to the NCPA, more than 70 percent of Black Hispanic students pass TEAMS tests in the first grade, but by the time the students spent nine years in the public schools, only 46 percent of Black and 49 percent of Hispanics pass the tests.

The report also addressed issues of spending per student the value of taxable property school districts - two issues raised in Edgewood vs. Kirby, the in which the Texas Supreme Court declared the current system of financing education in Texas unconstitutional.

According to the NCPA, there is no relationship between the taxable wealth of school districts and student performance on the TEAMS tests.

The report also claims there is no relationship between the amount of spending per student and student performance on TEAMS tests.

Letter to the editor

Dear Editor,

I want to express my personal appreciation to Mike Snyder and the Devil's River News for its contribution Wednesday night to the Centennial Celebration. The Air Force Band Concert was wonderful; one of those events that leave you with a warm, wholesome, clean feeling. We are fortunate, indeed, to have been honored by the performance. It's only a shame that so few were there to hear such good music.

The kind of community spirit exhibited by this event is what we need more of in Sonora. We are all aware of events, actions, words in the past few months which have separated, drawn battle lines, divided. When we can put those kinds of feeling aside for even a few hours and join together in a united spirit (like the brief time we shared Wed. night) we are all better for it.

Thank you, Mike, for your gift to Sonora and to me.

Charlotte Gilmore

Dear Editor

We would like to take this time to say thanks for the outstanding compassion and concern displayed by one Sonora's fine police officers, Mike House. On New Year's Eve morning of this past year our five-year old son, Toby, fell while at deer camp twenty five miles west of Sonora. He cut his forehead which required medical attention. Being from out of town (Moulton), we did not know the location of the hospital. Officer House was parked at a business in town and when we stopped to ask for directions, he escorted us to the hospital. Once we were at the hospital, he assisted us to the emergency room. In addition, he stayed at the hospital and repeatedly expressed concern and a willingness to help in any way. Also, another patient came in during the time we were there and he, also assisted her to a wheelchair. Officer House went beyond his call of duty when seeing our seven-year-old son, Wesley, was upset about his brother's accident and bought him a Coke to help calm him. More than likely the money used was from his own pocket, but he cared enough that it did not matter.

In this fast-paced world, we often fail to recognize these people, like Mike House, or often we take them for granted and, in writing this letter of appreciation, we hope we can make up for the times good deeds are forgotten.

Also, we would like to thank the doctor and nurse who took care of our son at the hospital. We failed to get their names, but we will always remember their kindness.

Once again, thanks and may God Bless all of you!

Mr. and Mrs. Don Rothbauer and sons, Wesley & Toby

Mexico and the U.S. face global trade markets

"What the United States does best is to understand itself. What it does worst is to understand others."

—Mexican author
Carlos Fuentes

Traditionally, Americans have viewed Mexico as a good place to unload out-dated technology or to set up a maquiladora to assemble a mostly American made product.

Seldom did people in the United States take the time to understand their Southern neighbors. At the same time, Mexicans tended to see the U.S. as a power to be looked on with suspicion instead of a trading partner to be trusted.

Today, those attitudes are changing. Mexicans and citizens of the United States are recognizing the importance of U.S./Mexico relations, particularly in the area of trade.

The two countries have signed an agreement to discuss trade and are looking toward unrestricted trade in the future. Progress is also being made to ease non-tariff trade barriers for the export of U.S. livestock to Mexico.

Washington Update

By Congressman Lamar Smith

Both countries must recognize the forces pulling us together and the assets each country brings to a trading relationship. We must also work together on the policies that will shape our future.

We operate in a global market. Within that market, the world is breaking down into regional trading blocks. The implication for the Americas should be clear: cooperate regionally to compete globally.

I believe that only through cooperation will our two countries be able to realize our full potential to be leaders in the world market.

The United States and Mexico both bring valuable assets to the trading arena. Mexico has proven itself to be a country with more to offer than simply a labor supply and oil reserves. Mexico is now in the process of doing something that captures the attention of the United States: reforming.

Inflation in Mexico is down to a manageable level and the peso has remained fairly stable. Most of this is a credit to the man leading the reform: President Salinas. As a result, more U.S. firms are willing to invest in Mexico. Companies who know the quality of the Mexican labor force through experience in maquiladoras are opening up larger plants across the border.

In return, the U.S. offers a valuable market in which Mexico can develop a strong trade and technology base. This country can also be a source of financing and a source of skill for Mexico.

How do we take advantage of our respective assets in a global market? First, we must work for freer trade between the U.S. and Mexico. Less restrictive trade is more likely to create technological and economic advancement.

Second, the U.S. must continue to work hard to bring young people into scientific fields. Bright minds will keep us on the cutting edge and will continue to lead us in our expanding world market.

The United States and Mexico have an opportunity before them to take advantage of vanishing global boundaries. As President Salinas said when he addressed a joint session of Congress last year, "We have a spirit of exchange, not only material, but also of ideas and cultures." Harnessing that spirit is in the best interests of both countries.

Man has fun with our crazy language

Richard Lederer thinks English is a crazy language, but it's one that is apparently crazy about.

Proof can be found in Lederer's newest book, "Crazy English: The Ultimate Joy Ride Through Our Language."

In the book, which Lederer calls "celebration" of the mother tongue, he discusses some of the many strange traits that make English such a "loopy" language.

For example: "If pro and con are opposites," he writes, "is congress the opposite of progress?" Furthermore, he points out that in English, "people drive on a parkway and park in a driveway" and "play at a recital and recite at a play."

But Lederer isn't trying to change "correct" English—it seems he'd rather enjoy it the way it is.

"Language is like the air we breathe," Lederer said in a recent interview. "We take it in and let it out. We take it for granted." But, he says, if we step back and think about English, we discover its "idiotic" traits. For example: "In what other language can a slim chance and a fat chance be the same thing, a hile a wise man and a wiseguy are opposites?"

"And, in what other language can our nose run and your feet smell?" The book's many chapters cover a variety of the types of fun English generously provides, among them puns; oxymorons, such as "old news" and "plastic silverware"; and palindromes, which are words or sentences that read the same forward and backward.

"What distinguishes my work is variety," says Lederer. "Etymology, language history, word games, puns, humor."

Lederer has taught at St. Paul's School in Concord, N.H., for nearly three decades. He feels that his students take well to his way of teaching, but "they know what to expect" beforehand.

"I hope," he says, "that my book will serve as an extension of my teaching . . . I feel there is a classroom out there." The way he sees it, "there has never been a greater interest in the language, with the (Edwin) Newmans and (William) Safires."

Lederer is from a family of salespeople and sees himself as a sort of salesman as well. "I sell a product - language - that I believe in," he says. ". . . I try to be a 'user-friendly' linguist, which comes out in my work as a high-school teacher. When I get too preachy or teacy, I strike it out."

For Lederer, the book was "a joy to write. It was written in my head and was just dying to get out from the first typewriter." He says he writes things down when he thinks of them and spends "half an hour a night sorting it out." Reader letters also spawn ideas.

Despite the many quirks found in English, Lederer is not campaigning for changes. He admits to being "a spelling purist" but says, "I accept change in usage and grammar."

"But nobody speaks standard English anyway, so why make people uptight?"

According to Lederer, there are about 1,000 words added to English each year, including technical ones. "And," he says, "we still don't have all the words we need. I wonder what will we call the decade after the '90s?"

One object of Lederer's objections is the supermarket checkout counter signs that read: "Ten items or less." He also mourns the loss of "farther," calling it a "dead word" that has given way to "further."

"Analysis of words gives you a better appreciation of them," he says. He came up with a couple of the fruits of his analysis - "non-stop flight" and "hot-water heater" - too late for "Crazy English." But, he says, in spite of them and their kind, "we still understand each other."

Highway 277 has chance for international designation

Would be big help to town and country

January 24, 1930 - That the San Angelo-Del Rio Highway, which was recently designated as a federal highway No. 277, has a possibility of becoming an international highway was declared Monday at the Lions Club by E. J. Price, publicity director of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Price, in company with two other representatives of that organization, was here for the purpose of putting before the people here the advantage of the international designation and to collect a proportionate sum of funds with which to advertise the present federal highway to northern tourists. Financial aid will be asked of each town traversed by the highway.

The present highway is 575 miles in length, beginning at Oklahoma City and ending in Del Rio. It is the belief of Mr. Price that this highway, if it becomes an international one, will be the most important highway in the United States. Mr. Price informed the Lions that the Mexican Government was now considering a highway that would connect with a federal highway. This, he said was what the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce was trying to accomplish. He believes this can be done with the assistance of all the towns along the route.

The Lions started the donation to head the list of merchants that contributed $200 to the cause. W. E. James was appointed President Caldwell to preside at next Monday's meeting. Mr. James chose Rev. F. M. Jackson, J. D. Lowrey and M. O. Britt as program committee for that time.

Rev. J. O. McMillan, recently called as pastor of the Baptist Church here, was introduced to the Lions. He said he was pleased with Sonora, and that he and his family has been treated royally since coming here.

Miss Loma Groom, voice instructor in the Sonora schools, sang two songs, accompanied by Miss Frances at the piano.

Feb. 6—"Rigoletto." Houston, Houston's Grand Opera offers you the finest in operatic entertainment - Leo Nucci as "Rigoletto." The hunchbacked jester is certainly one of music's most unforgettable characters and baritones. "Rigoletto" is propelled to its horrifying and heartbreaking climax by one man's unbridled hatred. A "fool" is deceived by a twist of fate and a turn of the knife as Verdi expresses each conflicting emotion. Legend holds that Verdi penned Rigoletto in just forty days. True or false? You'll have to find out for yourself. For more information, contact the Houston Grand Opera, 510 Preston, Houston 77002 (713/546-0200).

Sonora's 44th annual speech meet by Charles Russell

Sonora, with the exception of the UIL State Meet, hosts the oldest consecutive speech meet in Texas. This year, when the speech meet occurs on Feb. 9-10, will mark the 44th consecutive time that the meet has been held. This is a unique event and is recognized as an outstanding meet by schools that attend from across the state. The success of the meet can be attributed to the work of Mr. Marris, the faculty, and members of the community. One of the highlights of the meet is the Friday night barbecue sponsored by the Lions Club. Many of the visiting students and teachers have their first experience at eating barbecued goat. The meal is followed by a dance for all the participants that is sponsored by the Student Council at Sonora High School. Sonora is well known for this special event, and once again we will welcome the chance to demonstrate to others the hospitality of our community and our school.

Fling Ding celebration to be held this weekend

Some Sonorans will begin celebrating the centennial at the annual Fling Ding, Saturday, Jan. 27. Members are decorating the 6,400 square foot dance floor to resemble old Sonora.

Fling Ding decorators Melissa Teaff, Mary Anne Shurley and Ebbie Sutton, constructed a giant replica of downtown Sonora as it appeared in the 1890s. Ozona artist Renee Shultz contributed to the event by depicting the famous "Sonora Water Works."

Jimmy and Ruthie Cahill are characterizing Sonora's ranching industry with life size displays of Angora goats, sheep, and steers made of mohair and wool.

Billy and Camille Green are adding to the decor with a genuine windmill, and Virgil Polocek is constructing three towering Saguaro cacti.

The theme of "A Night in Old Sonora" will mix with a southwestern flavor. This year members and guests will enjoy the comfort of a covered walkway joining warehouse buildings thanks to Bob Brockman, Quade Sutton and chairman Edward Earwood.

Sales tax rebates increase over last year

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said that strong retail sales in November resulted in a 10 percent increase over last January's sales tax rebates to cities and counties.

"Texans continue to be optimistic about the state's economy and this month's healthy payments are proof of that consumer confidence," Bullock said.

January's payments to cities totaled $70 million, almost 10 percent more than last year's figure of $64 million at this time, Bullock said.

Houston received $11 million, the state's largest payment and an increase of more than 10 percent over last January's amount. Dallas received the state's second largest payment of $7.7 million. San Antonio received $4.1 million and Austin received $3.2 million.

Payments to counties totaled $7.2 million this month, compared to $6.1 million last January. The 18 percent jump over last January's payments is partly due to the increased number of counties collecting sales tax now, Bullock said.

Merchants collect the state, city and county sales taxes and send them to the Comptroller's office with their tax returns. The state keeps its 6 percent share and each month sends cities and counties their portion of the sales tax.

This month's checks reflect taxes collected on November sales and reported in December by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

All local sales taxes must be approved by local voters and may be used for any legal city or county expenses. Most areas put the money in their General Fund and use it for normal operations like fire fighting, maintaining roads and law enforcement, Bullock said.

Sonora received $11,516.83 in sales tax rebates for 1989.

Delay granted in Alpine Open Records lawsuit

A retired U. S. Marine Corps officer in Alpine who's taking on Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson through his publication, The Nimby News, for information relating to confidential drug informants in a sting operation more than two years ago was granted a delay late last month in a hearing on his Open Records suit.

The Nimby News is an acronym for "Not in My Back Yard," a publication Jack McNamara has used in attempting to pry loose details concerning an undercover drug operation involving four Big Ben counties during the first half of 1987.

The counties of Presidio, Brewster, Jeff Davis and Culberson, and the cities of Marfa and Alpine participated in seeking a $72,000 grant to underwrite the sting operation. Presidio County was the administrator for the grant.

IN A PERIOD OF less than three months in early 1987, 60 charges were filed on a total of 47 persons. Officers in the various raids, however, found mostly misdemeanor drug possessions and most of the charges were subsequently dropped.

"During the period of the grant, January 1987 -- June 1988, there were 64 offense reports filed on individuals," McNamara stated in a memo filed in his suit. "But Sheriff Thompson claimed 156 felony and misdemeanor arrests. Less than $3000 in narcotics were seized, but the sheriff claimed $1.5 million was seized."

McNamara filed for a writ of mandamus in Judge Alex Gonzalez's 83rd State District Court seeking, among other things, the identities of those who were paid money from the grant.

"THE GRANT AUTHORIZED only purchase of narcotics expenditures," he claimed in the same memo. "Instead, an elaborate 'sting' was put into effect in Alpine, including the rental of a large house near the Sul Ross campus and lavish expenditures for booze, food, pornographic telephone calls perhaps even narcotic purchases. In Marfa, a reverse sting was apparently contemplated and attempted."

Thompson has steadfastly maintained that information relating to undercover operations is sensitive and protected from public disclosure by the law.

"Records of law enforcement agencies and prosecutors that deal with the detection, investigation and prosecution of crime, and the internal records and notations of the law enforcement agencies and prosecutors which are maintained for internal use are neither discoverable, nor are they available under the Texas Open Records Act," Thompson wrote McNamara in a letter dated February 2, 1988.

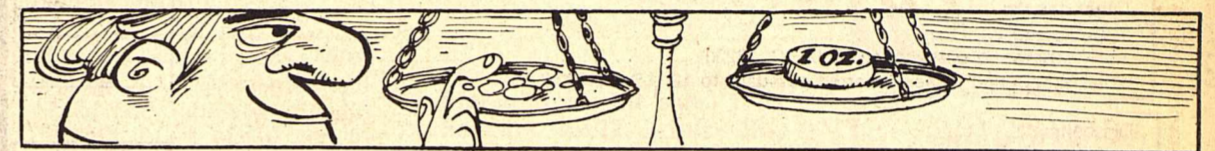

THE DISPUTE WAS scheduled for a hearing before Gonzalez's bench. Thompson was present but one day prior to the hearing McNamara told Gonzalez he had obtained legal counsel in his bid and the lawyer needed time to study the briefs.

Gonzalez granted an indefinite suspension.

Agricultural Science at Sonora High School

by Lee Bloodworth

Agricultural Science in high school is not simply a single course of study about agriculture. Agricultural Science is a study of 23 different curriculums offered to high school students in Texas, the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The primary objective of Agricultural Science is to prepare young adults for more than 200 exciting careers in agriscience, agri-business, and production agriculture.

Sonora High School has chosen six different curriculums or courses of study to offer its more than 60 agricultural students. These courses are important to our community and include:

- Wildlife Management - $6 million is added to local economy from hunting and related activities.
- Introduction to Agricultural Mechanics - basic skills, necessary for handling daily tasks around the home, ranch or farm.
- Applied Agricultural Science and Technology - includes leadership, basic soil science, plant science, animal science, and basic agricultural mechanics.
- Agricultural Metal Fabrication - includes oxy-acetylene cutting and welding as well as arc welding.
- Animal Science - selecting breeds of livestock, genetics, systems of the animal and feeds and feeding of domestic animals. 6. Animal and Plant Production - expands on knowledge gained in Applied Agricultural Science and Technology.

As do many other courses of study at the high school level, Agricultural Science has student organization. Ours is called the F. F. A. and stands for Future Farmers of America. This organization allows students to apply further knowledge acquired in the classroom to situations outside school under the direction of the advisor. These activities are considered to be extra-curricular.

This part of Agricultural Science programs is similar to the 4-H program in that we are able to participate and compete effectively in the following: 1. Livestock Shows - exhibiting projects. 2. Leadership Contests - public speaking, parliamentary procedure, radio team, creed speaking, etc. 3. Judging Contests - livestock selection and evaluation, land evaluation, poultry evaluation, wool and mohair evaluation, meats evaluation, and many more.

The Texas Association of the F. F. A. is divided into 10 areas with each are further divided into districts of which each chapter is a member. The Sonora Chapter of the F. F. A. is in Area II, District

2 of the Texas F. F. A. organization. Come see what we are about.

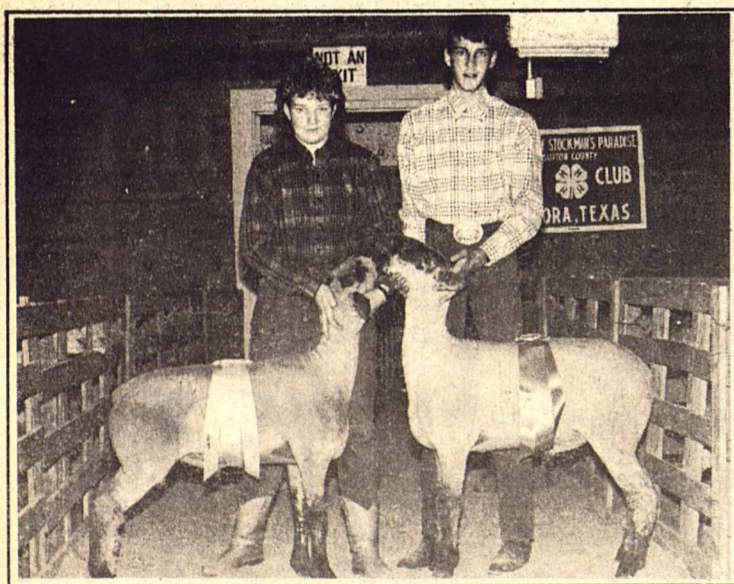

We salute the leaders and the members of 4-H

The 4-H program is a partnership between leaders who volunteer to teach and members who volunteer to learn. With community betterment as the common goal, the youth group has made an important contribution to living standards.

For the youngsters, membership offers a goldmine of opportunity. It gives them a chance to become involved in a worthwhile learning project while offering them a chance to achieve excellence through their own efforts.

For the leaders, it is an opportunity to see the rewards of their long hours as the youth in their programs grow toward becoming responsible young adults.
