Bonilla Visits Sonora

U.S. Representative Henry Bonilla (R-Texas-23) visited Sonora on Friday, August 26th to talk about the Private Property Owner's Bill of Rights.

Bonilla says he will use every resource available to his office and every ounce of energy he has personally to fight the federal government in its effort to infringe on the constitutional rights of property owners in favor of a bird. Bonilla has announced his co-sponsorship of a Private Property Owner's Bill of Rights. The bill is designed to compensate private property owners when the government restricts their land usage, thus diminishing its value.

"If the government wants to build a highway through your property, by law they are required to pay you for your land. But if they decide to offer special protection to some bird or sand bug on your property, and they dictate what you can or cannot do with your land, they don't have to pay you a cent. I think it's wrong. We need to change the law," Bonilla said.

The Private Property Owner's Bill of Rights establishes a system of compensation for landowners whose property values are negatively impacted by the enforcement of environmental rules. The bill also:

- requires federal officials to obtain written approval by the property owner before entering the property
- guarantees property

owners access to the information gathered on their land

• enables property owners to dispute the information and appeal the Endangered Species Act or Wetland decisions.

Currently, most environmental rules are drawn from the Endangered Species Act and the Wetlands Protection Act, which Bonilla says are written with no regard for human or economic consequences.

"They are written so that just about any bureaucrat can come into your land and find a reason to virtually take it over. We're seeing this right now with the golden-cheeked warbler. The federal government is trying to designate 33 Texas counties as critical habitats for this little bird, which is going to cause property values to crumble. I think it's wrong. Landowners should be financially protected against these intrusions," Bonilla said.

Currently, Bonilla is actively involved in measures that would reform both the Endangered Species Act and the Wetlands Protection Act.

"It's time for us to think about the economic and human consequences of these environmental rules. It's time to guarantee private property owners some protections of their own," Bonilla said.

Bonilla is one of the four bipartisan sponsors of the Private Property Owner's Bill of Rights.

This library is for you, Sutton County. The library needs your help now.

The county is now accepting bids on the present library building and lot at 210 S.E. Concho. Proceeds from this sale will go toward construction costs of the new library on the lot next to Cauthorn Memorial Building (The Depot) on Mulberry Street. Freelance Philosophy

by Gary C. Smith

I was telling my son one of Aesop's Fables. Perhaps you have heard it yourself. It is called...

The Wolf in Sheep's Clothing

Each night a wolf prowled around a flock of sheep looking for a tender one to snack on, and each night the shepherd chased her away. Tired and hungry, the wolf thought that there must be an easier way to get her meal. One morning, when she was walking through the woods she discovered a sheepskin. She carefully pulled the skin over her body so that none of her fur showed. She looked almost exactly like a sheep.

Ever so carefully, she slipped into the flock of sheep ready to get her supper. What she didn't know was that the shepherd was hungry too. Picking out the fattest "sheep", he killed her for his evening meal.

Moral #1: Beware of those who pretend to be something that they are not.

Moral #2: Being a phony can get you in trouble.

Moral #3: If you are not careful in picking your meal, you might get dog instead of lamb chops.

Until the next time,
May God Bless

City To Begin Recycling Steel Cans

The City of Sonora has joined with the Steel Can Recycling Institute (SCRI) to implement a public service campaign encouraging Sonora residents to recycle their steel cans and other recyclables.

The campaign was designed as a cooperative community public service effort. SCRI has provided the city with numerous marketing support communication tools at no cost. The campaign materials focus attention of the importance of recycling, especially steel cans.

"We believe this campaign will draw Sonora residents' attention to the importance of recycling steel cans along with their other materials," said Sonora Mayor Lemuel Lopez. "It's exciting to see an industry-sponsored group working with local governments to provide marketing support to promote environmental awareness."

Steel cans are one of many items that can be recycled at the Sonora Recycling Center located at the corner of Water and Third Streets. Although commonly referred to as "tin cans", steel cans are actually made of high-quality steel with a thin tin coating. Examples of steel cans include soup cans, pet food cans, bandage boxes, coffee cans, and empty aerosol cans.

In relation to this campaign, the city will be sponsoring various events throughout the month of September to promote steel can recycling. Steel is America's most recycled material, and recycled steel cans can be used to make new steel products such as cars, stoves, bridges, lawn mowers, and even construction materials.

The Steel Can Recycling Institute, and industry association dedicated to promoting and sustaining steel can recycling, is the primary information and technical resource for recyclers, municipalities, legislators, educators, businesses and other entities with an interest in steel can recycling. Through its seven regional offices, the SCRI works directly with city and county recycling coordinators and solid waste managers, recycling center operators, and end market buyers.

Broncos Beat Coahoma, 3-2

Submitted
The Sonora Broncos capped off a very successful preseason with an impressive win over the Coahoma Bulldogs Friday evening in Sonora. After a solid showing against Iraan last week, the Broncos were looking to build on their success and challenge the potent Bulldog offense with the same sturdy defense the Broncos have played throughout the preseason, and also to establish some offensive consistency against a larger, stronger, and quicker opponent. The Broncos succeeded in both areas, offense and defense, and the result was a scrimmage that left little doubt as to the Broncos' readiness for the regular season opener next week against the Wall Hawks. The Broncos are ready.

Jason Morley led the Broncos at quarterback during the Broncos' first possession, a fifteen-play drive that resulted in a touchdown. The Bronco offense used a number of weapons as it moved smoothly down the field during its first drive, with Morley throwing to Justin House for a twenty-five yard gain and also running the ball well on option keepers and roll-out pass plays when receivers were covered. Tail back Gilbert Vara, who played sparingly, contributed to this opening drive with three rushes for 15 yards, and Gabriel Perez also ran the ball well for the Broncos. On first and goal from the Bulldog three yard line, Fullback Mike House attempted to bull his way into the end zone, but was stopped just short by a stunting Coahoma defense. Morley then took the snap on second and goal, turned to his right on an apparent option, and dove into the end zone for the scrimmage's initial score.

The Bronco offense continued its steady improvement from its rocky start in the Bronco intrasquad scrimmage two weeks ago. The line opened gaping holes for Perez, Vara, House, and Morley, and protected Morley well when he rolled out or dropped back to pass. The Broncos were able to move the ball more consistently on the ground than in the air, but passed well when the need or opportunity arose.

The Coahoma offense did not fair too well on its first possession. With the Bulldog first team offense going against the first team Bronco defense, it is safe to say that the Bulldogs were going nowhere fast. In a fifteen-play drive which did not cross the fifty yard line, the Bulldogs were forced to start over on downs four times, and did not achieve any rhythm on offense simply because there were so many Broncos in their backfield on most plays from scrimmage.

Coahoma began its offensive series attempting to run, but hard tackles on second and 11 by Josh Burnham and Jason Morley, and on third and 10 by Gabriel Perez and Marcus Montez forced the Bulldogs to try the air perhaps sooner than they desired. The Bronco cornerbacks were tested by three consecutive hard slant patterns, all of which fell incomplete; but the passes had their desired effect, opening up the Bronco defense for a twenty-three yard gain on a draw up the middle on a second and 10 play.

One first and 10 after the 23 yard gain, the Coahoma quarterback gained 10 yards on an option quarterback keeper to the Coahoma 45 yard line, marking their deepest penetration up the field. The Bulldogs attempted two running plays on first and second downs, but these were completely shut down at the line of scrimmage by a very tough Bronco interior line of Cody Gann, Shane Deel, Jason Morley, Trini Banda, and Marcus Montez. On third and 8, Coahoma attempted a pass through the middle of a well-placed Bronco defensive backfield, and the ball was intercepted by Gabriel Perez and, had this been a regular season game, would have been returned for a touchdown, as Perez had clear sailing down the visitors' sideline.

The interception seemed to deflate the Bulldog offense; on its three remaining plays the Bulldog offense gained three yards, and was victimized by hard hits from Burnham and Banda on an attempted dive right, a near quarterback sack by Peter Noriega and Adrian Mata, who spelled Jason Morley well with some solid play at linebacker, and generally aggressive defensive play which severely hampered any offensive plans the Bulldogs may have had.

The Bronco offense took the field for its second series of downs with Josh Burnham at quarterback, and Burnham moved the Bronco offense down the field as efficiently as had Morley during the Broncos' first possession. Burnham was helped by solid running from Gilbert Vara, Gabriel Perez, and Marcus Montez. Perez had the best run of the drive, a shifty 13-yard gain through the middle of the Coahoma defense that converted a Bronco third and 3. Burnham, however, was effective through the air against the Bulldog defense, completing passes of ten yards to Davis Hale on a well-executed out pattern, and a fifteen yard completion to Raymond Rainer as Burnham avoided backfield pressure, found Rainer over the middle, and completed the pass.

The drive was capped by a scoring run from Marcus Montez. The Broncos appeared to have scored on a second and 10 from the Bulldog 12 yard line as Montez ran a sweep into the end zone, but the play was called back on a penalty and the Broncos had to grind into the end zone again - but the result was the same. Montez swept right again for two yards and a touchdown to cap this drive and put the Broncos ahead 2-0.

Caleb Barker entered the game on offense as the Bronco quarterback during the second drive of this Bronco possession, and the drive directed by Barker also resulted in a Bronco score. Gabriel Perez, Adrian Mata, and Marcus Montez, along with Barker, were the workhorses for the Bronco offense during this drive, with the big play coming on Barker's 30-yard option right quarterback keeper that moved the ball down to the Bulldog eight yard line. Perez attempted to break through the Coahoma defense and gained 6 yards, but fell just short of the end zone. Montez was again the Bronco who took the ball into the end zone on a two-yard quick pitch right which seemed to catch the Bulldog defense completely off-guard as Montez went into the end zone untouched.

With the Broncos ahead 3-0 and the outcome of the scrimmage not seriously in doubt, the second Bronco defense saw many substitutions in the interior line, line backing corps, and the defensive backfield, with some Junior Varsity players getting to play in the Varsity scrimmage. One of these JV players, Ben Taylor, did a solid job a linebacker for the Bronco defense. The younger Bronco defenders were victimized by the Coahoma starters for two scores, but both were hard fought efforts and the result of much better execution by the Coahoma offensive line and running backs. Coahoma was particularly effective running an inside counter play against the Bronco reserves, but as the end of this possession by the Bulldogs neared, their offense was shut down again through the fine play of Jeff Floyd, Sean Atkins, Caleb Barker, Alex Gonzales, Chad Holmes, Raymond Rainer, and Andy Mirike.

The last Bronco defensive series also saw some excellent play from Jason Morley, Trini Banda, Josh Burnham, and Cody Renfro, who recorded a quarterback sack and several tackles in this drive alone. The Bulldog offense, trying desperately to tie the score before their allotted number of plays ran out, was unable to move the ball effectively, again, against the tough Bronco first team defense.

Defensive coordinator Don Sessom, when asked after the scrimmage if he was happy with his defense, said that he was "really happy with my first bunch - they played really well." He singled out Josh Burnham, Cody Renfro, Shane Deel, Cody Gann, and Marcus Montez on the first team defense for their efforts, and also complimented Adrian Mata for some excellent play at linebacker backing up Jason Morley.

The Broncos' next game is Friday night in Wall, against the Hawks, a playoff contender this year. The Broncos have an exciting team and have improved significantly since last year's rough opener against Wall; the result of all that Bronco hard work and improvement should be an exciting game against a very good opponent, and Bronco fans are urged to make the drive to Wall and see this new brand of Bronco football in its regular season opener.

Grand Opening Held For Cellular Resources

Local citizens gather together to celebrate the grand opening of Cellular Resources.

It's amazing what a little cooperation can accomplish. For the 798 rural utilities and independent investors who make up the National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative (NRTC), their combined effort purchased rural programming distribution rights to the 18-inch satellite dish television system which many industry experts say could offer the best and most economical on-ramp to the information superhighway for rural Americans.

The service, DIRECTV, is the nation's first high-power direct broadcast satellite (DBS) television service. It offers 150 plus channels of capacity, with laser disc-quality video and CD-quality audio, using an 18-inch satellite dish antenna, which can be easily mounted on a roof, porch railing or the side of a house.

Offering all of the most popular cable channels, plus pay-per-view movies, events and sports, with digital picture and sound quality, DIRECTV offers everything today that fiber-optic cable promises for the future, according to its proponents.

"Many people don't realize it, but there are more than 12 million people in the U.S. who live beyond the reach of off-air and cable television," says Bob Phillips, NRTC's chief executive officer. "In most cases, it's simply not economically feasible to run wires out to most rural areas. Through the NRTC/DIRECTV partnership, these disenfranchised Americans will have access to the same affordable, comprehensive information and television services enjoyed by the rest of the country. And, for people who do have access to cable, it will give them a choice."

For DIRECTV, the partnership provides an established rural distribution arm with a proven record of quality service and customer satisfaction, according to DIRECTV President Eddy Hartenstein.

"We feel that serving rural America is a key part of our mission," says Hartenstein. "There is no better entity to provide rural DBS service on the local level than NRTC and its members."

While DIRECTV will be available nationally through a number of other outlets, NRTC members are in a rather unique position, due to their large investment in the project. Except for selected test markets, NRTC members will be the only distribution chain that will be selling DIRECTV this summer, albeit on a limited basis - the full national rollout is not scheduled until the fall.

In addition, consumers who live in NRTC-member territories will have access to exclusive programming packages and private-label Digital Satellite System (DSS) receiving equipment not available through other channels. Finally, these consumers will have a true local service provider in their area, who will provide complete billing, service and technical support for their products.

The DSS hardware, which subscribers will use to receive DIRECTV, consists of an 18-inch dish antenna, remote control and set-top receiver, about the size of a VCR. The customer can choose between a $699 or $799 system and payment plans are available.

Programming costs from $19.95 to $33.90 per month and includes the most popular cable channels, like CNN, TNT, ESPN, The Disney Channel, The Discovery

Channel, networks and more, as well as an extensive selection of uncut, commercial-free movies from services like Encore, The Disney Channel and Turner Classic Movies and pay-per-view features from nearly all of Hollywood's top studios.

NRTC members will provide a one-stop source for both equipment and programming in their territories. All in all, it's a partnership that works, according to Phillips.

"For all intents and purposes, this partnership means that we are DIRECTV in many of the nation's rural areas," says Phillips. "Because of this, rural Americans will be among the first to receive this fantastic new technology. Our members invested a large sum of money to make this happen and, in my opinion it was money well spent."

Turner Wins SCD Fiddle Contest

Mead Turner

Mead Turner won the fiddle contest in his age group at Sutton County Days last Saturday. Mead is the son of Rand and Joaney Mead of Fredericksburg. He has a sister, Jennifer and baby brother Blake or "Blaker", as Mead refers to him. He is an extraordinary young man. Following is his story written by his mother, Joaney.

Mead wanted to play the violin since he was 3 1/2. He got a fiddle at age 6 but didn't find his teacher, Carolyn White, until he was 7 1/2. He is now 9 1/2 and loving every minute of his fiddle music.

In April, he was flown to Colorado by a gentleman who saw him jamming in Harper one night. He performed for a cowboy poetry gathering and came home with a new love for poetry. There were 50 poets and musicians at this event from across the country. Mead, being 9 was youngest.

He was asked by one of the performers he met at the poetry gathering to go to Idaho to perform for a week on the Chief Joseph trail ride with 300 other appaloosa horse riders. They traveled 100 miles in a weeks time and set up a dance floor each night where people were entertained for 3 hours. He came home exhausted but had a great time. He also loves to ride horses.

Mead attended the 1st Annual Mark O'Connor fiddle camp in June for a week. It was a dream come true, for Mark is Mead's idol. He signed Mead's fiddle. There were over 150 people at the camp and he met many children from across the country with his same interests.

He also attended Dale Morris's fiddle camp in Texarkana. He had lots of fun fiddling, learning and jamming.

To complete his summer, Mead performed for 2 days at a cutting horse ranch in Kerrville. In exchange, he received 2 days of cutting lessons and came home ready to be a rancher. They renamed him "Buck".

On September 30 and October 1, Mead will perform for the Texas Heritage Fall Festival. This festival is a tribute to Jimmie Rogers and will also feature Red Steagall, Patsy Montana, Andy Wilkinson and many other great performers. It will take place at Schreiner College in Kerrville.

Mead enjoys going to contests. Win or loose he always has a good time being in the fellowship of like fiddlers.

He practices about an hour a day and plays a 3/4 size fiddle.

ROLLBACK ELECTION

A taxation law recently passed requires that a school district, when it raises taxes $.06 or more above the effective tax rate (rate when applied to this year's values that raises the same amount of money as last year's), is required to hold a rollback election to allow voters in the district the opportunity to disallow the tax increase and roll the tax rate back to $.06 above the effective rate.

The actual tax rate is not considered in a rollback situation -- only the effective rate is actually figured into the rollback formula. The Sonora ISD Board approved a tax rate of $1.11 per hundred for the coming year -- the same rate that we had for last year. Because of increased mineral values and the increased price of natural gas our values are up this year and this in turn lowers our effective rate which forces us to hold a rollback election. Also, the Sonora ISD Board granted a 20% Homestead Exemption for the coming year. The bottom line is that virtually all homeowners will pay less school taxes than last year, but we are going to be involved in a rollback election because of the Legislature's definition of a tax increase.

The Legislature, with their reluctance to adequately fund education appropriately, continues to play politics with the children of Texas. In response to complaints of rising local property taxes, they are increasing the right of the local property owners to deny schools the only source of revenue that is available to them.

The average school property tax rate in Texas is $1.43 per hundred which is $.32 above the rate we have in Sonora. At the September board meeting we will set a date for the rollback election, which will probably be sometime in October. I will continue to provide information about our tax rate and the rollback election and if you have questions or comments, please come by and discuss them with me.

Charles Russell, Superintendent of Schools
