Strategies to Grow Area Tourism Retreat to be Held June 13th

Area Businesses Invited!!!

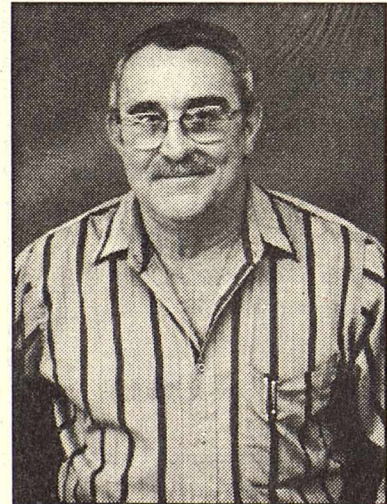

After several months of preparation, the Southwest Texas Tourism Partnership will host a June 13th retreat at the T-Saucer Ranch to develop strategies to grow area tourism. The all day retreat is for anyone (business, attraction, landowner...) who can benefit from more tourism business. The planning area for this retreat includes Crockett, Schleicher and Sutton counties and adjacent communities.

Reservations are required for participating in the retreat. A $20 registration fee will cover the cost of meals and planning packets. Reservations can be made through Justin McGeath, Sonora Chamber of Commerce, at 915-387-2880 or fax to 915-387-5357. Reservations must be made by June 8, 2001. After June 8th, registration is $25.

McGeath, who is chair of the newly established Southwest Texas Tourism Partnership, says, "We've been building for this retreat since last year. We really need good representation from area businesses, attractions and landowners in order to develop good strategies. From the very beginning, we were presented data that clearly shows how important the service sector is to our economy and tourism can be a significant force in growing this sector."

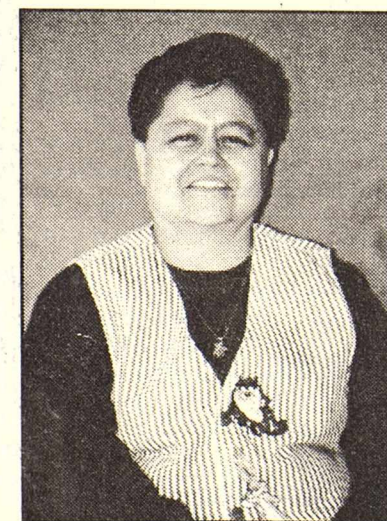

McGeath is joined on the Partnership executive committee by Dan Brown (Hummer House, Christoval), Shannon Biggerstaf (Ozona Chamber of Commerce), Stan Meadors (X-Bar Ranch), Stacy Jones Jereck (Eldorado Woolen Mill), Gerry Ingham (Caverns of Sonora), and Lolabeth Jones (T-Saucer Ranch).

TxDOT Announces Retirement

Ken Harrison, Sonora Maintenance supervisor, recently retired from the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT). Harrison ended his career at TxDOT with 20 years of service.

TxDOT Employee Recognized for 15 Years of Service

The San Angelo District of the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) recently awarded a 15-year service award to Sally Gonzales. Gonzales is the office manager from the Sonora Maintenance Section.

The retreat will be facilitated by specialist from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Department of Recreation, Park and Tourism Sciences at Texas A&M University. Dr. Carson Watts, who has been working with the local group since last September, agreed that having good representation at the retreat from every community is very important. "It would be great to see at least 50-60 people show up to help develop strategies to grow tourism. One thing we've learned in the previous months is that this area has some very unique attractions. We've also seen great enthusiasm for cooperation. This is a must for successful tourism. When communities and attractions work together, the tourism product can be packaged to be much more appealing to today's travel markets. That's what this retreat is all about... making the tourism product more appealing and then working to let the market(s) know about it."

The agenda of the retreat will include an overview of the activities that led to the creation of the Southwest Texas Tourism Partnership. Participants will leave with a good understanding of how they and their business can benefit from being involved with this tourism initiative. Call today for your reservation... 915-387-2880.

Commissioners Choose Depository

At the May 29th meeting of the County Commissioners bank depository bids were discussed. After reviewing the bids from both First National Bank and The Bank & Trust, it was found that short term CD rates were better at First National Bank, but long term rates were better at the Bank & Trust. After further discussion on money market accounts, NOW accounts and cashing in CD's early, a motion was made to go with The Bank & Trust as the County depository, but to leave the current CD's at the First National Bank until they mature.

The Justice of the Peace, Adalita Alvarez, was given permission to advertise for a full-time Court Clerk position to replace a vacancy in her office.

The COG contract for the TRACKS program was renewed for the same amount as last year. Thunderbird driver, Sonia Gamez, reported that the program was running smooth and reminded all that the vans are available to pick up for Summer School, the Library reading program, Senior Citizens and more.

After a Purchase of Distributor Resolution was voted on, the meeting was adjourned.

LCRA, AEP Announce Long-Term Agreement to Improve Transmission System Reliability

Austin - The Lower Colorado Authority (LCRA) and American Electric Power (NYSE:AEP) have announced a joint development agreement that will improve the capacity and reliability of electric transmission systems in South and West Texas.

At its meeting May 23, the LCRA Board of Directors authorized staff to negotiate a final agreement. The two organizations expect to execute the final agreement within the next few weeks.

Under the agreement, the LCRA will finance and own transmission system improvements and AEP will build and maintain them. The Public Utility Commission of Texas must review and approve proposed transmission projects before construction can begin.

Over the next five years the public/private venture will construct up to $500 million of transmission projects identified by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas (ERCOT) as crucial to supporting a competitive retail electric market in

TxDOT Commissioners Consider Study on Ports-to-Plains Route

The Texas Department of Transportation Commissioners met Thursday morning to consider the Wilbur Smith study on the Ports-to-Plains route designation.

Staff recommendations based on the study were presented to the Commissioners at this meeting.

The Staff recommended the route as proposed by the Ports-to-Plains Trade coalition (of which Sonora and Sutton County are members) with the exception of the loop over to Midland. When questioned by Commissioner Nicholas as to the reason they did not recommend the loop it was brought out that the Staff could not recommend parallel routes.

Commissioner Nichols recommended that the Commissioners consider adding that loop and following the same language as introduced in Federal legislation.

This recommended route does pass through Sonora.

As the maps were displayed, one comment was made that "Sonora is going to be the crossroads of West Texas".

The Commissioners will vote on these Staff recommendations on June 28th so we are not completely there yet, however it is looking very good at this point for Sonora.

Project Graduation Keeps Students Safe

Project Graduation 2001 was held May 25th at the Sonora High School Commons area. Around 100 high school students received goodie bags and registered for the drawings of over 180 items throughout the evening. At 11:00 p.m., students began to play games such as Plinko, Football Throw, Washer Pitching, and many other games, earning money to purchase items from the store and the auction.

At midnight, the students were "locked in" and could not leave until Project Graduation was over at around 5:00 a.m. or if they wanted to leave earlier, their parents were telephoned.

This party was made possible because of parents, faculty, the community, and both local and area businesses. A few of the items that the students could purchase with the money were: TV's, microwaves, refrigerators, stereo systems, DVD Players, irons, telephones, VCR's, furniture, and the list goes on.

Everyone involved in Project Graduation 2001 agree that the party was a grand success and would like to thank everyone who made it possible.

Protect Your Largest Organ - Your Skin

The American Cancer Society wants everyone to know the facts about Skin Cancer.

Skin Cancer is the most common of all cancers. One out of every five people in the US will develop skin cancer during their lifetime. Melanoma is one of the most common cancers in people less than 30 years of age.

Because we live in a southern state where the sun is stronger, the number of skin cancers diagnosed is higher than in most other states. This year an estimated 3,400 Texans will be diagnosed with the most deadly form of skin cancer - malignant melanoma.

There are two types of UV rays, UVA and UVB, both are harmful to your skin and eyes. Exposure to UV radiation through sunlight or tanning booths increases the risk of all skin cancers.

Besides skin cancer, the sun's UV radiation also increases the risk of cataracts and certain other eye problems, and can suppress the immune system.

People with a lot of moles or who have moles that are large have an increased risk of malignant melanoma. Risk of malignant melanoma is greater if there is a family history of the disease.

People that have been treated with medicines that suppress the immune system may also have an increased risk of melanoma. Certain medications can make your skin more sensitive to sun damage.

Sunscreen with a SPF of 15 or higher is necessary even on cloudy days when 70-80% of the harmful rays can go through cloud cover.

The sun's rays can burn in up to 3 feet of water.

For more facts on skin cancer call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit their web page at www.cancer.org.

Card of Thanks

I would like to thank all those involved in the "Out to Pasture" party. It was a time I will always remember.

I would also like to send a special thank you to everyone in Middle School. Thank you for lunch, watch, fishing pole and all the cookies.

Thanks to those I've worked with and especially the students for the great memories made in twenty-eight years of teaching.

On June 2, my daughter Casey and my 2 year old grandson Christopher Wayne Castro were at Shot's #5. My grandson Christopher was eating a piece of candy. He started choking on the candy, my daughter got really scared and didn't know what to do. She tried getting the candy out but couldn't. My grandson was turning blue and couldn't breathe. The girl that was working at the store got scared too and was scared to try anything on a child. They started to call 911 when the girl that was working saw Officer Mike House outside the store. She told my daughter and my daughter ran out and told Officer House what was going on. He took action right away, grabbed Christopher and performed the Heimlich Maneuver on him. He then made sure Christopher was alright. The next day I thanked him and he said it was just part of his job and he just did what he was trained to do. But to me and my family he deserves a very special thank you because what he did was save a life. My grandson is doing fine thanks to this man. So, to us he is a very special person and a hero. Officer Mike House, thank you from the Agüero Family and Christopher Wayne you will always be a hero to us.

It took a lot of hard work, and a lot of discipline, for Lynn Sahr to earn the right to attend Cellular One's Super Star Retreat in San Diego, CA. Here Lynn poses with Pro Beach Volleyball Player Sinjin Smith.

I would like to thank everyone in Sonora for dealing locally at Cellular One. Because you chose to shop at home I was given the opportunity of a life time. I won the "Superstar" Award with Cellular One and was flown to San Diego, Ca. from April 23-26, to receive the award. While in San Diego, I met a lot of great celebrities, like Ronnie Lott, Superstar Hall of Famer for the San Francisco 49ers, Pro Beach Volleyball Player, Sinjin Smith, and Entertainer, Wayne Brady from "Whose Line Is It Anyway?" I had a great time and would like to share my award with everyone. Come visit me at the newly remodeled office, located at 205 Hwy 277, next door to the Bank and Trust.

Blue Heeler Has Bronco Spirit

A Blue Heeler named for the Sonora Bronco 2000 football team showed he had the same fighting and winning spirit as his namesakes.

Bronco, a 6 month old Blue Heeler, goes to work with owner Standley Clay Anderson when he works for Location Builders on weekends. In true Heeler style, he rides on the tool box in the pickup. On Friday, May 25th, Anderson was moving from one location to another about 2 miles away. He drove the haul truck and a co-worker drove the pickup, accompanied by Bronco. On arrival at the new location, Anderson discovered Bronco was missing from the pickup.

A search of the road back to the other location didn't produce Bronco. Somehow he had fallen off the toolbox and disappeared.

Anderson hoped he would come to the sound of equipment and kept working through the afternoon. NO Bronco!

Anderson made another road search before going home at dark and still no Bronco. After three days of working in the area and searching for the dog, Anderson assumed that someone had picked him up from the short stretch of Caverns Road that was between the locations.

Just hoping that someone picked him up who would love him, Anderson decided he had, indeed, lost his dog.

On the morning of Sat. June 2nd, Louise Ingham Moore was driving to work at the Sonora Caverns when she spotted a dog by the road. Stating, "He looked terrible, he was staggering and falling and I was thinking, oh Lord, what's wrong with him, is he rabid? Is he hurt?"

Being the worlds greatest dog lover, Louise stopped, said a little prayer for protection, picked up Bronco and loaded him in her truck.

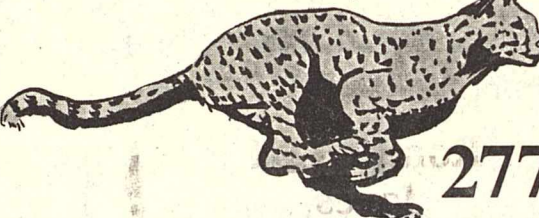

At the Caverns, she found out from his tag who he was and called Standley Clay.

"Standley, I have your dog" were the sweetest words the Anderson family had heard in 8 days.

After a trip to Dr. Gibbens they found out that Bronco had a broken hip and several bad cuts and scrapes plus serious dehydration and malnutrition, Bronco's ordeal had finally ended.

Bronco has injuries that have to heal and weight that has to be gained back, but he does have a loving family, a good vet, a guardian angel named Louise and that unbeatable Bronco fighting spirit!

Bronco can't tell us what happened during those eight days, but his endurance and determination to win against those odds does tell us you can't beat a Sonora Bronco's Spirit!

Sonora's Rising Stars Shine Bright in Austin

When 950 young Texans walked the stage at the Ninth Annual Rising Star Young Writers' and Artists' Conference on April 28 at Riverbend Centre in Austin, they were applauded as "Rising Stars" for their creative writing and art.

Among those 950 were 8 from Sonora Intermediate School, Mario Oliden, Steely Ingham, Marcus Perez, Elle Newton, Kyla Turney, Bianca Trevino, Ross Crites and Shaylynn Kresta.

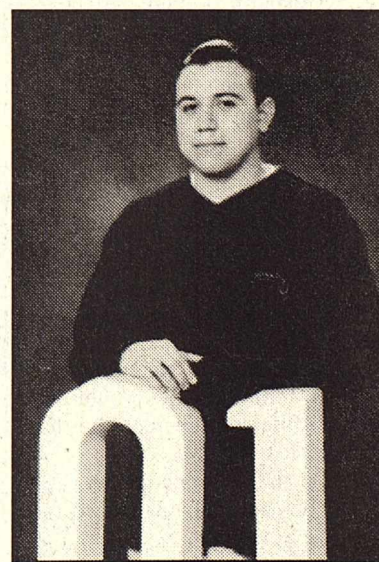

These students joined second through sixth grade students from schools across the state of Texas, from the Panhandle to the Rio Grande Valley. All took home a copy of the 2001 edition of Rising Star, Young Texas Tales, which published the best of the writing and art submitted by 1,554 students at 189 Texas schools.

Substantial support for Rising Star comes from the Texas Education Agency, Scholastic, Inc., Texas Commission on the Arts, and 33 Texas newspapers. A number of Texas authors, including Larry McMurtry, Robert Fulghum, John Erickson, Louis Sachar, Joan Lowery Nixon, Diane Stanley, and Angela Shelf Medearis have been long-time supporters.

Intermediate School Receives Class-size Reduction Funds

Sonora Intermediate School applied for and received funds for the Class-size Reduction Program for the 2000-2001 school year. These funds were used to help fund one third grade teacher's salary. The addition of this teacher allowed us to reduce class sizes from 22 students to 17 students. Smaller class sizes allowed more interaction time between individual students and teachers, thus attributing to overall performance of the class. Third grade TAAS reading scores improved 2% and TAAS math scores improved 24%.

If you have any questions regarding this program please contact Kelley Hirt at 387-5669.

Keeping an Eye on Texas

Water-Wise

Drought conditions in Texas can raise temperatures to 106 degrees or higher, making water an increasingly valuable resource during the summer months. The following tips will help homeowners learn to conserve and use water wisely:

- Fill swimming pools at lower levels to avoid water loss.
- Group lawn plants together that require same amounts of water.
- Use rocks, wooden decking and patio fixtures to reduce lawn area.
- Adjust automatic sprinklers to shut off when it rains.

ATTENTION: USERS OF FEN-PHEN OR REDUX

In September, 1997, Fen-Phen and Redux were pulled off the market after they were linked to serious heart valve damage. Since then, thousands of lawsuits have been filed against the makers of these drugs. Some of these claims have already been settled. If you used Fen-Phen or Redux, you should know your rights. Valve damage may be a progressive disease, and often symptoms are not noticeable. You may need more information if you fall into one of the following groups:

- You opted out of the class action but have not hired an attorney or settled your case;
- You did not obtain an echocardiogram until October 1, 1999 or later and you know you have valve damage;
- You are having symptoms such as shortness of breath, swelling in the legs, chest pain or heart palpitations; or
- You have been diagnosed with pulmonary hypertension (PH or PPH).

system reliability in the San Angelo area as well as statewide, and will deliver wind power from West Texas to help meet the state's renewable energy goals.

The Texas Legislature authorized the LCRA to provide transmission services statewide as part of the 1999 legislation allowing retail competition, because the LCRA can build and own transmission lines at a lower cost than most utilities, saving money for Texas consumers. The annual cost of system improvements and maintenance to the statewide transmission system is allocated to utilities according to their electric loads, then to consumers through a per-kilowatt-hour fee. This ensures that utilities and consumers pay only their share of transmission costs.

American Electric Power is a multinational energy company based in Columbus, Ohio. AEP owns more than 38,000 megawatts of generating capacity, making it one of America's largest generators of electricity. The company is also a leading wholesale energy market and trader, ranking second in the U.S. in electricity volume. AEP provides retail electricity to more than 7 million customers worldwide and has more than $45 billion in assets, primarily in the U.S. with holdings in select international markets. Wholly owned subsidiaries are involved in power engineering and construction services, energy management and telecommunications.

The LCRA is a nonprofit, self-funded conservation and reclamation district dedicated to providing public services to the people of Texas. The LCRA generates, sells and transmits wholesale electricity to cooperatives and city-owned utilities that serve more than 1 million people. The LCRA also sells water; develops and operates water and wastewater utilities; manages the lower Colorado River; protects the river's water quality; owns and operates parks; promotes soil, water and energy conservation; and offers economic and community development assistance to rural communities in its service area.

"While wiring, hardware and software are necessary components in providing access, we cannot overlook the important role teachers play," Perry said. "Training our teachers and providing professional support will allow them to prepare our young people to succeed in a technology-based economy. I commend TIF, the technology companies and the universities for the innovation and commitment to the future of Texas. I am especially pleased to be able to bring these services to the border area."

The Intel Teach to the Future program is a worldwide initiative addressing the barriers teachers face in effectively applying computer technology to improve student learning. Intel Teach to the Future is presented with support from Microsoft Corporation.

Texas Secretary of State, Henry Cuellar, announced the multi-million dollar investment at a press conference at the Region I Education Service Center in Edinburg, Texas. This site was chosen to recognize the expansion efforts of the program, and in particular, the recruitment efforts of the Regional Education Service Centers.

"We all know that technology is the road to the future, and there is nothing better than educating our young children on which road to follow," said Secretary Cuellar. "The 20,000 teachers who will benefit from this program will make a difference in the lives of hundreds of thousands of school children."

"Region I Education Service Center, and its districts, have been very aggressive in integrating technology in the classroom in order to maximize its benefits in the teaching and learning process; therefore, we are very pleased to be a part of this program," said Region I Education Service Center Executive Director, Dr. Sylvia R. Hatton.

"TIF has invested millions of dollars to provide connectivity and hardware to the Texas K-12 school system," said Sam Tessen, Executive Director of TIF. "And now, TIF can take its investment to the next level by providing professional development and technology training through Intel's proven curriculum of instruction through technology."

Since Intel launched the Intel Teach to the Future program in 2000, 14 Training Agencies have been established in the U.S., serving 16 states and Washington, D.C., and in 11 countries, including Canada, China, Costa Rica, France, Germany, India, Ireland, Japan, Malaysia, Philippines, and the United Kingdom. The goal is to train 400,000 teachers worldwide by 2002.

"The two Texas RTAs, the University of North Texas and Texas A&M University, had original goals to train 20,000 teachers in Texas to reach the worldwide goal," said Tessen. "Now, because of TIF funding, the number of Texas teachers that will be trained has doubled to 40,000."

"The University of North Texas is very committed to this program and curriculum," said Dr. James Poirot, UNT professor of Technology and Cognition and executive director of the Texas Center for Educational Technology (TCET). "This program allows teachers to learn how, when and where to incorporate technology tools and resources into their current lesson plans, create assessment tools."

"We have already seen evidence that this program works. More than 95 percent of the participants at each of the training sites reported that they had learned new skills that would directly benefit their students," said Dr. Deborah Jolly, research scientist Office of the Dean, Texas A&M University. "Teachers who participated in the first year of training were surveyed nine months later and 84 percent reported that using computers improved their instruction, and 80 percent found it enhance student learning."

Over three-year project, Intel will invest $100 million worldwide ($4.5 million in Texas) in cash, equipment, curriculum development and program management. Microsoft will contribute $334 million in software (estimated retail value) and program support to the cause, which is the single largest software donation in the company's history. Each Master Teacher participating in the program will receive a free copy of Microsoft® Office® 2000 Professional, as well as Microsoft® Encarta® Encyclopedia 2000, so they can immediately put into practice what they have learned.

"This event marks the first public/private collaboration for the Intel Teach to the Future program," said Cynthia Reed, regional program manager, Intel Corp. "We hope this illustrates a model for providing technology training to teachers in other states."

My Mother has been diagnosed as having curvature of the spine. Her chiropractor said the condition was aggravated by carrying a purse on one shoulder most of her life. Is this really possible?

When a person carries a weight on one side of the body for a prolonged period of time the risk of an abnormal curvature which can lead to pain and limited motion. Abnormal curvature of the spine can also be caused by bad posture, a congenital problem or factors. Chiropractors are specifically educated to evaluate this type of spinal condition and administer appropriate treatment to address the problem.

Goat Producers To Gather July 24-26 In Kerrville

Writer: Jorge A. Ramirez (210) 208-9311 jarmirez@tamu.edu
 SAN ANTONIO --A Gathering of Goat Producers is scheduled July 24-26 in Kerrville with the YO Ranch Resort Hotel serving as headquarters. Live animal activities and a trade show will be at the Hill Country Youth Exhibition Center.

Nearly 500 producers, exhibitors and county agents from a number of states are expected to attend the event, which is organized by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Rick Machen, extension livestock specialist and event coordinator, said the first gathering in 1999 was a huge success, with more than 400 producers from 13 states and two foreign countries represented.

"Once again, we've scheduled many of the industry leaders from Texas and other parts of the country to serve as speakers and conduct hands-on demonstrations," Machen said.

A new feature for this year's program is an optional first-day tour to two goat ranches in the Texas Hill Country. The tour will conclude with a trip through the Natural Bridge Caverns, Texas' largest cavern and one of the premier show caves in the world.

One of the most comprehensive programs offered to the meat goat industry, the Kerrville gathering provides a practical forum for animal health and care, a review of the current state of the industry, marketing issues and opportunities to observe model working operations.

Opening day activities include registration and an industry trade show, followed by concurrent sessions on basic management procedures.

At 4 p.m., participants will be able to sample grilled kid, a staple in Northern Mexico and South Texas cuisine, as part of the conference's activities at the Cabrito Cuisine cook camps.

The evening program will include live animal evaluation by judges and breeders. In addition, a group of young goats will be evaluated on the hoof, and their carcasses will then be the focus of the final morning's program. The evening concludes with three of Texas' champion junior showmen sharing some of their secrets to success.

The second day's sessions begin with an update on the meat goat industry, followed by health management breakout sessions and sessions on non-lethal predator management and basic nutrition. The afternoon sessions include reproductive management, pasture management and a virtual reality tour of cost-effective facilities for small operations.

The program continues at the Youth Exhibition Center with demonstrations on predator control and fence construction. Participants can also try their hand at meat goat judging and compete for prizes by evaluating three classes of meat goats. The evening program concludes with a barbecue, featuring cabrito cooked in an open pit over mesquite coals.

Final day activities begin at 8 a.m. at the YO Hotel with "BEEF - Why IT IS for Dinner," a presentation by Texas Beef Council President Richard Wortham. According to Machen, "Richard tells the story of a well-orchestrated plan that involves defining customers, understanding their demands and developing products to meet their needs. The beef industry serves as a model we can certainly learn from."

Another final morning highlight will be a presentation explaining how product moves through the meat purveyor's system in New York City. The Gathering concludes with a look at the carcasses from the animals evaluated live on Tuesday evening. Additionally, U.S. Department of Agriculture personnel will demonstrate the fabrication of goat carcasses according to recently approved International Meat Processors standards.

A Sound Energy Policy

WASHINGTON, D.C. - U.S. Representative Henry Bonilla (R-TX)

It seems everyone has been talking lately about the energy problems that our nation is facing. Every time we head for the gas station or listen to the evening news we're faced with one very certain reality: we have a problem and we need to get to work on a solution.

Our nation's energy problem has been with us for quite some time. It's an issue that has been neglected over the last eight years, but thankfully it has been made a top priority by the new administration. President Bush recently unveiled his new energy plan for the United States. His proposal is a common sense balance of increased energy production and attention to environmental matters. It is a clear and comprehensive plan, but most importantly it is achievable.

The president's proposal is based on several elements that will provide a long-term answer to today's energy crisis. But most importantly, it focuses on our nation's dependence on foreign oil. The fact is: America has become way too dependent upon a handful of foreign countries for our energy needs. Sixty percent of our oil comes from other countries. This is simply bad policy. By relying on countries that see us as a needy customer, we leave our national security vulnerable to the whims of foreign nations. Take Iraq, Iran and Libya for an example. Should these nations cut production, we would risk serious cutbacks in our energy supply. This would result in even higher prices at the pump, more blackouts and other serious energy problems.

The answer to our energy crisis is lessening our dependence on foreign oil. President Bush outlined a plan that will increase U.S. production, make it more profitable to drill and produce oil in America and thus lessen our dependence on other countries.

In order to make this plan a reality, we must consider new sources of energy that can be produced on our own soil. The first of many steps is drilling for oil in Alaska. This is a sure-fire way to garner new energy. Of the nineteen million acres in the Alaska National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR), only around 2,000 acres would be affected. That is an area roughly the size of a small airport. What the president is proposing is opening only a small fraction of the ANWR for environmentally sensitive oil and gas exploration. The expected output of oil would equal 30 years of oil imports from Saudi Arabia and almost 60 years of Iraqi oil imports.

New pipelines are also needed in order to carry natural gas. We need an estimated 38,000 miles of new pipelines to move enough fuel to supply our energy needs. And we must repair and upgrade entire transmission grids, as well as add new ones, in order to meet the energy demand we face.

Finally, Vice President Cheney said last week that in order to lessen our dependence on foreign oil, we would need to build almost two-thousand new power plants. Building two-thousand energy plants may be a lofty goal, but it gets the point across. We need to look for new solutions to our problems. Exploring new areas for energy and promoting clean-coal technology are ways to increase the supply of energy in our country.

As we prepare for the summer season with air conditioning and more vacation driving, we need to pay serious attention to our energy policy and make some substantial changes. I think that President Bush's proposal is a step in the right direction.

Solving our energy problems will be a long journey, but the future will be a lot brighter if we get started now. We have the ability to diminish America's dependence on foreign energy. It is time that we do the right thing—for our children and for the future of this great land of ours.

Planning for Future Water Needs

Taken from the Texas Department of Agriculture Web site. by Ramona Nye

An initial blueprint outlining how the state plans to provide for an 18 percent increase in water needs by all Texans — including municipalities, manufacturers, agriculture and other users during the next 50 years — is found in 16 draft regional water plans currently under review.

As an ex officio member of each of the 16 Regional Water Planning Groups, the Texas Department of Agriculture had input on each of the regional water plans submitted to the Texas Water Development Board. A comprehensive statewide plan will be completed Jan. 5, 2002.

TDA's input ensured that agriculture's future water needs were not overlooked, Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs said.

"All Texans must have an ample water supply, but satisfying this demand should not come at the expense of agriculture and the rural communities that rely on farm and ranch income," Combs said.

Several Regional Water Planning Groups, particularly those located in the High Plains and other large agricultural production regions, were very cognizant of agriculture's water needs and addressed these uses in their future plans, Combs said.

For other regional water plans, TDA's recommendations to local groups focused primarily on three areas:

- * continuing to help agriculture and urban users conserve water;
- * developing and funding more water-enhancement strategies such as brush control, drought-tolerant plants, cloud-seeding and desalination; and
- * stressing that mitigation be provided for agricultural production where proposed reservoirs may cover substantial acreage.

TDA encouraged many regional water planning groups to include in their plans requests for more state-funded incentives for improved irrigation efficiency, brush control, conservation tillage and cloud-seeding projects. TDA also recommended that water planning groups statewide pursue irrigation management strategies, such as one implemented by the North Plains Underground Water Conservation District in eight Panhandle counties. The North Plains Potential Evapotranspiration Network is part of the district's plan to meet future water needs of the Northern High Plains.

Currently the network implements conservation tillage methods and cloud-seeding projects, but with continued research and education, the district will work with area producers making recommendations on crop types and varieties, irrigation-use schedules and efficient irrigation methods.

For those Regional Water Planning Groups that recommended building seven major and 10 minor new reservoirs to meet future water needs, TDA also strongly urged that mitigation be provided to affected producers.

"Removing agricultural land to develop reservoirs can severely affect the economic base of rural communities," Combs said. "I urge that any reservoir construction plan take into consideration the interest of agricultural producers if farm and ranchland is taken."

The draft water plans for the 16 Regional Water Planning Groups can be found at the Texas Water Development Board's website at: <http://www.twdb.state.tx.us/> under "Regional Water Planning Groups' Adopted Plans."
