CODE OF VALOR LINKS BRAVE FIGHTING MEN

Armies change from age to age and the generals are all different, but the men who get in there and do the fighting are pretty much the same, now and always.

Like the cavalymen in Tennyson's poem, their job is comparatively simple—to do and/or die; and down through the centuries they have had an implicit and whole-hearted admiration for fellow members of their craft who display especial skill at the grim business.

So that little story about the Chinese "suicide squadron" at Shanghai, and the hit it made with the European soldiers who stood on the sidelines, is a revealing bit of history.

This suicide squadron consisted of a hundred or so Chinese soldiers who had taken cover in a ruinous warehouse along Soochow Creek to dispute the advance of the Japanese. They got in there and stayed for more than two days, subjected to heavy fire throughout, going woefully short on sleep and food, and facing nothing but certain death if they didn't retreat—which they grimly refused to do.

Across the creek, in the international defense sector, was a detachment of British regulars—Royal Welsh Fusiliers. And the stout fighting qualities shown by these Chinese soldiers somehow got under the hides of these Britishers. So after a while, when the Japanese attempted to coup to drive out the Chinese, the British Tommies came to the rescue—unofficially, unneutrally, but effectively.

The Japanese came up the stream in two naval launches mounting light guns. The banks of the river were lined with the innumerable little boats called sampans, which are part of every Chinese waterfront. And what did the Royal Welsh Fusiliers do but show the Chinese how to mass these sampans together across the stream, tying them together with cables, so as to block the path of the launches? That done, they led them to construct a similar barricade farther down the stream, so that the Japanese launches were neatly trapped.

Nor is that all. The brass hats felt the same sort of soldierly admiration for the dauntless Chinese. A British brigadier general and an American brigadier general joined in sending a telegram to Chiang Kai-Shek himself, begging him to order the heroic soldiers to withdraw and save their lives. It was none of their business, of course; apparently the whole business just naturally got to them.

For that is the way it is, with soldiers. Fighting men are a class apart. They live by their own rules and are bound by their own code. They may not often inquire what the fighting is all about, and they frequently grow infinitely weary of the fighting itself—but they never fail to give their admiration wholeheartedly to men of their own calling who show unmistakably that they have what it takes.

ROOM AT THE TOP

Jobs may be short these days, in the professions as well as the trades, but there is still an unfilled need for men and women of outstanding ability and training. So says William R. White, New York state superintendent of banks, in an address before Bucknell College students.

This, of course, is simply another way of phrasing the old saying that "there's always room at the top"; and the old saying is just as true now as it always was. The really superior person can always make a place for himself.

But only a few of us, unfortunately, are really superior persons. It is the opening for the average person that we're interested in; and unless there is some assurance that an ordinary intelligent and skillful youth can have an ordinarily good chance of finding a job for himself when he starts out, young collegians—and other youngsters as well—may eye the future with misgiving.

CLOSER TOGETHER

Sir Samuel Hoare, British home secretary, remarks in a public speech that the United States and Britain are "coming closer together" in international relations.

"The paramount need of both of us is peace," said Sir Samuel. "The firmer we cling to our objective, the more closely will our common purpose bring us together."

This is all to the good, and the most ardent isolationist can hardly object to greater intimacy along those lines. The only trouble is that a common desire for peace can be used to cloak a drive for an entirely different sort of objective. Any program that is sincerely aimed at peace, Americans will support; but they are likely to shy away from it if it bears the faintest appearance of being a move to get another nation's chestnuts out of the fire.

The American Red Cross was called upon to give assistance to victims following 123 disasters this past year. Millions of persons were helped by this great agency. Your Red Cross membership dollar makes this work possible. Civic interest should inspire you to join the Red Cross between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving.

During its fiscal year which has just closed Red Cross Public Health nurses made more than 1,000,000 visits to the sick. At the same time Red Cross instructors have given courses in home hygiene and the care of the sick to 54,830 mothers and young girls, men and boys, inspiring them toward better living conditions. This work is supported by your membership dollar. Join the Red Cross during the annual Roll Call, November 11 to 25.

Working for the elimination of permanent injuries and deaths from accidents, the Red Cross last year trained 256,884 persons in the administration of first aid, as well as 81,291 persons in life saving. Demonstrate your interest in such work by becoming a member of the Red Cross during the annual Roll Call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving.

Eight million American schoolboys and girls, members of the Junior Red Cross, are working for better health and living conditions, and for better world understanding. Your membership in the Red Cross helps support such work. Join during the annual Roll Call, Armistice Day through Thanksgiving Day.

Be it said for Miss Flood, she didn't throw off any because the crowd was small. She just kept coming back and playing encores when the small but appreciative audience cheered and cheered the violinist.

I had forgotten all about being humiliated about the Midland lawyer who told me Baylor would meet her downfall when her football team met Texas U. This morning I got a clipping of my own statement of about a week ago in which I said: "All I have to say in rebuttal is that they play next Saturday, so he will soon find out." On the clipping was a red circle around this statement, with the note: "Now what do you say Quack?" Answer: "This fellow Casey up at Finley & Cherry's is much too dead a forecaster. I would hate to bet against his judgment."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9. — Exchange of fire between the Maritime Commission and the National Maritime Union, featured by Chairman Joe Kennedy's "put 'em in irons" cable to the Algiers captain at Montevideo and union President Joe Curran's promise to "get Kennedy's scalp," is going to get hotter.

The two chief factors begging solution are a strong anti-union feeling among most members of the commission and its staff and a serious series of breaches of discipline, especially among stewards, in the American merchant marine.

LABOR leaders don't know it yet, but they'll be hollering blue murder when the commission's report on the whole merchant marine situation is sent to Congress this month. The commission has decided that the Coast Guard should be used to train seamen, that new seamen should learn discipline on Coast Guard vessels and that subsidy contracts should require ship operators to hire the graduates.

This hits the seamen's unions right between the eyes. It would strike at their union hiring halls, where men are provided for outgoing ships and tend to weaken if not destroy the unions.

The scheme is sure to be denounced as a "union-busting" device and reports from inside the commission indicate that some members and high officials believe, with either enthusiasm or disapproval, that it is exactly that. The dominant feeling in the commission is that labor unions, at least militant unions, have no place in the merchant marine.

ALTHOUGH propaganda about bad discipline at sea has been coming out of the commission lately in advance of its report, everyone concerned—sympathetic to unions or not—agrees that a bad situation has existed and that something must be done to reduce the large volume of passenger complaints. If union leaders fail to enforce better discipline among crews, they need expect no great sympathy in official Washington. The Pilot, official N. M. U. organ, has had several editorials demanding better discipline and in at least one instance the union has promised to approve discharge of a steward guilty of bad behavior.

Meanwhile publicity is being given to alleged instances of the seamen who demanded hearts of lettuce instead of lettuce leaves, a crew which insisted on unload a ship on the shady rather than the sunny side of wharf, a drunken steward who fell into a swimming pool among guests, a steward who said to a female passenger: "Get up baby, it's time for breakfast," and so on. The merits of the Algic case, with facts bitterly disputed, will be ruled on by a federal court faced by 14 crew members who temporarily stopped work at Montevideo. May Deal With Unions.

IN the background is the fact

It Was Practically Cataclysmic

It took 300 cats and the Ritz brothers (not to mention pounds of feline felicitating liver) to make the above movie scene called "Pussy Pussy," and it took Hollywood days to recover from a situation that wasn't petty. Prop men offered 50 cents each for cats. Small boys got busy. Complaints poured in. The chief of police retrieved his Persian from the studio and called an hour later to report that it already had been "swiped" again.

Professors Dodge Letter Writing By Short Wave Radio

AUSTIN, Texas. Daily communication by short wave radio is maintained between Dr. F. Burton Jones, instructor in pure mathematics at the University of Texas, and his brother, Wayne Jones, graduate fellow at Harvard University. A hobby, amateur radio broadcasting has been developed by the two brothers into a means of daily chats which take the place of onerous letter-writing, according to Dr. Jones.

Since they were mere children the two brothers have tinkered with radio-building. One, Wayne, went into the study of physics, when he came to the University, while Burton entered the professional career of mathematician. A few years ago, the two began experimenting with amateur radio, and finally built a short-wave transmitting set, with a commercial receiver. When Wayne received a non-teaching fellowship to study at Harvard, and it became apparent that they would be separated, they decided to build a second set and to communicate with each other via the air waves. Together they went to Dallas and took the Federal examination for amateur radio license.

Within two days after Wayne reached Boston, he had his set installed, with the permission and aid of Harvard officials, in one of the university buildings, and the two brothers talked to each other. Since then, with the exception of University. These two contacts are the only ones he makes regularly, but he frequently establishes contact with other amateur radio operators. There are some thirty thousand radio amateurs in the United States, he added. While many of these are professionally connected with the radio industry in some way, there is a large number who, like himself, have developed a hobby to a high degree of proficiency. Among them are doctors, dentists, members of the coast guard, business men of all kinds, and representatives of innumerable other occupations.

There is little to differentiate the two sets these "Texas-exes" have built from other amateur sets, Dr. Jones said. The one his brother has in Boston is perhaps the more unusual, since he is able to transmit in any frequency in the amateur band. So interested in the experiment were Harvard officials that they not only gave him permission to install the set in one of the university buildings, four stories high, but assigned a university "roof-man" to aid him in setting up his aerials.

Both of the Joneses are graduates of the university, Burton having obtained the bachelor of arts degree in 1932 and the doctor of philosophy in 1935, while Wayne received the bachelor of arts in 1935 and the master of arts in 1936.

The two brothers expect to continue their daily communication by radio until Wayne returns to Texas in June.

that seamen whose wages were forced down as low as $25 or $30 a month and who crowded into filthy, vermin-infested quarters with bad food until many of the better ones left the sea, are now feeling their oats and releasing pent-up emotions.

But the commission is feeling its oats, too, and has hired men for key jobs who privately admit anti-union prejudice. Finally some Washington reports—not publicized from commission sources—indicate that some American passengers are more provocative in dealing with stewards than passengers on European lines.

The question will be asked, fairly or not, why the Maritime Commission couldn't try to work with the unions, since interests of sailors are vitally bound up with good operation of American ships. There is no record that it ever has taken up any complaint with any of the unions.

Stone Age Implements Unearthed in Ireland

LONDONBERRY, (U.P.)—Important archaeological discoveries, giving insight into the lives of Ireland's inhabitants between 3,000 and 4,000 years ago, have been made by students from Queens University, Belfast, in excavations at Ballybriest, County Derry.

They completed the unearthing of a 100-foot Megalithic burial cairn, revealing two large burial chambers. In these were found more than 100 late Stone Age pieces of pottery and flint implements like scrapers and knives.

One chamber was intact but the standing stones forming the side of the other had been removed long ago and the walls had caved in.

Rust can be removed from steel by mixing half an ounce of emery powder with one ounce of soap and rubbing the rusted part well.

Man's Best Friend Called His Worst Enemy Also

ALBANY, N. Y. (U.P.)—A dog may be a man's best friend, but he is also his worst enemy, as far as animals go.

So says Deputy State Conservation Commissioner J. T. Gibbs, who asserts that dogs are responsible for more injuries to human beings than all other animals put together.

Border Football in Majestic Setting

While it doesn't attract much attention nationally, the Border Conference, comprising schools of West Texas, Arizona, and New Mexico, has its share of Sammy Baugh and Darrell Lester. The barren slopes of Mount Franklin, near El Paso, rise in the background as the Texas College of Mines of El Paso shakes Kenneth Heimeman loose against Colorado State Teachers of Greeley, Col., whom the Miners defeated, 20-0.

SIDELINE SAFETY MAN

Jack Lyon, keeping his eye peeled for The Citadel players, who hadn't the remotest chance to stop him from scoring, was romping confidently toward a touchdown when a spectator, seen crouching on the sideline of the Columbia field, ran out, tackled clearly and hard, and dropped him in his tracks to the utter amazement of the South Carolina captain, officials, and stands. Police hauled the irresponsible filbert from the field. Play was ruled a South Carolina touchdown. The Gamecocks won, 21-6.

Marshals, Outlaws Vote Sheriff Smith of Oklahoma All-American End

By HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service.
Sheriff Pete Smith, a flame-throwin' man-stopper from way down in the redlands of Oklahoma, is in line this fall for a big wad of All-American reward money.
Because Smith, an Oklahoma senior end standing 6 feet 2 and weighing 190 pounds, always gets his man. If necessary, he gets three or four blockers and his man.
Ask Morris White, Tulsa's great little desperado whom none of the rough police officers of Texas Christian, Rice, or Arkansas has been able to subdue for two seasons. Sheriff Pete and his efficient 195-pound deputy, Waddy Young, the Sooners' other end, put White behind the bars. Although White, who is as slippery as calf slobbers, tried all his dodges, he gained only 28 yards while losing 34. Twice when he tried to sweep the Sheriff's end, Smith expertly rode the crest of Tulsa blockers, pushed three noses into the dirt, and survived to put the handcuffs on Morris two chalk stripes behind the line of scrimmage.

Smith also tore through to block the try for the point after the first Tulsa touchdown. He ripped through to cover a Tulsa fumble that set up an Oklahoma touchdown two plays later.

Sheriff Smith isn't just a defensive wingman. In Oklahoma's 6-0 triumph over Rice, he leaped high in the end zone to catch the touchdown pass from Jack Baer.
With Rice on Oklahoma's seven late in the final period, Coach Tom Stidham sent Sheriff Smith, who had been storing up fuel on the bench, back in to quell the riot. On the first play, Pete swooped down on Tom Vicker's like 40 hen hawks on a settin' quail, dropping him for a nine-yard deficit. That's real sheriffing.
Sheriff Pete's third warrant called for the arrest of several slick ball-toting hoppers from the University of Texas. As usual, the sheriff was in a sod-pawin' mood.

He not only captured and broke up the entire gang, but also fielded the longest Oklahoma forward pass of the day and ran 34 yards before the last man between him and the goal drove him out of bounds.
Sheriff Smith's finest work was against the Cornhuskers on the same Nebraska field where two weeks earlier Maj. Biff Jones' men had beaten Minnesota. Oklahoma tied the surprised Huskers in the mud, 0-0. Moreover, the play-by-play showed that Oklahoma had the ball in Nebraska territory exactly 13 times while the Huskers never got inside the Oklahoma 40. How many football teams can say that they kept a Nebraska team outside of its 40 all afternoon?

After a skirmish, Johnny Howell, Nebraska's senior quarterback and a pretty tough bandit himself, said: "Smith is the toughest end I ever tried to crack, tougher than any Minnesota or Pitt end." And Howell has played against the Golden Gophers three autumns and opposed the Panthers twice. He takes into consideration that one of Pitt's finest players is an end, Bill Daddio.
Little wonder that out in the southwest, Sheriff Pete Smith is the choice of both the marshals and outlaws for All-American end. In every start this year he's been as hot as a burnt boot.

of the countries in which it has made surveys and studies of the route and several of the countries have already improved their sections of the 16,000 mile highway.
Where more than 30 similar expeditions have attempted the same undertaking and failed, the present expedition sees the end of the nine-year trip already in sight. Beside Commander de Oliveira, its members are Francisco Lopez de la Cruz, of Rio de Janeiro, observer; Mario Favali mechanic and technician; and S. W. White, of Dallas, Texas, interpreter and editor and publisher of the Pan-American Ambassador, of Monterey, Mexico.
The expedition travels in Model T Fords, in which they traversed almost impassable stretches of country in Central and South America. For weeks at a time, they lived on parched corn, roots, and had no drinking water except what they obtained from stalks of the bejuco tree.
When gasoline was not available they ran the cars on kerosene mixed with hog-lard. At times they had to hew tunnels through dense vegetation just large enough for the cars to get through but so thick overhead that sunshine could not penetrate it.
Upon their arrival in New York, they expect to return to South America by boat to continue their efforts to complete the huge project.

The PAYOFF

By JESS RODGERS.
Game Warden Tom Grammar comes through with the following duck hunting regulations of the federal government in Texas:
Duck season opens November 27 and closes December 26.
Stamp: All persons over sixteen years of age must have on their person an unexpired federal migratory waterfowl hunting stamp (commonly known as the Duck Stamp) when hunting ducks and geese, regardless of whether or not they are hunting on their own land.
Guns: All pump, repeating or automatic shotguns must be plugged so as to hold only three (3) shells at a loading; that is, two in the magazine and one in the barrel. All rifles, including .22 rifles, are prohibited.
Boats and Autos: The federal regulations do not permit the use of a motor boat, sail boat or any craft or device of any kind towed by a power boat or sail boat. It is a violation to shoot doves or any migratory game birds from an automobile. A hunter may use a row boat as a blind for taking migratory waterfowl as long as there is no motor attached to the boat.
Decoys: No live decoys may be used, directly or indirectly. Example: Tame decoys on a lake must be removed from lake and placed where their calling or any noise that they may make could not be directly or indirectly the cause of attracting wild ducks or geese to lake, river, slough or any shooting stand where wild ducks are to be shot.

Baiting: It is strictly against the federal regulations to place, scatter, or cause to be placed or scattered, any grain or substance to attract ducks or geese to a shooting lake, slough, river, or any shooting stand for the purpose of shooting waterfowl that are attracted.
Protected Ducks: Bufflehead, canvasback, redhead, wood ducks, ruddy, or butter ball may not be killed at any time.
Bag Limit: Ducks, 10 in one day. Any person may not possess more than 10 at any time.
Geese or Brant, 5 in aggregate of both species in one day. No one may possess more than 5 at any time.
Jacksnipe or Wilson snipe: 15 in one day. No one may possess more than 15 at any one time.
Ducks killed during season may be kept for but 10 days after the season closes; only one day's bag, 10 ducks and 5 geese.
Time: Ducks and geese may be legally taken from 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. (Standard Time commonly used in district where birds are being shot), November 27 to December 26, 1937, inclusive.
If you can figure out how to abide by them all and still kill a duck you will need some of the powers of Einstein and telescopic eyes. Just now you will be able to tell the breed, sex and age of a duck while it is left on the fly is for you to be figured out.
But—regardless of all else—be sure to get the permission of the property owner on whose place you hunt. Failure to do so provides for a fine just as same as any other violation. And $16.20 is a bit too much to pay for one or even ten ducks.
This is good weather for ducks and Bud Taylor would probably like for it to continue through Thursday. Rain is the only sure thing that has ever been found that would completely halt a good football passer—and that is what Stanton was.
Should the bad weather hold out the Bulldogs are certain to go into the game with Stanton as the favorite. But bright, sunshiny weather is liable to swing the betting odds the other way because of the ability of Eidson, Stanton quarterback.
Eidson is the best passer in the district—not barring Webster of Odessa, and his bullet shots are going to give the Bulldogs a lot of trouble if the field is dry Thursday afternoon. With rain having messed up the practice session yesterday, coaches Taylor and Myer are sure to put in a lot of time today and tomorrow drilling against an aerial attack.
Stanton also has a ground attack that is not the sorriest in the world. In Hay, center, Henderson has a youngster who is very good at snapping the ball back and then plowing straight through, thereby opening up a hole for Priddy. Most of Priddy's line plunging is done after he completes a spin directly behind the line. And to keep the opposition from being too positive as to who has the ball he often hands it off to Pinkston or Hull.
The Crane club will be first to admit that the Stanton forward wall is just about as tough as they come but their pass defense is not too good. But that is little consolation to a club that is practically without a passing attack. Very little ground has been gained by the Bulldogs through the air this year—and that is one reason they are as far down in the standings as they are. If they had possessed an aerial threat that would loosen up oppos-

Brazilian Party Sees Tire Plant While Visiting U. S.

Blazing a trail across two continents, which may break down, within half a dozen years, many present physical barriers between the two Americas, the Brazilian Highway Expedition visited several of Akron's leading industrial plants while en route to Washington and New York, northern terminus of the proposed inter-continental highway.
Members of the expedition called on President W. O'Neil, of the General Tire and Rubber Company, and discussed with him the progress of the project which will pass through 15 countries and will cost between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.
"My modern!" was the admiring comment of Commander Leonidas Borges de Oliveira, leader of the expedition after he and his companions had completed a trip of inspection through the General Tire factory and had watched tires being built.
It was nine years ago that the expedition set out from Rio de Janeiro and the only contact the members have had with their home country since 1928 was a telephone conversation from Chicago, three months ago, with the editor of a daily newspaper in Rio.

In their travels through 15 countries, they have been received by 14 Presidents and expect to have an audience with President Roosevelt at Washington. They have prepared 34 maps and charts of the proposed route of the Pan-American Highway and, at Washington, expect to offer a complete set of their maps and other information to the Pan-American Union.
About 10,000 miles of the 16,132 miles on the proposed highway are now open to motor traffic and, from assurances of co-operation by the various countries traversed, it is expected that the route will be opened south to Honduras within two years and that the entire project will be completed in six years.
The Pan-American Highway would enter the United States at Laredo, and extend from there to Austin, Dallas, Little Rock, Memphis, St. Louis, Springfield, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Akron, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia and New York, enabling South American visitors to this country to traverse the most important industrial and commercial centers.
The expedition has received both moral and financial support from all

League Formed to War On Round Fish Bowls

WELLESLEY, Mass. (U.P.) — An Association for the Abolition of Round Fish Bowls is being formed by tropical fish expert Reginald V. Yeomans.
As result of several years observation, Yeomans discovered that swimming in round bowls makes fish "dizzy mentally and lopsided physically" — because they habitually swim in the same direction.
The fish are unbalanced "due to centrifugal force driving the blood to their outer side," and when transferred to a square tank they swim unsteadily for days, showing the impairment of their senses.
"And," he says, "the fish will appreciate the change — there's no one as appreciative as fish."

The meat of the Byrd South Polar expedition had to be thawed out for two days before it could be cooked. So solidly was it frozen that it would splinter if dropped.

The piano was not a concert instrument until 1825. At that time an inventor perfected the iron piano plate, permitting long-
