Where Is George?

On October 27, efforts will be started to launch a new Chamber of Commerce in Bovina. A chamber would benefit everyone who lives in or has interests in this city. With this in mind, perhaps farmers and businessmen alike will attend the organizational meeting and then lend their continuing support to the organization.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

A real banner year is in prospect for the nation's deer hunters who plan to hunt for America's No. 1 big-game animal. With but few exceptions, state after state reports good-to-excellent prospects for the fall deer seasons, which are becoming more liberal as to length and take of deer.

herds according to expert biological observations. Although more sportsmen are accepting the experienced studies of deer herd managers, there are still many areas where buck-only laws, antiquated regulation by legislative (instead of game department) recommendations, plague the efforts of big-game authorities to keep herds in balance with food and cover. Too many deer are still starving in crowded ranges. Some estimates state that as many as 42 percent of the annual deer kill is lost in the bitter winter struggle.

Our service covers many things, too. Drive in for gasoline, oil, expert lubrication, car washing--for free air or water. Give us a trial -- soon.

SECOND WIN--

Mustangs Upset Visitors 26-20

The Bovina Mustangs walked a tightrope of determination to a 26-20 win over Fort Sumner in a thriller here Friday night. The Ponies scored twice early in the first period, but the Foxes came back for a touchdown in the second and another in the third to take a 14-12 lead.

The all-important extra-point attempt was no good. The final and winning touchdown drive by the Ponies saw sparkling runs by Hance, Fraizer, Caldwell, and Riddle, with the latter getting the score on a 23 yard end sweep run. The clock caught the visitors threatening on the Bovina 10 yard line.

stiffened and threw the passer for a loss and batted down another attempt just as the final buzzer sounded. Defensive standouts were Don Cumpton, Delbert Hall, Rocky Hance, Gary Stevenson, Mac Glasscock, and Caldwell. Fraizer carried the bulk of Bovina's offensive punch, running 19 times for 118 yards and a 6.2 average.

Which Democratic Platform? Which do you prefer: the socialistic, anti-Texas platform of Kennedy -- or the Nixon Platform that more nearly conforms with Texas principles and ideals as expressed in the State Democratic platform? The Kennedy platform is against nearly everything Texans are for--it is for nearly everything Texans are against. What will be your choice? It is between a party label and the best interest of Texas and the Nation. Allan Shivers says: 'I'LL TAKE TEXAS. I accept the Texas Democratic platform and will work for it. I repudiate the other--the Kennedy platform. I will join with my fellow Democrats to work and vote for men of maturity, experience, responsibility, and a fearless dedication to this country's best interests. 'I will vote for Richard M. In the past few years there has been a lot of talk about conformity. Was reading an article in connection with this recently and it pointed out that to be a non conformist was the thing to do which in reality is conforming. The article also gave some interesting viewpoints on the end results of being a sheep. In small towns and suburbs of large cities, keeping up with the Joneses is the thing that may strive for instead of keeping within this own income bracket. Having a new car or new carpet has become more important than individual values. The article also showed how this attitude affects our children and their basic values and mental health. If they are growing up in this type of environment they are apt to lack the ability to meet challenges decisions will place on them in their later years. Everything is so cut and dried when you are busy doing what everyone else is doing that there is no effort or time consumed for real thinking as to what you really want or need. What with Christmas just around the corner both the Baptist and Methodist choirs are starting to work on the music for their Christmas Cantatas. These music programs are looked forward to with much respect since it takes many hours of hard work to put together a musical such as this. It is especially hard to get the co-operation of all of the volunteer members since there are so many other activities this time of the year.

Nov. 4 Honors Exes

The last football game of the season, with Vega on November 4, will be Homecoming for Bovina High School. The Longhorns from Vega are a member of Bovina's district (2-B) and the game will doubtlessly have a bearing on standings in the district. A homecoming parade is being planned with cash prizes for best floats. Also the traditional crowning of the Homecoming Queen will be conducted at half-time of the football game. Student council members are also planning a reception for ex-students following the game.

VOTE FOR TEXAS

RICHARD M. NIXON, candidate for President, is a Californian, but he thinks the Texas way. Richard Nixon stands for:

- A strong national economy and defense so that America will not have to apologize to Khrushchev for anything;
- A sensible farm program that will attack and solve the present problems.
- Texas retaining its tidelands, and a tax policy favorable to Texas.
- Local control of our schools.

If you will read and compare Nixon's platform to that of his opponent, you will agree that a vote for Nixon is a vote for the best interests of Texas.

County And State Taxes Now Payable

State and county taxes are now payable, announces Lee Thompson, tax assessor and collector. Persons making payments during the month of October will receive a 3 percent discount.

"Already payments are coming in pretty good for this time of year," Thompson says. They are coming in a little better than was expected since normally few collections are made until after harvest.

The taxes aren't actually due until January 31, but discounts are allowed for payments during the months of October, November and December. The discount is 2 percent for November payments and 1 percent for December.

Total valuation of property for tax collection purposes in the county this year is $13,202,444.68. The tax rate is $1.72 per $100 valuation. Of this total, $1.30 is for county taxes and 42 cents goes into state funds.

A breakdown of where the county taxes will be spent this year is as follows:

General fund, .57; jury fund, .03; road and bridge fund, .20; road and bridge special fund, .30; courthouse repair fund, .05; right of way fund, .10; and High Plains water fund, .05.

Also payable now are poll taxes for next year, Thompson

Teachers Attend Meeting

Teachers from Parmer County's four school systems met in Farwell last night (Tuesday) to hear a field representative of the Texas State Teachers Assn.

A. H. Hooser discussed the TSTA's legislative program for the 1961 legislative session.

Teachers attending the county meeting came from Bovina, Friona, Farwell, and Lazbuddie.

Payments may be made at the tax assessor's office in Farwell or Ethridge-Spring Agency in Friona.

Carelessness Held the Cause of Three Out of Four Fires

If fire strikes your home in the year ahead the chances are three to one that it will be the result of carelessness or forgetfulness, the National Board of Fire Underwriters predicts.

"Nearly seven out of 10 fires last year occurred in homes," the National Board said, "and three out of every four were needless. Care could have avoided them."

"If past experience is any criterion, nearly one-fourth of all fires in the next 12 months will be caused by matches and smoking. Another one-fifth will be the result of misuse of electrical equipment.

"A little extra care can save lives and dollars," the National Board added.

Fire last year took 11,300 lives and caused property damage exceeding $1 billion, the National Board pointed out.

There were 419,556 building fires last year in cities of 2,500 population or more. Of these, 285,796 were residential fires. These figures are contained in the 1960 edition of the 36-page Property Insurance Fact Book just off the press. The Fact Book was prepared by the Insurance Information Institute in cooperation with the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

"It is particularly important to use care with fire both at home and in places of business because damage by fire at the moment is running ahead of a year ago," the Board added.

For the first seven months of 1960 fire losses totaled $656,969,000, an increase of 2.1 percent over the $643,200,000 for the first seven months of 1959.

The 1960 Fact Book is a compendium of information on fires, and facts about them. It is designed for use as a ready reference by research men, speakers, scholars, and writers on fire or fire prevention subjects.

The new edition also gives statistics on tropical storms, hurricanes, and tornadoes, including losses.

Single copies may be obtained by writing to the publications editor, Insurance Information Institute, 60 John Street, New York 38, N. Y.

Jesse Walling Finds New Approach To Grain Sorghum Usage

J. T. Hammonds, DeKalb seed dealer, left, and Jesse Walling, who farms south of Bovina, are shown in Walling's field of DeKalb F-63 which was bundled and shocked. It will be ground with additional roughage for cattle feed. The F-63 made more than 1100 bundles per acre and the amount of grain produced was estimated in excess of 10,000 lbs. While this is a new way for this DeKalb variety to be used, it will have excellent feed quality.

New Farm Road Slated In County

Plans for a new Farm-to-Market road in Parmer County were announced last week by the Texas Highway Department.

Scheduled as part of a federal aid secondary program for Texas is construction of a 4.7 mile road from the end of FM 2397, eight miles southeast of Friona, east to the Castro County Line.

The project, which is scheduled for sometime in 1961, will include grading, structures and surfacing in the amount of $85,000, according to O. L. Crain, district engineer of the Texas Highway Department at Lubbock.

The Parmer County Commissioners Court Monday approved the proposed project and the county will furnish the right-of-way.

It was announced that work will begin on this project as soon as final planning is completed and the right of way secured. Senior Resident Engineer Rhea E. Bradley will be in charge of the project.

Harvest Machines "Ain't What They Used To Be"

CUTTING A WIDE SWATH in a maize field is this late model combine, which represents one of the technological advancements in farm machinery. Complete with enclosed cab and power steering, today's modern self-propelled combines make grain sorghum harvesting much easier than it was a few short years ago.

Just about any way you look at it, technological advancements are changing almost entirely the mode of living today, both in the cities and on the farms.

And, naturally, in this modern space age, such things as intercontinental ballistic missiles, satellites, super-sonic jets, and atomic-powered submarines make the headlines in all the newspapers and magazines.

These technological developments pertaining to national defense and the conquest of space are of interest to every citizen, and they perhaps do represent the apex of achievement in a modern age which has brought about changes in every phase of human endeavor.

But, something probably equally as important, if not more so, are some of the advancements which have been taking place down on the farm, still the basic institution in any society or civilization.

Technology has been bringing about changes in farm machinery, too, and one of the most striking transformations has been in the machines used for harvesting grain.

The self-propelled combines, complete with enclosed, air-conditioned cabs and power steering, which many High Plains farmers will be using to harvest their maize this year, represent a complete revolution from the type machine used by the previous generation.

For that matter, they are a great deal different from the machinery used only a few years ago.

Panhandle Wheat Growers Advised On Streak Mosaic

The known presence of wheat streak mosaic virus in many Panhandle counties is causing concern among wheat growers. Harlan Smith, extension plant pathologist, reports that extensive surveys were made in the fall of 1959 and the spring of 1960 in northwest and north central producing areas to determine the extent of the virus disease.

He reports the disease was found to be widely distributed in the Panhandle but only scattered in Extension Districts 2 and 3, the South and Rolling Plains areas. It was not found in District 4, north central producing area.

Smith says the disease can only be a problem where the mite vector (carrier) and a reservoir of virus in native grasses or in volunteer wheat are found at the time winter wheat is planted; and when sufficient time is available for the infective mites to build up on planted wheat prior to the advent of cold weather. For the disease to be damaging to wheat, the plant must be infected in its early stage of development.

Early fall infection leads to severe yield reduction and results in the occurrence of much winter-kill-like, root-rot-like, and drought-like damage. Plants infected in the spring may show strong leaf symptoms of the disease but apparently suffer little or no loss in yielding abilities, Smith says.

Because of conditions, especially in northern and western Panhandle counties, Smith suggests that volunteer wheat be destroyed and that planting winter wheat be delayed for two or three weeks, or until the mid-part of the recommended planting season, September 20 to October 15. The mites which carry producers check with their local county agents for details on the survey findings and for more information on the disease and its control. In other major wheat states, the disease causes multi-million dollar losses. Smith says an estimated 47 million bushels of wheat were lost to the disease in Kansas last year.

"I'd say that most of the changes on combines have been made in the last four years," said Duane Curtis, as he stepped down from the cab of his John Deere 95 combine Saturday morning. He and Don Gerles were cutting a field of maize on the W. T. Magness farm near Farwell and were getting ready to go to lunch.

"There's just no comparison between this combine and the old Clipper I first ran as an 11-year old boy," Curtis said. That was only 20 years ago, and oddly enough, Curtis has seen most of the changes which have been made on combines as well as other farm machinery.

The "Clipper" was one of the older, pull-type combines and harvesting with the machine was a slow process, in spite of the fact that each stalk of grain then produced only a small fraction of what today's hybrid varieties of maize do.

"We could only cut about 8,000 or 9,000 pounds of grain a day, then," the Farwell farmer said, "and today we cut as much as 200,000 or more."

Both Curtis and Gerles commented on the mobility and the operating simplicity of today's modern combines, as well as the cabs which give the operator protection from dirt and chaff.

"They're really easy to drive, and with these cabs, combining is not nearly as tiring," Gerles said. "You can stay at it much longer than you used to be able to and not be nearly so tired."

Gerles pointed out how today's modern combines move free and easy once you get the wheels set in the furrows.

Of the cabs, Curtis explained that they are real life savers for fellows who are bothered by dust and chaff. "With the cabs, the combines are much more pleasant to operate," he said.

"This is especially so in maize, more so than wheat," Gerles added. The wheat is cleaner and not nearly so dusty.

Nearly all of the cabs come equipped with a window attachment which blows in fresh air, and it is also possible to get air conditioner units for the cabs. That's something that would really help in the summer time, because as Gerles pointed out, "In the summer it does get hot in there."

There have been many other changes made in the combines in recent years and a few that Curtis pointed out were power steering, having the motor located where you can get to it, and the reshaping of the straw delivery, so the machine can handle more straw and thus move faster in a field where the stalks are big and the heads are light.

ENTERING THE CAB OF HIS COMBINE as he gets ready to make another round in a field of maize is Don Gerles, who farms east of Farwell. The cab is one of the better features of today's modern combines, protecting the driver from all the dust and chaff which is so prevalent.

SOMETHING THAT HASN'T CHANGED in this modern, mechanical age is the canvas water bag, something the farmer has carried with him in the field for many years. Here, pausing to take a drink after stepping from the cab of his modern combine is Duane Curtis.

When asked how many acres of maize they could cut in a day, both Curtis and Gerles said it depended on how good the grain was. "Naturally, in heavy grain it's slower than it is in light grain," they explained, "but in a field that's making 5,000 pounds we can cover from 35 to 40 acres a day."

It was not too many years ago that use of combines on grain sorghum was unheard of, because the feed was too tall and heavy for a combine to handle. Fifty years ago the feed crops were mowed, and wind rowed, shocked and fed chiefly as fodder.

If farmers fed only the grain to livestock they would clip the heads and feed them that way.

It was several years later before the row binder came into being. The binder did speed up the harvesting of grain sorghums and this method was used quite extensively until the development of shorter hybrid varieties, enabling the farmers to use the combine for harvesting.

The pull-type combine, which had a motor on the machine to turn the reel and run other parts of the mechanism, was the only type used until the early 1940's when the self-propelled arrived on the scene.

Development of shorter, combine-type varieties was the first big step toward the harvesting of grain sorghums as it is done today, and the self-propelled combine was the next revolutionary step in that direction.

Since the end of the World War II era, each year has seen many new improvements made on the combines, and today, the combine is one of the bulwarks of the mechanized farming age.

Cotton Verticillium Wilt Serious Disease

Verticillium wilt is becoming more important in the cotton producing areas of West Texas. It is on the increase in the irrigated areas of the High Plains, Rolling Plains and the southwestern irrigated valleys. In recent years, the fungus disease has spread eastward to a line from Wichita Falls, Abilene and San Angelo. It has been found in a few fields near Greenville and Waxahachie.

Lower production by this wilt disease may range up to 75 percent in some fields. Losses also occur in the form of lower and spot grades and the production of immature fibers.

The disease is active only when the soil temperature is below 85 degrees. For this reason damage is usually higher during the early and the latter part of the growing season.

Affected plants may become stunted and the leaves turn yellow between the veins. These yellow leaf areas die and turn brown. Leaves are shed from the stalk. After cutting wilted stalks, one will see brownish wood underneath the bark. The disease may be confused with root rot or fusarium wilt diseases.

Verticillium wilt is spread by the movement of old cotton trash within fields and from field to field. Gin trash and the movement of soil by cultivation can spread the disease.

The disease is best controlled by growing resistant varieties. Certain cultural practices also help to prevent serious losses. Local county agents can supply additional information. Ask for B-938, "Cotton Production in Texas."

Decisions of vital importance to the Texas poultry industry are due to be made during the annual meeting of the Texas Poultry Industry Exposition, August 23-25, at Hotel Texas, Fort Worth. Ben Wormeli, extension poultry husbandman, says it will be the kind of a meeting that those interested in seeing the industry progress in the state can't afford to miss.

Texas A&M College System entomologists say that stored grain cannot be forgotten. Insects may be stored with the grain, and these insects could cause tremendous losses. To combat insect damage to stored grain, the storer should fumigate the grain according to recommendations of the local county agent.

Soil testing is a tool you can use on your farm to help determine the level of fertility of your soil. The recommendations which you will receive from the soil testing laboratory, based on the analysis of the soil samples you submit, will give the amounts of fertilizer needed for the most profitable crop or pasture production. Local county agents can supply information on soil testing.

Farmers and ranchers cannot afford to be dull and lazy during late summer and early fall. Extension range specialists say that winter is not very far away, and now is the time to make preparations for carrying the livestock until next spring.

Net income for a typical Southwestern sheep ranch was $10,812 per ranch in 1959. This figure compares to $8,181 for Northern Plains sheep ranches.
