Impatient Strikes

With public interest centered on major strikes the end of the foremen's strike at the B. F. Goodrich Company in Akron, O., the other day attracted scant general attention. Yet the unhappy and inconclusive outcome of that walkout seems so typical of many recent strikes that a brief review of its history might be in order.

A long dispute between foremen and management over employment functions and status led some 800 Goodrich workers of the newly-organized Foremen's Association of America to petition the National Labor Relations Board to certify the FAA as a collective bargaining agent. Hearings were in progress and briefs had been requested from both parties' attorneys when, on Labor Day, the foremen struck.

The strike continued for 22 days. Toward the end the strikers indicated a 25-to-1 desire to go back to work in a secret-ballot poll conducted by an independent foremen's group. Joint efforts by officials of the company and the Goodrich local of the United Rubber Workers to resume production under emergency supervision also seem to have hastened the strike's end.

And what was the result? Sixteen thousand Goodrich workers were idle for 22 days. Their pay stopped. Numerous local businesses suffered in consequence. Reconversion was frozen in a large factory of one of the country's most important industries. Thousands of tires were not made—tires that the country needed for safety and efficient conduct of business.

As for the foremen's case, it is right where it was on Labor Day. The NLRB has not heard all the evidence. Twenty-two days, thousands of tires and thousands of dollars are lost, and nothing has been settled. The strikers have gone back to their jobs without penalty or impaired legal rights. If they resume their case and the NLRB certifies the foremen's group, and if the courts uphold the certification, the company will have to recognize the FAA as a bargaining agent.

But it is doubtful that this strike has won the foremen any friends, or advanced the solution of an employment problem that is not confined to the Goodrich Company. It has simply illustrated again the destructive effect of labor's occasionally rash impatience.

Perhaps the impatience is justified. The wheels of government labor machinery have certainly moved slowly and haltingly in the past. They should and, according to present indications, will move more swiftly and smoothly in the future. But strikes will not hasten the reform.

Participants in these impatient strikes are but a small percentage of labor. And organized labor makes up a rather small percentage of our total population. But impatient strikes hurt everybody. In time they are bound to create an unjust prejudice against labor in the nonunion public.

National prosperity is the public's concern. And needless impediments to prosperity will eventually bring public demand for stricter government control of labor, if labor itself does not preach and practice a greater degree of public responsibility.

A Break For The Flying Tigers

According to Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, his Flying Tigers have never received any pensions, disability claims or other government benefits, or even a service ribbon or combat star, for their gallant service to the Allied cause. He thinks they deserve both recognition and the customary rewards, and so do we.

The Flying Tigers got into the war before their country did, to give the Chinese a helping hand in their unequal fight against the Japs' superior mechanized might. They dealt the Japs some stinging blows, and did much to contain the Japanese advance and harry the Jap air force at a time when China's aerial strength was almost non-existent.

They fought a longer and more discouraging battle than the majority of our fliers. It would seem that the ordinary GI rights are no more than due them.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Washington's decision to abolish Shinto as a state religion in Japan may prove to be the key to that misguided country's reformation, for much of the hold which the militarists had on the people was attributable to the fact that the government spoke through the mouth of sacred shinto.
Lest there be some fear this is a blow at freedom of worship, it should be said that it is not. The plan merely dissociates the religion from the very obvious evils of government control, but leaves the individual Japanese the right to worship as he chooses. If he clings to the ancestor and hero worship, which is the basis of Shinto (the way of the gods), then it is his prerogative to do so.

Agriculture Department Lowers Cotton Estimate For 1945 To 9,779,000

WASHINGTON—(P)—The Agriculture Department Monday estimated this year's production of cotton at 9,779,000 bales of 500-pound gross weight, on the basis of conditions on Oct. 1.

This estimate compared with 12,230,000 bales produced last year and with 12,293,000 bales for the 10-year (1934-43) average. The estimate a month ago was 10,026,000 bales.

The condition of the crop on Oct. 1 was reported at 70 per cent of normal, compared with 79 per cent a year ago and with 68 per cent for the 10-year average.

The per acre yield was indicated at 260.7 pounds compared with 293.5 pounds a year ago and 231 for the 10-year average.

The Oct. 1 condition of the crop, the indicated yield per acre, and the estimated production, respectively, by cotton-producing states included: Texas 66 per cent; 150 pounds, and 2,000,000.

Rice Will Be Sworn In As U.S. Judge Tuesday

WACO—(P)—Ben H. Rice Jr. will be sworn in as U. S. district judge for the Western District of Texas Tuesday by his uncle and former law partner, George H. Carter of Marlin. The ceremonies will take place in Carter's office at Marlin at 2:30 p. m.

Following the ceremony, Judge Rice plans to go to San Antonio to take over the U. S. District Court opened there last week by Judge Allen Hannay, who is filling in for the late Judge W. A. Keeling. Rice shares the Western District with Judge Charles A. Boynton of El Paso.

Judge Rice's resignation from the 10th Court of Civil Appeals here will be sent to Gov. Coke Stevenson following the federal oath Tuesday. Stevenson has indicated he will name Rice's successor upon receiving the judge's resignation.

USES Seeks Jobs For Handicapped

Special efforts are being made by the Midland office of the United States Employment Service to find jobs which the physically handicapped can perform. Dewey Wadde, manager of the Midland USES office, said.

Mayor A. N. Hendrickson called upon Midland employers Monday to work with the USES office in giving the physically handicapped workers an "equal job opportunity."

"During the war thousands of handicapped workers performed jobs vital to victory," the mayor said. "Many other men and women became disabled in the service of their country. All of these Americans deserve not only our appreciation, but an equal job opportunity."

12 Pickets Injured In Fight With Police

HOLLYWOOD—(P)—At least 12 strikers were injured early Monday in brief but wild fighting at the entrance to Warner Brothers Studio when officers charged a mass group of approximately 200 pickets to clear a passageway for studio workers.

Approximately 150 police and sheriff's deputies and the pickets fought for about 15 minutes at the officers, using nightsticks, cleared a way through the movie strikers and formed a double line through which the workers passed into the studio.

Witnesses said some of the pickets used canes and clubs in the battle.

Two ambulances took the injured pickets to hospitals.

Court injunctions were issued Saturday ordering the studio and workers to restrain from violence.

A report on the reconversion of telephone factories

The telephone factories of Western Electric, the Bell System manufacturing unit, have been working seven days a week since V-J Day, reconverting to "civilian" telephone production.
They're clearing the decks for the tremendous job of furnishing telephone service to the 246,000 people waiting in the Southwest.
War contracts have been cut
Many of Western Electric's war contracts for electronic and communications equipment have been canceled outright. Others have been reduced. By the middle of September, unfilled war orders were only about 40 per cent of those on hand August 1. Further cancellations are indicated.
Reconversion involves the complete dismantling of many war shops and the reinstallation of equipment for peacetime manufacture. Every available mechanic capable of performing this kind of work has been engaged on a seven-day basis to shorten reconversion time—speed up the production of telephone instruments and switchboards and cables—and create the maximum number of peacetime jobs.
Telephone production is increasing
Telephone instruments are relatively easy and quick to make. Production is currently at the rate of 25,000 per week—but these, of course, must be divided among telephone companies all over the country. The rate is being rapidly increased, but capacity production must await complete reconversion.
More important than telephones, in point of view of those waiting for service, is the lack of central office switchboards and dial apparatus, and telephone cable.
From radar to switchboards...
During the war, three of Western Electric's four switchboard shops and one of its two exchange cable shops were completely dismantled and the space used for the manufacture of radar and other special products. Now every step is being taken to reconvert this space as fast as war contract cancellations permit. Nearly two thirds of the 246,000 people waiting for service in the Southwest are waiting because of lack of central office facilities and cable. Such equipment is already being manufactured, but full capacity production cannot be reached until reconversion has been completed.
Turning the manufacturing corner...
Thus, as telephone factories swing back to making peacetime equipment, we are definitely turning the corner toward the time when we can get all the telephones, cable, and central office apparatus we need so much. It will take time to catch up with 246,000 orders now on hand, of course. But we are doing it as quickly as we can, and nothing will please us more than to get back to our standard of furnishing service whenever the customer requests it.

Home Of Mrs. Joe Canon Is Scene For AAUW Entertainment Saturday Afternoon

The home of Mrs. Joe Canon, 201 Ridgley, was the scene for a tea given by the Midland branch of the American Association of University Saturday afternoon. New and prospective members were guests of honor.

As the guests arrived, they were received by Mrs. Canon and Miss Katherine F. Greacen, president of the organization. Mrs. William B. Von Osniski, membership chairman, presided at the register.

Arrangements for the entertainment were under the direction of Mrs. Jack Dolman and Mrs. Ebb White, social chairmen, who were assisted by Mrs. Canon and Mrs. Leo R. Newfarmer.

A bouquet of asters and chrysanthemums in pastel hues was used as the centerpiece on the dining table which was laid with a lace cloth. Completing the table setting were crystal candelabra and silver tea and coffee services.

Presiding at the silver services were Meses. George D. Putnam, Charles F. Henderson, John J. Redfern and Miss Ruth Carden.

The yellow candles on the tea table carried out the color scheme used on the name cards for guests and the booklets entitled "Escape in the Desert" which were distributed.

Members registered for study groups which are also open to non-members for a small fee. In addition to the crafts and international relation study groups, plans are being made to organize a book review group, one to study the Russian language and a bridge group.

Guests were Meses. V. A. Young, W. T. McGill, V. A. Walston, Leslie T. Brown, George Class, Jack E. Moore, John M. Lesko, E. Hazen Woods, H. W. Pickett, W. E. Cox and Meses Carol Pearson, Nancy Shaffer, Katherine Lutz, Lucy Moore and Josephine Weaver.

Members present in addition to those assisting in the house party were Meses. Leland Davison, H. S. Forgeron, William Fritz, George Krabis, W. T. Magee, Lloyd Mills, Raymond Monkress, Karl Mygdal, Lee Park, Ray Bernard, E. E. Reigle, John Richards, Ernest Sidwell, L. C. NEW YORK—Fashion's answer to the coldest-winter-yet prediction are vests of fur as dashingly cut as an old-time river gambler's.

While they shield you from the cold, these stylized vests provide you with a fancier front for either sporting togs or city-going suits. Made of ocelot, leopard, caracal or other flat furs, such vests combine ingenious design with good dress-making to give you a facade that's bulky as well as fancy, and one that curves with the bosom and sinks in with the waist.

That's the idea behind designer Valerie's collection of vests with waist-fitting details, released fullness, cleverly concealed pockets and lapels that climb to make up-standing collars.

The spots before your eyes—at left, a traditional waistcoat of leopard plus an added collar and at right a vest of ocelot draped like a scarf—are examples of her designs executed in her two favorite furs.

NOW 4 POINTS FOR USED FATS

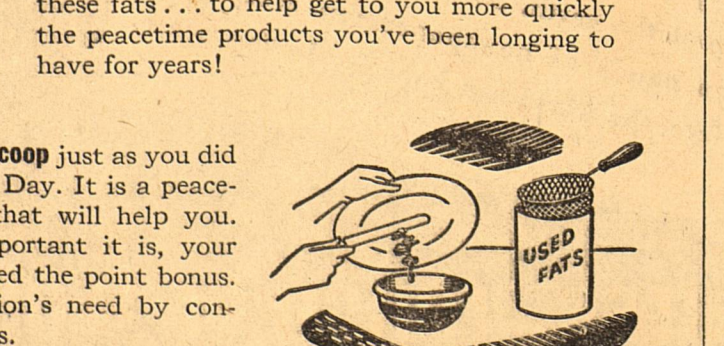

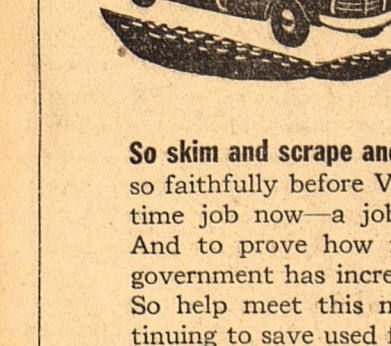

Help Increase Supplies of Soap and Other Peacetime Products By Saving More Used Fats

Industrial fats far short of last year! We are almost down to the bottom of the barrel. The nation's industrial fat supply is millions of pounds less than it was in 1944. We need fully as much as last year to help make the soaps and other civilian goods you want and need so badly. So...

If you want more soap and soap flakes... if you're dreaming of nylons, sheets, cotton fabrics and want them to hurry back to the store counter... you can help by saving those used kitchen fats as you never saved before! Save every drop, every day!

These fats are vitally necessary to help speed greater supplies of soaps and hundreds of other things—like new cars, electric washers, irons, refrigerators and tires. Industry must have these fats... to help get to you more quickly the peacetime products you've been longing to have for years!

So skim and scrape and scoop just as you did so faithfully before V-J Day. It is a peacetime job now—a job that will help you. And to prove how important it is, your government has increased the point bonus. So help meet this nation's need by continuing to save used fats.

Top to Come

Corrigan and Crump No. 1 Nystel, Southeast Terry County wildcat in section 8, block 38, psi survey, had penetrated under 3,928 feet, in lime, and was in or near, the brown lime formation.

Points on the Yates had not been reported as the samples had not been worked through that horizon.

Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Buchanan, East Midland County development in Baldrige survey No. 32-692, had set a retainer at 10,220 feet, and squeezed perforations below that point and was preparing to test section at 10,370-390 feet, which had been shot with 60 holes.

Slight Show

Humble No. 1 Parker, discovery for production from the McKee section of the Simpson, in section 24, block A-41, psi survey in South Andrews County, reamed core hole to 8,890 feet in shale and sand, after coring to that point, and was to core ahead.

Slight oil shows were encountered in a core 8,880-90 feet.

Eltex, Ltd., staked location and contracted for drilling of No. 2 E. L. Martin, in South Concho County. It will be 330 feet from north and 990 feet from west lines of section 174, block 72, abstract 1705 and is a quarter of a mile east of same concern's No. 1 Martin, which flowed 81 barrels of 44-gravity oil in three hours last week to proven commercial production in that wildcat at 3,801-09 feet, in the Bend.

Hunt Oil Company No. 1 Graham, Northeast Yoakum County possible San Andres discovery, in northwest quarter of section 32B, block D, Gibson survey, was swabbing to clean out after washing section at 5,246-5,342 feet, with 1,000 gallons of kerosene.

This project had been shut in several weeks and latest activity was calculated to wash sludge and slush off of the pay section and possibly stimulate oil yield.

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 2 Martin, in southwest corner of section 12, block A-47, psi survey, in South Andrews County, was making hole below 4,640 feet, in dolomite.

A Dry Core

A core at 4,532-50 feet, recovered 18 feet of dense dolomite and anhydrite, with no shows of oil or gas.

Magnolia No. 1-B Tucker, in South Crane County, and in north part of section 25, block 1, H&TC survey, and discovery for production in the Waddell zone of the Simpson, was testing to the total depth at 5,817 feet, in sand and lime.

In 40 hours the well swabbed 47.5 barrels of new oil, after load oil had been swabbed out.

Lion Oil Company No. 1 Neal, in section 66, block BB, EL survey, in North-Central Crockett County bottomed out at 7,429 feet in lime and shale.

Lion to Back

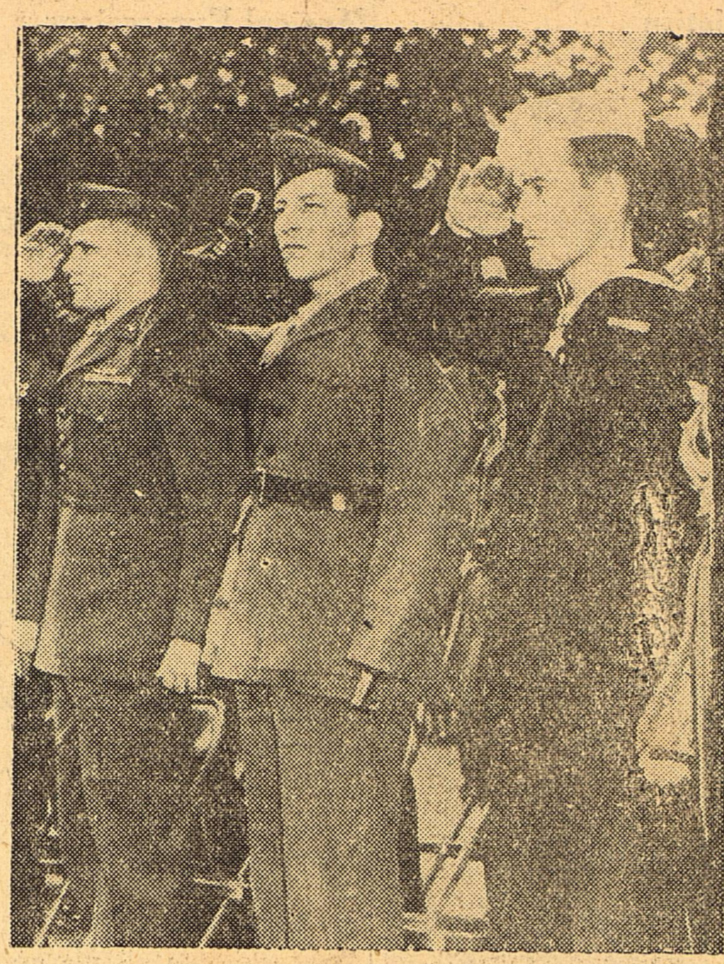

is to plug back and test a section at about 2,300-2,400 feet, where there were some indications of production. No evidences of oil have been reported from below the 2,400-foot level.

George P. Livermore, Inc., No. 1 Bird, Northwest Dickens County prospector in section 288, block 1, H&GN survey, has been abandoned and will be plugged on total depth of 8,390 feet in lime. No signs of oil were reported from the exploration.

Three Cars Damaged In Sunday Collision

Three cars were damaged but no one was injured in a collision early Sunday at the Gulf Service Station.

A 1938 Chrysler driven by Lt. Robert E. Hughes collided with the rear of a 1936 Chevrolet driven by a soldier stationed at Camp Bowie, knocking the rear bumper off the Chevrolet. The Chrysler then side swiped a 1942 Plymouth owned by the Atlantic Refining Company. Little damage resulted to the Plymouth.

Four Billions Is Goal Of Individual V Bonds

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson wants banks to sell as many bonds as possible to individuals during the coming victory loan.

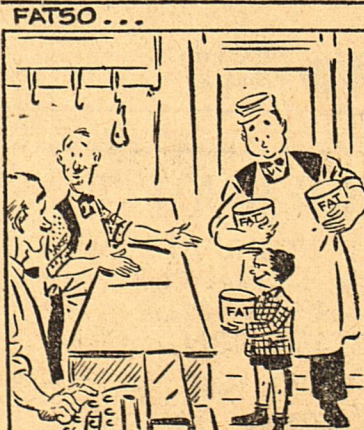

The idea is to absorb surplus money in the government's drive against inflation.

The $11,000,000,000 Victory Loan opens October 29 and continues through December 8. Of the total, individuals have been assigned a quota of $4,000,000,000.

AAF Instructor Schools At Waco And Bryan To Be Inactivated Oct. 31

RANDOLPH FIELD—Temporary inactivation of the AAF Central Pilot Instructor School at Waco Army Air Field, Waco, Texas, and the AAF Instrument Instructor School at Bryan Army Air Field, Bryan, Texas, will take place Oct. 31, it was announced Monday at headquarters of the AAF Central Flying Training Command, Randolph Field.

Blackland Army Air Field, a sub-depot of Waco Army Air Field, will also be temporarily inactivated on this date.

Waco Army Air Field opened its training program in May, 1942, as a basic flying school. In April of this year it became the AAF Central Instructor's School (Pilot). Blackland, formerly engaged in the training of glider pilots and advanced twin-engine pilots, was announced as a sub-post of Waco Army Air Field in a combined operation of the CIS program when it was transferred from Randolph Field to Waco.

What Lt. Gen. Barton K. Yount, commanding general of the AAF Training Command termed "the best instrument flying training program in the world" was given to pilots and instrument instructors at Bryan Army Air Field.

Still More Rain Is Expected Here

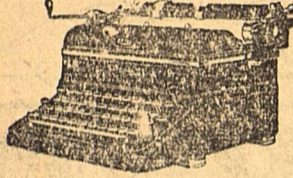

Rain to the extent of .14 of an inch fell in Midland Sunday and more is in prospect for Monday afternoon and Tuesday, weather observers said.

In addition to the rain, lower temperatures are in prospect with the mercury expected to fall to between 45 and 50 degrees Monday night.

Clouds are expected to hang over the city throughout Monday and Tuesday.

The rains have been general over the county and this section with the precipitation reported much heavier east of Midland.

Another Secret Weapon Is Revealed

A wakeless torpedo, silent and untraceable, is now revealed as one of the important U. S. secret weapons of the war. The first electric-propelled weapon of its type, it was standard equipment on U. S. submarines more than a year before VJ-Day. One of the huge missiles is shown above at the Sharon, Pa., plant of Westinghouse Electric, which manufactured them. The Sharon plant built 10,000 of the torpedoes, which accounted for the sinking of 372 Jap ships.

Patton Says Adieu To U. S. Third Army

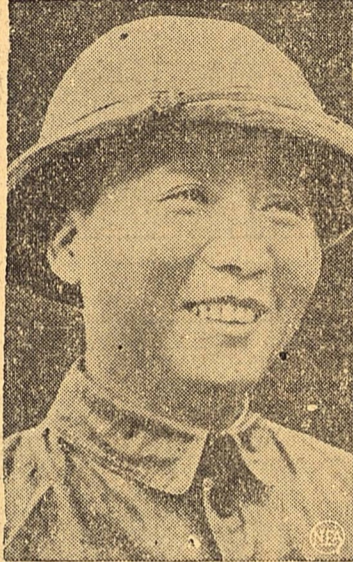

EAD TOELZ, GERMANY—(AP)—Gen. George S. Patton Jr., who led the Third Army spearhead of the Allied drive across France and Germany Monday was in command of a few troops doing research work—the 15th Army.

The 59-year-old general swallowed hard when a band struck up "Auld Lang Syne" Sunday as he handed over the Third Army flag to his successor, Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr.

"All good things must come to an end," Patton told 400 troops standing sad-faced before him in a dramatic ceremony forced indoors because of rain.

"The best thing that has ever come to me is the honor and privilege of having commanded the Third Army. Please accept my heartfelt congratulations on your valor and devotion to duty, and my fervent gratitude for your unwavering loyalty."

1st Cavalry Avenged Lt. Gen. Wainwright

By NEA Service In a final all-out blitz that carried it 114 miles in 60 hours, the First Cavalry Division earned the honor of being the first to reach the city of Manila in the climactic battle for liberation of the Philippines. By being the first to reach Manila, the First avenged Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, courageous defender of Corregidor and Bataan, and a former brigade commander of the division. The first order for the "Hell for Leather" men when they reached Manila was to smash forward, at any cost, and relieve the 4000 civilian internees in Santa Tomas University. In a spectacular dash through the barricaded, burning city, with enemy fire pouring from every building, the First overwhelmed the Jap garrison at the university and liberated the near-starved prisoners. The First, elements of which date back to the Indian and Civil War, had its first crack at the Japs early in 1944, when its doughboys landed on Los Negros Island. Despite fierce opposition, they swept inland and secured the key Momote airstrip within half an hour. The "Hell for Leather's" next went into combat in the bloody battle for Leyte. For 42 days of the monsoon season the men endured what Gen. Walter Krueger described "as the most brutal terrain and conditions American soldiers have ever been asked to stand."

Central And West AAF Commands To Merge Oct. 15

RANDOLPH FIELD—The AAF Western Flying Training Command with headquarters at Santa Ana, Calif., and the AAF Central Flying Training Command will be merged effective Oct. 15, thus bringing the WFTC training stations under the jurisdiction of the commanding general, AAF Central Flying Training Command with the new combined headquarters at Randolph Field.

The nine training stations from the Western Flying Training Command to be added to the AAF Central Flying Training Command are:

Douglas Army Air Field, Douglas, Ariz., giving advanced twin-engine, twin-engine transition, and Air Transport Command training;

Hobbs Army Air Field, Hobbs, N. M., engaged in four-engine transition training for B-17 pilots;

Luke Field, Phoenix, Ariz., training students in advanced single-engine flying, single-engine, transition on the P-47, and twin-engine transition on the P-38;

Miner Field, Bakersfield, Calif., a station training students in basic flying and Pre-Air Transport Command training;

Also Pecos Army Air Field, Pecos Army Air Field, Pecos, Texas, which has recently been inactivated; Roswell Army Air Field, Roswell, N. M., recently operating as an AAF Separation Base and as a JTB training station for the E-29.

Radler Observer Schools were located at Victorville Army Air Field, Victorville, Calif.; Williams Field, Chandler, Ariz.; and Yuma Army Air Field, Yuma, Ariz.

The pooling of training activities of the Air Forces under the control of the AAF Central Flying Training Command, located at Randolph Field, reverses the process started some time before America's participation in the war at a time when the Air Forces were expanding rapidly.

The predecessor of the AAF Western Flying Training Command was established on July 8, 1940, when the Air Corps Training Center at Randolph Field was divided into three training activities and vastly expanded. The West Coast Air Corps Training Center was then set up at Moffet Field, Calif. The

CHILD ACROBAT

I NEVER knew where grand-mama unearthed Ograinsky. He was an enormous broken-nosed C-wrestler of Polish extraction, married to a thin, bitter, cockney Englishwoman who looked after the wardrobe and always had a cold in the head.

The Ograinskys had five children of their own, four boys and a girl, all born in different countries and all speaking different tongues with their parents—a family tower of Babel. There were three other children in the troupe, also of diverse nationalities, and to hear old man Ograinsky conducting a rehearsal was something to marvel at. Despite his brutality, he was a fine trainer and built a good act with us.

To Ograinsky either people were acrobats or they weren't, and he had every intention of making them learn to do tricks and incredible feats, whether or not he ruined their health in the attempt.

Like many ex-wrestlers, he had something sadistic about him, and if he saw any of the children, especially his own, sick from exhaustion, he would get a mad gleam in his eye and work them until they dropped on the floor. He taught us tumbling, back somersaults, and full twistlers in a "mechanic" or harness till we learned the timing. Then we had to do these tricks alone without any help.

A mechanic is a stout leather belt which fits around the body under the armpits, with a ring in the back to which a rope is attached with a snap. The rope goes up to a pulley in the roof, passes through it and down to the hand of the trainer, who can manipulate his pupils' bodies by lifting them, or save them from falls by pulling on the rope as they do their tricks. This apparatus is used in all kinds of acrobatic work, aerial trapeze, and vaulting on horses.

OGRAINSKY started me off in this as basic training. For a while everything was fine. All the other children were more or less advanced in it, but the trouble really began when I had to learn to turn in the air without the mechanic. For some reason I could not learn to "tuck," which is to roll one's self into a ball, touch the knees with the head, and make a complete turn landing on the feet and producing a somersault.

This position affords protection for the head in case of a fall and also helps the body revolve. Ograinsky, impatient to have me work in the act as soon as possible, used to yell at me till I became flustered and had some nasty falls. This went on for two or three days till he finally got a knotted rope and hit me over the knees with it to make me turn higher and faster. Welts and dark bruises were the result, and grandmama made him stop. Then he used to cup his hand and hit me on the back of the neck to send me over and make me keep my head in, explaining to grandmama that it was the only way I could be saved from a fall on my head and a possible broken neck. It did teach me to do the trick but eventually resulted in chronic headaches which threatened to afflict my eyesight.

We danced a ballet on the points and did an equestrian act, practically ballet, vaulting on and off the horses' broad backs, the girls wearing old-fashioned ballet "tutus" and the boys white silk tights with black velvet jerkins, similar to costumes worn in the Sylphides ballet. We did graceful poses while the fat white horses (chalked by us before every show) galloped around the ring. Then we had the tumbling act and the cross flying trapeze act, which was our star number and really outstanding.

A flying trapeze act is done with a group of people over a net, and the first thing I was taught was how to fall in the net without injuring myself, and with grace. This is so important that I can now understand Ograinsky's fury when I could not learn to tuck, for the same movement is used to turn in the air before landing in the net.

I loved my work, of course, and began to get the thrill of danger and the thirst for applause.

WE played a few weeks in and around Moscow, then Ograinsky signed a contract with a relatively small one-ring circus playing a winter route through Rumania, the Balkans, Poland, Finland, and crossing by boat to Scandinavia. The circus was run by three Rumanian gypsy brothers with the Italian name of Morelli. They had been acrobats themselves, and their families for generations back had owned small traveling shows.

The entire circus traveled by train and did not carry large animal acts. What animals they did carry were boxed in the worst possible way, but I don't think they could possibly have suffered more than the performers did.

Of course it was valuable experience for me, and in a way I enjoyed it, but this must have been very hard for grandmama, who was convinced one had cast the evil eye on us. She traveled with me for the first few weeks, then had to return to mother, who was so ill she could not be alone, so I was left in the care of Mrs. Ograinsky.

When the circus reached the end of the tour and we were in Scandinavia, grandmama got Ograinsky a booking in Copenhagen with her own act, in the famous Schumann Circus there.

four trumps in his own hand, four in dummy, the ace of clubs and the ace-queen of diamonds if the finesse works.

After ruffing the third spade with the deuce of hearts, South leads the seven of diamonds and takes the finesse. When it holds, he leads back the ace of diamonds and then can cross-ruff the whole hand out.

West could have held the hand to four-odd by leading a heart after cashing the ace and king of spades. As a matter of fact, he might have defeated the contract if he had shifted to a heart after winning the first spade trick.

Marines Land—And Prices Soar Upward

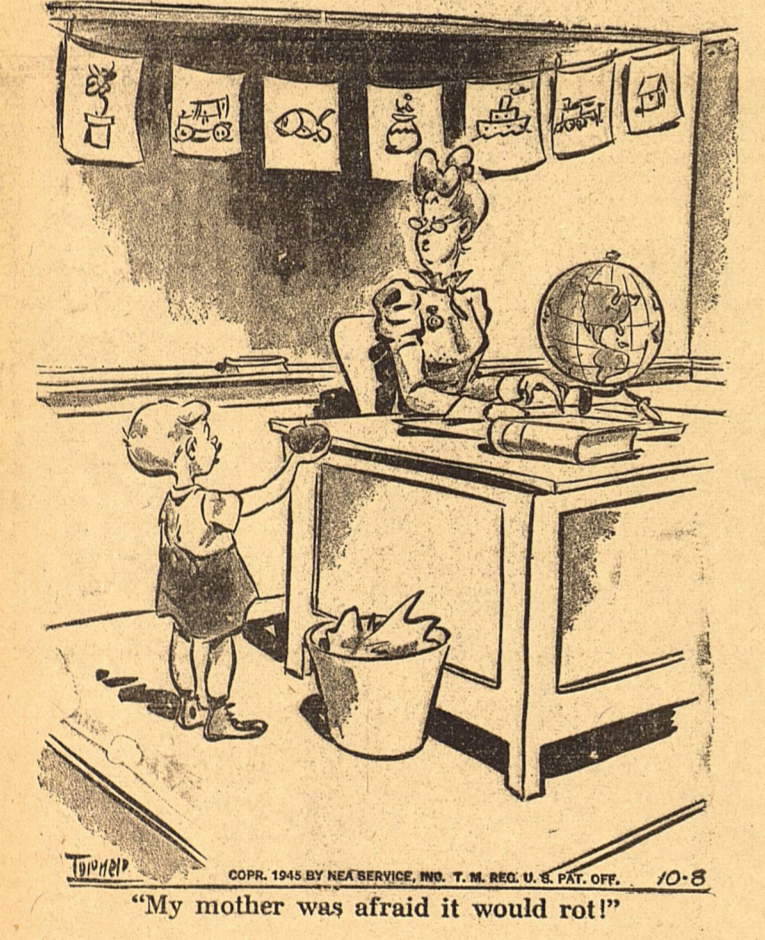

TIENSIN, CHINA—(AP)—American Marines have landed and Tientsin's European residents are squawking.

In the six days they have been here, prices of all commodities have soared. These Americans along with sailors whom the Chinese call "white hats" have laid it on lavishly.

One European, seeing an American officer give a ricksha boy 1,000 Chinese dollars for a 50 dollar trip, commented: "Very nice, your good will, but we must live here all the time."

Passeau To Hurl For Cubs, Trucks For Tigers In Monday's Crucial Tilt

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers fought their way into the lead in the 1945 world series for the first time Sunday when they slugged five Chicago Cubs' pitchers for 11 hits and won handily behind Hal Newhouser's left-handed shoots, 8 to 4, before 43,463 fans at Wrigley field.

Claude Passeau

The victory, sewed up with another big four-run inning in which Hank Borowy was shelled from the mound, put the American League champions ahead three games to two in the classic and left the Cubs facing sudden death in Monday's sixth contest.

Newhouser, whom the Cubs hammered from the hill in the opening tilt at Detroit, came back to hurl a superb game most of the way and to strike out nine batters, within four of the world series record held by Howard Ehmke.

Borowy, the righthander who shut-out the Tigers, 9 to 0, in the opening game, was driven out in the sixth inning by four solid Detroit hits after he had matched Newhouser pitch for pitch through the first five frames and the big crowd had settled down to watch what promised to be a tense pitcher's duel.

Hank Greenberg was the big gun of the Tiger attack, smashing out three doubles, scoring three times and driving in a run. Roy Cullenbine connected for a double and a single and drove two runs across. No Chicago player solved Newhouser for more than one hit and only two worked him for passes. Only four Bruins were left on base.

It was the third triumph for the slow-footed Tigers and the third time they had won by putting together four runs in an inning. The score Sunday was deadlocked at 1-1 when the explosion occurred, the Tigers having counted in the third inning on a walk, Eddie Mayo's single to right and Roger Cramer's fly-out to centerfield, and the Cubs having matched it in their half on Borowy's double and Stan Hack's single.

Cramer, Tiger lead-off man in the sixth inning, whanged a single to center and raced to second when the ball rolled through Andy Pafko's legs. Greenberg brought him in with the first of his doubles down the left field line. Cullenbine followed with a smash toward first, which Cavarretta juggled long enough for him to reach base safely and for Greenberg to hustle on to third. When York planted a clean single in center, scoring Greenberg, it was curtains for Borowy.

By Vandenberg, who replaced him, gave up two more runs on a sacrifice (the first for the Tigers in the series), two walks and an infield out before Bob Chipman replaced him and finally put down the uprising. Cramer who began the rally with a single, ended it with an infield out. The inning lasted 21 minutes, during which the Cubs' championship hopes ticked slowly away.

The Tigers scored again in the seventh off Paul Derringer, fourth Cubs' hurler, to give Newhouser a 6-1 lead. Greenberg led off with the second of his doubles, reached third on Cullenbine's sacrifice and counted on Outlaw's towering fly to Pafko.

The Cubs' second and third runs in their half of the seventh were little more than gifts from Jimmy Outlaw, Detroit's hard fighting but unlucky little third baseman. With two on, the result of Peanuts Lowrey's single and a walk to Cavarretta, Nicholson hit a roller to Outlaw that looked like a sure force-play at second for the third out.

But Outlaw waited too long to throw to the bag, Pafko beating the throw and Lowrey racing home. Catcher Mickey Livingston followed with a low down the first base line which hit barely in fair territory and bounced into the field boxes for a ground rules double, scoring Pafko.

Detroit wound up its scoring with two runs off Paul Erickson in the ninth. Cramer was hit on the leg by a pitched ball. Greenberg's third double moved him around to third, and both scored when Cullenbine hammered a ball past Pafko to the deep centerfield wall Pafko couldn't dig the pellet out of the ivy that covers the balustrade, and Cullenbine also trotted home, but theumps made him trot right back to second.

The fourth run off Newhouser was a presentation by Cramer and Cullenbine. They couldn't make up their minds who should catch Cavarretta's long fly, so they let it fall between them for a double to open the ninth inning. Newhouser then nailed Pafko for his ninth strikeout victim, but Nicholson came through with a single to bring Cavarretta in.

Newhouser, who has a "lump" in his left shoulder-blade which he says pains him on every pitch, struck out at least one batter in all except one inning. Though no errors were charged against his support, he should have escaped with only a single run about his delivery. He was very fast, and his sweeping curve had the Cubs baffled. Pafko, brightest young star in the Chicago firmament, whiffed three times, once watching a curve cut an outside corner for the third out.

With his club squarely up against the necessity of winning Monday's game or suddenly dropping from sight, Manager Charlie Grimm announced he would come back with Claude Passeau, the 36-year-old righthander who gained a measure of world series immortality by shutting out the Tigers with one hit in the third game at Detroit on Friday.

Texas-Oklahoma Game Headlines Southwest Grid Play This Week

By The Associated Press The Southwest Conference, whose intersectional record is nothing to brag about, hardly will improve this week although four of the five games are with teams from other areas.

In the headliner — the annual Texas-Oklahoma tussle at Dallas which is due to draw 30,000 or more—the Southwest's representative will be a top favorite. But in two other intersectional tilts, there appears no chance of a victory and the fourth game is little better than even money.

Southern Methodist, humiliated by a 10-7 defeat from twice-beaten Missouri, and Rice, defeated by a Southwestern University team that Texas virtually ran out of the park, play Oklahoma A. and M. and Tulane respectively.

Oklahoma A. and M. is one of the top teams of the country. It holds decisions over Arkansas and Denve. S.M.U. meets Oklahoma A. and M. at Oklahoma City Friday night with a record of one victory over a weak Blackland Army Air Field eleven and defeats from Corpus Christi Naval Air Station (crushed 35-7 last week by Jacksonville Naval Air Station) and Missouri.

Tulane opened the season last week by playing a good Florida team to a 6-6 draw. Rice has lost three straight, one of them being a 42-0 drubbing from Louisiana State.

A&M Plays LSU Texas A. and M., unbeaten in three games, faces veteran Louisiana State at Baton Rouge Saturday night. LSU was turned back 26-7 by Alabama last week while A. and M. was triumphing over Oklahoma 19-14. The Aggies may rate a light nod in this game.

But should Texas and A. and M. come through the conference's intersectional record still would be only 50-50. Thus far this circuit won three and lost three.

The other game on the conference schedule for Saturday matches Arkansas with Baylor. It's a family tussle with Arkansas due to improve its title chance. The Razorbacks opened the conference race last week by trimming Texas Christian 27-14 and looking very impressive while so doing. Baylor, which lost to T.C.U. 7-6 in its conference opener, rested last week.

Texas enlarged its stature as championship favorite last week when it bounced Texas Tech 32-0. Tech was the team that beat Southwestern, conqueror of Rice, and gave Texas A. and M. a battle before falling 16-6. Oklahoma goes to Dallas with a record of two victories and one defeat. The Sooners beat Hondo Army Air Field and Nebraska before stumbling against Texas A. and M.

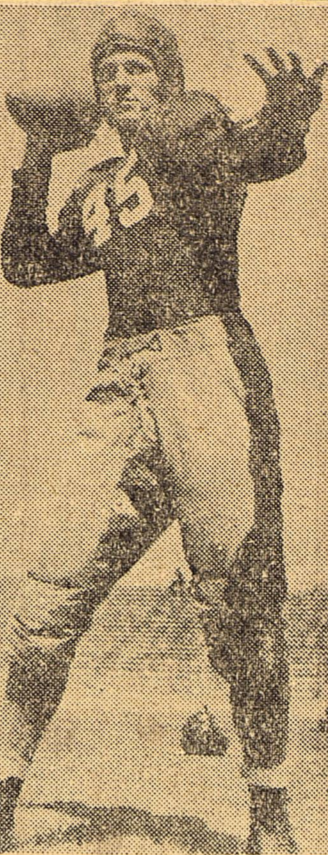

Texas Christian does not play this week.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

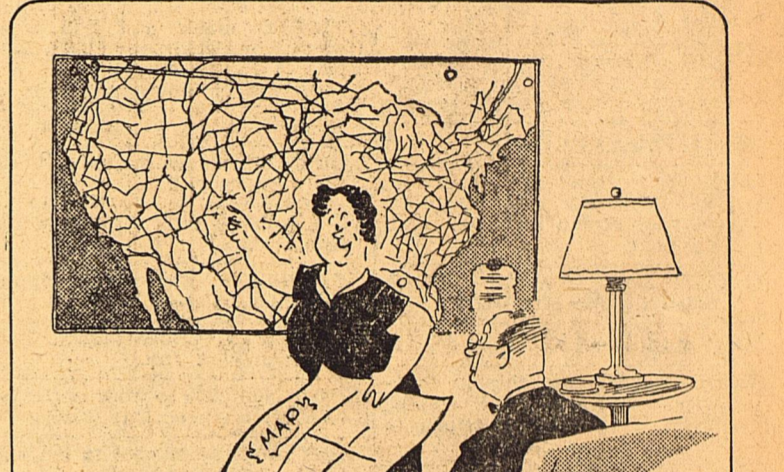

NEW YORK—(P)—Charley Caldwell, who has the task of making Princeton football "formal"—i. e. financially solvent—again points out one drawback that some schools apparently overlooked when they let football lapse during the war.

hear the quarterback's signals. An expert lip-reader, he bends over where he can see 'em in the huddles and usually is the first man to line up.

Monday Matinee Gen. Abner Doubleday, who "invented" baseball, did nothing to advance the game while he was a West Point cadet. Similarly, George S. Willits played for Rutgers in the first intercollegiate football game while preparing for the Naval Academy, but when he became a Midshipman, he didn't try to develop the game at Annapolis.

Coaching Fundamentals Monk Simons, Tulane grid coach, likes to tell about visiting the dressing room at a small Louisiana college just in time to hear the coach's final instructions: "When we gets ready to punt and you hear that ball go boom, you goes as fast as you can and flattens whoever gits the ball on the other side. But if you hears the ball go boom-boom, you turns around and gits on that ball without fail."
