Just A Thought

by Carter

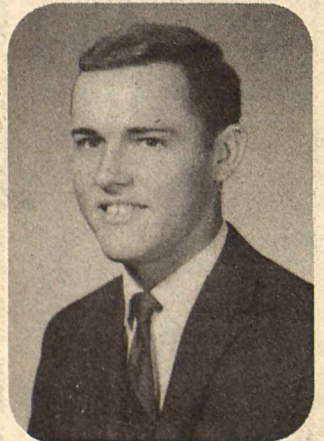

I see where Coach Tommy McAdams is getting the team and community spirit, he made the front page of the Abilene paper.

We know what team, the question is what community? Meow!!

I was informed last week that 37% of me was fired. I'm a little worried about which 37%

We have made an effort to keep the public informed as to what is going on in the community with respect to law enforcement. The Haskell City Police and the Texas Highway Patrol have been very cooperative in assisting us in this endeavor. They join with us in the belief that the voting public has a right to know what they're receiving for their tax dollars from their law enforcement officers and what they are not.

Now to the lighter side of life... Did you know that a fish will move out of deep water during the summer months in order to live? That's right. According to the Texas Parks and Wildlife News during the hot summer months the oxygen level in deep water is not sufficient to allow the fish to live so he has to move above

KENNY TANNER

Tanner Named To Board Of IGI

Mr. Kenny Tanner, owner and operator of Tanner Food Store in Rule, was recently elected to a three year term on the board of directors of Independent Grocers, Inc., headquartered in Abilene. The two hundred forty-three members of the grocer's co-op honored Mr. Tanner with a unanimous vote when his name was placed in nomination at the annual stockholders meeting held in Abilene. Mr. Tanner will assist management with the complex job of running the thirty year old company and will be on call to help any of the members in the seventy thousand square mile territory served by the retailer-owned co-op.

A grocery man since he was a youngster, Mr. Tanner is one of the leading citizens of Rule and was recently named Man of the Year in Rule for 1975. He is a member of the Rule Chamber of Commerce, serving as president one year, is a member of Rule City Council, a member of the Rule Fire Department and is treasurer of the First Baptist Church of Rule.

He is married to the former Debbie Wilson and they have two children, Jason four and Kenna one.

the stratification line and you have to fish a little shallower in order to catch anything.

Fear not fishermen for this winter he will be right back on the bottom and easy prey.

Until last Friday I never paid much attention to superstitions about Friday the 13th, well I'm a believer now.

Had the clutch slip out on me so I took the old red... in to get it fixed so it wouldn't go out on me on the way to Fort Worth this weekend.

Picked the car up at noon and went over to get gas and as I put my foot on the clutch to stop I heard a pinningg, ah yes no more clutch.

No more Friday the 13ths, black cats or ladders for me.

I sat in on the Commissioners Court meeting held on August 9, it was very interesting. The sheriff got himself another deputy but it looks like the fellow is going to have to use his own car and for a while I thought he might have to yell real loud if he planned on communicating with other law enforcement officers, but the sheriff assured everyone that the new deputy would have radio communications.

I enjoyed that meeting so much that I think I'll try to make the next one too. Why don't some of you join me, after all you elected these people this is a good chance for you to see how well you did at the polls last time.

I had a visit from a Haskell County Citizen Tuesday morning and he brought with him some very interesting information in the form of an official opinion from the office of the Secretary of State Mr. Mark White.

In part the letter states:

"Therefore, this office feels that although the Commissioners Court did not follow proper procedures as set out in Article 3.01, the appointments made will not invalidate the general election in November. Despite this, as a concerned citizen you might wish to bring this problem to the attention of the Commissioners Court."

The above response was in reply to a letter concerning the dropping of Albert Thane and the naming of Vernay Howard as his replacement as election judge in precinct 3 of Haskell County.

I always thought there were only two ways to do things the right way and the wrong way now there seems to be a third. That third way is very elusive and can sometimes get you into trouble for that matter so can the other two.

The pecan weevil, one of the most damaging pecan pests, will soon begin to lay eggs in developing pecans in Haskell County. To prevent pecan weevil damage the adult female weevils must be controlled before they deposit eggs in the developing pecan. Once the eggs have been deposited control measures will not be effective.

Each year in mid-August pecan weevil adults emerge from the soil and move into pecan trees to mate and deposit their eggs. After an egg has been deposited the larva will develop inside the pecan, cut a hole in the shell about 1/8 inch in diameter and emerge from the pecan as a fully grown larva in late October or November. Larvae will tunnel into the soil 4 to 12 inches. Much of the pecan weevil's 2 to 3 year life cycle is spent as a larva in the soil. Larvae that enter the soil this fall will emerge in August of 1978 with the exception of about 10% of these larvae which will emerge as adults during August of 1979.

When pecan weevil infestations are severe this pest can destroy a large portion of the pecan crop. Feeding of adults weevils causes the nuts in the water stage to drop. After the kernel begins to harden the nut is susceptible to egg laying. Adult weevil populations in the orchard will vary greatly from year to year but in heavily infested orchards pecan weevil populations will probably be present in most years.

Insecticide applications should be applied to pecans as the pecans reach the gel stage, the transition from the water to the soft dough stage. This can be determined by cutting through the developing pecan kernel to determine if it contains water or gel. Two or three applications of Sevin (R) may be needed to effectively control pecan weevil infestation. Reapply the insecticide if rain occurs soon after the application. There should be an interval of 10-14 days between applications. When using any pesticide read and follow the directions given on the pesticide label carefully and use the insecticide only as directed.

Branding with confetti is making things rougher for grain thieves. Grain producers are picking up the old practice of marking small slips of paper with identifying numbers and mixing the confetti with their stored grain crop. According to producers who have been using the confetti method for some time, it takes only about seven pounds of the paper to adequately mark and identify 50,000 bushels of grain. Although the small slips of paper are virtually impossible for thieves to separate from the grain, mill operators report they have no problem in removing the confetti during their washing process. Agricultural authorities in areas where the grain identification program is used extensively report a remarkable decline in the number of grain thefts.

City's Share Of Sales Tax Up This Month

AUSTIN—State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Friday that field audits and desk examinations by his Field Operations Division during the month of July revealed an all-time one-month high of $18.3 million in additional revenue owed the state.

Field audits alone totaled $15 million for the month as compared to $18.6 million for the entire calendar year 1974.

"Investing in a sound, aggressive audit program is better than hitting it lucky on the stock market," said Bullock.

The Comptroller said field audits and enforcement officer desk examinations have turned up $88.6 million during fiscal 1976 so far, exclusive of field collections.

Checks totaling $14.5 million were mailed out to 659 cities and towns as their August rebate of the one-cent city sales tax they collect.

The August remittance check for Haskell was reported by the Comptroller to be in the amount of $4693.22. This amount was $3004.02 more than last month.

WTC Offers Associate Art Degree

SNYDER—Western Texas College has announced a new long-range plan for the Haskell extension campus.

The new plan, which emphasizes offering specific courses at given times over a long-range period, will allow students in Haskell to obtain the Associate in Arts degree in two years. Students may earn the Associate in Applied Science in Law Enforcement in a two and one-half year period, or may earn the Associate in Applied Science degree with a major in Mid-Management within two years.

All classes will be offered in the evenings at Haskell High School.

According to Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services and Registrar at WTC, the new plan is especially designed so that students may enter the program during any one semester and complete the program by consecutive attendance for two years. After two years, the program begins a new cycle.

Bill Blakley is coordinator for the Haskell extension campus. Persons wishing information about the extension classes may contact him at his office, 864-2848 or may contact Dr. Hood's office in Snyder at 915-573-7156.

Registration for fall classes is scheduled from 6:30-8 p.m. on August in the high school library. Classes will begin on Sept. 1.

A complete fall schedule and a copy of the long-range plan are included in the WTC ad in this issue of the Free Press.

CONSERVATION VIEWPOINTS
USDA Soil Conservation Service

Assisting
California Creek and Wichita-Brazos
Soil and Water Conservation Districts

James D. "Jim" Hudson, Soil Conservationist on the Haskell Field Office staff, Soil Conservation Service, has been promoted to the General Service grade 9. Jim will continue his duties at Haskell.

In addition to Hudson's regular duties of assisting farmers and ranchers of Haskell County plan and apply conservation measures, he has been assigned the responsibility of administering the Great Plains Conservation Program in Haskell County.

Hudson will also assist in the coordination of activities with the Boards of Directors of the California Creek and the Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation Districts, and the Haskell County Agricultural Conservation Program.

Farmers in the 460 Great Plains counties will be eligible for added wind erosion control cost-sharing. The USDA has announced that $15 million has been added to the 1976 ACP for this purpose. The funds will be available only in counties which now participate in the Great Plains Conservation Program and will provide for 50 to 90 percent of the cost of installing wind erosion control measures.

The Haskell County ASCS Committee is taking this additional program under advisement, and will announce their proposed program later in August.

Cost-sharing with the supplemental funds will be limited to three practices: establishing field wind breaks, permanent vegetative cover, and strip cropping systems. Special practices to solve unique local problems may also be approved.

Only annual conservation agreements will be available. The USDA also points out that payments to a farmer under the 1976 ACP, including both regular payments and payments under this special allocation are limited to $2,500.

ASCS committees have been allocated $10 million in the 10 GPCP states. The additional $5 million will be held for GPCP states which justify additional needs.

The supplemental funds were initially appropriated by Congress for immediate relief of drought-caused wind erosion problems. Because the drought has broken, the money is to be used for permanent conservation practices that will help prevent recurrence of the soil-blowing problems.

Any farmer or rancher interested in any one or all three of the aforementioned wind erosion control measures is urged to let your ASCS County Committeeman know of your interests prior to the next regular meeting of the ASCS County Committee on August 23. By so registering your interest, we will know what measures to include in the program.

The A/New Jersey (swine) flu immunization program may make parents overlook other immunizations their children need before they can enter Texas schools.

State law requires children have adequate polio, DPT (diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus), measles and rubella vaccinations before they can attend school, the Texas Medical Association says. Some school districts have additional requirements such as a smallpox vaccination or a tuberculosis tine test. In addition to these required procedures, a physician may feel additional inoculations would help a particular person. A doctor also can give advice on whether or not an individual can medically tolerate certain vaccinations.

About 5 percent of Texas school children and an estimated 10-20 percent of the preschool population do not have complete immunizations, a Texas Department of Health Resources (TDHR) spokesman says.

Even this relatively high Texas immunization level is only a small margin of protection for the public. About 35 percent of the national preschool population has incomplete immunizations and as a result there has been a recent nationwide outbreak of measles, says John Witte, M.D., the U.S. Center for Disease Control's immunization director. The outbreak, centered mainly in the Midwest, probably can be traced to cutbacks in massive immunization programs two years ago, Dr. Witte says. A similar effect was noted in 1968.

Texas immunization standards before a child can enter school include three doses of polio vaccine with at least one dose given after the fourth birthday. By the time many children are one year old, they have had three doses of polio vaccine and three DPT vaccinations. Texas does not require polio vaccinations for students over age 19. Three doses of DPT vaccine with at least one dose given after the fourth birthday also are necessary. DPT vaccine helps protect against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus.

The state also requires on measles vaccination and one rubella (German measles) vaccination. Children should be at least one year old before receiving these vaccines. If a child is 12 or older the state waives the requirements for measles and rubella vaccinations.

Parents wondering about their child's immunization records should check their own records if they know they are updated. If there is any doubt contact the physician or health department that gave the last injection. Physicians, local health departments or TDHR also can give general information on necessary injections. For free pamphlets, write: Immunization Division, Texas Department of Health Resources, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756; or Texas Medical Association, 1801 North Lamar Blvd., Austin, Texas 78701.

Rolling Plains
Economic Meet
September 9

Farmers, ranchers, agribusiness personnel, housewives and many others will gather at the Abilene Civic Center at 9:00 a.m. September 9 for the 1976 Rolling Plains Economic Program Annual Meeting.

The theme of this year's meeting is "Tomorrow's Agriculture in the Rolling Plains". It will focus on new developments in weather forecasting, crop and livestock production, and marketing, as well as the financial picture for agriculture. In announcing the meeting, Herman Probst of Anson (R-PEP Chairman) and R. C. Couch of Haskell (Vice Chairman) called attention to the five Task Force sessions featuring Beef Cattle, Swine, Cotton, Wheat and Grain Sorghum, and Family Living. Each of these will provide a wealth of information for anyone interested. In addition, general assembly topics will feature outstanding speakers on weather, financing and the future of economic development programs in Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The Rolling Plains Economic Program encompasses 29 Rolling Plains counties and is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and County Program Building Committees in each county.
