Eagles Down Tribe, 25-3

The Haskell Indians lost regional last Friday night in Snyder 25-3 to Seagraves. Seagraves, picked to win the State Title, proved to be as awesome as all reports. Their offense was hampered with fumbles but, the defense refused to allow the Indians to capitalize on the mistakes.

Of the four fumbles recovered by the Tribe, only one ended in points. The fumble was recovered by Rex Pittman near the end of the first period and four plays later, Robert Rodriguez kicked an 18 yard field goal for the only Tribe score of the game.

Seagraves scored earlier in the first period and the PAT failed. The score remained at 6-3 until the third play of the second half when Seagraves intercepted a Haskell pass and returned it for a TD. PAT failed.

Seagraves scored twice in the final period to finish the season for the Tribe. The Seagraves defense got even tougher in the second half and held the Tribe to 26 yards total offense and no first downs.

At the end of the game, Indian fans were proud of two facts: first—that the Indian team had done much better than anyone expected and earned the right to represent us in the Regional game; and second, that when faced by an outstanding football team, the Tribe refused to give up.

Head coach Don Flippin, his assistants, and the members of the Haskell Indian Football team have done an outstanding job of representing our school and community. For their long hours of hard work, and well earned achievements we offer them our congratulations and thanks for making us proud to be HASKELL INDIAN SUPPORTERS.

The Haskell Lions Club will sponsor the Goodfellow's project in Haskell again this year according to J.C. Yearly, president.

Funds collected from the project will help provide a Merry Christmas for the less fortunate families in the Haskell Area. Lion Darold Roberson will serve as chairman of the project this year.

The annual drive is aimed solely toward helping those in our area who are unable to provide a Christmas for their families. Food, Candy and toys will be distributed by the Goodfellows on December 23. The Haskell Chamber of Commerce office will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Dec. 3 and Dec. 10 to accept applications. These are the only two times when applications will be accepted.

The Lions ask for your help in this project. They ask that you remember some people will spend a sad holiday this Christmas without your help. Donations may be left at the Haskell Free Press. A list of contributors and amounts donated will be published in the paper each week.

Feed Program Available

Livestock producers who have suffered a substantial loss of feed production because of a natural disaster may be eligible to participate in the new Livestock Feed Program, according to Wm. M. Reid, Chairman of the Haskell County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has been assigned responsibility for an emergency livestock feed and drought assistance program under the 1977 farm bill signed recently by President Carter. Under the program, eligible producers may be reimbursed for up to 50 percent of the cost of feed purchased for their livestock.

The program will be administered by USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) through its farmer-elected committees. Individual farmer eligibility will be determined on a case-to-case basis by these committees with no emergency designation from Washington required before the program goes into effect in a county.

"Farmers showing a loss of 40 percent of more during the current crop year are eligible to be considered for the program" Reid said. He explained that feed purchases made during this period may be eligible for cost-share assistance even though the farmer may not have filed an application. Farmer eligibility will be determined by the county ASCS Committee. "This should result in better service to farmers since decisions will be made at the county level."

Applications for livestock feed assistance may be obtained from the Haskell County ASCS Office.

Tax Payers of Haskell County

Dear Sirs:

This letter is in response to many telephone calls from tax payers of Haskell County concerning the taxing of bank accounts. I am not aware of any county tax office in the State of Texas doing this. It has never been the policy of this office to tax bank accounts.

We of course have no way of knowing who has money on deposit; therefore, it is suggested that you advise anyone who might make inquiry, that our present policy will remain in force.

Sincerely yours,
Jimmy Owens

Taking Steps to Make School Buses Safer

Cincinnati—(PWS)—Now that the new school year has begun, some 22 million youngsters across the nation are riding to and from class each day aboard familiar yellow buses. And, if the projections are accurate, more than 35,000 children will be injured in school bus-related accidents again this year.

Obviously, school bus safety is a serious issue. The federal government, private industry and parents' groups are examining the problems involved and are taking steps to deal with them. Curved mirrors, heavy duty tires, safety glass, smooth braking devices, seat belts, back-up alarms and padded seat backs are some of the areas of concentration.

According to the National Highway Safety Traffic Administration, one of the areas that is receiving considerable attention is the padding of seats. Bare metal is commonly found on the backs and rails of school bus seats, and it can be dangerous. It poses a particular hazard in major accidents, moreover, it can be a key factor in the relatively moderate—but frequent—injuries which result when a bus stops or brakes suddenly. If a child's head or legs should hit the metal of the seat in front, he may injure his face, knees or shins. Serious tooth and jaw injuries also could result.

In accordance with recent federal regulation, the seats of all buses built after April 1, 1977 must be fitted with impact protection padding. Even though this standard does not apply to most of the school buses on the road today—since they were built before that date—more and more school districts are taking some steps to upgrade their bus fleets by installing seat back padding.

Shock-Absorbent

In response to requests from school districts throughout the country, a Cincinnati firm, Easy Way Products, manufactures and markets padding for school bus seats which is not only relatively inexpensive but also simple to install. A company spokesman says that the "energy-absorptive covers" fit handily over the backs of standard-sized school bus seats and then are permanently secured. Cost depends on volume and an entire bus can be equipped with seat covers in less than half a day.

Easy Way's pads are made from Ensolite, the shock-absorbent material manufactured by Uniroyal, Inc. Ensolite is used extensively in athletic equipment, such as football protective gear and wrestling mats, and in other high-impact applications, such as race car cockpits. It is a closed-celled material which is soft and flexible, yet durable and resilient. Every cubic inch of Ensolite contains thousands of closed cells, each of which acts to absorb shock.

School bus seat padding helps to reduce both the number and the severity of school bus injuries. And although municipal funds are often limited, some school districts and active parents' groups are not content to wait until new school buses have been purchased. According to nationwide estimates, that process could take until 1987. Actively working to make school buses safer, they are urging the appropriation of enough funds to improve their existing fleets. Conservation Viewpoints

USDA Soil Conservation Service

Assisting
Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District

"New farming techniques, such as minimum tillage, sometimes takes a while to catch on; but more and more row crop farmers are trying it and saving soil and money, quoted Marjorie Johnson in the Nov. 11, 1976 Southwest Farm Press. Ms. Johnson is editorial assistant, SCS, Ft. Worth.

"In Texas, a switch from conventional tillage to minimum tillage saves an average of about 5 gallons of tractor fuel per acre per year", said T.V. Jamieson, regional agronomist for the Soil Conservation Service. "Since some 1.5 million acres were farmed with minimum tillage last year, this amounted to a savings of some 7.5 million gallons of tractor fuel."

That's money in the pocket from my viewpoint. A little over 2200 acres of minimum tillage was reported by producers in Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District during the past year. That amounts to over 11,000 gallons of tractor fuel saved. You add your own cost for fuel and determine what the dollar savings are, and I'm sure that many more acres of minimum tillage was performed than what was reported.

Standing sorghum or small grain stubble afford the best protection from the strong winds that plague this area of Texas during the late fall, winter and early spring months. Cotton burs applied to the land make an excellent cover to protect the soil from the ravages of the wind. While protecting the soil cotton burs also return considerable plant food nutrients to the soil. I am happy to report that with the year's good cotton harvest, many tons of cotton burs are finding their way back to the land.

Farmers are using several methods of minimum tillage but none involves traditional plowing and cultivating. Some minimum tillage farmers plant a winter cover crop, such as wheat, directly into the remaining cotton stalks following stripping. This is excellent. Why bother with shredding cotton stalks, they will not interfere with grain harvest next summer.

"Since this farming system leaves the surface largely undisturbed," Jamieson said,

"residues from the previous crop protect the soil. Rain falling on bare land dislodges the soil particles and they are carried away by runoff water. Crop residues left on the surface catch the raindrops and let them trickle gently onto the soil surface."

Advantages listed by Jamieson, and local producers using minimum tillage, are:

Wind erosion is reduced to a bare minimum when crop stubble is left standing in the field. Minimum tillage also cuts the amount of polluting sediment entering water supplies, streams, lakes, and on down to the coastal bays, harbors, and estuaries.

An unfurrowed field with a protective mulch cover keeps the soil cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter. Soil moisture evaporates more slowly and soil near the surface maintains extra moisture which often extends the planting season.

Bare soil offers nothing for wildlife. Stalks, leaves, and scattered seed from a previous crop offer food and cover for game birds, deer and other wildlife.

Fewer tillage operations means less soil compaction with heavy farm equipment. In a carefully managed minimum tillage system, row crops can be grown in narrow strips that are never touched by tractor wheels.

Sen. Farabee Opposed To HEW Guidelines

State Senator Ray Farabee has contacted the federal Health Resources Administration in protest of proposed HEW guidelines.

In submitting his statement, Farabee said, "It is important that those responsible for proposing standards understand the needs of smaller cities and rural communities."

"It is not always possible for a patient to be transported to a larger city for treatment. You don't always know when you will need hospital treatment as a result of a heart attack or an accident. Hospitals and other health care facilities should not be eliminated in the same areas which are producing the food, fiber and energy that are so vital to the remainder of the country," Farabee continued.

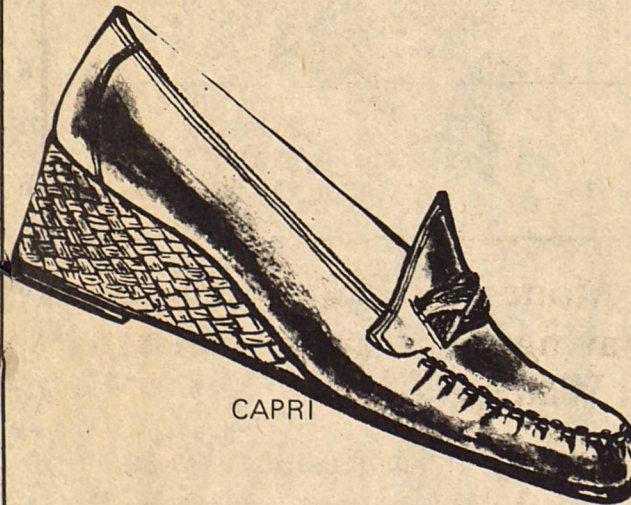

In urging HEW to consider these factors before adopting any proposed guidelines, Farabee said, "Persons in these less populous areas deserve the same quality of health care as their counterparts in larger cities. Facilities in many of these communities have been built by the people through great personal effort and expense in an attempt to meet critical needs."

Farabee said that he hopes the response from areas such as the 30th District will help preserve the existing medical facilities in smaller towns and cities.

From Alaska To Texas

David Bledsoe lifted a glass of ice water to his lips, eased back and crossed his legs. As he spoke, the tall, dark-haired 21-year-old trombonist from Fairbanks, Alaska, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert M. Bledsoe of Haskell, seemed almost as distant as the place he calls home.

Snow in July, winter temperatures of 65 degrees below zero, 24-hour days and nights, towering, unexplored mountains and the vast, unending frozen sea dominated the conversation this evening, as did the new addition to the 50th state, a long, man-made artery stretching across it north to south, carrying a black liquid instead of blood.

"It's a stimulating place physically. It has a sheer beauty, a quietness and a bigness. Enormous, snow-covered mountains and untouched, raw forests. I'd love to get a cabin up there."

But recent years have seen a change in Dave's isolated homeland, a change caused by an influx of Americans up from the continental U.S. and the big money that accompanies them.

They came fleeing the energy crisis, determined that Alaska's precious oil could delay the impact of another embargo and help make America self-sufficient in energy again.

To transport that valuable cargo, the newcomers built the Alaska pipeline, an above-ground tube that runs from the oil fields of the North Slope, an area above the Arctic Circle, to the ice-free port of Valdez, southeast of the state's largest city, Anchorage. Dave, a music major at North Texas State University worked at both ends.

On the North Slope, in Dead Horse on Prudhoe bay, near the northern end of the pipeline, Dave worked for a private firm, an air service that supplied northern camps. Those were pre-boom days, as in the summer of 1974 they were still laying out and marking the pipeline route.

"The land was very flat. There was ice on the ocean. It was all tundra, so deep you'd sink in it up to your knees. There were herds of wild caribou roaming about, and it snowed on the Fourth of July."

Dave worked as a baggage handler and bullcock (maintenance worker) for the airways, which carried the necessary supplies in helicopters.

On one occasion, when the weather was too severe to work, Dave and several pilots were "just sitting around the office."

One of the pilots, a Vietnam veteran who "wore cowboy boots, chewed tobacco and had a big moustache," saw a fox chewing on a chopper pontoon and shot it.

"He decided to skin it for its beautiful, white pelt and used his bare hands. Then he found out the fox was rabid, and he might have contracted its disease just by exposure to the animal. He had to be treated—21 shots in the gut."

During the summer of 1975, in Valdez, he labored in a large warehouse, making $11.88 per hour—plus time and a half overtime and on Saturdays, and double time on Sunday.

"I was making about $650 a week take home—$1100 a week gross. But the government took 47 percent for taxes."

Dave lived in the largest camp on the pipeline during that summer "vacation."

"The barracks held 2,200. It was worse than dorm life. The rooms were so small that the only thing they were good for was sleeping."

He spent his time in the camp, only 15 minutes from Valdez, working, eating, watching movies or playing pool.

Recent explosions, delays and technical problems have given some Americans second thoughts about the pipeline, but many Alaskans have been particularly critical, despite the economic boom.

Many thought there was too much outside hiring, Dave said. The oil companies involved in the project brought along their own people, many of whom, the main contractors in particular, were from Texas.

"There were two or three camps of nothing but Oklahomans and Texans. They partied constantly. They'd get on the bus and whip out the liquor. The Teamsters, though, did a lot to help get more in-state hiring."

Another Alaskan complaint, Dave said, was that the pipeline was hastily acted on, without proper preparations.

"The energy crisis just caused Congress to rush it through."

Besides Fairbanks, Dave has lived in Anchorage, which he calls the best place in Alaska to live, Portland, Ore., and Bloomington, Ind., where he attended Indiana University as a pre-dental student.

"After two and a half years, I was so miserable I got side-tracked. I needed to split, to leave that scene behind. North Texas's jazz department has a good reputation, and I have some family here, so I came to Texas."

Not a bad move—from one enormous state to another, one oil state to another, and from the bitter cold of the far north to the "cool" jazz scene of the South.

PCA Presents FFA Handbooks

Production Credit Associations across the nation financed the writing and artwork for the initial 10,000 copies of the new FFA Student Handbook, a new basis reference book for FFA members. Every FFA Chapter in the nation was sent an advance complimentary copy.

Rolling Plains PCA offered to provide complimentary copies to all FFA Chapters in its territory, which most Chapters accepted, with the number to be equal to 40% of each Chapter's 1976-77 enrollment.

In addition, most FFA Chapters participated in the bulk order for additional copies at a rate substantially reduced from the regular price.

The 200-page, full-color Student Handbook is a reference containing everything members need to know to advance in FFA including information on the purpose and history of FFA, parliamentary procedure, state and national activities for members, member and chapter awards, contests, leadership and personal development tips and agricultural career opportunities.

It is the first time any such undertaking has been accomplished and the FFA Teachers who have viewed the book, recognize it to be an extremely valuable tool in their teaching program.

Munday office presented Handbooks to Weinert FFA members.

FFA STUDENT HANDBOOKS are presented to Gena Fischer, Paint Creek FFA Chapter president, by R.C. Cobb, president of Rolling Plains Production Credit Association. Jimmie Cearley, FFA Advisor, watches the presentation.

File Early For Social Security

To make sure that your first social security check is on time, file your claim two to three months before you plan to retire, according to Glyn Hammons of the Abilene office. "This allows the people at your social security office enough time to do the necessary paper work and get your check to you when you are ready for it," Hammons said.

you can see one of the representatives who regularly visit your area. Remember—file your claim early.

You, yourself, can prevent delays in handling your claim by bringing all the necessary evidence with you when you file. The minimum evidence you should have with you is your social security card, evidence of your age (preferably a birth certificate or baptismal record made at or shortly after birth), and your Form W-2 for last year or a copy of your last Federal Income Tax Return, if you are self-employed.

"However, don't delay applying because you don't have all these things," Hammons said. The people in your social security office can tell you about other kinds of evidence that may be used.

Cotton crop contracting is the total subject of a study now being distributed by one of the research organizations of Texas A&M. Dr. Robert Branson, director of the Texas Agricultural Market Research and Development Center, recently summarized the report by specifying three actions which could improve cotton contracting. Since one of the major shortcomings of crop contracting has been the refusal to honor some contracts, Dr. Branson suggested formation of a central reporting agency... one which would provide financial information on buyers and delivery information on producers. Other suggestions called for a crop disaster clause in every contract and development of low-cost Government crop contracting insurance. Complete information on the report is available from Texas A&M.

Cotton Classing

Ancient writers advised anyone stung by a scorpion to sit on a donkey backwards.

Cotton prices remained about the same as last week. The demand was down over the Thanksgiving holiday period, according to Sidney Ferrell in charge of the Munday Classing Office. Prices offered ranged from 42.25 to 43.25 cents per pound for mixed lots of grade 42 and up, with high grades reduced to grade 32 basis.

Light Spotted grades accounted for 90 percent of the cotton classed with the predominant grade being grade 32 at 70 percent. Grade 42 accounted for 19 percent and grade 41 and higher was 9 percent. Staple 32 continued as the predominant length with 57 percent. Staple 31 was 28 percent and staple 33 was 13 percent. Micronaire readings in the 3.5 to 4.9 range accounted for 95 percent of the cotton tested.

About 10,900 samples were classed during the week ending November 25, bringing the season total to 98,300 samples. At the same time last year only 17,800 had been classed.

Leisure Lodge News

We want to thank the guests that came out for Open House Nov. 20, from 2-4 p.m. making our affair a success. Administrator, Lorene Beason, greeted guests. A table covered with a yellow and brown cloth displayed a Thanksgiving theme with the horn of plenty of fresh and dried fruits, nuts, pumpkin, etc. Activity Director along with other employees served punch and decorative cookies.

Mr. Carl Anderson brought the Sunday evening worship in the absence of Rev. Jimmy Griffith. Several residents were out visiting relatives on Thanksgiving, but the ones who were here enjoyed a delicious dinner of Turkey and dressing, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings. Anticipation was high on Monday morning when the count was taken for the "bean" guessing contest. An old time Tom's peanut jar was partially filled with pinto beans and each resident had three guesses for which a cash prize was given. Mr. Tom Rogers got first prize, Mr. W.O. Lewis, second, Priscilla Ford and Gladys Roberts tied for third.

Mr. Roy Moore of Goree visited Mr. W.O. Lewis on Wednesday. Mr. Lewis spent Thursday in Rule with his sister, Mrs. Florene Sorrells, and the Derrell Sorrells family.

Jean Hayne of Munday took her father, Mr. L.B. White over to Stamford to eat. Aide, Jerry Jackson had her daughter, and grandson, Mrs. David Mitchell and Brandon from Hamlin visit her.

Annie Fry visited her sister, Nannie Cobb and other residents. Mrs. Fry is from Abilene. Claude Massie from Abilene visited his brother, Joe Massie and Mrs. Ivy Massie.

Mrs. Gary Smith and daughter, Angela from Abilene visited her grandmother, Mrs. Ruth Cox. Dora Long spent Thursday with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rogers in Wolforth.

Carrie Edwards spent the day with Mrs. Pearl Holmsley on Thursday. Visitors of L.V.N. Caroline Mitchell during Thanksgiving were: Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Albuquerque and Scotty of Ft. Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Tidrow and Kory of Haskell and Mrs. Verla TaDonna. Mrs. Mitchell and family spent the week end in Andrews visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tucker and Jennifer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Gray of Munday, Mr. and Mrs. George Gray of Weinert visited Mrs. Mary A. Smith.

Medication Aide, Chris Collins had her brother, Nathan Patterson from Hamlin and niece, Dawn Hamm from Leuders as visitors.

Administrator, Lorene Beason, along with husband, Tolbert, visited her daughter,

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Pittman and family in Earth.

Mrs. Clara Hendrix had as guests, Roy Petrich and family from New Orleans, La., and Mr. and Mrs. Al Lehman from Kamay, and Mrs. Delbert Howell from Rule.

Mrs. Della Lou Cox spent a few days in Dallas with her daughter, Helen Coleman and family.

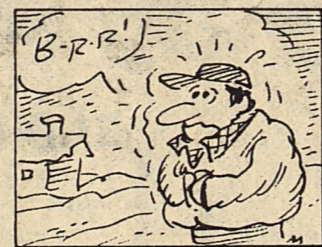

Dreamy, the gift of sleep

Judging from the number of newspaper articles on insomnia, there are millions of people to whom the best possible gift would be a good night's sleep.

While no bedding-maker can guarantee sound sleep, it's agreed by the experts that a comfortable mattress is a prime requirement. So a brand-new mattress and box spring set could be an ideal holiday gift for a member of your family, or yourself, suggests the Spring Air Mattress Company, Chicago.

The mattress should be neither too soft nor too hard. A soft mattress causes your body to sag, producing uncomfortable strains. A board-hard mattress pinches off circulation, causing you to toss and turn.

"Buy a mattress with surface comfort and firm inner support," advises the company. "Test the mattress in the store by stretching out on it." For maximum sleeping comfort, you should have a twin bed for yourself or, if you share a bed, select a queen- or king-size mattress. Two people on a standard full-size bed are often cramped for space, which can lead to sleeplessness.

When we are cold, a shiver is the body's way of producing a muscular action that generates quick heat.

Marathon Stores Oil In Salt Caverns

Golden Meadow, La.—(PWS)—Like oil and water, oil and salt also don't mix, and that is one of the rules of chemistry that led Marathon Oil Company engineers to resolve the problem of where to store millions of barrels of crude oil.

As everyone knows, Louisiana is oil country. But it's hurricane country, too, and there's been the perplexing problem for many years of finding more space for large quantities of crude pumped out of the Gulf of Mexico and elsewhere. This has to be stored somewhere until it's ready for refinement into gasoline, heating oil and the multiplicity of other petroleum products.

Then scientists at Marathon recalled the enormous sub-surface cavities that over the years had been washed out of salt deposits that lie under Louisiana bayou waters and marshlands.

Feasibility and cost studies were conducted; the hurricane factor was reviewed, and all things considered, it proved out safer, more practical and efficient to store oil in the salt caverns rather than in conventional surface tanks.

Salt caverns have been used in the U.S. for decades to store such products as butane and propane. For one thing, salt doesn't leak. For another, it doesn't react with oil. Moreover, sub-surface oil storage is virtually hazard-free. While it would be difficult to guarantee surface storage tanks against damage or rupture by ultra-high velocity winds, salt cavern storage poses no such dilemma, according to the scientists.

The technique that Marathon engineers have designed involves pumping crude oil into carrot-shaped salt caverns, thus displacing the salt water brine. The briny mixture in turn will be pumped up from below and stored in reservoirs on the surface. As additional storage space is needed in the caverns, more and more brine will be pumped into reservoirs.

Marathon experts project that crude oil storage in sub-surface carrot-shaped salt deposit cavities ultimately will hold up to 3.4 million barrels of oil daily. (PWS)

LET'S TALK ABOUT MEAT

Hamburger is a favorite dish of every American teenager. But, why is it called hamburger when there is no ham in it? You might ask your children this question the next time you serve ground beef patties and give them a history and geography lesson, too.

People of every land have enjoyed ground meat in one form or another, but the typically American hamburger had its origin in Russia. As far back as medieval times, the people of the Russian Baltic provinces considered it a delicacy to eat raw, red beef, seasoned and chopped fine. The sailors from the seaport of Hamburg, Germany, became fond of this dish and eventually introduced it at home. The Hamburgers developed a liking great enough to immortalize the dish with their name.

Later, some unknown cook formed the meat into patties and broiled them ever so lightly until they were brown and crisp on the outside and very rare within. In the early 19th century when German immigrants settled in the U.S., they brought Hamburg steak as part of their tradition of good cooking.

There are several stories about the way the meat patty and the bun got together. One story reports that Frank Menches created the sandwich at the Summit County Fair in 1892 at his fairground eatery. He ran out of bulk pork sausage and substituted ground beef in his sandwiches.

The owners of Louis' Lunch in New Haven, Connecticut, state that Louis Lassen created the hamburger sandwich in 1900 as a means of using the trimmings from the steak sandwich he featured in his lunch wagon. There also is a report that the hamburger as we know it was created at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1904 in St. Louis.

The important thing is that the hamburger caught on quickly as a delicious and economical way to get fine food and excellent nourishment. Nutritionally, all beef meat—regardless of the cut has the same amount of protein, vitamins, and minerals. While the percentage of fat in the meat will have some effect on the total amount, the degree of difference will be relatively minor.

When buying ground meat, look for meat with a bluish red color, an indication of freshly ground meat. Remember, too, ground meat is more perishable than steaks or roasts because grinding exposes more of the meat's "surface." It is best to purchase only enough ground meat for two days unless you plan to freeze it. Store the ground meat in the coldest part of your refrigerator—usually near the ice cube compartment or in a special meat keeper.

For longer storage in a freezer, try freezing the ground meat in patties. For easy separation, put two layers of waxed paper between each patty. Then wrap the patties in freezer paper or in plastic bags and freeze at 0°F. The frozen patties can be stored this way for two to three months. Whenever possible, defrost ground beef in your refrigerator. The method you use to thaw ground meat is very important to its wholesomeness, too.

Hamburger is a thrifty and versatile meat that not only is an American tradition, but is featured in restaurants and homes around the world. There may not be ham in hamburger, but there is enough good eating to influence food habits across the globe.

The yo-yo is depicted on ancient Greek vase paintings dating back as far as the eighth century B.C.

KRUEGER COMMITTED TO PROMISE—Congressman Bob Krueger of Texas, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, continues efforts to visit every town in Texas in his bid for the seat presently held by John Tower. Krueger, who expects to visit 160 predominantly rural Texas counties by the end of the year, is traveling to many towns where candidates have never campaigned to learn firsthand the problems facing Texans. His conversations with supporters throughout Texas have centered around agricultural problems, the need for rural health care, and other issues critical to the vitality of our rural communities.

Protect Yourself Against Glaucoma

You can help protect yourself against glaucoma—cause of 14 percent of America's blindness—by knowing what not to look for! That's because the disease, known as "the sneak thief of sight," usually offers no early clues to its presence. It usually causes no pain and has no symptoms. Yet it advances slowly, destroying vision, until it eventually causes blindness.

Glaucoma can be detected by a special device called the tonometer in a short, simple and painless process. Experts at The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness support a Glaucoma Alert Program and urge people over 35 to have their eyes examined at least once every two years—because glaucoma can be medically treated and permanently arrested.

EMS Program Improving

West Central Texans have a much better chance of surviving medical emergencies since the advent of Emergency Medical Services (EMS) two years ago.

Prior to July 1, 1975, EMS in West Central Texas was provided by a disjointed array of ambulances primarily run by local funeral homes. Hospitals handled surprise emergencies valiantly. Ambulance personnel at that time managed as best they could with the limited training and equipment they had.

Fortunately, things have changed drastically in the 19 counties which make up the West Central Texas area served by the Emergency Medical Service System.

EMS programs are providing sophisticated, quality care for the region. Emergency care has improved dramatically and has come to mean highly trained and specialized personnel to provide immediate treatment to the critically ill and injured. Now modern equipment stabilizes and monitors patients at the scene of an emergency and on the way to the hospital. Vital communications equipment links ambulances to hospitals and other emergency people like firemen and law enforcement officers.

Statistically, West Central Texas had made a marked improvement. In 1975, the entire area had only three ambulance services that had direct communication with hospitals; today there are 16.

In 1975 only three Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) courses had been taught in the area. Since then, 20 EMT courses have graduated and certified over 350 students.

West Central Texas now has 117 Emergency Care Attendants (ECAs) with 40 hours of training and 238 Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs) with 120 hours of training. 12 EMTs have completed an additional 140 hours of study in Advanced Airway Management. 23 EMTs have been certified for an additional 70 hours in administering intravenous medication and, as of December 21, 1977, Health Region 4 estimates the area will have 12 fully qualified paramedics.

Through matching grants, fund-raising and city and county participation, 59 well-equipped ambulances are operated by 38 city, county, hospital and private ambulance services. Most ambulances in West Central Texas have voluntarily updated and upgraded equipment and training beyond minimum standards set by the Texas Department of Health. Six ambulances in the region were purchased with federal grant funds and matching local funds. These ambulances meet guidelines set by the Department of Transportation for optimum equipment.

On July 1, 1977, the EMSS division of Health Region 4 received from the Texas Department of Health, Education and Welfare, a $300,000 grant with $55,275 of matching local funds for the development of an advanced EMS program in West Central Texas.

The new funds will be used to further improve the current system by training more people, buying more communications equipment, purchasing more training and ambulance equipment, paying coordinating staffs and contracting for specialized medical services.

The EMS program and its spin-offs have brought several new dimensions to health care in the region. Dr. Dale Brannom, medical director of the West Central Texas EMS program, has been responsible for many of the advances over the last two years.

"Physicians have been involved in teaching ECA and EMT courses all along, but now we are seeing a wider participation. As a result of stimulated interest in better care, physicians and nurses are now participating in a national burn treatment program. They are better versed in acute emergency care. There is better doctor-to-doctor communication on patient transferal which expedites specialized treatment," Brannom said.

In addition to the work health care professionals are doing in EMS, the Taylor County Division of the American Heart Association has been teaching cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) to some 3,000 persons in the region. And the Taylor County Chapter of the American Red Cross has taught about 200 courses and about 2,400 persons basic first aid in the last two years. The Red Cross also offers a course in CPR.

The net result of all of these efforts is that West Central Texans have a vastly improved probability of surviving a medical emergency. They have learned that advanced life-saving techniques are available to them and can reach them in time to help.

Improved public awareness of the need for EMS and the combined efforts of the Texas Department of Health EMS program, the medical community, the Red Cross, the Heart Association and others—the entire effort—has been effective because people in West Central Texas now expect quality emergency care. And they're getting it.

Lone Star Gas suggests HOW TO WRING ALL THE HOT WATER FROM YOUR ENERGY DOLLAR.

Set the water heater thermostat at NORMAL, which is hot enough for most household requirements. If more hot water is needed temporarily, move the setting to HOT, then reset to NORMAL.

Remember that a brief shower normally uses less hot water than a tub bath. Avoid letting hot water run needlessly when shaving, washing hands, rinsing dishes. Save hot water and the energy it takes to heat it by fixing dripping faucets. Save hot water and energy by waiting until you have full loads for the washer and dishwasher. Drain a gallon or more of water from the faucet at the base of the water heater about once a month. This prevents a buildup of mineral deposits. And this buildup causes the water heater to work harder and use more gas.

Remarkably efficient gas reaches your meter with 93% of its original energy still available — because gas is a natural energy that's used in its original form. Using it directly for the jobs it does best actually helps conserve energy.

For more suggestions, request our free booklet, "Energy Conservation in the Home."

In Panelized Homes:

Stylish Wood Windows Help Conserve Energy

If you're just passing by, a modern, well-designed, panelized home won't appear much different from a "stick-built" model. But, if you're buying, the difference in cost and construction time will be obvious. In panelized homes, wall and floor panels, roof trusses, stairs, cabinets and other components are built and assembled at a factory and then shipped to the home site. This requires substantially less completion time than the traditional method by which a house is put together "stick-by-stick" on-site. Savings in time add up to savings in labor and construction costs. The "prefab" prunners — circa World War II — of modern panelized houses were not known for their attractiveness. But today's panelized homes pride themselves on high style, quality, and some of the most desirable home features, including built-in energy savers. What makes this possible, say home manufacturers, is the availability of stock building materials that look good and have energy-efficient qualities.

At Northern Homes, a panelized home manufacturer that markets 60 different models in 11 northeastern states, vice-president Joseph Carusone credits wood windows and panel doors for the design flexibility and features that sell prospective homebuyers. One of the most marketable features is "the heat-saving value of wood windows."

Carusone believes that for today's homebuyer — of either panelized or on-site built homes, the minimum requirement is wood windows with weatherstripping and insulating glass.

"We couldn't agree more, especially in our part of the country. When buyers discover we have installed double-glazed wood windows," Carusone says, "they're confident about the other energy-saving steps we've taken with the rest of the house."

Northern Homes customers are encouraged to select the type of windows and doors they want. "Given the choice," says Carusone, "they most often choose quality wood units long associated with warmth and character in a home." A wide range of styles in wood units allows the buyer to select, and the home manufacturer to provide, windows, patio doors, panel and louver doors, and finishing materials — such as cabinetry, fixtures and trim — that are appropriate to a variety of architectural styles; be it Colonial, traditional or contemporary.

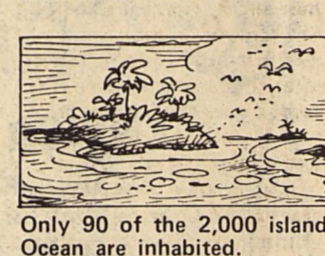

For the manufacturer, stock woodwork "gives us the design depth of a custom builder with the construction speed of a factory."

We can maintain cost effectiveness, yet adapt the design to suit an individual homebuyer's tastes," Carusone says.

Modern panelized homes pride themselves on high style and quality construction. Manufacturers attribute these desirable features to such stock building materials as wood windows with factory-installed weatherstripping and insulating glass.

For the buyer, "the beauty and energy-conservation features of wood windows and doors increase the value of the homeowning investment."

Only 90 of the 2,000 islands of Micronesia in the Pacific Ocean are inhabited.

Homebuyers, he says, love getting the best of those benefits. By using proper windows, we provide visibility, natural illumination and fresh air ventilation at the same time we've reduced energy needs and heating costs."

Right Combination Limits Condensation

There's a bonus attached to the use of energy-conserving wood windows. They also help to prevent messy condensation.

Condensation occurs when warm indoor air comes in contact with the cold inside surface of a non-thermal window. Moisture forms on the inside pane and sash and, unless constantly wiped up, drips down onto sill, wall and floor. It can cause extensive water damage.

In summer, the condensation procedure is reversed. Indoor air is cool, outdoor air warm. So it is the outside of the window that fogs up and the house siding that gets wet and stained. The year-round solution is wood sash windows, a natural insulator, with factory-applied weatherstripping to prevent air infiltration and insulating glass or storm sash to cut heat flow through the pane. This combination works because it keeps the window temperature relatively stable in all kinds of weather. This, in turn, prevents the clash between warm and cold air that causes condensation.

In tests, when wood and metal sash windows of the same size were exposed to outdoor temperatures of 20 degrees, the inside of the wood sash registered 59 degrees. The inside of the metal sash without a specific thermal barrier, however, dropped to 32 degrees. Double-glazed, weatherstripped wood windows stayed free of condensation at 30 degrees below zero. Moisture formed on metal sash windows at 20 above.

The same insulating qualities that prevent condensation also guard against fuel waste. Comparative studies show that wood sash windows with an 80 percent glass area lose 22 percent less heat than non-thermal metal sash windows — good news for homeowners who like large windows and smaller fuel bills.

"Ford pickups and ranching just naturally go together. We depend on 'em for everything."

...Says Jay Palmer of Kaufman, Texas, rancher and trainer.

"We own nothing on the ranch but Ford pickups...use 'em for haying, feeding, repairing fence, general ranch work."

"We make a lot of long trips hauling horses, pulling a six-horse trailer. There's no place to stop and we can't afford to be broke down. That's why we drive Fords. We can depend on 'em to get us there."

"Back home, the service on the Ford pickups is just the best from my Ford dealer. And that's as important as the Ford pickups themselves."

See all the Ford pickups at your Texas Ford dealer. As Mr. Palmer knows, they're built tough for Texans.

Lake Amistad Means Friendship

"Amistad" is a Spanish word meaning "friendship" and in the case of Amistad National Recreation Area, it signifies the friendship and cooperation between the United States and Mexico who together built a dam just above the cities of Del Rio, Tex. and Ciudad Acuna, Mex. Behind the dam is a crystal clear lake that is fed by three rivers—the Rio Grande, the Pecos and Devil's River. The primary purposes of the dam and lake are flood control and water conservation. But Ed Rodriguez, superintendent of the National Park Service area, said that more than a million people a year find this desert oasis to be a barrel of fun. The National Park Service manages the recreational facilities and programs on the United States side of the lake. Those activities include hunting, fishing, scuba or skin diving, swimming, hiking, boating, camping, enjoying nature and taking advantage of the international flavor of the area. If you're planning a trip to Amistad, don't worry about elbow room with the reservoir extending up the Rio Grande for 70 miles, up the Pecos for 14 and up Devil's River for 25 at conservation level. There is a combination of almost 1,000 miles of shoreline between the U.S. and Mexico sides of the lake. And the park contains more than 100 square miles. Interesting features of the park include the Bronze Eagles, placed on the dam to signify friendly cooperation between Mexico and the U.S. and "Tlaloc," the large stone carving of the Aztec Rain God on the Mexico side of the dam. "Tlaloc" stands guard over a playa that includes a picnic and beach area, several restaurants, and a marina with fishing docks. On the U.S. side, visitors will find areas with free fishing docks and easy access to certain shore sections for bank fishing. Day-use picnic shelters, tables and fireplaces, constructed by the Youth Conservation Corps, are available in some areas and shelters, tables, fireplaces and chemical toilets elsewhere. Swimmers will discover a public beach on the east end of the dam that contains a diving float, beach shelters, tables and restrooms. There is also a place for children to wade. Primitive camping is permitted along the shoreline and there are several commercial campgrounds in the area. Visitors should also take advantage of a variety of audio-visual programs presented in and around the recreation area by park rangers. If you are planning to visit a National Park Service area on your vacation, write the agency at P.O. Box 728, Room N-3, Santa Fe, N.M. 87501 for a free SUPER 77 trip planner which lists NPS areas within an easy drive of your home and charts facilities and activities at each.

Washington

"As It Looks

From Here"

OMAR BURLESON
Congressman — 17th District

WASHINGTON, D.C. — SOON AFTER PRESIDENT CARTER AND HIS FAMILY moved into the White House, stories began to appear at intervals about White House mice. As time has gone on, this seems to be about what happened.

THE MORAL EQUIVALENT OF WAR—the term used by the President in describing his energy proposals—began after two mice scampered across the carpet of the President's office while he was conferring with an assistant. Quickly, crack operators of the General Services Administration, the agency for housekeeping at the Mansion, were summoned. An operation was started against the rodents.

LATER, JUST BEFORE THE HEADS OF LATIN AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS arrived for the signing of the Panama Canal treaty, one mouse went to his reward within the walls of the Cabinet Room. The odor made it a fact beyond a presumption. That, of course, is the kind of thing a foreign head of another government might snicker and tell about when he got back home. Obviously, it would become sort of a "ring around the bathtub" joke unless something was done.

THE GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION people were called in again and told about the situation and how embarrassing it could be. So the story goes, the GSA people insisted they had gotten rid of the "indoor" mice population and that the decedent in the walls had to be a mouse not in residence when they started the campaign against them. This made the mouse in the wall an "outside" mouse and, hence, the responsibility of the Interior Department which cuts the lawn, prunes the trees and hedges inside the fence around the grounds.

NOT SO, SAID THE INTERIOR. They reasoned that since the mouse carcass, regardless of the place of origin, was within a White House wall, it was bound to be an "inside" mouse. Now, this is serious business for the GSA and the Interior and it was no small matter to determine whose responsibility it was.

ALTHOUGH THERE IS NO RECORD of exactly what followed, the assumption is that the bureaucrats from both these agencies were brought into the Oval Office and offered thoughts on the matter. A compromise was reached in which an "inter-agency task force" was forged to dispose of the dead mouse. The assumption again is that the expertise of both agencies was drawn on to accomplish the mission.

THOSE WHO HAVE HAD THE BENEVOLENCE of the Government looking over their shoulder might draw on this episode to describe some of their own experiences.

THERE IS NO GREATER INTRUSION than when one bureaucracy invades the turf of another. There may be shifting of responsibilities after the fact sometimes when things go wrong, but jurisdiction is exceedingly important and it might be added that this is not peculiar to the bureaucracy. The Congress, with its Committee system, claims strict prerogatives if one Committee intrudes the least on another's jurisdiction. The Chairmen of those Committees or Subcommittees immediately raise objections and the dispute has to be resolved under the rules.

"INSIDE-OUTSIDE MOUSING" is frequently descriptive of our institutional processes and at times it seems that the prerogatives and jurisdiction seem more important than solving whatever is needed to be solved.
