

'81 GRADUATES

Congratulations!

This edition of the Haskell Free Press salutes the members of the 1981 graduating class of Haskell County.

A total of 105 seniors will cross stages within the next two weeks and embark on new journeys.

With the diploma comes the responsibility of some level of planning for the future. Much of this planning will result from individuals environment.

Most speakers at graduation ceremonies traditionally expound on the good and emphasize that things are not always as bad as they seem.

An example of this was found recently and is printed below.

"It's a gloomy moment in the history of our country.

"Not in the lifetime of most men has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time.

"The domestic economic situation is chaos. The dollar is weak throughout the world. Prices are so high as to be utterly impossible. The political cauldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud, dark, and silent, upon the horizon. It is a solemn moment, of our troubles, no man can see the end."

The encouraging thing about the above is that it is a direct quote from an 1847 issue of Harper's Magazine.

A positive attitude is often all that is needed to succeed.

Fertilize Fish Ponds

Applying a commercial inorganic fertilizer to sport fish ponds can double fish production, says a fisheries specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Fertilizer increases phytoplankton (minute floating plants) growth, the main link in the aquatic food chain. Use 100 pounds of 20-20-5 fertilizer per surface acre of water for the first application in March or April and continue applications at two-week intervals until hot weather sets in, about June 1.

Americans Delaying Retirement

More Americans are putting off retirement than ever before, Bonnie Piernot, a family resource management specialist, reports.

While inflation and the persistent climate of economic uncertainty are two key reasons for this trend, there are two contributing factors, also, she explains.

They are increased longevity and the ability to work later in life due to the improved medical care and the psychological rewards of work.

Little League News...

BY PAWNEE GRUPE

May 4th—a beautiful day. There was excitement in the air. Everyone from 7 to 70 was talking. This was the big day—Haskell Little League officially opened. Yes, there was a lot of excitement in the air but as we sat in the stands there was also sorrow. Haskell opened this season without a very dedicated, loving coach, Maurice Mahoney. Mr. Mahoney never hesitated to help. He spent a lot of time and talent with our young boys. Mr. Mahoney will certainly be missed.

The opening ceremony started at 6:00 with Bill Lane announcing the team members & coaches. Roberta High led the crowd in the "Star Spangled Banner" and James Lanier led in prayer.

The Eagles and the Cubs started the year off. George Watson (Eagles) hit a triple and Stephen Holt (Eagles) made a triple on errors. Roy Graham (Cubs) made a double. Cubs pitcher, Dewayne Rogers, did some fine pitching.

The first home run of the season was made on Tuesday night by Robert McAdams (Tigers) the first time he was up to bat. Congratulations Robert. Ponciano Lopez (Rams) hit a double.

Jerry Hunt (Cubs) hit his homerun in Thursday night's game against the Hawks.

Not to be outdone, Jimmy Steadham (Tigers) hit a homerun in Friday's game. It was in this game that Stephen Holt (Eagles) knocked in two runs when he hit a triple.

The teams playing Sat. night have to be commended for the perseverance. When kids, coaches and parents stay out in that type of weather to play ball, you know that they either have to love baseball or else love someone playing. It was in the midst of hurricane force winds (at least that is what it seemed like) that the Rams and Hawks battled it out in extra innings. Ponciano Lopez (Rams) and Michael Mendoza (Hawks) both hit doubles. It was a good game.

Coaches—please get the information on your teams to me.

Footprint Program Started At Six Flags Over Texas

Visitors to Six Flags Over Texas will soon have the chance to stand in the footprints or try to match the handprints of some of the biggest stars in show business.

The theme park has announced plans for a Plaza of the Stars to be located at the entrance to the Music Mill Theater where dozens of top entertainers appear in concert each season.

The vocal group Sister Sledge became the first entertainers to take part in the new program as they put their handprints and autographs into a slab of wet concrete prior to their recent concert.

The park's general manager, Ray Williams, said the Sister Sledge prints and autographs will be the first to be permanently made part of the plaza outside the theater.

Rapid growth of the display is insured by the park's lineup of talent for this season. In coming weeks such names as Merle Haggard, Larry Gatlin and the Oak Ridge Boys will be invited to put their handprints and often their shoe (or boot) prints in concrete for their fans to see and "measure" for years to come.

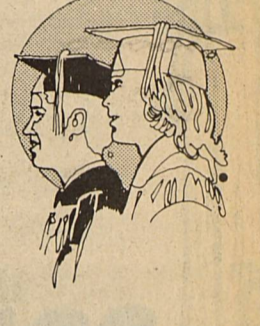

"I just wish we had started this new attraction earlier," Williams said. "Since 1971, we have had more than 300 top name entertainers appearing in concert at the park and we'd have quite a display by now. But, now with more than twenty acts already booked for this year, the Plaza will contain a very impressive lineup of star memorabilia."

Williams said the imprints are placed in a special buff-colored concrete, the mixing of which is carefully timed so that the concrete will reach exactly the right stage of firmness at the time the star is scheduled to arrive.

"It's a tricky process," Williams said, "but, it's well worth it. Besides that, it seems to be fun. The Sledge Sisters had a great time putting their imprints in the initial slab. It's something we all wanted to do as kids, but we knew we'd get a spanking for it."

Paperwork Piles Caused By IRS

Dealing with the Internal Revenue Service is no fun for anyone, and in many cases is no easy chore.

This photo illustrates the burden placed on oil producers to meet IRS requirements concerning the windfall profits tax on crude oil production. The mounds of paper shown here represent only about 10 percent of the approximately 351,000 documents sent by Getty Oil Company to oil interest owners in compliance with IRS demands.

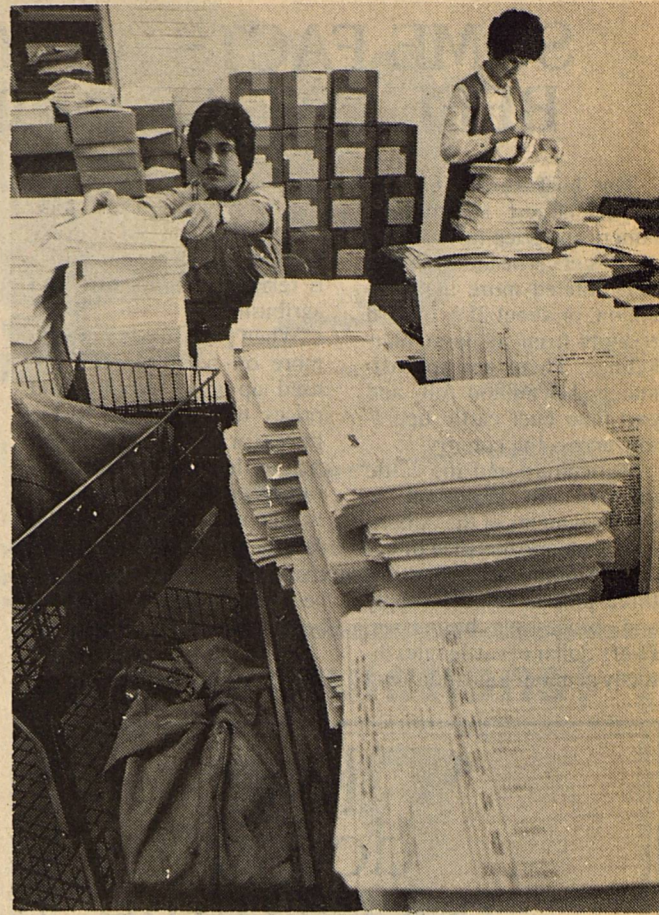

The documents—Form 6248, the annual statement of windfall profits tax; and a detailed statement of monthly oil payments made during 1980—were sent to more than 27,000 interest owners in the company's Central and Southern exploration and production divisions alone.

These documents contained more than 14 million lines of information and were printed at the rate of two pages per second on a high-speed printer. Operators worked more than six eight-hour shifts to complete the job, and more than 2,000 man hours were required in programming and computer time to print the forms.

For six days, four mail clerks sorted, stapled and stuffed documents into envelopes for mailing before the March 31 deadline.

Most individuals and companies who received income from oil production in 1980 will use Form 6248 to support credit for tax withheld or a deduction on their tax return.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE BEEF CATTLE INDUSTRY

The beef cattle industry is the largest segment of American agriculture. Annual sales of cattle and calves in 1979 totaled more than $35 billion, or about 25% of cash receipts from all farm marketings. There are approximately 1.3 million full- and part-time beef cattle operators across the country.

$5-$6 of business activity in the farm supply and food businesses. One-out of every five jobs in private enterprise is related to agriculture and agribusiness.

When consumers spend more on beef, supplies are used up more rapidly, and prices tend to rise. Rising prices (or lower costs) are signals to the hundreds of thousands of individual producers to increase numbers of cattle. When prices decrease, or costs increase rapidly, numbers tend to be reduced, and beef supplies decrease.

The continued availability of beef at relatively favorable prices has been made possible by the efficiency of modern beef production, with its scientific technology and increased mechanization. Output per man-hour in agriculture has increased almost twice as fast as in manufacturing industries.

The beef cattle industry is important in part because it converts otherwise wasted resources into essential protein and other nutrients. Eighty percent of the feed consumed by beef cattle in the U.S. comes from roughages and by-products not edible by man, and that does not include some 900 million acres of grazing land. The grain that is fed to cattle is not food grain, but feed grain, like field corn and grain sorghum.

Fifty percent of the land area of the world, including 40% of the land in the U.S., is classified as grazing or range land—land which cannot be used to produce cultivated crops. Without ruminant (four-stomached) animals like cattle, this land would go to waste as a renewable resource for food production. Ruminants, with their ability to digest cellulose (which makes up three-fourths of the world's plant material), offer the only way to harvest food from the billions of acres of land which are too rough, too dry or not fertile enough to produce crops.

Per capita supplies of beef on a retail weight basis were about 78 lbs. in 1980. This converts, in turn, to approximately 38 lbs. of cooked, edible beef consumed per person per year. On a daily basis, this amounts to only about 1.7 oz. per day, or considerably less than the 3 to 6 oz. of meat recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as the daily allowance.

The beef cattle industry prides itself on its product—and on its continued ability to operate efficiently and independently in a free enterprise system.

Rolling Plains PCA Members Hold Meeting

Stockholders, friends and employees of Rolling Plains Production Credit Association met Friday, May 1, in Childress and Saturday, May 2, in Stamford for their 47th Annual Stockholders Meeting.

Highlights of the business session of the meeting included the election of two directors. B. H. DeBusk of Anson and W. J. Boykin of Northfield were re-elected for three-year terms. Other PCA directors are Willard H. (Snooks) Williams of Spur, Dan Henard Jr. of Wellington, and Garon B. Tidwell of Munday.

James A. Rogers, Senior Vice President of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank in Houston, attended both sections of the meeting and brought greetings from the FICB. He reassured the stockholders that the FICB was "gearing up" for the future and will be prepared to meet the agricultural credit needs of tomorrow. He discussed what these needs might be which included more long-term financing, on-farm computers, and the financing of a marketing program for farmers as they move further up the ladder in marketing their commodities.

Garon B. Tidwell, Director from Munday, gave the Report from the Board. Mr. Tidwell stated that the drought of 1980 had initiated a review of the Association's credit policy and lending philosophy. He also reported that Rolling Plains PCA equals or exceeds the generally accepted standards in areas such as financial, credit, operations, personnel, member and public relations and business development.

R. C. Cobb, President of the Association, reported to the stockholders that a significant drop in interest rates could not be foreseen for this year; however, the Association is charging only 1/2 of 1% above its cost. Mr. Cobb recently testified before a House Subcommittee on cotton and he informed the stockholders that he had shared with the members of the Subcommittee the concern that the farmers' operating costs keep increasing without corresponding increases in commodity prices.

After discussing high interest rates and low commodity prices, JoVan Sears from Houston created a welcomed outburst of laughter. Her witty, humorous presentation kept the room shaking and the tears rolling. Everyone who heard her will agree, that "city" girl really knew how to entertain those "country" folks.

Five men were elected to serve on the 1982 Nominating Committee. They were M. C. Jones, Matador Office; Claude Andrews, Childress Office; Jimmy Perryman, Spur Office; James Smith, Munday Office; and Lynn White, Stamford Office.

Present Association officers are: R. C. Cobb, President; Bill L. Glenn, First Vice President and Secretary; Lloyd M. Blackwell, Vice President; S. C. Ferguson, Vice President; Joe A. Hanson, Treasurer and Assistant Secretary; Eddie Mitchell, Vice President and Childress Office Manager; Alan R. Bingham, Assistant Vice President and Matador Office Manager; and Mike Sloan, Assistant Vice President and Munday Office Manager. Randy Arnold, who is Manager of the Spur Office, was appointed Vice President in a Board Meeting which followed the Stockholders Meeting.

Embargo Lifted

Lifting of the U.S. grain embargo against Russia is good news to Texas farmers, maintains an economist in marketing and policy with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Ron Knutson pointed out that with the wheat harvest less than two months away, this move should provide added market strength at harvest.

"In the short to intermediate term, it should mean grain price increases in the range of 5 to 7 percent. The longer term impacts, while more important are uncertain," Knutson, who earlier had served as a member of President Reagan's transition team, said.

"Under the long-term trade agreement, if the Soviet Union wants to buy over 8 million metric tons of wheat and feedgrains, it must consult with U.S. officials," he added.

This process of consultation or negotiation will now begin, and involves:

1. Additional quantities of wheat and feedgrains that we will allow the Soviets to purchase through Sept. 30.

2. Development of a new long-term trade agreement specifying minimum purchase by the Soviets over a period of up to five years.

3. The quantities the Soviet Union is advised it can purchase after Sept. 30, over and above the minimums specified in the long-term trade agreement.

The Reagan administration has already indicated a desire to negotiate a new long-term trade agreement. Ideally, this should be completed by Sept. 30, 1981, when the old agreement expires, Knutson said.

"Another uncertainty is just how much grain the Soviets might want to buy from the U.S. after the embargo experience. Feedgrains and soybeans should be no problem in this regard. World supplies are tight, and we supply about 80 percent of this market," he said.

Wheat is more uncertain. Argentina, Australia and Canada already have trade agreements with the Soviets. The French also want to sell. The wheat market will likely to be the most difficult to recover—but the most important to Texas since wheat is our largest grain source of income," Knutson added.

Good Nutrition Is Essential For Herd

Herd nutrition is essential for cattlemen wanting to produce one calf per cow each year.

"A cow's reproductive performance is directly related to her plane of nutrition," says Dr. Larry Boleman, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"As the plane of nutrition decreases, reproductive performance is the first affected," Boleman explains.

Supplying supplemental feed to the range beef cow corrects nutritional deficiencies as needed.

"Dry winter forage generally will not meet the higher nutrient demands of the lactating cow, lactating first-calf heifer or the growing calf," says the specialist. "Thus supplemental feeding is necessary."

Often beef producers have problems deciding on the amount and choice of supplement, which varies because of ranch location, management systems, rainfall and other factors.

"Nutrient requirements of the beef animal depend on age, condition, weight, stage of production and milking ability during lactation," Boleman notes.

"For instance, thin cows may need to gain 100 to 150 pounds by calving time while those in average shape need to gain only 60 to 80 pounds. After calving for three or four months, a cow needs 60 percent more energy and more than twice as much protein per day as at other times."

Once cattle requirements have been determined, the herd should be separated according to these needs, and the approximate nutrient composition and availability of forage should be determined.

"Once a cattleman knows the nutrient needs of his cattle and nutrients available through hay or forage, it's easy to determine the amount of protein supplement, if any, that is needed to meet nutritional requirements," Boleman concludes.

Horn Worms Abundant In County

Large numbers of hornworms, white-lined sphinx larvae, are present on rangeland and in weed rows in Haskell County.

The larvae when full grown are nearly 3" in length and have a horn on the end of the abdomen. Their color markings are variable with the most common being greenish-yellow with black markings. Some are almost completely black with yellow lines.

Host plants include purslane, Russian Thistle, chickweed, cotton, vegetable crops, roses, apple, elm, ash, watermelons, buckwheat and many other plants.

Only occasionally do large populations of white-lined sphinx larvae appear to swarm over the host plants as is now the case in part of the county. These large larvae can be seen crossing roads where host plants are present on either side.

There are two or three generations each year but heaviest concentrations generally occur about this time of year.

YESTERDAY'S COWBOY IS TODAY'S AGRIBUSINESSMAN

Ask today's cattleman where his "cowboys" reside and he's likely to steer you toward the feed storage shed. While the legend of the cowboy lives on through the rodeo, the men on the range have been replaced by a more sophisticated and educated breed of stockmen who are using feed as a management tool.

"When I was a boy, we used to work our cattle with horses," says Oklahoma stockman Sidney Hobbs. "But now, I can do the entire job myself with a sack of supplement in the back of my pick-up truck."

"Many feed formulations previously designed for added convenience have taken on added significance in today's economy because they help reduce the sky-rocketing costs of labor and transportation," states Dr. Danny Williams, manager of applied beef research for the Ralston Purina Company, which provides many of these "convenience" products.

"Traditionally, feed supplements were fed every day throughout the winter," says Williams. "But rising costs have caused many cattlemen to utilize liquids and self-limiting supplements. These supplements help balance cattle diets without requiring daily feeding. The supplements can be fed through a lick tank or self-feeder for extended periods of time."

Liquid Usage Up

The increasing popularity of liquid supplements is evidenced by a Liquid Feed Symposium report which indicated that annual liquid feed usage has increased to 2.7 million tons.

Dr. T.W. Perry, professor of animal nutrition at Purdue University, believes the two primary reasons for rising liquid supplement usage are cost efficiency and the ability to feed free choice. "Most of the literature I've seen shows that liquid supplements perform as well as dry urea-fortified supplements," he says.

One cattleman who would agree with Perry is Iowa cowman Ray Brown. "Without proper protein and balanced nutrients," he says, "I couldn't get my genetics to working. I make it a point to feed a well researched quality ration." Brown supplements his grass pasture with an homogenized liquid supplement called Sup-R-Lix, fed from lick tanks.

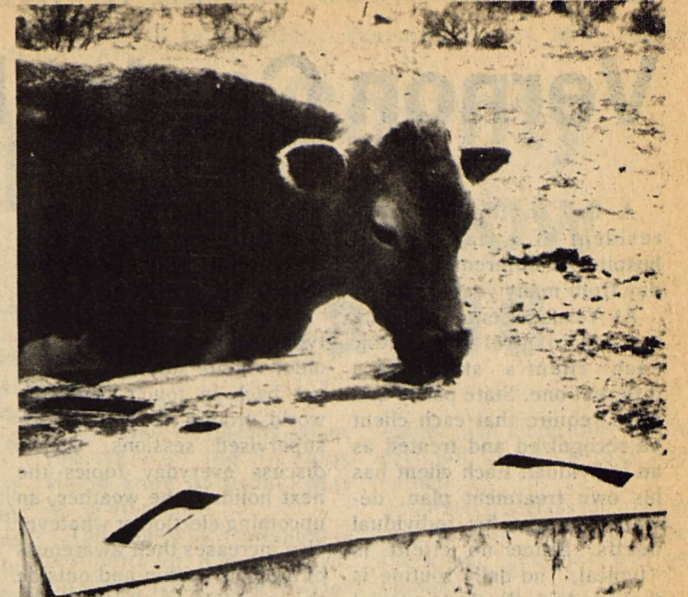

According to Williams, homogenization is one key to the increasing popularity of this liquid supplement. "Because all the ingredients are equal in size, Sup-R-Lix will not settle out, ensuring that cattle will get the same nutrients any time they go to the lick tank."

For cattlemen who prefer a dry supplement, Accuration can be a real time saver according to Williams. "One of the main reasons many cattlemen have tried Accuration is labor. You don't have to round-up. You don't have to scatter cakes so labor is minimized. And, in many cases, the dealer fills the feeders further saving the cattleman time," he explains.

Designed to be fed with a wide variety of roughage sources—range, pasture, cornstalks or stubble—Accuration induces cows to consume roughage first. It differs from most intake limiters in that it does not rely on salt to control intake. This is beneficial because self-feeders don't have to be located near stock water.

While Williams agrees that prepared feeds can be helpful to the hard-working cattleman, he cautions that they are not substitutes for personal care. "In one respect, the cattle industry hasn't changed one bit. Anyone who's been successful at running livestock really cares about the welfare of his herd. Good feeding programs help, but there is no substitute for sound management."

While lick tank feeding is undoubtedly a convenient method of supplementation, Purina researchers urge cattlemen to choose a liquid which will remain consistent.

Congratulations!

The Best of Luck!

Cotton producers by planting after the uniform planting date during recent years have demonstrated the value of this cultural boll weevil control technique.

Cotton planted after May 18 will not begin to produce 1/3 grown squares until around July 1. Research has shown that most overwintered boll weevils will have died by that time. Boll weevils must lay their eggs in squares at least 1/3 grown (1/4 inch in diameter) for them to survive.

The combination of the uniform planting date and the hot day conditions last year reduced boll weevil populations during the entire growing season. The weather conditions also drastically reduced cotton production. This year with all producers

Du Bois Selected Citizen Of Year

Christine Du Bois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas, of Haskell, has been selected corporate citizen of the year of Pittsburg Plate Glass.

She will accept the award during special ceremonies in Pittsburg in June. In addition to the National Award she was named the citizen of the year of PPG's local contest in Corpus Christi.

She will receive a $1,000.00 award from the national level and a $200.00 award from the local contest. Both awards will be presented to the charity of her choice.

Selection to the honor was planting after May 18, boll weevils should not be a problem during the growing season.

A partial to a complete boll weevil generation can be produced in early planted fields. When cotton is planted after the uniform planting date the cotton season is shortened and boll weevils have less time to produce damaging numbers. Also, the first generation is produced in early July when hot temperatures usually reduce the number of boll weevil larvae that survive in the squares.

Vernon Center Provides Individual Needs

A day in the life of a resident of a state mental hospital—a different story today from many years ago.

At Vernon Center, a State mental hospital at Vernon, each client's story is a different one. State policy and rules require that each client be recognized and treated as an individual. Each client has his own treatment plan, devised to meet his individual needs. Since no client is "typical," no daily routine is typical. And, thanks to special activities, the routines themselves are sometimes not so routine.

As a geriatric client begins his day, he may need help from a staff member to perform the simple tasks—finding his glasses or his dentures, buttoning his shirt or tying his shoes.

Exercises follow breakfast. Clients are encouraged but not required to participate. Other activities available to the older clients are much the same as for other residents of the Center—occupational therapy (crafts), bus rides off campus, television, table games (dominoes are popular), an occasional meal at a local restaurant.

Reality orientation is one type of therapy which helps older clients stay in touch, or get back in touch, with the world around them. In staff-supervised sessions, clients discuss everyday topics—the next holiday, the weather, an upcoming election or whatever else increases their awareness of life both within and outside the confines of the hospital. The sessions also benefit long-term psychiatric clients. Newspaper articles often serve as the basis for the group discussions. Reality orientation helps clients hold on to what they know about life, or it enables them to refresh their memories about things they once knew but have forgotten.

Weekly bus rides give all clients, geriatric included, a chance to go off campus. Special trips are planned from time to time to events such as the local livestock show, community concerts and the local rodeo.

Special psychiatric clients are usually fairly independent. As the day begins, most can select their own clothes and dress themselves. Each client makes his own bed and straightens his quarters. Near his bed he may have a hooked rug or some other item he has made for himself in occupational therapy sessions.

Work may take up several hours in the special psychiatric client's day. He may work either in the Sheltered Workshop on campus, where assembly line tasks are the rule, or in a client-worker job either on or off campus where he performs a job commensurate with his skills, judgment and sense of responsibility.

Wages are paid on a graduated scale, according to the client's abilities. Whatever the task, work experience helps prepare the client to enter the job world if and when he is discharged, not to mention the inherent therapeutic value of work. Clients also enjoy having the extra spending money they earn for themselves.

Another part of the day may be devoted to a trip to the on-campus barber or beauty shop or to the canteen. Some special psychiatric clients go to school on campus, either to earn a high school diploma or General Equivalency Diploma (G.E.D.), or to take special classes in skills for everyday living, such as budgeting or cooking.

General psychiatric clients participate in many of the same daily activities, with their schedules weighted more heavily toward counseling. The average length of stay for a general psychiatric client is only 60 days. Their problems are "acute," as opposed to "chronic," and a short, intensive course of treatment is generally the most effective.

Many general psychiatric clients participate in one or two regularly scheduled therapy groups or individual counseling sessions or both, according to their own preferences.

They also take part in the Center's recreational program—weekly movies and dances, bingo, volleyball, exercise classes and so on. They enjoy the library, provided by Volunteer Services, and their unit dayrooms, where they can read, watch television, visit and write letters.

As they progress in their treatment, many take overnight or weekend passes home. These short visits help both client and staff determine when the client is ready to be discharged and return to normal life.

Alcoholic clients follow a very structured schedule and are usually admitted for even shorter lengths of stay than general psychiatric clients, the average stay being 28 to 35 days. For clients who are readmitted to the program, the usual stay is 21 days.

Besides exercise, occupational therapy, recreational activities and the other Center activities, alcoholic clients attend daily lectures on alcohol and alcoholism. Group therapy sessions are designed to help them analyze themselves and their problems. Alcoholic Anonymous holds an open meeting on campus every Friday. Clients may also attend the weekly A.A. meeting in Vernon.

Vernon Center strives to meet all the basic needs of all its clients. A full-time chaplain is available to clients on an individual basis. Non-denominational worship services are held every Sunday in the Auditorium for clients who wish to attend.

A staff of doctors and psychiatrists prescribes and oversees all medical treatment. The Center has a well-equipped physical therapy building, as well as speech, vision and dental labs. A full-time dentist treats clients' dental problems and oversees a dental hygiene program.

The average client population of the psychiatric, geriatric and alcoholic units of Vernon Center is about 350. The Center also operates a rural unit south of Vernon for drug dependent adolescents.

Many clients are treated each year as outpatients through the Center's Outreach program, a network of community mental health clinics serving a 14-county North Texas area, including Haskell County.

Opened in 1969, Vernon Center is one of eight mental hospitals operated by the State.

Short Trips Add Variety To Vacations

A back-yard vacation really can be fun...if you count the "back yard" as a nearby region that can be reached on one tank of gas, round trip.

To help Texans and visitors alike find out what's going on in Texas back yards this summer, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has issued a Calendar of Texas Events covering activities from April through September.

Large towns and small, big events and some not-so-big—all are listed across the length and breadth of Texas.

Since back-yard vacationing usually means alfresco dining, consider the variety listed in the Calendar: hushpuppy olympics, a snake fry, festivals featuring oatmeal, strawberries, watermelon, sausage, dairy products, rice, peaches and corn. And there are cookoffs: gumbo, enchilada, rabbit, fajita, pie, pecan, cornbread and pinto bean.

In other back yards they'll be barbecuing chicken, or beef, or goat, or hamburger. There's a soul food festival, and an ice cream freeze-off. And chili simmers everywhere by the tub-full.

The entertainment runs from the colorful, 10-day Fiesta San Antonio to dozens of local rodeos. Among golf tournaments there's one for left-handers; there's a sandcastle-building contest, and a championship sling-shot tournament.

While neither a rattlesnake roundup nor a symphony concert will appeal to everyone, there's sure to be something for any taste among the nearly 900 listed events. For a free copy of what's going on in Texas' back yards, visit any Texas Tourist Bureau, or write Calendar, Dept. DHT, Box 5064, Austin 78763.

Dealing With Stings Is Summertime Problem

With the return to outdoor activities this spring comes once again the hazard of bees and wasps.

For most of us the venom of a stinging insect hurts and is annoying, but is not a serious health problem. For some the bee sting can kill. Those are the individuals who are allergic to stings. Insect stings cause more deaths yearly than snake bites, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care. The most common stinging insects are bees, hornets, wasps, yellow jackets, bumble bees and fire ants.

The sting causes pain, swelling, redness, itching and burning. If stung by a honey bee, carefully remove the stinger by gently scraping with a knife blade or finger nail. Wash with soap and water. Place ice wrapped in cloth or cold compresses on the sting area. Soothing lotions such as calamine or a paste of baking soda and a little water are often helpful in relieving discomfort.

Those allergic to insect stings suffer from a condition known as anaphylactic shock. It can occur sometimes from only one sting if the victim has been stung previously.

Insect sting shock symptoms include severe swelling in other parts of the body, such as around the eyes, lips and tongue. Weakness, coughing or wheezing, severe itching, stomach cramps, nausea and vomiting, anxiety, difficulty in breathing, dizziness, collapse, unconsciousness and hives or rash over the body often follow quickly after the sting.

It is important to open an airway and restore breathing. Some experts suggest using a tourniquet in severe reactions where life might be at stake. Emergency insect sting kits available only by prescription sometimes contain a tourniquet. It can be used only if the sting is on an arm or leg. Don't tie it too tight and loosen every five minutes until medical help arrives. A watchband or belt can serve as a tourniquet.

Place cold compresses on the sting area. Keep the victim lying down unless he is short of breath. Then let him sit up. Keep victim quiet and comfortable. If a first aid kit for insect stings is available use it according to the directions.

Garden Series Offers Complete Tips

It's safe to say that if insects and diseases are not a problem in your garden right now, chances are they will be before long.

You may or may not want to use chemicals for pest control. This is one of the real advantages of growing your own vegetables. You can do it any way you want to! Plant by the moon, sprinkle irrigate, choose your own varieties, or garden without pesticides. It's your garden and you make the decisions.

For the sake of today's column, let's assume that you're one of the large number of local gardeners who will choose to control garden pests using cleared and recommended chemicals. Proper use of chemicals poses no threat to you or the people who enjoy eating vegetables from your home garden. However, if the label on the chemical product you use says one teaspoonful per gallon of water, that's what it means. If the label says to wait three days after spraying before harvesting, it doesn't mean you have to wait a week or more. Follow directions on the container to the letter. If you do this, you won't have any problems with possibly dangerous chemical residues.

Using chemicals for pest control generally means "spraying" to most gardeners. Therefore, you are going to need a sprayer of some type depending on garden size, location, layout and intended use.

Sprayers used most often in local gardens are compressed air and hose-on sprayers. Compressed air sprayers are mobile, self-contained units that are pressurized by periodic pumping. They come in various sizes and are made of either plastic, galvanized steel or longer-lasting stainless steel. An obvious advantage of compressed air sprayers is that they are completely portable. However, this portability is directly proportional to your strength. In other words, a 5 gallon compressed air sprayer is heavy and unless you're physically able to lift and tote it around, don't try it. If your garden is small, a 2 gallon sprayer is probably all you'll need.

A hose-on sprayer is attached to the end of a hose, from which it receives its pressure. It's popular because it's light and doesn't need repressurizing by periodic pumping.

The main disadvantage of a hose-on sprayer is that it can only reach the length of your garden hose. Another problem arises in mixing ingredients. These sprayers operate on the principle of siphoning a concentrated amount of material and mixing it with a stream of hose water. To be easily siphoned, the mix must be liquid; yet many insecticides and fungicides are in the wettable powder form.

Although these materials are meant to be suspended in water, thorough mixing is difficult sometimes. To avoid some of the problems of plugging up the sprayer, it's a good idea to pre-mix wettable powder pesticides in a small bowl. This helps assure that large particles are broken up and will not clog the siphoning hose.

Regardless of the type of sprayer you use, it's important that you keep it in good condition. Rinse it thoroughly after each use to avoid future problems. If you use a compressed air sprayer, store it bottom side up with the hose drained.

Safe and proper use of garden chemicals can help most of you have a more productive garden. However, you must always use only recommended chemicals, treat only when necessary, follow label directions, and remember to take care of your equipment.

The next article will discuss how to prevent and control common diseases found in your vegetable garden.

Five County Horse Show Set May 16

The Knox City Arena will be the scene of the 5-County Horse Show Saturday, May 16, at 10 a.m.

The show which is limited to residents of Knox, Foard, Haskell, King, and Baylor Counties will be judged by Jimmy Poole of Stephenville.

The show will feature novice classes for beginning horsemen. It is hoped that youth in the five county area who are not experienced showmen will take advantage of these classes to get started showing in the judged events and/or running in the timed events. The age division in the novice classes will be the same as in the regular classes, which are 13 and under and 14 through 18.

Open classes are available for adults and any youth wishing to enter them. Points earned will count only in the division in which they are earned.

A walk/trot class for youth 6 and under will also be featured. Leadline will be optional.

A contestant may enter as many horses as he likes, but must declare his point horse when entering.

There will also be halter classes for stallions, mares and geldings. Stallion handlers must be at least 19 years old.

Performance classes will include showmanship, western pleasure, western horsemanship, reining, trail, barrels, flags and poles. No stallions allowed in youth performance classes.

ECC Recognized As Focal Point

The West Central Texas Council of Governments in its role as the Area Agency on Aging has recently designated the Haskell Senior Center as a Community Focal Point for services to senior citizens in the Haskell County area.

According to Federal Regulations pertaining to the Older Americans Act, a Community Focal Point is "a place...in a community or neighborhood designated...for the collocation and coordination of services to older persons."

Considerations for designation in the regulations and in criteria established by the West Central Texas Council of Governments include the variety of services offered by the Center, the number and type of agencies providing services through the Center, and the accessibility of the Center facility.

West Central Texas Council of Governments Aging Department, in conjunction with Honorable John McDermott, Contract Officer for the project, has determined the Senior Center to be in compliance with criteria and to be an outstanding local resource for services to area persons aged 60 or over.

Dorothy Vanderslice, Director of the West Central Texas Council of Governments Aging Department, states that "the West Central Texas council of Governments is pleased to make this designation and urges the community to recognize and avail itself of the fine senior citizens programs already in place, thanks to the efforts of fine local leadership."

For further information about the Haskell Senior Center program, contact Mrs. Marsha Whittemore, Director at 817-864-3875 or go by 1404 South 1st Street in Haskell. South 1st Street in Haskell between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. each Monday through Friday.

Superintendent's Views

BY JAMES LANIER
Superintendent, Haskell ISD

This week, I will continue my series of columns on the co-curricular activities. I would like to deal with the literary part of our program in this column.

The literary facet is a direct outlet of the classroom activities. We use them to motivate students to perform beyond their normal classroom expectations. The program includes contests for all grade levels. We have local tryouts to that all students have a chance to excel. The winners on the local level advance to a district contest. This is the highest level attainable for Elementary and Junior High students. On the High School level, the top two places in each contest at district advance to the regional. Then the top two places at regional advances to state. In addition, we attend one or two practice meets each year.

The literary events consist of storytelling for 1st, 2nd and 3rd grade students. Picture memory is a contest for 4th and 5th grades. It is a team contest. The 5th and 6th graders have an oral reading contest and a spelling-plain writing contest. Several other contests are optional at the Elementary level.

The Junior High contests include ready-writing (a contest where you write a composition under a time and word limitation on a selected subject), number sense, mental mathematics, oral reading and spelling-plain writing.

The High School contests consist of spelling, typing, shorthand, ready-writing, number sense, calculator math, science, debate, one act play, prose reading, poetry interpretation, informative speaking, persuasive speaking and four journalism contests.

It is evident with this many contests, we can provide motivation for a number of different students with different interests. Our students take these contests seriously and are fierce competitors. When we have local tryouts or the district contest, it is as serious as any athletic contest. We have had several state champions in literary events during recent years.

The motto of the UIL literary program is "There are no losers in UIL". We firmly subscribe to this philosophy. A student who tries out in one of these contests will gain knowledge and expertise. He or she will gain self confidence and a sense of achievement.

Include Mail Boxes In Cleanup

Among the many things that springtime brings to mind is spring cleaning, and Postmaster Joe Alves has a reminder to include your mailbox in this annual spring rite.

Mailbox Improvement Week, May 18-23, provides the perfect opportunity to clean, repair, repaint or replace your mailbox.

"Neat, attractive mailboxes add to the overall appearance of the community and aid in the delivery of mail," the Postmaster said.

Boxes should be within easy reach for letter carriers. On rural routes, the carrier must have access to the box without leaving his vehicle. Mailboxes on rural and contract routes must be located on the right hand side of the road in the direction traveled by the carrier, the Postmaster said.

"Rain or snow leaking into the mailbox could ruin the special letter; so box seams should be tight to prevent the loss or damage of mail placed in the box," he said.

Box numbers and house numbers should be clearly visible on the box, but including the owner's name is optional.

All mailboxes must meet certain requirements for size, strength, safety and location. These guidelines are available from the local post office, Postmaster Alves said.

Tips Listed For Establishing Credit

Getting credit and keeping it is challenging--and possible, one specialist insists.

Building a credit record poses special problems for women and teens--but there are several ways to establish credit in your own name--and keep it, says Bonnie Piernot.

Mrs. Piernot is a family resource management specialist on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Credit is important in today's credit-oriented economy--for acquiring "luxuries" in most cases and even for necessities in some cases, the specialist says.

Establishing Credit
To establish credit in your own name, first open checking and savings accounts at a local bank.

This will set up your financial identity. It also may provide you with access to such sources of credit as bank credit cards, overdraft checking privileges and personal loans.

Next, apply for a "small" personal loan--use your savings account as "security."

Cost of such a loan is usually low. And because this loan--a personal loan--may be fully secured by your savings account, it may be easier to obtain than other forms of credit.

After you pay off the loan, you can use this credit history to qualify for additional sources of credit.

Another way to establish credit is to apply at local retail stores for small amounts of installment credit.

Once you've paid off the charge account, again, you can use that history to obtain additional credit.

Keeping Credit
Remember two things in building a credit record.

First, be extra careful about making payments on time, since doing so will help you get credit and keep it.

Second, don't abuse credit. Credit improperly handled can cause you more problems than not having it.

Your Right To Know
Finally, you have the right to know what your credit record is.

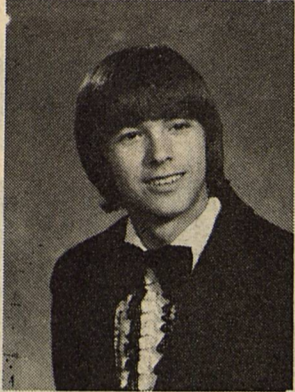

That wasn't always true.

Prior to the enactment of the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act in 1970, credit records were rather mysterious things, Mrs. Piernot says.

Credit reporting agencies refused to reveal the contents of their records to consumers, and there was no requirement that erroneous reports be corrected.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act represents an attempt to solve these problems and others connected with the business of maintaining credit records, she says.

Summer Swimming Safety Tips Offered

With the return of warm weather the pools and beaches reopen for swimmers. Inevitably some of these swimmers will drown.

In trying to help someone who is in trouble in the water, remember to be careful of your own safety. The drowning person can pull the rescuer down with him. Keep calm and do not overestimate your strength, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care.

If the victim is near a pier or edge of the pool hold out your hand or foot. Or toss a life preserver, or extend a pole, board, rope, towel, chair or anything handy. If the victim is unconscious and you suspect a neck or back injury from diving, place a board under head and back while he is still in the water to prevent further damage. Lift him out on the board. Use a boat if the victim is some distance from the shore.

Start artificial breathing at once, before the victim is entirely out of the water. Use the mouth-to-mouth technique. Continue resuscitation on the bank. First clear the mouth and airway of foreign matter. Tilt victim's head back, pinch his nostrils shut, cover the victim's mouth with your own and give four quick breaths. Then give approximately 12 breaths per minute, until you see the victim's chest rise.

If the victim's stomach is bloated with swallowed water, put him on his stomach, place both hands on the stomach and lift.

Once breathing is restored, keep victim comfortably warm with blanket, coat or towels. Do not give food or water.

Call an ambulance, or take the victim to the nearest hospital with an emergency room. If he is still unconscious, have someone else drive so you can continue artificial breathing if necessary.

If there is no pulse, cardiac compression should be started. To be effective, this requires someone trained in the technique. It must be done at the same time as artificial breathing. If the rescuer is alone, give 15 chest compressions, then two quick breaths. If two rescuers are present, one of them gives five chest compressions for each breath from the other.

People who have been submerged in cold water (below 70 degrees) often can survive without brain damage. Some victims have been under for as long as 38 minutes and still lived. Mouth-to-mouth breathing and heart compression must be started as soon as possible and continued for several hours even if the victim appears dead.

Help Available For New Businesses WTC To Offer Basketball Camp

Starting your own business—whether it's a plant-care service out of your own basement or a multi-million dollar advertising agency—is part of the American dream. But, unfortunately, not everybody succeeds. Especially in these belt-tightening times, the would-be entrepreneur has to be practical to turn his or her dream into a reality.

What does it take? According to the U.S. Department of Labor, success requires a combination of special instinct for the free market and a lot of forethought and planning. The free booklet, "Being Your Own Boss," available by sending a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 539J, Pueblo, Colorado 81009, contains worthwhile advice for the entrepreneur. The market is a hard taskmaster. And, to strike out on your own takes a rare person. After all, you're risking your career, family life, and personal funds. How do you think you'd measure up? Let's see how you respond to this checklist:

- Do you enjoy setting difficult objectives for yourself?
 - Do you find yourself constantly moving on to new and greater challenges?
 - Are you the type of person who likes to find innovative ways of doing things better?
 - Can you make fast, accurate decisions?
 - Can you give guidance to others and inspire confidence and loyalty in others?
 - Can you write and speak articulately?
 - Can you assume more risk than most?
 - Can you accept responsibility toward employees, clients, and partners?
 - Do you have a higher than normal energy level?
- If your answer to three or more of these questions is "no," perhaps you should reconsider going into business for yourself. Of course, you may not need all of these qualities. Self-employed artists or craftsmen sometimes can be successful on their talents alone.

If these traits sound like you, and you are seriously thinking of striking out on your own, the first step is to get all the facts about your potential business. Find out where the trade association for your business is located—they often offer assistance to new business owners.

Go to your local library and read everything you can on the subject. Then visit some local businesses to get a clear idea how they operate. Ask about sales volume, location, how long it takes to become profitable, and what mistakes they made at the start.

Then you'll want to secure enough operating capital to get you through the first year. Remember, in a period of inflation, costs escalate more quickly; sales volume can be lower than you expect; and there are a variety of miscellaneous expenses you may forget to anticipate. Draw up a business plan that includes at least these items:

1. The nature and location of the enterprise;
 2. Why the product or service is needed;
 3. What is the potential market;
 4. Who are the competitors;
 5. What are the total expenses in starting-up;
 6. What are the earnings, after expenses and taxes;
 7. A monthly estimate of the cash position, for at least one year;
 8. A monthly estimate of the balance sheet, for at least one year;
 9. An estimate of the return on capital—the net profit divided by the net worth.
 10. A biography of the principals.
- With this business plan in hand, you can begin to approach loan companies, credit unions, partners, trade creditors, or the government for funds. Generally, banks are not likely to lend money for business start-up. But banks can be a good source to cultivate for future expansion.

When you order a copy of "Being Your Own Boss" (free) you'll also receive a free copy of the "Consumer Information Catalog." Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the Catalog lists more than 200 free or low-cost booklets of consumer interest.

Western Texas College will host its sixth annual girls' Basketball Camp from June 1-5, Coach Joe Cushing said.

Personnel this year will include Hattie Browning and Retha Swindell of the Dallas Diamonds professional basketball team.

The camp is open to girls from 9-13 or high school freshmen not eligible for varsity competition in the 1981-82 school year. Fees are $110 per person, which includes housing in the WTC dorms, meals in the Student Center cafeteria, a special camp t-shirt, insurance and use of campus recreational facilities.

Instruction stresses such fundamentals as rebounding, passing, shooting, dribbling, defense in mass drills and then working individually at stations.

Enrollment in the camp will be limited to 102. Persons wishing to register or to obtain further information about the camp are invited to contact Cushing at the WTC Physical Education department, 573-8511, extension 279. Each reservation must be accompanied by a $60 deposit.

Senior Adult Day Set May 26

The annual Senior Adult Day will be held at Big Country Baptist Assembly, Lueters on May 26 beginning at 9:00 a.m. Director of this year's retreat will be Lawrence Trott.

HOMOSEXUALS HAMSTRUNG. One of the victims of President Reagan's austerity program is the Hollywood Gay and Lesbian (male and female homosexual) Community Services Center. If first started getting federal taxpayers' Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) funds in 1975. But the 96th Congress adjourned without passing a supplemental appropriations bill that would have funded CETA programs all around the country, and "no one really expects the Reagan administration to come to the program's rescue," according to the "Easy Reader," a Los Angeles "throw-away" newspaper. So the news isn't all bad.
