SPIRULINA—An Exciting, New Ingredient!

Ever since the "National Enquirer" and other popular journals published articles on SPIRULINA, it has been in great, even insatiable, demand by the public, and now we can

What is SPIRULINA? SPIRULINA is a form of algae that is a perfect food. Like other forms of sea vegetation found in our own SEA MANNA, it has many advantages, some of which are unique

1. It is an ideal, complete food with all essential amino acids, many vitamins, and a wide range of trace minerals. 2. It is extremely high in protein—over 70%—three times the protein in beef, fish, or eggs. 3. It is very digestible.

4. It is completely safe.

5. It provides a high level of chlorophyll.

6. It is the highest source of Vitamin B-12 known. 7. It is not contaminated by any chemicals in its cultivation.

8. It is an alkaline food.

9. It has detoxifying properties.

10. It has been shown to have healing properties. The news is we have added SPIRULINA to SEA MANNA, our unique blend of nutritious sea vegetation. What a beautiful morning! Morning Glories and Achimines in full bloom, ready for a painter's canvas. A photographic record should be made of these colorful species, helping you to see-observe and admire the anatomy and structure of the plants. Next Fall, your reference file will be helpful when you say, "What can I paint?"

Drawing and painting flowers will help you develop a sense of composition and an eye for rhythmic balance of design. Close observation of the plant repays you well for the effort involved. Try it!

Select the principle lines of your subject, try to visualize that you intend to draw and first sketch lightly. On your canvas, the sketching may be done with a charcoal pencil and then 'fixed' with a fixative. Another way is to draw with a small brush right on the canvas with yellow ochre and a lot of medium. Sketch the forms of the subject first, then start painting the darks and shadows, working into the medium tones and finally the highlights. Become knowledgeable through study and continued practice-and remember, learn to see!

Q. What brushes should I start to paint with?

A. Art suppliers are so attractive that most painters are tempted to buy everything in sight. It's best to restrain yourself and start out with a limited selection of materials and equipment. First, buy only the best that you can afford. It's best to pay higher prices for a few good brushes than to buy many cheap ones. Secondly, you must get to know every brush, knife and tube of color so that you can predict the behaviour of each

Basically, there are two types of brushes, the sable and the bristle. There are variations of each and I suggest you become acquainted with them the next time you visit your art store.

The most widely used brush is the bristle, which is made of stiff, white hog bristles set into a handle longer than a common pencil.

There are three kinds of bristle brushes. FLATS have long, springy bristles. It picks up just enough paint for most purposes and its flexible bristles make a fairly smooth stroke. BRIGHTS have shorter and stiffer bristles, therefore they can pick up more paint. They will leave more texture on the surface. The bristles come to a squarish tip but with prolonged use, they become a bit rounded. FILBERTS have long, springy bristles with a rounded tip, often called an 'almond shaped' brush. Many painters prefer this brush as it makes a soft stroke and is not as harsh as the above two brushes. You might like the stroke effects of the Flats and Brights more than the Filbert. Work with them to determine your decision before buying a lot of brushes.

In oil painting, soft-hair brushes, like sables and oxhair, come under the heading of 'special tools'. Oxhair is less expensive and is used for smooth surfaces and blending. Sables are more expensive and are used for smooth surfaces, like portraits and some blending. There are other soft-hair brushes such as badger and squirrel, which cost very little. When working with watercolor, the softer brushes are used.

Q. How do I wash my brushes?

A. I wish more people knew

The state's 12 tourist bureaus hosted 269,016 highway travelers during July, and all-time record. At the state's busiest bureau, on I-10 near the Louisiana border at Orange, the travel-counseling staff served 45,642 personsawesome, but welcome volume of "company" coming to visit. That's 2.7 visitors every minute, nine hours a day, seven days a week.

How'd you like to smile and say "Welcome to Texas" more than 45,000 times in one month?

But the Orange travel counseling staff are pros at the hospitality business. Three of the staff's six members are 'Roadrunner Award'' winners, a citation that annually names the most proficient travel counselor in the state.

He speculated that this summer's tourist surge may result from several years of suppressed travel urges. 'We've endured years of uncertainty about travel,' Taylor remarked, "and Americans don't like their mobility impaired. Gasoline costs shocked us all when they

over the United States have been contributing to the conservation needs of land owners for many years but still many people do not know they exist. To discuss what they do we must first understand that finding plants for conservation is the major role of these centers, most of which are operated by the United States Department of Agriculture,

Soil Conservation Service (SCS). ASSEMBLING OF PLANTS

To begin with a plant materials center must acquire plants that show a potential for meeting a need. These are brought to the centers by SCS employees, other federal and state agencies, native collections and also foreign introductions. It is of major importance ot get the plants to the center in a viable state so they can have something to work with. The plants are not only grasses but forbs, shrubs and legumes also. EVALUATIONS

After establishment the plants are then evaluated on seedling vigor; resistance to insects, diseases, and weather. Forage and seed production are also tested. These plants are compared with standards set by plants now in use. They increase the seed supply and plants are then grown in small plots outside the center under varied climates and soil conditions. The promising species are then produced for field size plantings and given final test on problem sites.

Brand Laws Changed

White has issued two Attorney General's opinions which affect and should interest everyone involved in the cattle, ranching, farming and dairy industries. Opinion MW-289 discusses certain changes in laws on the brands, and MW-358 further clarifies the statutes. Article 6899j, V.T.C.S. was passed by the Legislature and became effective on August 30, 1971. Under this law and under Article 6890, V.T.C.S., all marks and brands registered after August 30, 1971 and before August 30, 1981 must be re-registered within six months of the latter date. Marks and brands must then be re-registered at subsequent ten-year intervals by the will then be recorded with the office. There will be blank

Attorney General Mark

White is reminding every citizen who has registered a brand prior to August 30, 1981 registration of livestock that citizens must re-register each brand with the county clerk within six months in order to protect their right to it. If everyone follows the registration schedule set out by the law, county clerks will have a correct, revised set of records every ten years, and there should be no dispute about the correct ownership of describe the mark or brand and the location on the animal where the brand is recorded. The forms should then be mailed or delivered in person to the county clerk, who will keep the forms in an indexed bound volume or on microfilm for easy reference.

Opinion MW-358 answers questions concerning the recording of the marks and brands and the publication requirements to notify the public of changes in the law. Under Article 6899j, the county clerk is not required to notify individual owners of cattle brands of the ten-year expiration date of their registration. However, the county clerk must publish notice of the registration date in a newspaper of general circulation in the county for a period

Attorney General Mark county clerk, regardless of spaces on the form in which to notice out of the general county fund. Finally, when the clerk records the brands or marks, the date of record must be noted.

Attorney General Mark White and his office will be glad to answer any further questions on this matter. Interested persons should call 512/475-2501 for more information, or write to the Attorney General at P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas 78711.
