WTU Request Increase

West Texas Utilities Company has filed for a general increase in its retail rates, citing inflation, high interest rates and an essential major construction program as the reasons for the action.

The official filing was made Wednesday in Haskell by Sue Pate, local manager.

Miss Pate said the application is a systemwide request for higher rates. Simultaneous filings were made in other incorporated towns for retail customers within their jurisdiction and with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for an increase to retail customers outside incorporated towns. The filing with the PUC also includes customers in eight incorporated towns which have ceded jurisdiction to the PUC.

WTU filed October 15 with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for a rate increase to wholesale cooperative and municipal customers.

The proposed rates would produce an increase in total revenue of $32,256,983. This amounts to 15.4 per cent based on adjusted revenues of $209,402,398 for a 12-month test period ending September 30, 1981.

WTU requested that the new rates become effective January 1, 1982. Miss Pate said that a rate increase granted WTU last year "did not get the job done." That increase was for an average of 8.3 per cent and was only the second in the Company's entire history.

Under the proposed rates, an average bill for basic residential service would be increased by 19.1 per cent. For example, a residential customer using 600 kilowatt-hours per month would pay $40.95, compared to $34.39 under the present rates—a difference of $6.56. This would include fuel costs.

The city has several options in responding to WTU's request. It may deny the increase, suspend the increase for a certain period of time, or approve the increase. The city also has the option of denying the request and ceding future jurisdiction to the Public Utility Commission. Eight municipalities in the WTU service area chose to cede jurisdiction last year.

Council To Discuss Fee For Dumping

Increasing cost of maintaining a sanitary landfill was the major topic of discussion during the regular meeting of the Haskell City Council Tuesday night.

Members of the Council opened bids on a pit at the landfill and tentatively accepted the low bid of $14,155.00 submitted by Zack Burkett Co. of Graham. Bids ranged upward to just over $22,000.00.

Council members discussed government regulations which require that garbage be buried, increased cost of labor, equipment, and land.

It was pointed out during the meeting that all residences which receive garbage service from the city pay for the use of the landfill, but a large part of the refuse at the landfill comes from sources other than city garbage trucks.

Council members discussed the possibility of adding a gate charge for persons who use the landfill. The fee would more evenly distribute the cost of operating the landfill between the persons who use the facility.

No action was taken on the matter but Council members agreed to look into the possibility further.

Blood Pressure Clinic

This is the joyful and Thanksgiving Season - joyful because it is harvest time and thankful because it is a season to give thanks for our bountiful rewards of the year. Color at this time of the year is exciting with the vibrant warm yellows, reds, oranges and browns. In art, each landscape must tell a story of the season. The greens are darker and the warm colors are more predominant than in the Spring. The hour glass of time - "Old Time, that greatest and longest established spinner of all" (Dickens) has taken us into the eleventh month of the year. It has been said that the time which we have at our disposal every day is elastic - make the most of it - Time stays - we go!

Q. What is scumbling?
A. Scumbling is the contrast to glazing. It is more commonly used to lighten an area which is completely dry. The paint is applied over impasto (heavy paint) in a dragging motion, which produces a broken effect of color. This method is a good way to improve stucco buildings, giving a texture. Remember, you are not to "paint" the surface since some of the original undercolor must show through. The consistency of the paint and different methods of application with a bristle brush or sable brush, will produce a variety of textures. Experiment on some of your old paintings, perhaps you can salvage some of them!

Q. What is underpainting?
A. Underpainting enables you to obtain textural surfaces by using a quick-drying white, such as MG. Rigid panels, I presume, will last longer than a canvas when the heavy underpainting is applied. Different brands seem to vary in behavior as they all have in common one thing, the secrecy that surrounds the composition of each. Ask your supplier for a white that is quick drying and for material explaining the use of it for underpainting. I have such a fear of cracking! Underpainting can be applied by using a bristle brush or knife, making contours of rocks, wood, etc., allowing the ridges resulting from the application to remain. When dry (with MG it takes 2 to 4 hours) apply a warm glaze over the areas that are to be light. Then apply cool glazes over the shadowed areas. Refer to previous columns on glazing and mixtures. If you do not have these, please write to me.

HINT: Paint one thing at a time and save the rest of your knowledge for another picture. Write your questions and hints to me, Faye Schnuriger, P.O. Box 134, Haskell, Texas, 79521. I will not use your name but do want you to sign your letters.

Place Your Christmas Orders Early!

Eating is a delightful and traditional way to celebrate holidays and special occasions. It is a shared experience, from the food preparation itself to the fancy silverware on the table. Good food can make a special occasion even more special. But many would-be dieters declare an "open season" on eating with the first bite of Thanksgiving Day turkey.

Stuff The Turkey, Not Yourself!

notes the Texas Medical Association (TMA). The binge usually ends with a New Year's resolution to lose the ten pounds gained during that month of sheer gluttony. Now is the time to reconsider this attitude towards eating. First, think of the fat. Next, think of the guilt. All the time that you're stuffing yourself with rich, greasy, calorie-laden food, a small voice in the back of your mind will be nagging you about your sins (and about not fitting into last year's winter wardrobe). While that voice may not slow your pace, it will hamper your enjoyment. You may want to temporarily abandon your diet at Thanksgiving. Well, you're forgiven, but remember that you'll have to pay the price later. Why not plan out your caloric transgressions? If you know that you'll be eating a huge Thanksgiving dinner next week, cut down on your food intake this week. That

Technology keeps fuel prices down

COLLEGE STATION — Two Texas A&M University economists say technology that could produce oil from shale or coal, or gas from plants will ultimately keep fuel prices down.

"As prices have increased over the years or as resources have become more difficult to obtain, man has always looked towards alternative methods for meeting demand," said Dr. Charles Smithson. "Certainly new methods for getting fuel are more expensive, but they supply our additional energy needs," he added.

Smithson and Dr. S. Charles Maurice, both of the university's economics department, have authored a study on the economic feasibility of assimilating new technology.

Smithson said consumers, not government, decide when new technology will be used in the marketplace to increase energy supplies.

Sharon Gray To Ride H-SU White Horse In Hollywood Parade

Sharon Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gray of 504 North 11th St. in Haskell, will spend her Thanksgiving holiday helping add another first to the impressive list of accomplishments by the "World Famous Cowboy Band" of Hardin-Simmons University and the Six White Horses. Gray, a sophomore at HSU, will be riding one of the Six White Horses.

The Whites and the band will participate in the 50th anniversary edition of the Hollywood Christmas Parade on November 29. Roy Rogers and Dale Evans will be the Grand Marshals of the parade with Angie Dickinson as featured guest. The colorful, fast-stepping band will be the only out-of-California band featured in the parade, which will be telecast nationally over a cable TV network from KTLA in Los Angeles.

Prior to the parade, the Cowboy Band will appear at Disneyland on Nov. 27 and be featured in another parade—this one down Main Street of the famed amusement park, through Town Square and the entrance to Tomorrow Land and onto the rampways of America Sings where it will present a concert.

"We are taking 46 students (band members, the White Horse riders and alternates and the feature twirler), "Bill Woods, director of the Cowboy Band, said. "The band hasn't been to California in a long time and this is the first time we've marched in the Hollywood Christmas Parade."

Dr. William O. Beazley, assistant to the president at HSU and sponsor of the White Horses, has been working on the trip to California for months. He will also make the trip, pulling the trailers with the horses.

There is a possibility the band will have a concert in Phoenix enroute to California on Nov. 26 but details of that still have to be worked out. Nov. 28 has been set aside for sight-seeing.

This will be the second time in three years that the band and the Whites have combined for a major trip. In 1979 the groups became the darlings of Montreal while participating in the Lions International Convention parade, earning front page coverage in the Montreal daily papers and being interviewed by numerous television crews.

For Woods however, this will be his maiden flight as director of the band. "It is my goal—and intention—that this band will continue to live up to the traditional excellence that made it world famous in the first place," he said. "It is the hard work necessary to become outstanding musicians and showmen that produces the camaraderie and fraternity that makes the Cowboy Band so unique."

Woods has had plenty of experience with the uniqueness and musical ability he talks about. Though he has been director of the band only since last summer, he was a member of the group during his student days at HSU (1950-54) and was a member of the board of directors of the Cowboy Band Foundation prior to accepting the job as the fourth director in the band's 58-year history.

During his years on campus the band toured Europe and played at the first inauguration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In all the band has made five international trips (Europe in 1930 and 1953, Europe and Canada in 1958, Japan in 1963 and Montreal in 1979), played for uncounted rodeos and special events.

The band uses a distinctive parade step which moves at 300 beats per minutes instead of the normal (and sedate) 120 and has a copyrighted maneuver called the "Cowstep" that is a show-stopper in its own right.

The White Horses are ridden by HSU coeds, each carrying one of the six flags that have flown over the state of Texas: Spain, Mexico, France, the Republic of Texas, the Confederacy, and the United States. The six, large, all-white horses are put through intricate riding drills at rodeos and require expert horsemanship from the girls.

The HSU group will be headquartered in the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel, 7000 Hollywood Blvd. during its stay in California.

BIRTHDAYS

The child numbers each day eagerly and can hardly wait to be older. Same with the teen-ager. But, from thirty one, one begins to wonder where the years went.

Your perspective on aging shifts. As a child, you thought your lovely grandmother was so very old; but now, in looking back, you realize with a shock that you presently are older than she was then—and you are still young, comparatively that is.

If you are "getting along in years" and birthdays jar you, hold your head high, nevertheless, and say to yourself on the day, "I don't care, I am really just one day older than I was yesterday!" And, it's true.

Your merits you're bound to enhance;

Early Development Aids Reading

A toddler's early development is important for getting him ready to read. Learning about left, right, up, and down inside his own body helps him learn about these same directions in the world outside his body.

Many children with serious learning problems have trouble reading because they never learned about left, right, up and down, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. They cannot tell the letter "b" from the letter "d" because they don't know left from right. They are not slow or retarded in learning, they just failed to learn about directions in space.

Experts in learning disabilities see many bright teenagers who can barely read. Many of these young people are confused about their left-right-up-down directions--both inside their own bodies and also in the world outside.

The real problem is that these children cannot organize relationships among objects in space. They may have very sharp vision, which means they can see each object "out there" very clearly. Their problem is that they cannot organize what they see. They see, but they do not perceive accurately. It's almost as if each thing they see is separate and distinct from all other things--they have trouble perceiving patterns or relationships among all those things "out there."

Children with problems such as the ones just described have difficulty in organizing space. Objects exist in space, and form patterns in space. As you read this, stop for a moment and do a simple experiment. Look about you at all the objects in the room where you are sitting. Now look at just one object (a chair, table, flower pot, etc.).

As you look at this one object, you know very well where all the other objects are with respect to this one object. Some are to the left or right, some are close to or farther away from you than is this particular object. All the objects in the room are "there in space," and you can see where each is with respect to all the others; you can organize the patterns of all those objects in space.

The reason you can do this is that when you were a toddler, you learned about relationships among the parts of your own body. You also learned how to project your "body space" onto the world outside your body. For many children, this important "toddler learning" simply did not take place.

Organizing space is a most important learning task for toddlers. But they must also learn how to organize something else which is just as important: They must learn how to organize time.

This does not mean "organizing time" as adults do; rather, it means that a toddler must learn that some things happen "now", that other things happened "before", and that still other things will happen "later." Just as objects are "there" in space and form patterns, in a somewhat similar fashion events occur in time and form patterns.

A child needs to learn about "now" and "before" and "later" just as much as he needs to learn about left and right and up and down. To see how this basic organization of time affects reading, consider this example. Many bright children with severe learning problems will write "frist" for "first" when they are copying words or sentences. This particular mistake is actually an error in organizing time.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthday when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Hints Available From FDA On Coping With Common Cold

The weather is warm one day, cold the next, and before you know it you have that achy, sleepy feeling that means you might be getting a cold. Once you've actually been caught by the "beast" known as the common cold, there is no cure. However, there are things you can do to minimize your suffering and help your own healing process.

To give you some tips on how to cope effectively, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has a free reprint from its magazine, The FDA Consumer. For your copy of the Common Cold, write to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 579J, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The old fashioned dictum that a cold is three days coming, three days here and three days going still has a lot of truth to it. And once you're in the "three days here" phase, rest is very important. So is drinking a lot of fluids--fruit juices, water, clear broths and other soups will help. In fact, in ancient Rome, a common remedy for a cold was sipping a broth made from onion and warm water.

Recently, a U.S. Food and Drug Administration Advisory panel evaluated over-the-counter cold and cough medications, and found that proper use of these products can be effective in relieving the symptoms of a cold, such as cough, sinus, congestion, and a runny nose. A cold usually starts with a sore throat, sneezing and runny nose. Then the nose becomes ~~stopped up~~ and the eyes water. This is followed by lethargy, aches and pains, and sometimes a slight fever. Cough may occur in the later stages. But, usually these symptoms don't occur at the same time, even though almost 90 percent of cough and cold products contain a combination of ingredients intended to relieve a number of different symptoms. The Advisory panel felt that taking a combination product to relieve one symptom did make sense. And, since different people react differently to specific drugs, fixed combinations may not be suitable for some people.

One of the more distressing symptoms of the common cold is a sore throat, and many non-prescription drug products claim to provide relief. The panel noted, however, that a sore throat can be a symptom of serious infection which should not be treated by self-medication.

When you order The Common Cold (free), you'll also receive a copy of the free Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the Catalog lists over 200 selected free and low-cost federal consumer booklets.

THANK YOU...

...will not express my deep gratitude for the many friends and neighbors who arrived Saturday to assist in any way needed.

Only in a community such as this would the response be so great.

You will never know how much I appreciate everyone who participated in any way.

Income Cards Sent To Many Vets

Many veterans and their dependents and survivors are required to furnish the Veterans Administration with an annual income report in order to retain eligibility for such disability or death benefits. According to C.H. Herren, Service Officer for Haskell County, the annual income cards were sent to all claimants on November 1, 1981. If the completed reports are not returned to the VA by January 1, 1982, benefit payments will be stopped.

Those receiving the income cards include veterans, widows and children receiving disability and death pension, as well as dependent parents who are in receipt of death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation based upon the service-connected death of a son or daughter. Also receiving cards this year are veterans whose service-connected disability ratings are 30 percent or more and who are in receipt of additional benefits because of dependent parents. For this latter group, the income of the dependent parents only must be reported.

Some claimants will not be required to complete the income card this year. Those persons exempted are veterans and widows of veterans who are age 72 or older and have received VA benefits for two years or longer with no material change in income.

Everyone receiving the income card must complete and return it to the VA by January 1, 1982, or no benefit check will be sent on February 1, 1982. Persons needing assistance in completing the income card should contact their local Veterans Service Officer.
