Jump Rope For Heart Set Mar. 17

Seventh and eighth grade Haskell students will jump rope Thursday March 17, to raise funds for the American Heart Association.

"This is the third year our students have participated in the contest. Last year they raised about $1,200 for the AHA," Clayton Neal, Jump Rope for Heart coordinator, said.

Students will be given their packets and instructions Monday, March 14, and begin collecting pledges, Neal explained.

The three-hour event will feature students who will jump rope as members of six-person teams. Each team will jump until tiring and then pass the rope to another team member. The sequence is repeated for a maximum of three hours.

Prior to the event, each participant will collect pledges from family, friends and neighbors on each minute their teams jumps. Following the event, the student will return to sponsors with a verified report of how long they jumped and collect pledges.

These pledges will then be turned in to Neal and forwarded to the American Heart Association.

All participants will receive a certificate of appreciation. Other individual prizes to be awarded are jump ropes, t-shirts, backpacks, barrel bags and warm up suits.

New Business Is Industrial Foundation Goal

Members of the Board of Directors of the Haskell Industrial Foundation recently held a special meeting to discuss possible action concerning the vacant Herman-Marcus building.

Board members agreed to pursue all avenues to attempt to rent or lease the building to a new business in Haskell.

The building was built with funds donated to the Industrial Foundation by local and area residents several years ago when the Herman Marcus Company moved to Haskell.

The company closed the Haskell plant late last summer and have since agreed to terms which will terminate their lease on the building.

Industrial Foundation Board members have agreed to advertise the building in several area newspapers and to begin contacting possible businesses which might possibly be interested in locating in Haskell.

HIGH PERCH

Trees around the Haskell County Courthouse received a trim early this week. Shoppers in downtown Haskell as well as business owners and employees and courthouse employees watched as the crew members sat comfortably atop the limbs which were as high as 40 feet.

Brush and Palette

Space does not permit me to tell you about all the good things that happened at Amelia Beach, Florida at "Images Seminar". This was more than one semester in college for credit. Color was emphasized throughout by Russell Woody from Binney & Smith (Liquitex) and Dan Daniels from Grumbacher. Woody demonstrated how the more expensive colors can be mixed, such as Cobalt and Cad Red, which is more economical for the painter. Good paint, good brushes, good canvas and good watercolor paper was stressed at each session. Edward Betts (author of several books) did critique three sessions. Most of the pictures submitted were watercolor and 95% were realistic. There were many techniques illustrated by Charles Reid and Don Holden, who writes many books under the name of Wendon Blake. Ann Mary Kenyon was guest speaker for dinner one evening and concluded her speech with "Don't push the river, it flows by itself."

Q. Why do you feel that realist painting is so popular?
A. Sound craftsmanship cannot be ignored. It is romantic, real and true and substantial. Art is a living thing - it has to move or else it would wither away. More people communicate with realism today. Painting for yourself and painting for sale is two different thoughts. If you paint only what you think will sell, then you are taking the wrong path! Why do we see 95% realism in the pictures displayed?

Q. What are some common problems with students in workshops?

A. Lack of knowledge of drawing, tools and equipment are the most common problems today. The greatest problems that I find in all workshops (the Gartlant watercolor workshop in Graham recently is one) is that students do not take the time to learn drawing. If you are going to paint realistically, then you must learn to draw. Another problem is poor quality brushes and other tools and equipment. You cannot make a tree limb with a #10 flat bristle brush.

Q. How do you begin a picture?

A. Most students start a picture with thoughts only toward finishing it. They overlook the proper preparing the ground or canvas; they neglect to do a sketch for composition and values; they neglect to think the picture through. You must go through several stages before you can begin to finish your work.

Courses of study at TSTI-Sweetwater range from three to eighteen months in length. Those programs requiring eighteen months of study such as Electronics, Computer Science Technology, Technical Office Training, Welding Technology and Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Technology will culminate in an Associate of Applied Science degree.

Many courses, such as Livestock and Ranch Operations, Dental Assistant, Building Construction Craftsman, Combination Welding, Diesel Mechanics, Automotive Mechanics, Autobody Repair, Technical Office Training, Machine Shop Operations, Emergency Medical Services and Drafting require one year or less to complete. Students completing these programs will receive certificates of completion.

All technical programs with the exception of Electronics, have early exit points to allow students who do not wish to pursue an Associate Degree to receive certification for work completed.

All technical programs with the exception of Electronics, have early exit points to allow students who do not wish to pursue an Associate Degree to receive certification for work completed.

TSTI believes strongly in the concept of hands-on training. Students will spend approximately one-third of their class time in laboratory work. However, students are expected to be proficient in those English and math skills required for success in their chosen field.

Tuition and fees for a fulltime student is $90.50 per quarter. Housing costs range from $250 to $330 per quarter. Contract board plans are available for $250 to $275 per quarter.

Book and tool costs per quarter will vary according to the program. The average is $75 to $150 per quarter with the mechanical programs requiring tools being higher.

Financial assistance is available at TSTI for those who qualify. In addition to federal loan and grant programs, many students have been placed with TSTI through the CETA program, the Veteran's Administration and the Texas Rehabilitation Commission. TSTI also honors private and public scholarships.

In addition to daytime classes, TSTI offers a wide range of night classes. Night classes in subjects ranging from Computer Science and Electronics to Welding and Automotive Mechanics are planned for the Spring. Noncredit classes in Medical Spanish and Defensive Driving are also scheduled. Registration and starting dates for these classes may vary so applicants are encouraged to call the Department of Continuing Education for a complete schedule and further registration details.

Anyone wishing to enroll at TSTI should have a high school diploma or a GED. Those applicants without a GED can be granted conditional admittance with the approval of the program chairman and with the stipulation that every effort will be made to pass the GED during the first quarter of attendance. Special requirements exist for applicants under 18. Contact the Admissions Office for details.

For more information on the programs at TSTI contact the Public Information Office or the Admissions Office at 235-8441. Prospective students are invited to visit the campus, located four miles west of Sweetwater on Highway 80, adjacent to Sweetwater Municipal Airport.

Help Your Children Want To Learn

Are you a parent who has difficulty convincing your children about the benefits of a good education? Do your children think you're nagging when you urge them to study? Do you feel guilty and fatigued by a seemingly never-ending battle for your children's good?

Take heart. There are several steps parents can take to motivate their children to learn, both in school and at home:

- Let your children see that you are still a learner—by reading, going to the library, watching educational TV programs, writing letters, attending school functions. Discuss ideas and share opinions at home. Read to younger children; play educational games together.

- Show your children that you care about what they are learning. Ask about school activities at the dinner table and discuss them in a relaxed way. Don't criticize or demand improvement at these times—just show your interest.

- Whatever you say or do regarding your children's ability will affect their performance. Help them believe they can learn by showing faith in their ability to learn.

- Be sure that your children have adequate nutrition and rest, as well as love. If they feel rested and healthy, they will have the physical and emotional energy for schoolwork. If they feel loved and free from emotional upset, they will be able to concentrate on their studies.

- Encourage your chilren to develop study habits. Set aside a special time and place each day for homework. With such a routine, youngsters can learn to plan activities and overcome distractions.

- Recognize your children's efforts to learn. Don't wait for high marks or grades to praise a child. Any comment that says "I like the way you try" shows that you value effort and helps the child see that trying is important.

- Become involved in your children's school. Get to know the teachers, find out about the curriculum, and support the school. By increasing your knowledge in this way, you can also help increase your children's motivation to learn.

These steps will reassure your children that you care about what they're doing in school and at home. Equally important, they will show your children that you believe their activities are important both now and for the future.

Write About Why Mom Is Special --And Win A Mother's Day Plate

Shopping for that special gift for mother to honor her on Mother's Day can be a problem for youngsters with limited spending money. This year 100 young people will be able to present their mothers with a porcelain gift of appreciation, the Bing & Grondahl Mother's Day Plate. For the fourth year, Bing & Grondahl Copenhagen Porcelain will give the current edition of their famous annual series to 100 students who write the most appealing letters telling "Why I Love My Mother."

The Danish company is best known for giving the world its first Christmas plate in 1895 and its first Mother's Day plate in 1969. It sold for $9.75 and today is valued at approximately $500. The 1983 Mother's Day Plate features raccoons, a native American animal, and continues the theme of motherly love in the animal kingdom. The 6" blue and white porcelain plate is sculpted in relief, hand decorated underglaze, and pierced for hanging. Contest winners will be notified by the first week in May and will receive the gift boxed prize in time for the holiday.

"In the past three years we have judged thousands of letters from across the country," says Paul Steffensen, president of Bing & Grondahl in the U.S. "We have received letters from parents and teachers, as well as students, and believe our contest provides an opportunity for youngsters to focus their thoughts on basic values. Awarding the plates yearly makes 100 families experience a memorable Mother's Day."

Students between the ages of six and eighteen are eligible to enter the contest. Letters on "Why I Love My Mother" should be no longer than 100 words. The deadline is April 8, 1983 and entries must include student's name, age, home address, school, and grade. Send letters to: B&G Mother's Day Contest, c/o ADMA, 6 Cherry Valley Terminal Road, West Hempstead, New York 11552.

Good Crop Insurance Offsets Production Risks

Production and financial risks facing Texas farmers in 1983 take on greater significance during the current difficult times for agriculture.

A crop insurance program is one means available to farmers to counteract the production risks they face every year, reminds Dr. James Ahrenholz, economist-management with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"There is a cost for such crop protection, and each farmer will need to look at his particular situation to evaluate crop insurance," Ahrenholz says. The All-Risk Crop Insurance program is available to provide some protection against reduced crop yields from natural causes. The program allows farmers to choose among three levels of coverage. These are either 50 percent, 65 percent or 75 percent of the yield established for their farm unit, Ahrenholz reminds.

In addition, farmers may choose among three levels of price protection for their insured crop. For example, he emphasizes, grain sorghum producers in Texas may choose either $2.00/bu., or $2.40/bu. as the settlement price for any loss in production.

Many farmers have indicated that the area yield established for a crop on their farm does not accurately reflect their production and thus the protection they would like to have. The Individual Yield Coverage program addresses this concern. Thus, a farmer with 3 years of verifiable production records may be eligible to have the yield coverage increased for his farm unit by certifying those records with the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office at least 15 days before the insurance sales closing date.

Crop insurance coverage will be increased for farmers participating in the recently announced Payment in Kind or "crop swap" program. Yield coverage increases of 6 percent, 8 percent or 10 percent will apply depending upon the level of a farmer's participation in the Payment in Kind program. These higher yield guarantees are applied with no increase in the crop insurance premium rate, the specialist adds.

To participate in the All-Risk Insurance program, a farmer must sign an application before the established deadline. That deadline has been set at March 15 for South, West, Central and Northeast Texas and the Gulf Coast. In the Texas Panhandle, South Plains and Rolling Plains, the deadline will be April 15.

Farmers should contact their local All-Risk crop insurance agent about yield guarantee and premium information for their farm unit.

Since these factors vary for each individual situation, insurance is one risk management tool that farmers should carefully evaluate, Ahrenholz suggests.

SBA Answer Desk Offers Toll Free Aid

Have you called SBA's "Answer Desk" yet? According to Philip J. O'Jibway, district director of the local SBA office, "Answer Desk" received some 15,000 calls during its first three months of existence.

Manned by SBA's Office of Advocacy, the "Answer Desk" became operational in October 1982. SBA experts are prepared to handle questions from small business persons needing help or guidance with problems connected with their firm and the U.S. Government.

Interested persons may dial, toll free, 800/368-5855 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. (EST). During other hours, calls will be handled by a recording device and answered the next business day.

While loan questions are still in the majority, a slight decrease has been noted and more business-oriented questions are asked.

How many women-owned business are there, a Xerox Corporation office asked.

"Answer Desk" personnel mailed a copy of the 1982 President's Report on Small Business.

Can we provide a list of manufacturers of gold chains? No, but the Thomas Register of American Manufacturers in your city public library would be the source.

An new manufacturer of women's blouses needed to know how to obtain a required "RN" number to be stamped on each item. "Answer Desk" told him how to obtain it from the Federal Trade Commission.

An area which is now particularly topical is that of tax questions. "Answer Desk" refers callers to their accountants or local IRS, including the new TELE-TAX taped message service covering 140 tax topics.

"SBA's 'Answer Desk' is proving to be an important and needed service to help small business men and women deal with the complexities of Government," said O'Jibway.

"If our Office of Advocacy cannot answer a question directly, they will be ready to refer the caller to the appropriate Government office in Washington or around the country. Our specialists will also be supported by a wide variety of resource materials."

The public should continue to call the Lubbock SBA office at (806) 743-7462 for inquiries of a routine nature or to inquire on specific cases.

Special Fam Payments Must Be Reported

Farmers, ranchers and others who made payments last year in excess of $600 for services to individuals (other than employees) and partnerships (but not corporations) must file certain information forms. Failure to do so will result in increased penalties under the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act (TEFRA) of 1982.

Several different information forms in the 1099 series are used in filing these returns, says Dr. Ashley Lovell of Stephenville, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Interest payments of $600 or more are reported on Form 1099-INT.

Payments of $600 or more made for rents, royalties, prizes, awards and other payments that are not for services should be made on Form 1099-MISC.

Form 1099-NEC is for reporting payments of $600 or more for fees, commissions, prizes, awards or any other compensation for services paid to persons who are non-employees.

The minimum penalty for failing to file the necessary information returns without reasonable cause has been raised from $10 to $50 per failure to file, points out Lovell.

There is also a $50 minimum penalty per failure to provide a taxpayer identification number (Social Security or employer's identifying

Stenholm Requests Disaster Aid For Additional Counties

Congressman Charles W. Stenholm (D-Stamford) said that while nine 17th District counties "may finally have some welcome relief" through Farmers Home Administration disaster loans, he remains concerned about other counties which requested the aid but were not declared eligible.

Thirty-three Texas counties were declared eligible January 20 for FmHA emergency (EM) disaster loans. However, 62 other counties, including 15 in the 17th District, were turned down for the lower-interest loans. "These are counties that are hurting — and will hurt more without some help," Stenholm said. "I have seen the damage in many of these counties personally, and I know that many farmers were all but wiped out. How the Department of Agriculture can say these farmers are ineligible for EM loans is beyond me."

Stenholm noted that the legality of the FmHA's present system of designating counties eligible for loans is under challenge by Senator Thomas Eagleton (D-Missouri). Eagleton alleges that a 1978 law requires EM loans to be made on a case-by-case basis to all farmers who qualify, rather than requiring a certain county threshold. The General Accounting Office agreed with Eagleton, and the matter is now under examination by USDA attorneys.

"I have asked USDA Undersecretary Frank Naylor to examine personally the records of some counties where losses were particularly severe," Stenholm said. "I am concerned that errors may have been made in assessing the damage suffered by these counties."

Stenholm added that he has requested a thorough review of all the counties in the 17th District which did not qualify for EM loans, although they were on a list of counties submitted by the Governor's office for USDA's consideration.

There are also problems with previously-announced Small Business Administration emergency loans, Stenholm said. The SBA has been turning back a large percentage of applications for the loans, and though SBA should strictly follow its eligibility criteria, "there are increasing questions whether they intend to make more than a bare minimum of loans, despite the desperate straits many of our small businesses are in," Stenholm said.

"It also appears cooperative businesses are not being considered for these loans in an equitable manner," he continued. "I have introduced legislation correcting the unfair treatment co-ops have received in this area."

Counties in the 17th District declared eligible for FmHA emergency disaster loans include Crosby, Fisher, Garza, Glasscock, Haskell, Mitchell, Nolan, Runnels, and Scurry.

Counties for which the Governor had requested disaster aid, but which were not declared eligible by USDA, include Borden, Coke, Coleman, Howard, Jack, Jones, Lynn, Martin, Palo Pinto, Shackelford, Sterling, Stonewall, Taylor, Throckmorton, and Young.

Farmers in eligible counties who believe they qualify for a disaster loan should contact their county FmHA office, Stenholm said.

TAX

Written by Richard E. Rodgers, CPA

TAX DEFINITIONS

A great deal of confusion in the tax laws centers around the definition of tax terms. I hope you'll find the following definitions useful:

- 1. LONG-TERM CAPITAL GAIN - A favorable tax treatment for assets sold which were held more than one year. Futures transactions in commodities are long-term if held more than six months. Draft, breeding and dairy livestock must be held at least 24 months.
- 2. INCOME AVERAGING - A tax reduction computed by comparing the current year's high income with the prior four year's lower income. A substantial savings is possible if your current year's income is unusually high.
- 3. TAX DEDUCTION VERSUS TAX CREDIT - A deduction is an allowable reduction in your otherwise taxable income. The tax benefit of a deduction is determined by your tax bracket. For example, if you're in the 40% bracket, a $1,000 deductible item will save you $400 of income taxes. Tax credits are an offset against the income tax otherwise payable. A credit is used dollar for dollar to offset taxes. For example, if your income tax payable is $1,000 and your total credits equal $1,000, you will pay nothing.
- 5. ALTERNATIVE MINIMUM TAX - A relatively new tax computation requiring some taxpayers to pay tax when they otherwise may have avoided it. Very large capital gains in any one year could cause you to pay alternative minimum tax. This tax computation should not be overlooked when reviewing the tax considerations of large sales.

Understanding tax definitions is only one part of good tax planning. When you have transactions involving large amounts of money, seek professional assistance.

Journalism Scholarships

Available At Midland College

Students wanting to study journalism on the college level are invited to apply for scholarships to Midland College. It was announced this week by Ralph L. Sellmeyer, Allison Professor of Journalism at Midland College.

The scholarships will pay for books, fees and tuition at MC, Sellmeyer said, and are provided through an endowment fund left the school by the James Allison family, former publishers of the Midland Reporter Telegram.

Midland College's journalism program can provide a student an Associate of Arts degree in journalism which will enable him/her to transfer to any four-year journalism program around the state, or equip him to work on community or mid-size daily newspapers, Sellmeyer said.

In addition to the Allison scholarships, students may also apply for paid staff positions on the Midland College weekly newspaper and/or magazine (published each semester), and also for the college-work study program. Those who participate in the paid staff and work-study programs can earn much of their room and board cost, the MC journalism instructor said.

Those interested should write for applications to: Ralph L. Sellmeyer, Journalism Department, Midland College, 3600 North Garfield, Midland, Texas 79701. Applications should be received by June 1, 1983.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Texans have always been proud to be Americans, and yet we treasure our unique state heritage -- a legacy of pioneer spirit, courage, pride and high principles.

Many of the cherished traditions which are a major source of strength today took shape during the brief 10 years of the Republic of Texas. When Texas became a part of the United States, we brought these traditions with us along with our land and our people.

March 2 is Texas Independence Day. On this date in 1836, a band of brave and dedicated individuals signed the Texas Declaration of Independence. This document outlined their grievances against the government in Mexico City which had failed to abide by the national constitution. But it is more than a list of complaints. It is a statement of the values we continue to cherish -- trial by jury, public education, representative government, due process of law, freedom of religion and government by civil rather than military authorities.

Today, we face many problems as a nation, but we hold in our hands the tools we need to correct them. We are blessed with freedom and the means to preserve the values underscored in our state's Declaration of Independence.

And we have something else -- the same indomitable spirit of our forefathers. This spirit is exemplified by the garrison defending the Alamo. Its young commander, William Barret Travis led this defense in such a way that it became one of the great holding actions in military history. In fact, though the Alamo was lost and the defenders perished, the time that Santa Anna's army was stalled during the siege gave Sam Houston time to put together the forces which ultimately were victorious at the Battle of San Jacinto.

The courage and determination of the men at the Alamo is exemplified by this letter written by Travis "To the People of Texas and all Americans in the world:"

"I am besieged, by a thousand or more of the Mexicans under Santa Anna -- I have sustained continual Bombardment & cannonade for 24 hours & have not lost a man -- The enemy has demanded a surrender at discretion, otherwise, the garrison are to be put to the sword, if the fort is taken -- I shall never surrender or retreat. Then, I call on you in the name of Liberty, of patriotism & everything dear to the American character, to come to our aid, with all despatch -- The enemy is receiving reinforcements daily & will no doubt increase to three or four thousand in four or five days. If this call is neglected, I am determined to sustain myself as long as possible & die like a soldier who never forgets what is due to his own honor & that of his country -- Victory or Death.

WILLIAM BARRET TRAVIS

The Battle of the Alamo has captured the imagination of people throughout the world as a symbol of dedication to freedom regardless of the personal cost. With this as our special heritage, we can be confident of our ability to face and overcome whatever crisis the future may hold.

Superintendent's Views

BY JAMES LANIER
Superintendent, Haskell ISD

Since the state wide Public School Week comes during our spring break, we have changed our observance to this week. If you have not visited our schools during this week, we would encourage you to do so. Our Elementary Open House is tonight, Thursday, March 3rd from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. We will begin with a program in the cafeteria. We hope each of you will be there.

Since the school is often the focal point of the community and its activities along with the churches I believe it behooves us to be willing to display what we are doing and how we are spending the taxpayer's money. Too often a school is judged by the football team they put on the field on Friday nights, the band that performs at half-time, or the basketball team that pound the hardwood during the winter months. These things are important to the student body and the community. However, they are inconsequential in comparison to what is happening in the classroom. The learning activities that occur in the classroom must be the focal point around which all other elements included in the school program is based. Every activity, every expenditure, every decision must center on that one aspect of the school program - the learning taking place in the classroom. This is the only justification for the existence of schools and the tremendous expense of monies, efforts, and time that goes into the operation of any educational institution.

We are proud of our school and what is happening. We honestly believe that we have a good balance of learning experiences and other activities. We strive very hard to keep the correct focus. We hope that we are teaching more than just rote learning. We hope that we are teaching students to think, to learn to discipline themselves, to have a strong developed sense of morality, and a well ingrained work ethic. Of course, students have to develop a basic bank of knowledge to succeed in life as workers and citizens.

The main evaluation of a school should be how well we are succeeding in performing the above tasks. Really the only way John Q. Public can judge this is to observe first hand what is happening. I know each of us have our prejudices concerning teachers, courses, and methods; but, to truly evaluate, we must overlook these, and decide if the school is truly focusing on that most important element - the classroom experience.

Therefore, we sincerely invite you to visit our schools during this week. We are proud of what we are doing and want to show it off.

Cut Corners To Survive

"Farmers who survive 1983 will be ones who cut corners without cutting their jugular," according to a leading agricultural leader in West Central Texas.

In speculating on how agricultural producers can offset high interest rates and depressed crop prices, Mr. L.D. Holstead, vice president and manager of the Production Credit Association office in Ballinger, stresses, "Only producers who find ways to save on production expense and not put their yields in jeopardy will succeed in making a profit for the coming year."

"Farmers will have to become true bargain shoppers, just like other consumers who have learned to track down discounts and sales," he recommends.

Mr. Holstead encourages agricultural producers to seek out finance waiver programs, early payment discounts and other money-saving deals now being offered in the agricultural marketplace.

"Something like a 10 percent discount on good quality seed now being offered by a major Southwestern seed supplier can give the farmer a real price break on a product he's going to have to buy if he farms at all," he says.

"You wouldn't want to jump at just any deal that comes down the pike," he points out, noting that farmers operating on borrowed money must carefully weigh the savings offered by the sellers against the interest to be paid on borrowed money.

"For example, if the savings offered by the farm supplier is big enough to offset the additional interest you might pay by buying early, then it's a good deal," he says. "But if the interest costs you more than you save, it's a bad deal."

"Saving 10 percent on seed costs in February when you're ordinarily paying for seed in April or May actually represents around 40 percent in annualized interest. Play that against production interest of 12 to 14 percent and you can see this is a good deal."

Mr. Holstead concludes, "There's no doubt we'll lose some farmers in the coming years unless there's a big turnaround somewhere. But in the meantime smart farming will mean smart shopping."

Parallel terrace construction lagged behind this winter, due of course to wet soil conditions. Fields are drying enough to begin terrace construction. W.O. Ratliff is installing a parallel terrace system of approximately 17,000 feet which will complete all the conservation work in this Long Term Agreement Contract. David and Dwight Key also plan to install approximately 30,000 feet of parallel terrace to begin a L.T.A. contract. Tim Burson is planning a parallel terrace system and is presently constructing a grassed waterway which will serve as terrace outlets. Tim also is doing this conservation work through an L.T.A.

Waterways are to be installed on the following Great Plains Conservation Program participants, Cahill Estate, Fred D. Brown, Joe and Jerry Lowe, McCleary and Herren, Mary Peyton McCleary and Martha Urrea. All these waterways will serve parallel terrace systems, which will be installed when waterways are established to grass. Parallel terrace construction under the G.P.C.P. is progressing slow with Jerry Monske installed the only terraces at the present time.

The following A.C.P. participants plan to install waterways. Steve Alsbrook, Jerry Cannon, R.C. Franke, Mary C. Hagle, Melba C. Knipling, Otto Wittenborn, Walter Kretschmer, R.A. Shaver, Alma A. Terrell and Adell Thomas. Two applications are for parallel terraces, Mary Zelisco and F.A. Ulmer and standard terraces on Mary C. Hagle. One application for a diversion terrace on Bertha Hohenberger. If you need assistance on conservation work, call or come by the Soil Conservation Service office at 507 South Second Street.

Is It True

That Baptism was done by immersion only in the New Testament?

David F. Martin—Evangelist

The meaning of the word should determine this. The Greeks had, and still have, a word for immerse, one for sprinkle and one for pour. Baptizo means dip or immerse, rantizo means to sprinkle, and Cheo means to pour. *NOW: If Christ had desired the disciples to go forth and sprinkle, He would have used the word that meant sprinkle. But He didn't.

Baptizo: Is the word used in the New Testament. (Acts 8:36,39)

A native Greek: "The verb 'baptize' has only one meaning. It signifies to plunge. Baptism and immersion are identical. To say baptism by sprinkling is as if one would say immersion by sprinkling. The answer is, yes — Baptism was done by immersion only in the New Testament.

Begin Watching For Armyworm Presence

Armyworms are more likely to damage wheat and other small grains in fields in Haskell County where the plants are heavily tillered resulting in rank vegetative growth or where the plants have lodged. Often only the parts of a field where these conditions are found is damaged.

The young pale green armyworms are seldom seen because they usually feed at night. The infestation becomes apparent when the armyworms are in the last larval stages and have stripped much of the foliage from the small grain plants. These larvae will be 1 to 1½ inches in length.

The migration of moths into the area is expected to occur from mid March through early April. The female moths lay about 500 greenish-white eggs in long rows or clusters on lower leaves of small grains.

The level of damage caused by armyworms is dependent on the percentage of the field infested, the stage of larvae, the stage of grain development and damage to the flag leaf, stem and head. Armyworms are gone almost as quickly as they appeared and after the full grown larvae (1½" in length) feed for a few days, they enter the ground and change to the pupal stage. If the armyworms destroy the flag leaf before or while the grain is in the soft dough stage, the yield will be reduced as compared to damage to the flag leaf after the soft dough stage has been completed. Cutting of stems and damage to the head that results in the shattering of grain will also result in reduced yields.

To locate armyworms before they have caused considerable foliage damage, rank and lodged small grain plants should be inspected starting in mid March. The need for control measures should be based on the factors listed above. Often when the infestation is found early the entire field will not need to be treated to obtain effective control. Sevin, Lannate, Nudrin, methyl parathion, parathion and Dylox are suggested for control of armyworms on small grains but Parathion and Dylox are not cleared for use on rye.

When using one of these insecticides apply it according to the information on the label. Additional information on small grain pests is available in B-1251 "Insect and Mite Pests of Small Grains" which is available at your County Extension Agent's office.

Variety Of Funds Available For Investors

Recent changes in federal laws have depository institutions and money market mutual funds scrambling for consumers' savings dollars, a Texas Tech University banking expert says.

Offered by banks and by savings and loans, the new Super NOW accounts with no interest ceiling on deposits of $2,500 or more will help keep consumer dollars in the local economy, said Dr. Richard L. Peterson, Briscoe professor of bank management.

"Money market funds have been growing explosively at the expense of the depository institutions," Peterson said. "Small consumer savings deposits have been shrinking as money market mutual funds have grown."

Money market mutual funds, seen by consumers as an alternative to savings accounts, are not subject to Federal Reserve regulations and requirements.

Until recently, depository institutions have been limited to the amount of interest paid on savings accounts. Also, for most accounts, depository institutions must hold non-interest bearing reserve requirements. Both regulations reduce the interest that depository institutions can pay on these accounts.

A bill passed by Congress in October 1982 allows depository institutions to offer an account with no interest ceiling and no reserve requirements provided that very few checks are written on that account each month.

These "money market accounts," with a minimum $2,500 balance, became available Dec. 14, 1982. On Jan. 5, 1983, Super NOW accounts were authorized. Super NOWs offer unlimited check writing privileges and have no rate ceiling. They do, however, have reserve requirements.

"The Super NOW accounts frequently pay lower interest than the depository institution's money market accounts," Peterson noted. "Nonetheless, the Super NOWs can pay interest competitive with money market mutual funds. And, depository institutions can offer a bonus not given by money market mutual funds -- federal insurance."

To attract consumer dollars to these new accounts, banks and savings and loans will initially offer rates substantially above rates offered by money market mutual funds, he said.

"However, I think after the first month depository institutions are going to start scaling these rates down," Peterson said.

The Super NOWs are going to hurt the money market mutual fund empire which has grown from $60-70 billion in 1979 to more than $230 billion when the new bank and thrift institution accounts became available. Since that time, money market mutual funds have lost more than 10 percent of their deposits to these new accounts.

In anticipation of these asset declines, some firms offering money market mutual funds have attempted to purchase banks, a plan which to date has been unsuccessful.

"I think we will see a continuing decline in money market mutual funds because local depository institutions have an advantage with their local representatives. If anything goes wrong with an account, there is someone locally to straighten things out. With a checking account, people want to have problems straightened out quickly," Peterson said.

Both Super NOWs and money market accounts can benefit not only savers but also borrowers.

As money shifts from money market mutual funds to local institutions, more dollars will be available for local loans. Interest on those loans will have to be higher than rates paid to consumers in attracting those funds. But, if the new accounts attract sufficient funds, rates on loans will be lower than would otherwise be the case, Peterson said.

"Super NOW accounts make saving worthwhile. If more people decide to save, there's going to be more money to loan out and loan interest rates could, in general, fall a bit," he said.

The banking expert believes some consumers transferring funds to Super NOW accounts might be better off obtaining non-taxable, free checking services and less taxable interest.

"Banks, too, can probably come out ahead if they convince people that free checking services and lower interest rates on deposits are to the consumer's benefit," he said.

Peterson believes one reason Super NOWs were authorized was to provide some reserve requirements which are subject to control by the Federal Reserve.

"Money market mutual funds have no reserve requirements and yet they are used as money and substituted for money," he said.

Reserve requirements do reduce earnings on the super NOW accounts, he noted. Consumers seeking high interest earnings and limited checking privileges would do better to park money in depository institutions' federally insured money market accounts rather than Super NOWs.

"The money market accounts do not have reserve requirements as do the Super NOWs," Peterson said.

"Because of that, funds in those accounts can be totally invested by the depository institutions and earn a higher rate of interest than the Super NOWs. The higher rate of return earned by these investments can be passed on to those depositors."

Even with the new Super NOW and money market accounts, Peterson said some people will leave savings in traditional, low interest savings accounts.

"Some people still want Christmas Club accounts even if they don't pay any interest," Peterson said. "So even though you have these new accounts that pay more, not all the money is going to shift."

Review Household Matters During Financial Contingency Day

This time of the year most of us are busy getting our financial records together for income taxes. This creates an ideal time to hold a financial contingency day. During financial contingency day, you review all household financial matters, update needed information and set goals for the coming year. The primary reason for holding this annual financial round-up is to gather all the information that would be needed if a death or accident should occur during the year. So an annual contingency day can save work and heartache in the event of a family crisis situation.

Use this check-list in planning the agenda items for your contingency day meeting with family members:

1. Review and revise net worth statement.
2. Establish financial goals for the coming year.
3. Revise the household budget.

4. Decide how assets and property should be handled in case of the death of a family member.

5. Check wills to see that they are up to date.

6. Prepare or review a letter of last instruction. This letter informs survivors of matters needing attention.

7. Re-calculate survivors' income and expenses in case of a death in the family. Make out a tentative budget for survivors. It is important for survivors to know all sources of income they can depend on.

In a sense, an annual household contingency day is like an annual meeting of a corporation, and should be considered just as important.

WTC Encourages ACT Testing For Seniors

Western Texas College encourages high school seniors to take the ACT test before graduation, Dr. Mary Hood, Director of Counseling Services at WTC, said.

The next ACT test will be administered at WTC on April 16, but students must register by March 18. Registration packets can be obtained from high school counselors or on the WTC campus.

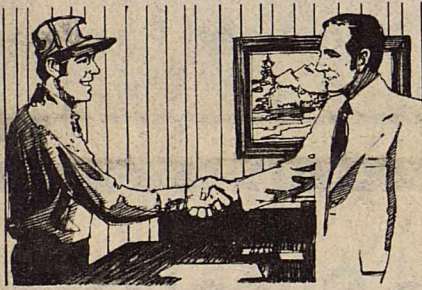

"The ACT is a very helpful counseling tool," Dr. Hood explained. "It helps counselors select English and mathematics courses for students in particular. Students who score high enough on the test can be awarded college credit."

"Students who do not take the ACT will be required to take departmental placement tests prior to registration," she added.

Students or parents who would like more information about the ACT are invited to call Dr. Hood's office at 915 573-8511, extension 274. The office is in the Student Center and prospective students are invited to visit for assistance or information.
