SPECIAL VISITOR

The Goodyear Blimp visited in Haskell Sunday morning for about 30 minutes. The blimp circled Haskell several times just as most Sunday School classes were dismissed. The blimp was enroute from Abilene to Oklahoma City but mechanical problems with a truck forced the blimp to return to Abilene Sunday night. The blimp was back over the Lake Stamford area for much of Monday morning.

100 Attend First Day Classes At Paint Creek

BY ALLAN DINSMORE

At 8:00 a.m. Monday, August 20, 1984, the official beginning of 1984-85 school year started at Paint Creek Schools. Teachers had spent the previous week in in-service training, meetings, and working in their classrooms; however at 8:00 a.m. there was the first student-teacher interaction.

For the 1984-85 school year Paint Creek Independent School District has hired two new teachers; Mrs. Janie Stone, who will teach social studies and language arts; and Mrs. Sharon Brown, who will teach business, math and computers. Max Calk, part-time principal at Paint Creek for many years has been given the position of full-time principal and administrator. This will mean additional duties and responsibilities for Calk. He will primarily be responsible for the day to day operation of the school.

On Monday, August 20, 1984 there were exactly 100 students in attendance. A few more students are expected to register between now and the labor day weekend. A school-wide assembly was the first order of business. Here the faculty and staff were introduced to the students and a brief welcome given by the Superintendent, Allan Dinsmore. After the welcome the elementary students went with their teachers to begin first day activities of getting to know one another, meeting old and new friends, going over class rules, and covering the textbooks that they will be using. Students in grades 7-12 stayed in the auditorium as the new and revised student handbook was given to them and discussed. When the assembly concluded all students in grades 7-12 went to their first class periods and ran a shortened schedule for each class in the morning.

At the end of the first day both teachers and students were hot and tired, but concluded that it had been a successful start and were now looking forward to May 16 and the end of the 1984-85 school year.

VOLUME NINETY-EIGHT HASKELL, TEXAS 79521, AUGUST 23, 1984 NUMBER THIRTY-FOUR

School Board Members Adopt $1,975,252 Budget

Members of the Board of Trustees of Haskell Independent School District Tuesday night adopted a $1,975,252.00 budget for 1984-85 and set the tax rate at .74 cents per $100.00 valuation.

This year's budget represents an increase of about $300,000.00 over last year. Superintendent James Lanier said the increase came because of the adoption of House Bill 72 during a special session of the legislature this summer.

The new law mandates about $112,000.00 in teacher pay raises; $130,000.00 to fund the Haskell-Knox special education coop; and about $72,000.00 for a career ladder, tutorial, and summer kindergarten program.

The rate of .74 cents will be divided with .70 cents allocated to pay operation and maintenance and .04 cents being used to pay interest and sinking.

New funds paid by the state were not sufficient to fund the budget without cuts in several categories. According to Lanier several budget items were reduced from amounts planned earlier in the year. These cuts were in athletics, supplies, and planned capital expenditures.

Earlier in the year, one teacher was cut due to a declining student population.

In other action, Board members approved final amendments to the 1983-84 budget. The changes had been approved during the year but were formalized at the meeting Tuesday night.

Board members also reviewed and approved a plan to implement Chapter 75. Chapter 75 is a new curriculum plan adopted by the state for implementation this year.

According to a joint resolution of the United States House of Representatives and Senate adopted March 1, 1845, the State of Texas can be divided into as many as five separate states.

With the defeat of West Texas favorite son, Kent Hance, in the June run-off primary and the apparent rape of the assets of West Texas to fund a new public education bill, several leaders of West Texas are again talking about the "State of West Texas".

Former Governor Preston Smith, in a telephone interview with the Free Press last week, said, "we have North and South Dakota and Virginia and West Virginia, why not Texas and West Texas?"

According to Smith, "There's no reason we shouldn't try. You just don't know, really, until you try."

Comptroller Bob Bullock this week released a new special report on the geography of Texas taxes. The report shows that during 1983 the plains region of Texas produced $1.8 billion in state tax revenue. That total represents 21.6% of the total tax revenues of the state and is second only to the Gulf Coast.

The plains region produces about $1.2 billion in oil and gas severance taxes, well over half of the total oil and gas revenue in the entire state.

The last major threat of forming a new state was in the early 1920's when several thousand West Texans met in Sweetwater and signed a petition to form a new state. The group of between 5,000 and 40,000 people (depending on reports) was upset at then Governor Pat Neff for his veto of a bill to allow funds for a state college in West Texas.

Gov. Neff met with the group and agreed to help with the proposed school. The next session of the State Legislature approved funding for Texas Technological College.

The State of West Texas may or may not become a reality. Most residents of West Texas would probably prefer a fair shake from State Government as opposed to forming a new state.

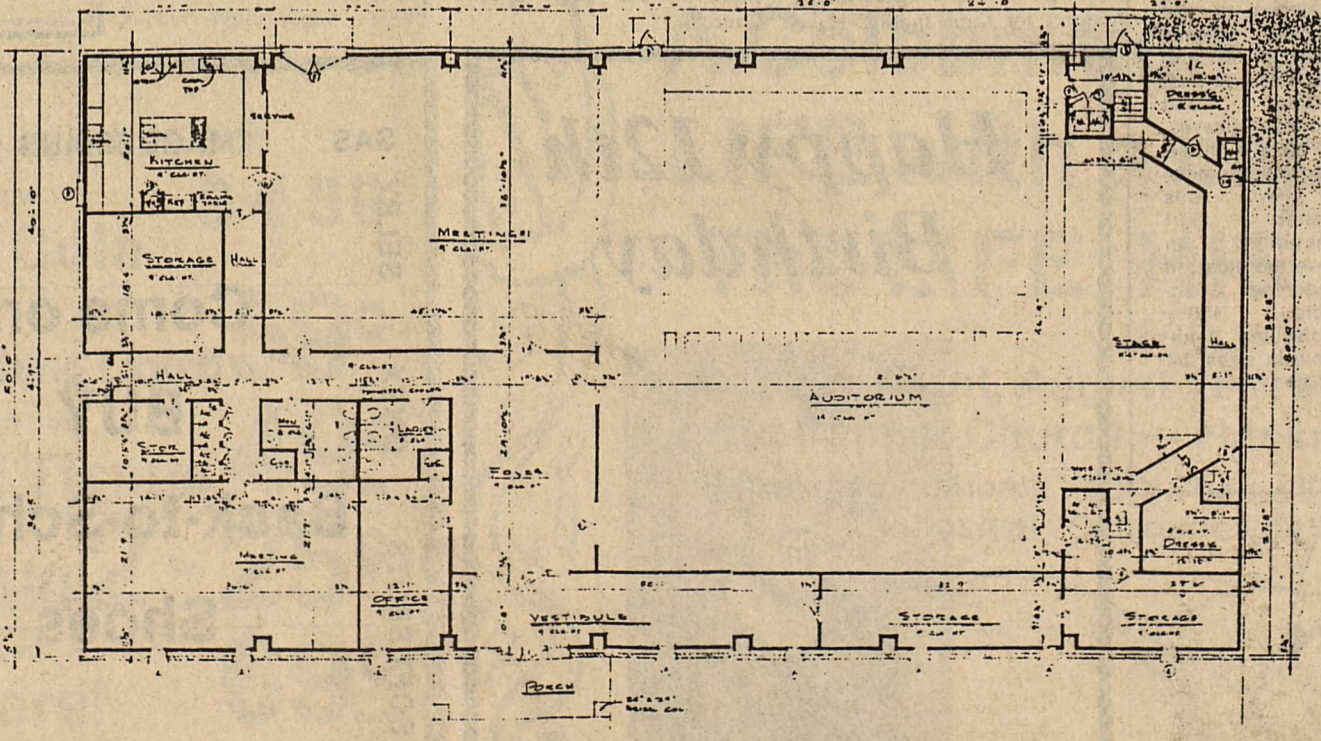

West Texas has two tremendous assets. One is a vast amount of agriculture and natural resources and the other is a philosophy of life unmatched anywhere in the world.

People of West Texas are neighbors whether they are from Haskell, Amarillo, Andrews, or Alpine. They help when needed and work together toward a common goal.

Dramatic population increases in East Texas and the Gulf Coast continue to place more and more of financial burden on West Texas.

When West Texas was represented in Austin by men like Governor Preston Smith, House Appropriations Chairman Bill Heatly, and Speaker of the House Bill Clayton, West Texans had a say in state affairs.

West Texans deserve to be heard in Austin and if present trends continue, talk about the State of West Texas will become more and more popular.

CIVIC CENTER

Board members of the Haskell Memorial Civic Center met Tuesday night and voted to begin construction on the new facility. Sufficient funds have been raised to begin construction according to President R.C. Couch Jr. Board members hope that as construction gets underway, that more funds will be added.

MR. AND MRS. LOWELL RASH of Aspermont have announced the engagement of their daughter Pamela Dee to Jonnie Todd Hise son of Mrs. Lonnie Hise and the late Lonnie Hise. Miss Rash graduated from Aspermont High School, and attended Western Texas College and is now employed for G&M Oil Company in Aspermont. Mr. Hise graduated from Haskell High School, and attended Western Texas College and is now employed for Well Tech in Hamlin. The couple will be married September 29, in the United Methodist Church in Aspermont.

Rogers, Lampe Repeat Vows

Virginia Lampe and Billy Gale Rogers both of Haskell, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony on Thursday, August 16, 1984 at 9:30 in the morning at The Back Porch Dining Room with Judge B.O. Roberson officiating, uncle of the bride.

The bride wore a ecrú dress accented with different shades of blue roses. She carried a bouquet of nosegay of different shades of blue to navy blue roses, with blue forget-me-nots, tied with light blue, navy and erue streamers.

For the traditional something old, something blue, and borrowed, she wore her grandmother's pin, a blue four leaf clover, and a gold necklace with 3 diamonds. Something new was her dress. She had a sixpence in her shoe and she wore a blue garter.

Wilma John Pruett of Haskell was matron of honor. She wore a light blue suit and a corsage of navy blue roses with baby's breath.

The groom wore a light blue suit and a navy blue rose boutonniere.

Best man was Pluto Pruett of Haskell. He wore a dark blue suit with light blue rose boutonniere.

The reception was held at The Back Porch Dining Room. The table was decorated with a two-tiered cake of light and navy blue roses. In a crystal bowl was cherry punch. Also nuts and mints was served.

The bride is employed by Trammel Bit Company.

The groom is presently employed by Wes-Mor Drilling Company.

After a trip to Elmore City, Oklahoma and Stephenville, the couple will make their home in Haskell.

Jamaica Funds To Benefit St. George Catholic Church

The race is on at St. George Church as the annual Jamaica-Bazaar-approaches. The Jamaica will be held on Sunday, September 16. This year St. George runs in competition with St. Ann's Catholic Church, Stamford.

The Haskell Queen candidate is Emily Camacho, daughter of Jose and Minnie Camacho. When both Jamaicas are over, the winning Queen will be crowned at a special Coronation Dance in Haskell. At present there is much activity and fund-raising at the St. George Church in support of candidate Emily.

The Jamaica tradition really got underway at St. George in the early seventies. At that time it was necessary to extend the Church. The Church was first built in 1961. At that time St. George was part of the Dallas-Ft. Worth Diocese. Later St. George became part of the San Angelo Diocese, and in June of last year, together with Stamford, Anson, Hamlin, Rotan, Aspermont and Snyder, the growing church was incorporated into the new Lubbock Diocese. At present, because of the increasing catholic community, plans are being formulated for the further enlargement of the Haskell church. Some of the monies being raised at Jamaica time are being reserved for this important project. The Catholic families of Haskell, Rule, Weinert, Rochester and countryside are served by the St. George Church. All are supporting Emily as she runs as candidate in the 1984 race.

Back-To-School Dessert And Snack Tips

Packing lunch boxes, mailing care packages to college students, grabbing a quick breakfast on the run and after-school snacking. Yes, it's that time of year again when at least a few of these activities become part of most busy routines.

Change from more relaxed summer schedules to a faster pace need not bring humdrum, unappealing eating habits. It's important to avoid the same old thing for the lunch box toters and for the eat-and-run breakfast eaters to encourage them not to skip such important nutritional meals.

Home economists in the Betty Crocker Kitchens have tasty answers to some of the questions you may be asking now that fall is here.

Question: What type of baked desserts pack best in lunch boxes?

Answer: First of all, choose desserts that will keep at room temperature. This means avoiding foods with cream and other fillings and toppings that require refrigeration. Select items that tote without crumbling and can be placed in airtight wrapping without ruining appearance.

Also, select cakes, bars and cookies with firm and/or moist textures without gooey frostings. We particularly like gingerbread, brownies and other bars, chewy cookies, pound cake, dessert-type muffins and fruit-filled pastry turnovers. The many flavors of Betty Crocker Snackin' Cake Mixes offer variety and convenience.

No need for frosting or filling, and the moist yet firm texture keeps each piece looking and tasting good. Angel food cake is another possibility if it can be packed to prevent crushing. It is easily eaten out of hand and teams with many favorite packable fruits.

Question: What are some tips for successfully mailing baked goods to a college student?

Answer: Many lunch box rules apply to mailing as well. Again, choose desserts that will not spoil or become stale en route. Opt for good long-distance travelers such as moist, firmly textured cakes and bars; date and cream bars; coconut macaroons; fruitcake and moist, drop cookie favorites such as oatmeal, sour cream and molasses.

Use brown mailing paper for outer wrap and clearly mark your package - PERISHABLE FOOD.

It pays to check with a postal employee as to the best method of mailing to insure safe, speedy delivery.

Question: Please give some suggestions for breakfasts on the run.

Answer: Muffins and quick breads with a nutritional spread are satisfying, easy to eat and quickly prepared. Certain snackin' and other cakes with early morning appeal include flavor combinations such as applesauce raisin and banana walnut.

Other speedy ideas are ready-to-eat cereals with fresh fruit, granola bars, yogurt sprinkled with granola, pancakes made ahead and reheated in the microwave, nutritious blender drinks, and banana slices spread with peanut butter.

Question: What should I consider when selecting after-school snacks for the kids?

Answer: Snacks should be considered part of the daily meal plan and, if necessary, should fulfill a portion of the nutritional requirements. Taking into consideration the child's age, weight, level of activity and special dietary needs, snack ideas include: yogurt; fresh or canned fruits; cookies, cake or bars with milk; cheese slices and crackers or fruit; popcorn; breads; crisp vegetables with dip; peanut butter- or cheese-stuffed celery; and blender drinks. It is important to select snacks that are ready and waiting in the refrigerator or can be quickly assembled.

Please send any baking-related questions to Betty Crocker, Box 5402, Dept. 889, Minneapolis, MN 55460.

MUSICAL STORY BOOKS

Youngsters love to listen to the melodies in musical story books.

Striking a bright note in the early childhood education field these days is a series of story books that incorporate melodies right along with favorite stories.

Parents and children are delighting in these volumes that team well-known songs and characters with light-activated melody makers that play automatically every time the book is opened.

The colorful text and characters echo the theme of each book's melody. The Golden Melody™ Books were introduced last year by the makers of Golden Books. For children from two to seven years old, they're designed to encourage early reading skills through entertainment.

As children hear their favorite tunes over and over again, many begin to sing along, associating words of the songs with the animated characters and their stories.

Four new additions have been introduced to the collection this year. The Sesame Street gang and Monchichi, and Walt Disney's Snow White and Small World will bring more favorite songs and characters to these already popular musical books from Western Publishing.

The Walt Disney's It's a Small World brings Disney World right into the house with its 'round-the-world music fest highlighting the "Small World" song theme. Walt Disney's Snow White & The Seven Dwarfs plays the long-familiar "Heigh-Ho". The People In Your Neighborhood plays the popular song from the Sesame Street television show and the whimsical title Monchichi plays "Happy Birthday to You."

Good Record Keeping Answers Money Questions

Where does all the money go? You'll never have a good answer to this question, or a grasp of your family finances unless you have a method for keeping financial records, says home economist Mary Clayton Nance.

"Keeping good records may not be the most desirable task, but it is a necessary one for effective money management," says Nance, a specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Record-keeping should be a cooperative effort among all members of the household, although the person best qualified should assume major responsibility for the task, she says.

The first step is to organize a work space, which includes a table surface and adequate facilities for storing records, says Nance.

Then you will need to develop a workable record-keeping system. This is simply a procedure for forecasting expected income, estimating money you need, making spending plans, keeping a record of how money was used and reviewing family money management, explains the home economist.

"Develop a system to get started, but don't feel like you're locked into it, says Nance. "It's better to make changes in your system than to abandon it because it's too difficult to follow."

Here are the home economist's suggestions for starting a basic family record-keeping system:

- Keep all cash register tapes and receipts for bills paid in one place—like a box or drawer—until they can be filed or recorded in a monthly record keeping book. Be sure that each tape or receipt identifies the amount of money spent and what it was spent for.

- Have each family member record the money they spend and its use, then give it to the person who is keeping the monthly bills.

- Decide who will pay the bills and record the spending plans and expenditures. Also decide whether the recording will be done weekly, every two weeks or monthly.

- Set a specific time, like a once a month, for a family council to evaluate goals, spending plans and records of how money was used and to make spending plans for the next month.

It's important that accurate records and plans are kept for all money, says Nance, otherwise, you can't spot leaks and improvements in your family financial situation.

CONSUMER ALERT

NEWEST CREDIT CARD FRAUD IS TRICKY

"Congratulations, Mrs. Jones! Because you have such a good credit rating you have been selected to win one of these wonderful prizes: a new car, $1,000 cash, a diamond, a large screen t.v. or a microwave oven. Can you verify your Visa or Mastercard number for me so we'll know we have the right Mrs. Jones?"

That's the pitch of a new consumer fraud that is apparently becoming widespread. After the unsuspecting consumer gives the caller his or her credit card number, the caller promises to send a gift. Instead, however, the caller and his cohorts use the credit card number to charge the consumer's account for $129.00.

CREDIT CARD SAFETY

You should know that it is never a good idea to give your credit card numbers to someone who calls asking for them. If you know the caller or if you have called a motel or airline, for example, to make a reservation, you are probably safe in giving out your card number.

However, when someone calls you, you should refuse to give out this vital information.

In some cases, consumers have been asked merely to verify their card number as the caller reads it to them over the phone. They too were billed $129.00 and received nothing.

Often the caller will tell the victim that he or she will call back in 30 minutes to verify the original information. But the caller never does call back and the victim is hit with an extra charge on his or her bill.

Visa and MasterCard have nothing to do with this fraudulent scheme. If you have been the victim of such a phone call, you should notify your card issuer immediately. If your account number was obtained by fraud over the phone, you cannot be held liable for the charge.

If you have been victimized by this type scheme, you should contact one of my Consumer Protection Division offices or your local Better Business Bureau. Beginning School Is Exciting Time For Child

For grade school children, the beginning of a new school year is a very special and exciting time.

There is a new teacher and a new classroom. Even the other children look different because they have grown over the summer months. It's important that parents help their children get a good start on the new school year. Here are some suggestions from Growing Up, the child development newsletter for school-age children.

Home-school relations
It is a good idea to meet your child's teacher early in the school year. That way you establish some common ground whenever your child talks about this very important person. This is also a good idea whenever a child transfers to a new school.

Meeting the teacher may not require a formal appointment—just a casual introduction, maybe before or after school, at an "open house," or PTA meeting. At the beginning of the school year, it is particularly important that parents be available at home when their child is doing homework. A word of encouragement or a helping hand will help the child bridge the gap to a new and unfamiliar world.

Supplies and clothes
Delay some purchases of supplies and clothes until after the school year is underway. The teacher may require a composition book, for example, with lines that are less widely spaced than the one you bought. Or there may be a special type of pen or pencil that your child is required to have. It is better to wait and get the right kind. There may also be special clothes that your child wants to wear. She will want to fit in with the rest of the children so she may insist on helping select her clothes. This is a good time for parents to help a child learn how to make wise decisions about selecting new clothes. For example, will the color match what she already has, will she outgrow it in two months, is the price reasonable?

The Growing Up newsletter follows a child's development through the school years. For more information, write to Growing Up, P.O. Box 62N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include school grade when writing.

Plan Now For GI Bill School Enrollment

According to C.H. Herren, Veterans Service Officer for Haskell County, persons planning to enroll in school under Veterans Administration programs this coming Fall should commence work on their applications without any further delays.

Veterans planning to enroll under the GI Bill, as well as wives, widows and children of certain veterans, should make certain that the necessary paper work has been accomplished.

GI Bill training for veterans terminates at the end of ten years following discharge or release from service. Wives and children of 100% service-connected disabled veterans, as well as widows and children of veterans whose deaths were caused by service-connected disabilities, are eligible for education and training under VA laws. This latter group of beneficiaries have an entitlement period of ten years from the date eligibility is determined, generally the date of death of the veteran.

Veterans may enter training under the GI Bill without any VA counseling, although the special counseling is available upon request. Wives, widows and children are not required to undergo counseling if they are pursuing a college degree program. Otherwise, counseling may be required before VA benefits can be paid.

GI Bill veterans who are full time students may receive VA benefits of $342 per month, plus allowances for legally established dependents. Wives, widows and children under the VA Dependents' Educational Assistance Program are entitled to $342 per month if enrolled full time. There is no additional allowance for dependents of wives, widows or children.

For assistance in applying for VA benefits, visit your local Veterans Service Officer or visit the school you wish to attend.

Superintendent's Views

BY JAMES LANIER

Superintendent, Haskell ISD

We will continue to review components of HB 72 and how they affect Haskell ISD in this column. HB 72 contains a cost factor entitled Price Differential Adjustment. The bill provides a formula which has the purpose of adjusting the basic allotment to reflect cost factors that are beyond the school districts' control. The PDI will provide greater financial resources to districts with higher educational cost beyond the control of districts. Districts which are forced to pay higher salaries due to the economic conditions around them will benefit. If the costs of goods and services are higher than the state average, the district will gain. Also, if the district has a higher number of disadvantaged students which are costly to educate, it will receive additional funding. This particular formula will not effect Haskell ISD at this time as we are listed as one which will not qualify us for any additional funds.

Another adjustment is the small district adjustment. The basic allotment for certain small districts shall be adjusted by formula according to their ADA and geographic territory. This applies only to the basic allotment. This formula does benefit Haskell ISD. We have less than 300 square miles of district with an ADA of 642. This number is subtracted from 1600 and multiplied by a factor of .00025. With this factor, we gain about $300. per ADA.

Another sparsity adjustment addresses schools with more than 90 ADA but less than 130 ADA which offer K-12 program. These schools are funded on basic allotments just as if they have an ADA of 130. This formula does not effect Haskell ISD.

HB 72 also addresses Special Education. This year we will operate under a modified Personnel Unit very similar to what it has been in the past. However, we will be required to report on contract hours to the Texas Education Agency. This report will be required to report on contract hours to the Texas Education Agency. This report will determine the number of full time equivalent students or FTE's for which we will be funded. An FTE means 30 hours of contracts a week between a special education student and special education program personnel. The type of instruction and the degree of help needed will be weighed by a hypothetical factor. We simply cannot determine the impact on Haskell ISD at this time. I feel that it will not be good. We will be forced to subtract these FTE's from our basic allotment. A very close study will be made on the impact of the cost factor in this program on each school district in the state during this school year. I see very little effect this year with the exception of the method of flowing funds. The Special Education funds will come to our school and we will, in turn, pass our portion on to the fiscal agent of the Haskell-Knox Consortium. Formerly, the funds have flowed directly to the fiscal agent of a co-op. This did give the impression through the media that school districts who were not fiscal agents were receiving additional funding. However, this was not true. It was simply rerouting the monies.

We will continue in our attempt to inform you on HB 72 and its impact in our next column. It will probably take several more weeks.

WE HAVE pencil cups, stackable trays, book-ends, paper clip holders, stamp cubes and telephone files in matching colors. Haskell Free Press

Deer Population May Be Improved By Drought

Dry weather and sun-scorched habitat so far have failed to seriously hurt the state's white-tailed deer populations, and may even contribute to a better hunting season this fall.

This is the view of Horace Gore, white-tailed program leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, who said so far no drought-related deer die-offs have been reported.

"The deer are doing pretty well, even in the really dry areas," said Gore, "but fawn crops and antler development are extremely poor in some regions." The deer season in most counties will be Nov. 17, 1984, through Jan. 6, 1985.

Gore notes that hunter harvest traditionally is higher during a dry year when deer are forced to move around more than usual to find food. "I'm almost certain the acorn crop this year will be poor so the deer will be moving around quite a bit more during the daylight hours."

Many landowners have inquired about the feasibility of supplemental feeding of deer during the current drought, a practice biologists consider marginal in terms of benefit to the deer herd. "A landowner may help the deer a little by feeding corn, and it may serve to hold the deer in a particular home area," Gore said. "But supplemental feeding in the quantities usually provided probably has very small long-term effect on the overall nutritional well-being of a deer herd."

Gore said some parts of the state are not hurt by dry weather so far, but others are as dry as experienced observers have noted in years. "Most of the Edwards Plateau is extremely dry, and that drought area extends through the western half of South Texas," Gore said, adding that this is a region which provides a high percentage of the state's annual whitetail harvest. The bone-dry area also includes a West Texas region roughly bounded by San Angelo, Abilene, Mineral Wells and Waco.

Oddly, one of the lushest regions of the state is the usually-arid Trans-Pecos, which received larger than normal amounts of rainfall in 1984. Biologists hope this will give a boost to mule deer populations which have declined in some areas during the past few years.

The East Texas Pineywoods, as well as the hardwood region centered around Leon, Robertson and Anderson Counties, are drier than normal but not significantly so, Gore said.

One of the hardest-hit regions this year and during the past three years is around Cotulla in South Texas. The Chaparral Wildlife Management Area in LaSalle County south of Cotulla is facing its fourth year out of the past five with low fawn production because of drought conditions.

Gore reminded hunters that even with the possibility of some losses of deer due to the drought, most of Texas' deer range is overpopulated with deer. "Landowners and hunters should try to use all the antlerless deer permits they are entitled to, because deer populations and dry weather are placing even more pressure on overused habitat," Gore explained.

Glycogen source of extra energy in race horses

Texas A&M University animal scientists may have found a way to rev up race horses by depleting their muscle energy supply and then dramatically increasing it 7-10 days before race.

Human physiologists know that higher concentrations of carbohydrate compound called glycogen in the liver and muscles of athletes improves performance. Glycogen is a source of extra energy at the end of race.

But no one knew if the same was true for horses, said Dr. Gary Potter, an equine nutritionist and horse program leader in Texas A&M's College of Agriculture.

Potter and Dr. Don Topf, formerly Potter's graduate student at Texas A&M and now leader of the equine research program at Oklahoma State University, found that a horse's glycogen levels can be significantly increased through training and diet manipulation which is important because it could help sustain a horse's pace longer by giving it more available energy.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
James E. Rodgers, CPA

HOW TO MAKE MONEY ON LOSSES

Turn losses to your advantage by deducting them from your income. If you have a year in which you incur losses be sure that you accumulate the information needed to deduct them either on your current tax return or carry them over or back as the law may provide. A bad debt deduction is one type of loss that is sometimes not timely deducted or recognized.

Deduct the loss that results when someone owes you and you can't collect it. In order to be deductible, the debt must be real and valid. The person must be obligated by law to pay you a specific sum of money. You must make an unsuccessful effort to collect it.

There is a distinction between business and nonbusiness bad debts and how they are deducted. Nonbusiness bad debts, which are not related in any way to your trade or business, must be totally worthless before you can deduct them. Since they are deductible as a capital loss, they are subject to a limit of $3,000. But if your bad debt is greater than $3,000, the loss may be carried over onto the next years' returns until you have used it up.

Business bad debts must be closely related to your trade or business. They are deducted directly from gross income. So, the deduction is larger than for nonbusiness bad debts.

A word of caution: The IRS is very suspicious of bad debt deductions that are from loans to family members and political candidates. If you have such a loss, be prepared for a fight. The IRS will question and scrutinize the transaction to make sure that it's not a gift disguised as a bad debt. Make sure that you have proper documentation to support the deduction.

New Home To Test Efficiency

COLLEGE STATION—If you think the Smithsonian is the only place you'll ever see another $20 monthly utility bill, think again.

A Texas A&M University architect has completed plans for a two to four bedroom, two bath house that, if operated properly, could use an average of less than $20 a month in energy costs.

Raymond Reed, professor of architecture and a member of the American Institute of Architects Task Force on Energy Conservation, said the next step in the Gulf States Utilities-sponsored project is to construct the house and operate it as an experimental model. Energy-saving features in the proposed 1,720-square-foot house include airlock vestibules that prevent the loss of heat and cooling, five-inch metal stud foam exterior walls and a seven-inch foam ceiling. The house also has a second metal roof which in summer provides continuous shade and a cool breeze through the space between the two roofs. In winter, the separating space is closed off and the metal roof acts as a solar collector.

Russell Lee, one of the photographers hired by Washington between 1935 and 1943 to record the devastation of the Depression, captured on film small-town life, the poor farm family and the dispossessed. The results were candid shots, catching people with their shabby clothing and meager possessions, and recording the stark surroundings. Texas Birthday Celebration Set

With a year and a half still to go until the big celebration in 1986, statewide planning for the Sesquicentennial is approaching a fever pitch—a fact 74 newly-sanctioned Texas Independence Communities and Counties would be happy to attest to! The 74 local planning committees for the Sesquicentennial received the official title from the Sesquicentennial Commission in Austin last week, bringing the total number of officially sanctioned local planning committees to 347.

This figure represents almost three-quarters of the population of Texas, involving more than 500 Texas communities.

The 74 new Texas Independence Communities and Counties earned the title after many months of hard work and decision-making, culminating in the submission of their master plans to the Commission for approval at its August 8 quarterly meeting. Each committee's master plan was required to meet several criteria, including a committee roster reflecting a cross section of the community, written resolution from the county judge and commissioners' court or mayor and city council, and a detailed description of the city's or county's planned events and activities for the celebration.

As Texas Independence Communities and Counties, the organizations are afforded several privileges. Among these are the right to use the Sesquicentennial logo on printed materials and to award its use on other products of the committee's choosing, the opportunity to sell and profit from official Sesquicentennial commemorative products, and—most importantly—the right to have their major, dated events published in the Official Guide to Sesquicentennial Events and Activities, to be printed and distributed worldwide in 1985.

The special events and activities the 74 committees have planned to honor Texas in 1986 are as colorful and diverse as the communities and counties that will carry them out. Cowboy and old-timer homecomings and celebrations, ethnic festivals, parades, historical pageants, erection of markers and statues, and beautification of downtown areas are some of the highlights. A common thread runs through each master plan: the pride each committee feels for its own area, and a desire to showcase its local best in 1986.

Shop Selectively Before Beginning Sewing Project

Sewing takes a personal investment of money, time, effort and creativity. That's why it pays to shop selectively before you begin to sew. Some advance planning can help eliminate problems and keep the fun in sewing the "perfect" garment.

Start your selective shopping by going through the fashion and sewing magazines to see what's fashionable and right for you.

Then go to the ready-to-wear departments of your favorite stores and look at the fashions you like. See how they are influenced by the fabrics that they're made from and how they drape and tailor. Observe how different print designs affect the total look and how textures add interest. Try on different looks to observe their appearance. Now check the labels and hangtags attached to the garments. Find out whose fabric is used, what it's made of and the care it requires. After this, you begin to know what to look for when you get to the fabric store.

Select a pattern similar to the design you prefer. Having selected a pattern and shopped the stores and magazines, you should already have some idea of the type of fabrics you'll need. Read both ends of the fabric bolts or hangtags for information that can help you choose among different fabrics. The labels will tell you such important things as:

- Brand name. A recognized name is often a clue to quality.
- Fabric name. Consider what you know about it and try to remember if you have seen it on ready-to-wear hangtags.

- Fiber contents. Consider whether you want a care-demanding fiber or those that are more likely to be easy-care. Also consider the look and feel that different types of fiber will give you.
- Required care. Read the manufacturer's claim carefully. Look for performance finishes like permanent press or soil release.

Finally, before you buy any fabric, take it in hand and face the mirror. Make sure that it flatters you. With just a little extra care in selection you can get the fabric that's just right for you and the garment you plan to sew.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

U.S. leadership in computer and other high technology industries is deteriorating and soon could, like our automobile and steel industries, be pressed hard by foreign competitors.

But our imports of high-tech products, according to a recent Congressional Budget Office study, increased from 8.3 percent in 1974 to 11.0 percent in 1981.

U.S. industry spends only 3.3 percent of each research dollar, down from 7 percent in the mid-1960s, on basic research and development, which creates the innovations that spawn new technologies and products.

These statistics suggest a potential economic weakness that must be strengthened.

Our competitors for the world's high-tech markets have thrown down the gauntlet and aggressively begun pursuing dominance in what is projected to be the fastest growing industry for the next 10 to 15 years.

Japan, for example, pooled its brightest scientists from eight computer companies to spend three years brainstorming to develop breakthroughs in computer technology. When these scientists return to their firms next year, Japan could leap forward in the race to capture future computer markets.

Few U.S. firms can afford to "go it alone" on R&D projects, with research costs soaring and the number of skilled scientists and technicians dwindling. The most logical, beneficial solution would be for our firms, as well, to pool their resources and talents on basic research.

But U.S. businesses are wary of banding together because of the threat of government prosecution, or civil suit, for anti-trust violations.

Only one such project has, for the time being, received Justice Department approval. Microelectronics & Computer Technology Corporation (MCC) of Austin is a joint R&D venture of 13 electronics companies, directed by Admiral Bobby R. Inman. This year-old project, however, is still confronted by the possibility of a change in Justice Department policies.

The Senate has unanimously approved legislation that would remove this cloud of doubt for MCC and for other companies that are reluctant to form their own joint R&D ventures. I co-sponsored this legislation and have pushed similar provisions in the past.

This bill carefully defines the guidelines a joint R&D project must follow to avoid anti-trust violations. Specific emphasis is placed on projects that are working to keep the U.S. competitive in world markets.

Should a complaint about a joint R&D project arise, the "rule of reason" would apply, with anti-trust rulings handed down only if there is evidence that competition within the industry is being stifled. The award of treble damages, applicable in anti-trust cases, would not apply.

This legislation effectively draws the line between beneficial joint activities that help our nation remain competitive and the kind of strong-arm business collusion banned by our anti-trust laws.

By pooling their research resources, American companies can remain at the frontiers of technological development and meet the challenge laid down by our nation's competitors.

Vernon State Hospital Celebrating 15th Anniversary

Vernon State Hospital is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary of service to the people of Texas with a public birthday party and barbeque from 2:00 p.m. until midnight on Saturday, September 8, at the hospital's north campus in Vernon.

The party will climax a week of celebrations including an employee awards dinner on September 4 and patient-staff activities each day.

The Lions Club of Vernon is sponsoring the barbeque, which will cost $1.00 per plate. Also on hand will be a variety of entertainment, including drill teams, clowns, square dancers and static displays of a variety of items including firefighting and rescue equipment and antique cars.

Weather permitting, a hot air balloon will also be tethered for display.

Vernon State Hospital is Texas' newest state mental health facility serving patients from 43 counties of north and west Texas at its main campus in Vernon. In addition, the south campus Adolescent Drug Abuse and Addiction Service treats teenagers from throughout Texas and is the only state facility providing that service. The drug unit is celebrating its tenth anniversary of operation.

"Visions of Victory" is the theme for the overall celebration, commemorating a clear victory over mental illness and chemical abuse in Texas since the hospital began operation in 1969. In addition, the theme also recalls the fact that the south campus hospital grounds were originally Victory Field, a primary pilot training station during World War II.

The public is invited to attend the birthday party. Barbeque tickets should be purchased in advance and are available from any Vernon Lion's Club member or by calling 817-552-9901, ext. 201.

Reddy's Safety Reminders:

Most of us take electric power for granted. We just flick a switch and there it is — doing all those things we've come to expect. That SAME power can be dangerous if we don't learn to treat it with respect. Here are a few reminders on how to live more safely — electrically — from Reddy Kilowatt:

Never Pull on the Cord!

When disconnecting electric appliances and equipment, be sure to pull on the plug — not the cord! If you pull on the cord, you'll eventually wear it out and expose hazardous wires. Also, don't overload extension cords and outlets.

Install Antennas Away from Power Lines!

If you have a TV or CB antenna to install or repair, make sure there's plenty of clearance between it and the nearest power lines. Working too close to a power line can be hazardous.

Don't Shoot at Power Lines!

Also remember not to shoot at power lines or the insulators that hold them. The severed line could cause a serious electricity outage and the downed line itself could be very dangerous.

It's the Power of Choice.

Texas, Mexico Working To Improve Health Care

By Governor Mark White

AUSTIN—Border governors from the United States and Mexico are searching for a common prescription to treat the health care service ills plaguing low-income communities clustered along our two countries' common border.

Hundreds of our poorest citizens have been denied access to medical care due to soaring medical costs, a nagging high unemployment rate, and a shortage of doctors, nurses and health care clinics in South Texas and northern Mexico.

Although Texas' border area ranks among this country's population boom centers, it remains one of its poorest. In the 13 Texas counties along the Rio Grande River from Brownsville to Laredo, last decade's 40 percent population growth rate shows no signs of slowdown and half the population still lives below the poverty level.

To spotlight this problem, I encouraged health care leaders to meet with the governors of three American and six Mexican states for a Border Governors' Conference on July 23 in Tucson, Ariz. I co-chaired a health care panel with the Mexican governor of Baja, Calif., and encouraged the development of a binational agenda to bring affordable medical care within reach.

We must join forces to develop health and human service training programs for nurses, doctors, allied health professionals, and social service workers in Mexico and American border states.

Texas needs another 100 primary care physicians in the Rio Grande Valley alone to meet minimal health manpower standards, along with half again more nurses and medical technicians.

Dr. Michael Lauderdale, director of the University of Texas Center for Social Work Research, has received federal funds to compile an inventory of available programs in American border states and Mexico to deal with juvenile delinquency, child abuse, infectious disease control, and prenatal and primary health care needs. Members of my staff arranged a meeting between Dr. Lauderdale and Dr. Guillermo Soberon Acevedo, the Mexican Secretary of Health and Public Assistance, and helped secure Mexico's support for promoting more efficient international exchange and use of available health care and human service programs.

Texas universities are leaders in international programs for research and health studies. The University of Texas, Baylor College of Medicine, and the University of Houston have worked closely with the University of Nuevo Leon and the National Autonomous University of Mexico to further medical research.

To lower infectious disease rates in the Rio Grande Valley, we must emphasize early detection and treatment. Despite gains in the quality of health care available in the Valley, infant mortality remains 125 percent higher among migrant farm workers compared to the rest of the nation. Half of the Hispanic women living in the Valley do not receive prenatal care.

Collaborations between the medical communities and governments of our two countries are producing results. Birthing centers have opened in several border cities to upgrade the care provided by midwives. The Binational Health Council, supported by state agencies and universities in Texas and Mexico, is working to improve health conditions by pooling resources and medical research findings.

Our health as a nation depends in large part upon providing equal access to affordable health care and, in Texas, we intend to meet that challenge.

Lubbock Field Day To Incorporate 75th Anniversary

Roots of scientific efforts and progress to support the area agriculturalist with production and marketing problems of the Texas High Plains will be demonstrated Sept. 11 at the 75th annual field day and anniversary celebration of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock and Halfway.

The Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center is the host this year, said Dr. Bill Ott, resident director of research at the station. The annual program alternates between the Lubbock and Halfway locations. This year's field day is being held in Lubbock in conjunction with the station's 75th anniversary activities.

The center is located north of Lubbock International Airport on FM 1294, just east of I-27 at the Shallowater exit.

"What is usually a conventional field day has been modified this year to include a celebration of the station's 75th year of service to the Lubbock and High Plains area," Ott said.

Field tours will begin at 10:00 a.m. and will feature four major stops, said Dr. John R. Gannaway, TAES cotton breeder at the station and the field day chairman.

Major stops will feature a historical planting of cotton, grain sorghum and other crops; the latest research of water use efficiency; the development of drought tolerant cotton, hybrids and disease resistant cotton varieties; and new techniques and products for weed control.

Other areas featured at the field day will be a special tour of the station's vineyard, a display of computers and computer programs for agricultural use and laboratory tours which will display the latest technological advancements and research findings.

Gannaway said.

In observance of the 75th anniversary, a slide presentation of the station's history will be presented in the auditorium. There will also be a display of old and new farm machinery, Gannaway said.

The field day is a cooperative presentation of TAES, the High Plains Research Foundation, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the U.S. Department of Agriculture Agricultural Research Service and the Texas Forest Service. Staff members of these participating agencies will be on hand to answer questions and discuss problems with agricultural producers, home owners and gardeners.

A&M Dean Predicts Ag Scientist Shortage

The number of scientists retiring from colleges of agriculture and the United States Department of Agriculture, coupled with declining agricultural enrollments, could lead to a serious shortage of agricultural scientists, said Dr. H.O. Kunkel, dean of Texas A&M University's College of Agriculture.

Kunkel referred to a USDA report which suggests a general shortfall of 15 percent in graduates in higher education in agriculture by 1985, particularly in agricultural economics, agricultural engineering, animal sciences, food sciences, and soil and plant sciences.

An estimated 15,000 doctorate degrees will be granted in agricultural sciences during the next decade, he said, but that may not be enough.

"The raw numbers suggest that needs will be met," Kunkel said, "but almost 40 percent of the students studying for Ph.D.s in the United States are nonimmigrant citizens of other countries, and the vast majority of these will likely find employment in countries other than the U.S."

Lloyd Doggett To Address Farmers Union Convention

The annual Texas Farmers Union District 3 Banquet will be held Saturday, September 1st, District 3 Director Floyd (Buster) Borchardt announced.

The Texas Farmers Union official also announced the commitment of United States Senate candidate Lloyd

Doggett to speak at the event, which is to be held in the Crowell Ag Pavilion in Foard County, beginning at 7:00 p.m.

Doggett, the Democratic candidate for the Senate seat vacated by John Tower is currently the state senator from the Austin area. He won a close victory over fellow Democrats Bob Krueger and Kent Hance in the May primary and June runoff to become the Democratic nominee for the slot.

"We are real pleased to have state Senator Doggett with us at our annual banquet," says Borchardt.

"Every year we try to have a guest speaker that we think that our members will find interesting. Senator Doggett certainly fits that description; he has been a friend to family farmers and ranchers in the Texas Senate, and we feel like he will be a friend to us in the U.S. Senate."

The Texas Farmers Union is an organization of approximately 10,000 members across the state. The Farmers Union works on behalf of small farmers and ranchers in the state and national legislatures, and offers several different services for their membership. Part of the National Farmers Union (which was founded in 1902 here in Texas), the Texas Farmers Union is headquartered in Waco and is governed by a president and a board of directors, all of whom are elected from the organization's membership.

PUBLIC NOTICE

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., has filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) a proposal to reduce intrastate, interLATA long distance revenues to offset proposed increases in specialized service rates for private line, WATS, 800, OCC facilities and directory assistance services. The proposed tariff restructure will not result in any increases in the overall revenues of the Company. The proposed effective date for the tariffs is September 20, 1984. All customers and classes of customers will be affected by this filing.

The restructure in the basic long distance service (MTS) results in an overall decrease in the revenues received by the Company from such service of approximately $100 million. While this proposed restructure results in an overall decrease in revenue, certain MTS rates are proposed to be increased to more nearly recover the access charges approved by the PUC for such service.

AT&T Communications has also filed restructured tariffs designed to more closely recover access costs for private line, DATAPHONE* Digital Service (DDS), OCC facilities, WATS, 800 and directory assistance services. These restructured tariffs result in an approximate overall revenue increase of approximately $100 million from increases in its WATS, 800, DDS, OCC facilities and private line rates, and institution of a charge for directory assistance.

The result of these proposed tariff changes and the restructure of our service offerings is to more nearly recover access costs from those services for which such access costs are incurred.

This proposed restructure results in no increase in overall revenue to AT&T Communications and is not a major rate change as that term is defined in Section 43(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Act.

A complete copy of all tariffs and rate schedules is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.
