High Yields Seen For Wheat Harvest Locally

Gus Rueffer, a farmer in the Mattson area, has had a bumper crop of wheat this year, with the two acres he planted yielding 87 bushels to the acre.

Rueffer planted the Golden Acres Hybrid number 5221 on a couple of acres he had left to fulfill his allotment, and he was astonished to see the results.

According to Frankie SoRelle, who sold Rueffer the seed, the local farmer only bought two bags of seed, putting down two bushels of seed to the acre.

The farmer preplanted with fertilizer: 200 pounds of 24-8-0-4 with three pounds of zinc.

SoRelle said that some other area farmers had had 67 bushels to the acre yield on the same hybrid.

But, for Rueffer, who has been a farmer nearly all of his life, this was

Changes Made In Structure Of Bank By Promotions

The Haskell National Bank announced changes Monday in the organizational structure of the bank.

At the last meeting of the bank's Board of Directors, May 17, the following changes were made: R.W. Herren, chairman of the Board emeritus; R.C. Couch, Jr., chairman of the Board active; Abe Turner, vice chairman of the Board and bank president; Bettie Sue McDermott, assistant cashier and head teller; and Melva Everett, assistant cashier and head of the a most amazing harvest!

SoRelle agreed with Rueffer.

"This is the best yield we've ever had. Yields have been averaging 45-48 bushels per acre. The county average in the past has been somewhere around 22 bushels per acre," commented SoRelle.

According to the ASCS office here, the yield has been exceptionally good in all areas of the county.

In the Paint Creek area, some of the wheat has yielded 54 bushels to the acre, and toward Throckmorton, it was reported that 60 bushels to the acre has been yielded.

Most all of the wheat has been made on dryland farms, with the bulk of the irrigation being in the northern section of the county. The harvest is expected to continue for another 2-4 weeks.

Fund Established At HNB For Alan Wayne Merchant

A fund has been established at the Haskell National Bank for Alan Wayne Merchant, 8 year old son of Debbie Merchant of Haskell and Wayne Merchant of Stamford, who was diagnosed Monday as having lymphoma cancer of the chest and kidneys.

The youngster is a third grade student at Haskell Elementary, and is the grandson of Oleta and Thurman Medford of Haskell, and Cleo and Sue Merchant of Howe. He is also the great-grandson of Ray and Alma Merchant of Haskell.

The youth was taken to Cook Children's Hospital in Fort Worth Friday, and the doctors made the diagnosis on Monday.

Alan is expected to be treated with chemotherapy, and is not expected to undergo surgery for the condition.

The fund has been established to help defray the cost of hospitalization and medication incurred with the illness.

Alan is expected to be in Fort Worth for at least 8 weeks.

The account number for the Alan Wayne Merchant Fund is 37-410-5.

Industrial Foundation Meeting Set Tuesday

All stockholders of the Haskell Industrial Foundation are urged to attend an important meeting next Tuesday at 10 a.m. in the community building of Haskell National Bank.

Officers for the coming year will be elected and industrial development plans will be made.

The meeting is open to any stockholder or any interested person.

electronic data processing (computer) operations.

"All of these people have been longtime employees of the Haskell National Bank, and they represent the longstanding philosophy of a home-owned, independent bank since 1890," commented Couch.

"We continually solicit your support in our bank, as we feel that we are your partners in this community, both personally and professionally, through the many years in the past and also into the future. Let us grow together," said Couch.

The idea suddenly dawned on me last week that most of my good ideas really aren't.

For almost ten years I have wanted to buy an offset press for the Free Press. The feasibility of such an idea was not too great since the press could print an entire issue of the Free Press in less than 15 minutes.

About January Rick Craig of Hamlin and I got started talking about a partnership on a press and the idea grew into five newspapers forming a new corporation and buying a press.

The press was delivered May 16 and during the next six days, Rick, Terry Shirley (a professional press installer) and I worked about 18 to 20 hours a day. We started using the press May 21 and this marks the third issue of the Free Press printed on the press. In addition we are also printing the Hamlin Herald, Twin Cities News and Knox County News and next week will begin printing the Munday Courier.

For ten years it seemed like a good idea but moving 40 thousand pounds 400 miles and putting it into operation in less than a week didn't seem too smart about 2 a.m. on the fifth night.

Now that the press is installed and running, the idea seems better every day and we hope the improvements will become obvious to our readers in the next few weeks. We are in the process of replacing several parts on the press and within the next two months will change to a thicker and whiter paper in an attempt to produce a better looking paper. We are also planning a special section to introduce our readers to the press and the capabilities it offers.

The ultimate goal of the project is to produce a better newspaper for our community. The entire staff of the Free Press is working toward this goal.

At the same time we welcome your comments and would be happy to sit and discuss any ideas you might have in improving the Free Press. Like some of mine, some of our ideas may not turn out to be good ones but together we can work toward improving both the Free Press and our community.

Diet, Exercise Helps Keep Americans Fit

Keeping the doctor away with a daily apple doesn't do the fitness job anymore. Many Americans today are watching their diets, exercising regularly and dressing the part. A report on tastes, trends and developments in the fashion industry revealed that Americans spent $3.5 billion for fitness-related shoes and clothing in 1983. More than a third of the dollars went for sweats and other apparel; the rest went to the feet—aerobic shoes, running shoes and sneakers. So we look good. But feeling good requires the variety of nutrients found in a balanced diet. The body needs about fifty nutrients to stay healthy, and no single food or food group can supply them all. But planning a day's food consumption doesn't need to be an exercise in higher mathematics as long as the Four Food Groups provide the structure. Adults need to eat at least two servings from the Milk Group each day, two from the Meat Group and four each from the Bread and Cereal Group and from Fruits and Vegetables.

A glass of milk, a cup of yogurt or an ounce and a half of cheese equals one serving from the Milk group and carries the benefit of a sizable contribution to the day's calcium quota. A slice of bread, five saltine crackers or half a cup of rice or noodles equals a serving from the Grain Group. Half a cup of most cooked vegetables, a whole apple or a pear equals a serving from this group. You can enjoy them as snacks or desserts in place of sweets.

A two-ounce serving of meat or fish is half the day's requirement from this food group.

Exercise is another component of fitness. In 1983, exercise-bike sales amounted to $275 million and at-home gym equipment to $193 million. But no special equipment is needed for an aerobic workout or a brisk daily walk. Make that walk brisk though; sauntering isn't enough, even though folks on Mackinac Island in Michigan celebrate World Sauntering Day on June 14.

Make June Dairy Month your date to start the routine that makes you look and feel better—balanced eating, daily exercise and a good night's sleep.

Laverne Barnett Is Artist Of The Year

The Brazos West Art Association named the artist of the year at the May meeting. Judy Hayes of Graham judged the artist of the month pictures and found Laverne Barnett to be the outstanding artist for the year. This is the second time Laverne has received this honor.

Laverne is a very versatile artist working in oils, pastels, and watercolor. Her work is also a range of subjects of still life, portraits, and landscapes. Her winning subject this year was a still life setting from her own back yard.

If you discuss art with Laverne you might get the impression she hadn't been painting long for she is very modest about her ability. After looking at her work, though, you would quickly realize her outstanding talent and her ability to help fellow artists become more proficient.

Understand And Encourage Child's Special Gifts

How do you know if your child is "gifted?" And if he is, how do you help him develop his talents?

"Giftedness" is expressed in many ways, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. It is not just academic excellence or artistic ability. One child might be gifted in using his hands to make things. Another can be gifted in her ability to understand other people's feelings, or to remember things and events.

There are many children whose special gifts go unnoticed because their talent lies in unexpected areas, or because they seem ordinary in other ways. It is your challenge, and your responsibility as a parent, to discover your child's special gifts and give him the chance to develop them.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanchez Jr. of Haskell, announce the arrival of their son, Eric Robert Sanchez, born May 28, 1985 at Haskell Memorial Hospital, weighing 8 lbs. 1 oz.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hugh Watson of Haskell, announce the arrival of their daughter, Erma Jill Watson, born May 27, 1985 at Haskell Memorial Hospital, weighing 8 lbs. 15 oz.

Children are naturally drawn to activities that help them develop their gifts. But they need encouragement and opportunity.

For example, you might notice your child singing along whenever he hears music on the radio or television.

Your encouragement, plus some records of his own, might give him a chance to expand his interests and skills.

A child also needs to develop basic skills before he can use those skills effectively. For example, he needs to know how to cook before he can combine ingredients in new and interesting ways to invent his own recipes.

Your child also needs to use her gifts in order to develop them.

Have you ever told your child to do something, and then become impatient when she doesn't do it "correctly" right away? It's often easier to take over for a child than let her do things herself. But it's important to take the time to let her try things until she can do them well. Learning perseverance is an important part of learning to use one's special gifts. It takes a while to learn a new skill, and your child needs the chance to practice it until she masters it.

A child shows potential giftedness by how often and for how long he is interested in an activity. He will naturally be attracted to certain activities and will want to engage in them whenever he gets the chance. For example, your child might especially enjoy pretending to be people he sees on television, or in books. Or he might be very interested in being with you when you're taking care of your plants or gardening.

Whatever his interest, you can best encourage it by:

* Noticing and commenting on his interest.

"I see you like to be with me when I'm fixing something that's broken."

* Giving him the opportunity for involvement. "Would you like to try to fix this yourself?"

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month by month. For more information, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

What Is It?

No, you are not looking at crossed wires from the telephone company or a jungle undergrowth. These are the special fibers which allow a shoe lining to breathe comfort into the shoe, absorb perspiration yet dry out quickly. This non-woven lining fabric is called Cambrelle. It is preferred over leather, cotton, synthetic leather look-alikes and nylon tricort. Because of its thousands of breathable pores, it allows a shoe to stay cooler in summer, warmer in winter and last season after season.

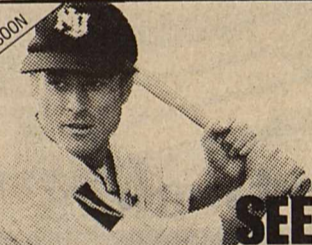

To help your shoes keep your feet dry and comfortable, experts recommend you limit the use of foot powders which can clog Cambrelle's breathable pores in footwear materials.

Petty Elected President For State SWC Board

Harmon L. Petty of Mineral Wells was elected chairman of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation board by fellow members of the board at their recent regular scheduled May 16 meeting in their Temple headquarters.

Petty has served on the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board since May, 1981. He has also served as president of the Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Petty represents State Zone Five which consists of 51 counties served by 36 soil and water conservation districts in the Central to North Central region of Texas. The TSSWCB's chief responsibility is to coordinate the programs of Texas' 202 SWCDs. Unlike many state agencies and commissions whose policy making bodies are gubernatorial appointees, the TSSWCB consists of five elected members who must be landowners and actively engaged in farming or ranching.

Petty, a graduate of Texas A&M University, is a pecan and livestock producer.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Watching Washington

Americans have a deserved reputation for being willing to try new ideas, to take on risks and challenges.

But many an American entrepreneur who has tried to start up or expand a business using an untried idea can testify that it is very difficult to find a money lender willing to back it.

The policies of traditional lending institutions dictate against risking depositors' money on an idea that doesn't have a proven track record or a lot of collateral behind it. Nor do most individual investors want to take such risks, preferring a surer return on their money.

Where, then, do entrepreneurs turn for capital to begin their ventures?

They turn to venture capitalists, a group of specialized investors who prefer to chance their money on more risky investments because they have confidence in their ability to pick a "good thing."

And of course, if it is successful, a high-risk venture pays a far greater than usual return on an investment.

These financial risk-takers exemplify American capitalism in the best sense of the words.

Their foresight helps produce inventions and growth companies that create jobs, boost productivity and improve our quality of life.

A report for the Joint Economic Committee, on which I am ranking Senate Democrat, analyzes 72 companies started with venture capital during the 1970s and projects that they will employ 1.9 million people by 1989.

The report also notes that for every $1,000 invested by venture capitalists during the 1970s, some $40,000 to $54,000 worth of productivity enhancing products will be sold during the 1980s.

Government has an important role to play in ensuring the continued vitality of our venture capital industry. That role is to stay off the backs of these investors while they work.

One way of doing this is making sure the tax system does not destroy the incentives to invest in untested technologies and unproven companies.

Estimates are that between 1977 and 1983, the money available for venture capital investment rose from $39 million to $4.5 billion. Primarily responsible for this increase I believe were the reductions in 1978 and 1981 of the capital gains tax rate.

Both reductions had my support, as a member of the tax writing Senate Finance Committee, because I firmly believe that high tax rates on capital gains discourage risk taking and lock in investments.

When the proposed Treasury tax plan of last year included a measure to tax capital gains at the same rate as ordinary income, I fired off a letter to the President informing him of my objections.

I am pleased that the Administration's revised tax plan includes a capital gains tax incentive to encourage venture investment.

Venture capitalists are a vital part of our continued economic growth and technological advancement. We should do all we can to encourage them to keep taking on financial challenges.

Some people used to believe that if a man had four lines on his forehead, he would live for 100 years.

City Council Denies Zoning Request Change

A request by John Larned to be allowed to make a house located at North Ave. K and Ninth Street into a duplex was denied by the Haskell City Council in their meeting May 28.

Larned had taken his request to the City's Zoning Board, and because of much public opposition to the request by neighbors in and around that area of town, the board denied Larned's request.

The decision by the Zoning board was to have final Council approval or disapproval.

At the Council meeting, there were eight persons present, and they were mostly opposed to the building being moved at the location, and even more opposed to allowing the complex to be made into duplexes.

After much discussion by the Council and those present, it was decided in an unanimous vote of the Council that Larned would be allowed to turn the house into a single family dwelling, and not be allowed to make duplexes out of the house.

In other matters before the Council, the members present voted to make a resolution to apply for Community Development grant money, which would be used to revitalize the city's southwest portion. The vote was unanimous.

Council members were updated on various departmental activities.

Members of the council who were present were Darrell Smith, Kenny Watson, Larry Gilliam, Mayor Abe Turner, and City Administrator Bob Baker.

Jason Bryan Gets Good Report Following Checkup

By Janet Wilke
Jason Bryan of Stamford is a happy, three year old boy, who loves to play outside, and enjoy all of the little boy things any three year old would enjoy. There is one catch, however...he is being treated for acute lymphocytic leukemia.

According to his mother, Mrs. Melinda Bryan, Jason has been one of the lucky ones.

"He never lost his hair because of the treatments, and he was never nauseated," she said. "The doctors have said because he was treated at such an early stage in the disease, he has been able to by-pass many of the problems associated with the chemotherapy treatments".

Last Tuesday, Jason returned to Fort Worth's Cook Childrens Hospital.

Doctors gave him a good report, and said he is a third of the way through the treatment, which will last for three years.

The Bryans go back to Fort Worth once monthly for a check up and tests. Jason, additionally, has blood tests done at the Stamford hospital each week.

Up until December 1984, Jason was having to take the chemotherapy injections, but in January of this year, doctors told the family that he could begin taking the medication by mouth.

He was diagnosed with the condition in June of last year.

Mrs. Bryan said that physicians treating Jason said the type of leukemia he has is prevalent among younger children, but that this may be a plus due to the fact that it is easier to treat in younger children than in older ones.

Mrs. Bryan said that Jason was always healthy as a baby, and the main indicator that tipped her off that something was wrong was when he began to bruise easily.

"He would just bruise over any small bump. His stomach and abdomen was also distended (swollen), and he was losing weight and becoming pale, so we decided to find someone who could tell us what was wrong."

"Since he was diagnosed early doctors said they thought he might have had the disease only two weeks when he was diagnosed, the chances of his full remission is very good," commented Mrs. Bryan.

Jason is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koehler of Haskell.

Farming Safety Stressed By A&M Safety Engineer

Farming has the dubious distinction of being one of America's most hazardous occupations.

The responsibility for making farming a safer business rests squarely on the shoulders of the farm manager.

"The farm manager is the key to a successful farm safety program for both his family and hired workers," points out Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

To begin, a farm manager should promote a good attitude toward safety, Nelson points out. The best way to do this is to set a good example, convincing others by carrying out safety responsibilities and following safe work practices conscientiously and with conviction. Good or bad, the example set by a farm manager will be followed by others.

A farm manager must also train workers properly so that they know how to do their jobs safely. Give special attention to new employees and older employees who recently have been assigned a new or infrequent job. Before leaving workers on their own, have them demonstrate that they know safe operating procedures, suggests the engineer.

Enforcing safe work methods and procedures is another area of safety management. Failure to enforce safety invites an increase in unsafe acts by workers and an increase in unsafe conditions in machinery and work areas, contends Nelson.

Another good managerial practice is to conduct periodic observations of workers to check compliance with safe work procedures. Whenever unsafe procedures are noted, the farm manager should inform the worker immediately and explain why the act was unsafe and how it should be done correctly.

A farm manager also must prevent unsafe conditions. Unsafe conditions may result from normal wear and tear on equipment as well as from what workers do or fail to do. A manager should encourage workers to look for unsafe conditions and correct them when possible. Conditions which they cannot correct should be reported immediately. Improper work methods that could contribute to injuries also should be reported.

Periodic safety inspections of all equipment and facilities is important, notes Nelson. Such planned inspections are a systematic way of finding physical hazards which would contribute to accidental injuries. A manager should allow enough lead time to thoroughly inspect and prepare equipment prior to field use.

Unsafe conditions should be corrected immediately, says the engineer. If this is not possible, temporary, precautionary measures might include tagging of unsafe equipment, devising temporary special procedures, using barricades or warning employees about the condition. Use a follow-up system to ensure that corrective measures are completed in a timely fashion.

If an accident occurs, conduct a thorough investigation as soon as possible and collect all the facts and opinions regarding its cause. Then take corrective steps immediately, advises Nelson.

A safety-conscious farm manager also keeps abreast of the latest information on safe operating procedures and takes special note of safety articles in magazines and newspapers, adds the engineer. Keep equipment operator's manuals handy and pay special attention to safety instructions, reviewing them periodically and putting them into practice.

Mildew More Prevalent In Hot, Humid Weather

You may have to endure the summer heat and humidity, but you don't have to live with the unsightly mildew growth it produces on the exterior of your house.

"Mildew most often grows on areas of the outside walls that receive little sunlight," says Dr. Peggy Owens, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

Ideal places for mildew are the north side of the house, carport and porch ceilings, and areas behind trees or shrubs where air movement is restricted, she explains.

Mildew is usually black, Owens says, but some forms may be green, red or other colors.

The specialist suggests a cleaning solution of one quart liquid chlorine bleach, one-third cup of powdered laundry detergent and three quarts of warm water. Use the solution with a fairly soft brush to scrub affected areas and then rinse well with clear water.

Another way of applying the solution is to use a garden sprayer for the solution, a long-handle brush for scrubbing and the full-force of a water hose to rinse.

Because this cleaning solution is strong, she advises wearing rubber gloves and protective clothing to avoid contact with the skin. Shrubs and grass should also be covered with plastic sheets.

"If you're going to paint the clean surface, allow it to dry thoroughly and paint immediately before recontamination occurs," Owens says.

To minimize future mildew problems, the specialist suggests treating the cleaned area with a water-repellent preservative or other fungicide before repainting with a paint containing zinc oxide and mildewcide.

TEXAS TRAILS
LONE STAR STATE HISTORY by DAN BROWN

BURIED GUN ...
In the Spring of 1864 a fleet of gunboats and 35,000 Union soldiers move up Louisiana's portion of the Red River to invade Texas. At Mansfield, Louisiana there was a battle; the Union lost. Captain Tim Nettles, a Texan, commanded a cannon crew in this battle. A year later the Confederacy surrendered, but Nettles didn't surrender his gun. He buried it near present-day Fairfield, Texas.

Our Professional Mechanics

At over a hundred thousand retail gasoline stations and garages around the country more than 300,000 professional mechanics do the difficult and potentially dangerous work of servicing large vehicles.

To protect them and prevent hundreds of accidents a year, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has revised its standards for servicing multi-piece rim wheels found on large vehicles to add requirements for single piece rim wheels.

Under the new standards, workers must be protected by barriers and restraining devices. They must also receive re-training in the safe handling of potentially explosive rim wheels.

The wheel experts at The Budd Company have some further safety advice. The 16 inch tube and the 16.5 inch tubeless tires often found on pickup trucks and some vans cannot be safely interchanged. If you put a 16 inch tire on a 16.5 inch rim and inflate beyond rated tire pressure, the tire will explode before it will fully fit on the rim, which can cause serious personal injury.

All truck wheels are required to be marked with their size. If you cannot find or read the marking, scrap the wheel. Tires must always be matched to the right wheel by trained mechanics. A radial tire requires a special wheel also and every wheel must be rated to carry at least as much weight as the tire.

CAR BUYER TIPS

RECALLS

While automotive recalls have been a rich source for jokes, they are carried out for serious reasons. That's certainly clear as far as safety-related recalls, those made to correct deficiencies in vehicle parts or systems that could cause an accident.

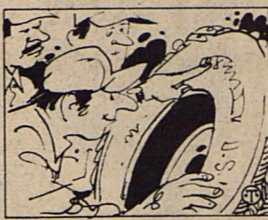

In conducting recalls, manufacturers notify known owners by mail. The important word is "known."

One group of owners, those who have purchased privately imported European-version cars, cannot rely on being notified if there are recalls involving their cars. The reason is that such vehicles are imported separately and independently from the factory-authorized sales and service network. Sometimes called "gray market" automobiles, these are European version cars that weren't designed for operation in the United States. Those who import them must modify them in an attempt to bring them up to U.S. safety and emissions standards.

These cars would be shown in the factory records as being operated in Europe, not in the U.S., so they would not normally be included in a recall campaign.

Further complicating the job of tracking down the owners of these cars is that they usually have gone through several companies and buyers before ending up in someone's driveway.

Garage mechanics can stay safer if they make sure to replace flat truck tires with new tires of the exact right size.

An increasing number of trucks will be using radial tires to save fuel.

Never work on a truck tire or wheel unless you are properly trained and have read and follow OSHA regulation Section 1910.177 and wheel manufacturer's literature.

New J.P. Named For Precinct 1

By Commissioners

Roy (Buck) Everett, 59, was named new Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, by the Haskell County Commissioners in their regular session last Tuesday, May 28.

Everett was selected for the position from a field of 7 others, and his selection was a unanimous choice by vote of the commissioners.

Everett is a postal service employee, who was due to retire from the service soon.

He is taking over the duties from former J.P. Geraldine Hise, who moved to Wichita Falls.

Marketing expert proposes identification system for child-centered retailers

COLLEGE STATION — A decentral system to identify retail merchants who are willing to help young consumers become smart shoppers is being proposed by a Texas A&M University marketing expert.

"Child-centered stores with deals on their front doors could certainly help children distinguish which retailers want their business. Merchants are as qualified as anybody to help children develop marketing skills," said Dr. James McNeal.

McNeal said stores willing to participate could teach children a good deal about smart shopping, such as shoe stores that could teach them how to select the right size or fabric stores that could teach about materials. Stores could even help children learn to take advantage of sales, he added.

McNeal maintains government and private organizations could be formed to develop a system which distinguishes retailing outlets for children. He said participating retailers could be certified as child-centered retailers which demonstrate that they are considerate of children and want to enhance their consumer education.

"The ultimate benefits wouldn't be just for the children, but for their parents and the merchants as well," said the marketing professor.

McNeal pointed out the benefits to the merchants would come not only from feeling good about helping youngsters, but from additional profits as well. Each year American consumers between the ages of five and 12 spend more than $4 billion, he said.

The Haskell Co. Ambulance Memorial Fund needs your support. You never know when you or a loved one will need these services. What would happen if someday they weren't there because you didn't give your fair share? Think about it...

Mold Growth Increases With Humid Weather

The damp and humid weather in some parts of Texas is conducive to mold growth and the musty odor that goes with it. But even in drier parts of the state, any damp, warm, poorly-aired and poorly-lighted place such as a shower stall, can take on a musty odor.

Take special precaution to get rid of musty odors as soon as possible, not only to rid the house of offensive odors but also to prevent damaging mold growth.

Sometimes the odors will disappear if the area is well heated and dried, or if it can be cleaned, aired and fumigated. If it will not harm the article, dry it in the sun.

On concrete floors, tile walls and floors, and bathrooms, get rid of mustiness by scrubbing with a diluted solution of 1/2 to 1 cup of liquid household bleach to a gallon of water. Rinse with clean water and wipe as dry as possible. Wash quickly and carefully on plastic and asphalt tile to avoid spotting the surface. Keep doors open until walls and floors are thoroughly dried.

Excellent commercial products are available for removing and inhibiting mildew growth. Other household products that are effective in absorbing odors are baking soda, talcum powder, silica gel and charcoal. Using vinegar rinse water in cleaning or washing articles is also effective in controlling odor.

For musty furniture, first vacuum the furniture, especially the drawers. Fresh air and ventilation may also remove some of the musty smell.

If the odor was caused by smoke, it may be necessary to seal in the odor. Once it is in the grain of wood it's difficult to remove. Sand the drawers lightly, then vacuum and apply a thin coat of varnish or other finish.

Commercial products such as oil of wintergreen may also help camouflage the odor.

With our multi-step wheat conditioning process.

Bring your harvested wheat to Bronco Seed Company in Stamford for our top quality conditioning process.

First, our air screen machine removes weed seeds, trash, underdeveloped and oversized seeds and cracked or broken seeds.

Quality continues as our three indent cylinders separate the wild oats from the good seed by length sizing.

For final finishing and improvement of germination, our gravity table separates immature, lightweight seed from mature, heavy seed to improve seed vigor.

We can treat your wheat seed with Vitavax-200, the systemic fungicide that controls loose smut, bunt, seed rots and seedling diseases. Since Vitavax is patented as a growth stimulant, you should be able to graze your cattle earlier because Vitavax-200 treated wheat normally emerges faster and shows more vigorous growth.

And, we offer you bulk grain storage before cleaning, and bag seed storage after cleaning.

Consumer Update

Does it really do any good to complain about incorrect utility bills?

Does it really have any impact if you call the utility or the PUC and complain about poor service?

Does anyone at the PUC really read letters from consumers about high rates or sloppy service?

The answer to all three questions is "yes," but the real question that should be asked here is how can a consumer complain effectively. The following is a short course on how you can complain in a way that will achieve positive results:

(1) Decide what you want to accomplish in complaining. Do you want to vent your frustration about high rates? Do you want your telephone line fixed? Do you want to make sure you're being charged the proper rate? Be specific in stating your complaint.

(2) Decide to whom you want to complain. We have found that the majority of successful complainers try the utility first and obtain satisfaction. Perhaps the utility's computer messed up and charged the wrong rate or a service representative miscalculated a deposit. Any number of things could be the answer to your problem, and most utilities will try to satisfy your complaint as soon as you contact them.

(3) If you cannot obtain satisfaction from the utility, ask the utility to whom you should address your complaint (under PUC rules the utility is required to give you our address).

What do we do with the complaints and inquiries we receive? Much of what we do depends on the type of complaint. But we will acknowledge your complaint and we will try to get you some help if you are having a specific problem such as disconnected service or an inaccurate bill.

In most cases, we contact the utility and ask for a written report on its investigation of your complaint. We want utilities to respond effectively to complaints, and the reports help us determine how well the utility has responded to your complaint.

Last year the Consumer Affairs Office received and acted on more than 21,000 complaints and inquiries. As a result of our actions, more than $275,000 was returned to utility customers in credits or refunds. Hundreds of Texans obtained essential utility services that they had not been receiving. Many who had given up on having a service problem resolved finally got the repairs they were entitled to. We can't always resolve a complaint to your full satisfaction, but we do listen, and we will do our best to help make your complaint count.

So, increase your chances of making your complaint effective. Be specific, contact the utility, and then contact the PUC. Our mailing address for complaints or inquiries is:

Baking With Betty Crocker

Kids In The Kitchen

Act I of the summer scene. School books are tucked away. Out come jump ropes, swim suits, baseball bats and soccer balls.

When kids have more leisure time, it is usually just right for them to begin lending a hand with food purchasing and preparation.

Where to begin and how to make it interesting...and safe? Home economists in the Betty Crocker Kitchens (many of them parents, too) offer these tips for encouraging junior chefs.

Q. When is a child old enough to cook?
A. When you detect an interest and the ability to follow simple instructions — often preschoolers are capable of simple steps. If you wait until you're sure the child won't "make a mess" or mistakes, you may wait too long. If you begin with a cooking task geared to the child's age and dexterity, he or she won't feel pressure to handle a job too involved.

Q. What about timing?
A. Choose a block of time for your cooking project that is relaxed and uninterrupted, a time when the child is fresh, rested and feels no need to hurry. It may help to review the recipe the day before preparation and talk about some of the steps involved. You might explain that cooking is a lot like learning a favorite game or sport. Yes, there are rules. It is important to do things safely. Mistakes are part of learning and, of course, practice makes perfect. For younger children with short attention spans, choose a recipe that can be completed in a few steps.

Q. What can be done to promote kitchen safety?
A. Using a positive approach, begin by explaining what appliances, utensils, cutlery and other culinary equipment are acceptable for them to use and which are off limits, at least for the time being. Enforce these rules by helping select recipes utilizing only the safe items. (An older person should be on hand to assist with first attempts with oven and range recipes and those which require the use of electric mixer, blender, food processor, sharp knives and other potentially dangerous items.)

Using baking mixes are a good way to start when youngsters are learning to cook. Preparation is simple and few ingredients are needed. And most important, results are likely to be successful.

Q. What can children learn from very simple recipes?
A. Basic techniques that will be essential as they progress to more complicated recipes. They learn to read the recipe thoroughly and to assemble necessary ingredients before beginning. Other basics soon learned are accurate measuring, cutting in, folding, greasing a pan, spreading evenly, grating, rolling, kneading and shaping dough, dropping by spoonful, arranging foods attractively and testing for doneness.

Q. What is the best way to handle flops?
A. First of all, try to salvage the child's efforts. For example, a fallen cake could be tasty teamed with pudding for trifle, a shortcake with ice cream and fudge sauce or cut in squares and alternated on skewers with choice strawberries. Review the recipe together and discuss what might have gone wrong — inaccurate measuring, over or under mixing, improperly prepared baking pans, etc. The next step is encouragement to try again!

Q. Any other tips, particularly for the reluctant baker?
A. Suggest they prepare foods they particularly enjoy eating. Make them feel their efforts will be appreciated when they share the results with family and friends. We all love compliments and think how proud a youngster will be to surprise a visiting grandparent with breakfast in bed or mix up some slumber party snacks that are devoured in no time. There is no substitute for that kind of encouragement.

George Strait To Perform At Stamford Concert

George Strait, country music's male vocalist of the year, will be appearing in a memorial scholarship concert at the Texas Cowboy Reunion Grounds in Stamford, June 20, 1985 beginning at 8:00 p.m.

Strait, 31, who was born in Poteat, Tex., and who still lives (and ranches) in that neck of the plains, is riding high. "Right or Wrong" his current MCA album hit the top of the charts by bumping off Kinney Rogers' monster hit "Islands in The Stream". His last album "Strait From The Heart" has been a billboard best seller for more than a year. His singles chart well, too. The last one, "You Look So Good In Love" was his fifth number 1.

This will be the last time "Strait" fans will have a chance to attend one of his live performances for some time, in Texas, since he is now on tour hoping to reach the rest of the country with his special brand of "Texas Crooning".

Tickets are now on sale at $10.00 each, and may be purchased from any West Texas Utilities office in the surrounding areas, except Abilene, where tickets may be purchased at Luskey's Western Store, Tomorrows Records and Tapes, Cody's Western Store, and The Music Box in Haskell.

The outdoor concert will be held in the arena of the world's largest amateur rodeo (Texas Cowboy Reunion), which is capable of seating 10,000 guests. All proceeds, after expenses, will be placed in a memorial scholarship fund for Wade Shurley, a Stamford High School senior who lost his life in a car accident earlier this year, and for Mr. John McGaughey, Stamford School superintendent, who was killed in a motorcycle accident April 20, 1985.

METER TAMPERING NOW A FELONY

The State of Texas has recently adopted an amendment to the State Penal Code making meter tampering a third degree felony. A third degree felony comes with a punishment of confinement in the Texas Department of Corrections for a term of not more than 10 or less than 2 years. In addition to imprisonment, an individual adjudged guilty of a third degree felony may be punished by a fine not to exceed $5,000.

Before the amendment of the new law, it was a class A misdemeanor for meter tampering unless the loss of service was more than $200. Under the new law, any meter tampering regardless of the amount of loss is now a felony of the third degree.

Meter tampering consists of, but is not limited to:

- (1) Diverting electricity from passing through the meter device.
- (2) Preventing electric service from being correctly registered by a meter device.
- (3) Unauthorized activation of electric service.

As a special note to our members, it will also be considered meter tampering if a meter is reset and electrical service is restored by anyone other than a Cooperative employee.

All Cooperative meters are sealed. This seal should not be cut or broken without special authorization. In cases where the seal must be cut for emergencies the Cooperative should be notified as soon as possible so that the meter can be resealed.

The View From Here
by Janet Wilke

Well folks, I think we can all assume that summer (or should I have said simmer?) is here. With temperatures ranging into the 100's already, I wonder what we have to look forward to in July and August??

I realize that many of the area farmers are trying to get in wheat crops, but I still think it would be nice to have a sprinkle just enough to cool things off!

Speaking of wheat crops, I understand that Gus Rueffer had a bumper crop, yield-wise.

Rueffer planted two acres of wheat, and the crop yielded (get this...) 87 bushels of wheat to the acre!

Can you imagine Gus's astonishment when he found out just how good his wheat crop really was?!

I'll just bet that there are several wheat farmers who would like to know Gus's secret. Gus might even like to know it for future reference.

The five Haskell High twirlers and incoming twirler, Shanna Mueller, traveled to Austin to participate in the UIL Solo and Ensemble contest, as did vocalist Diana Jarred, who sang a solo.

The entourage all seemed to enjoy the trip, and all did well. The girls represented their school, community, and homes in high class style, and Haskell should be very proud of these fine young women.

The First Methodist Church will be saying farewell to Rev. Mike Struve and his family.

It will be hard to say good-bye to the Struves, as they have been here for the past five years.

They have become a part of the community, the hearts and the lives of many Haskellites.

I am told that the new pastor of the First Methodist Church is Cecil Shirey, and that he and his wife are coming to us from Amarillo, where he was associated with the Tenth Avenue United Methodist Church. Past pastorates were at the Wellman/Welch UMC.

Last week, I heard of an article about a small southwestern Missouri town, whose community, kids, and other interested businesses raised some $200,000 in order to build a new ag building.

I know that that kind of money sounds really outlandish, but it can be done, and this article proves that.

Haskell has embarked upon two very important projects in the construction of a Memorial Civic Center, and the construction of a new track.

I have said before, and it bears worth repeating, what Haskell wants Haskell can get, because there are enough people here who are motivated enough to get any job done.

I am hoping that this year's crop will be one which merits the giving that will take care of finishing the Civic Center and beginning the new track facilities. I realize that this part of the country has been economically depressed because of the poor farming conditions in the past years, but if this harvest can just get us all back on our feet, there are greater things ahead for Haskell in the future.

PIONEER BRAND SEEDS

TAKING THE HEAT
Plant this pair from Pioneer for a superior grain sorghum crop in hot, dry weather.

8680
This hybrid is especially adapted to the lighter and mixed soils of North Texas and the Rolling Plains. Excellent yield record under a wide range of conditions - but most impressive is its ability to produce a dependable yield when hot and dry conditions cause many to fail. Semi-open heads produce dark red, hard-textured grain with high bushel weight. Grows fast and matures early. Excellent root and stalk strength keep it standing for maximum harvest.

The tougher the conditions, the better you'll like 8493. A new hybrid, especially developed to withstand the heat, drought, and insect problems of this region. Superior yield and standability, excellent resistance to greenbugs, and much improved grain quality. Strong stalk and roots, too. Medium height plants produce semi-compact heads of harder textured, heavy test-weight grain. Plant this one with 8680 to spread weather risks, genetic risks, and harvest load.

Depend on these two for both yield potential and drought tolerance. Come on in let's talk. See:

WTU Now Offering Home Energy Audits

Home energy audits described as "simple, free and easy" are being offered to customers of West Texas Utilities Company.

The program is called QUEST—short for Quick Energy Savings Test—and is designed to show just how energy efficient a home really is.

"QUEST is a vehicle through which our customers can find out how they can control their energy use," said Sue Pate, WTU local manager. "Most people could conserve more energy in their homes if they knew what to do."

QUEST actually is a quick energy analysis of a home. All a customer has to do is to obtain a questionnaire from the local WTU office, fill in the blanks, and send it back to WTU by postage free-reply mail.

The questionnaires are received by WTU's Customer Technical Services Department in Abilene for evaluation. With the customer's prior 13-month electric billing, accurate analysis of the home energy efficiency can be made. A less accurate analysis can be done without the 13-month billing.

Nancy Johnson of Abilene, supervisor of residential audits, said a customer can expect to get results on a questionnaire back in about two or three weeks.

She said customers will receive a report consisting of three parts:

—Estimates of monthly utility cost comparisons for similar-sized homes, occupancy and appliances.

—Graphs indicating annual utility costs for an energy efficient home and for an average home.

—Estimated potential dollar savings and ranges of cost for energy conservation measures which may be appropriate for the home based on information the customer supplied through the questionnaire.

It doesn't take long to fill out the questionnaire, but for proper results the customer should be as accurate as possible. Mrs. Johnson said.

QUEST is available to all WTU customers, but it does not supplant the more detailed Residential Conservation Service (RCS) audit that has been offered by all electric utilities for the past several years. The RCS audit is still available for a $15 charge.

The world is filled with priorities, and especially when it comes to giving to worthy causes. When you sit down this giving season, and start to re-evaluate which ones need the money the most, in view of what services they provide, please think of the Haskell Co. Ambulance Service. They are always here, ready to serve you and your loved ones, whenever you need them. But they cannot operate for free, and that is why they need your help. Give to something that will benefit all Haskell residents...give to the Haskell Co. Ambulance Memorial Fund.

TAX PLANNING

Written By
Gerald Rodgers, CPA

IRS AUDITS (Don't Lose Sleep)

The IRS has three levels of examination (audits) of income tax returns. All are intended to review the facts and see that your return is properly filed. The agent is not to harass or belittle you. If you have filed your return with the correct numbers, don't lose sleep over an upcoming audit.

The simplest of the audits is a "direct correspondence." You may be asked to send photo copies of a few specific checks or documents.

An "office audit" will often be more detailed and may require you to take certain records to your nearest IRS office. A call to the examining officer for more information on what to bring could save you an extra trip.

The "field audit" is held at your home or place of business. It usually involves a full review of all major income and expense items. If you have income from a partnership or small corporation, they may also be brought into the audit.

The IRS has had excellent results by letting their computer select which returns are to be audited and most likely to produce added revenue for the government. The computer checks for certain "norms" in your return depending on the nature of your business, income level, etc. If you have abnormal figures such as excessive interest expense, high medical bills, etc., you should attach a photocopy of the document supporting the deductions. Such documentation may keep the IRS from contacting you.

If you receive correspondence from the taxing authorities, respond timely. Ignoring their first few notices will not gain you favor when you finally meet, and you will.
