Tim Johnson top PE major at Weatherford

Tim Johnson of Haskell has been presented the Outstanding Physical Education Major award at Weatherford College. He received a letter from Dean B. W. Tibbetts informing him of his academic achievement.

He also was presented an award of outstanding achievement in tennis.

Tim has just completed his freshman year at Weatherford College and has been offered a full scholarship in tennis for next semester. He enjoyed a very successful year in tennis, making it to the college regional as a freshman.

Tim is the son of Loraine and Bobbie Johnson of Haskell.

SIGNS UP

Julie Roewe signs a letter to play basketball next season with Western Texas College in Snyder. Standing behind her are Haskell Coach George Martin and WTC Coach Kelly Chadwick.

Julie Roewe signs with Western Texas

Julie Roewe of Haskell signed a letter of intent last Thursday to attend and play basketball for Western Texas College in Snyder.

Signing her up at Haskell High was WTC coach Kelly Chadwick, who last year took the Lady Dusters to a fourth-place finish in the national junior college finals.

Roewe, a 5-9 forward/post, rewrote the record books at Haskell High during a brilliant four-year career, topped with numerous all-state honors in her senior year.

In leading Coach George Martin's Maidens to the district championship during the past season, she averaged 17.8 points, 10.2 rebounds and 4.2 assists. She shot 53 percent from the field and 72 percent from the free-throw line. She was co-most valuable player in district 7-AA.

She was a second-team all-state selection by the Texas Association of Sportswriters and a third-team selection by the Texas Girls' Coaches Association. She played for the North squad in the TABC all-star game in Waco this spring and is an alternate for the TGGA all-star game to be played in Fort Worth this summer.

Valedictorian of this year's graduating class, she was chosen for the academic all-state team.

She also was on the TABC all-region team, the Abilene Reporter-News all-area team and was on the all-district team for the third consecutive year (she was second-team all-district as a freshman).

The Maidens were district champions during each of Roewe's last two years. They were bi-district champs in 1985-86. During her four years as a Maiden, Haskell girls posted 15-14, 17-9, 22-5 and 22-9 records.

At Western Texas, Roewe will be a part of one of the finest junior college basketball programs in the country. The Lady Dusters posted a 31-5 record this past season.

Roewe is the daughter of Conrad and Betty Roewe of Haskell.

Another drug seminar planned

Next seminar of the Haskell chapter of the Texas War on Drugs will be June 18 in the district court room.

Helping bring the program will be Marilyn Golightly of San Angelo, regional coordinator for the Texas War on Drugs program.

Purpose of the June meeting will be to coordinate work in the area and select people for specific assignments.

McCoy named principal

Veteran Haskell science teacher Gerald McCoy was chosen Tuesday afternoon as principal of Haskell secondary school.

The School Board named him to succeed Clayton Neal who resigned last week.

Instead of selecting an assistant principal to replace the resigned Harold Hill, the Board chose two part-time assistant principals, James A. (Jimmy) Lisle and Gregory Melton, who will split their time between administrative and classroom duties.

McCoy has been on the Haskell faculty for the past 30 years. He came here in 1957 from Central Christian College in Bartlesville, Okla. Except for a three-year period, 1965-68, when he served as elementary school principal he has been a science teacher in the secondary school.

Lisle and Melton are social studies teachers in the secondary school.

Members of the Board met in special session Tuesday to act on the administrative positions.

They also approved the contract of new football coach and athletic director Nelson Coulter of Robert Lee (see separate story).

Neal's resignation as principal was accepted by the Board last week. He is moving to Wheeler where he will be high school principal.

Neal has been principal here for the past seven years. He was a biology teacher at Azle before moving to Haskell. He grew up in Dimmitt and received his bachelor's degree from West Texas State University and his master's from Tarleton State University.

He and his wife, Kay, have two sons, Jeff, a graduating senior, and Craig, who will be in eighth grade next year.

Still needed on the secondary school faculty are two teachers/coaches, a science teacher (to replace McCoy) and a social studies teacher to fill the void created by the promotion of Lisle and Melton.

Summer students to register

Summer students at the Haskell extension center of Western Texas College are to register from 6:30 to 8 p.m. next Thursday (May 21) in the elementary school cafeteria. A complete schedule of classes will be found in an ad in this issue of The Free Press.

Additional information about the extension center may be obtained by calling Bill Blakely, center coordinator, at 864-2891, or Bettie McQueen at WTC in Snyder at 915-573-8511.

Square dancers

Haskell Country Squarers will street dance on the east side of the courthouse square following the rodeo parade tonight (Thursday).

Moving out...

Clayton Neal, secondary principal at Haskell High School for the past seven years. Resigned to accept a position as high school principal at Wheeler.

Harold Hill, head football coach, athletic director and assistant secondary school principal, has resigned.

Teacher-coaches Alan Atchison and Cody Moree have resigned.

Moving up...

Gerald McCoy, long-time science teacher at Haskell, will become principal of the secondary school.

James A. Lisle and Gregory Melton, social studies teachers, will become part-time assistant principals at the secondary school. They will continue to be classroom teachers.

Moving in...

Nelson Coulter of Robert Lee will become head football coach and athletic director. He also will teach math.

City tax collections continue downward

City sales taxes collected in Haskell by the State continued downward this week when the City of Haskell got a check for $18,159.05 from the State Comptroller.

The check, representing the city's share of sales taxes collected in March, was down sharply from the same period of a year ago when the City received $20,723.88.

For the year, collections are down 14.61 percent, from $75,283.68 in 1986 to $64,287.31 this year. The difference translates into a 14.61 decline for the year to date.

Despite the drop, Haskell more than held its own with neighboring cities of comparable size. Stamford received $18,993.65 this week, compared to $23,807.69 last year and Seymour's check was for $17,774.69, compared to last year's check of $29,078.41. For the year Stamford is down 14.89 percent and Seymour 22.88 percent.

Other checks received by Haskell County communities this week included:

O'Brien $254.67; Rochester $864.58; Rule $2,825.85; and Weinert $417.91.

ALUMNI AWARD

Dr. B. G. Keller, Jr. (left), Dean of the School of Pharmacy at Southwestern Oklahoma State University, presents the Outstanding Alumni Pharmacy Award to Doyle and Roberta High of Haskell. Bike ride chairman named Peggy Mathis will chair the "Wheels for Life" bike ride in Rule this spring.

Sponsored by St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., the ride will raise funds to support the hospital's battle against childhood cancer and other illnesses being studied there.

Founded in 1962 by entertainer Danny Thomas, St. Jude Hospital has become the world's largest center for the study of childhood cancer and is the only institution dedicated solely to the treatment and study of catastrophic childhood diseases. The hospital is non-sectarian and interracial.

In addition to direct treatment of patients throughout the United States and 29 foreign countries, St. Jude has provided the world's doctors with the best methods of treating their own young cancer patients.

Perry couple honored by scouts

Bill Perry

Kay Perry

Merit awards were presented April 30 to Bill and Kay Perry by the Northern District of the Chisholm Trail Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Presentations were made during the annual district banquet held in Anson. Perry's citation read:

"Bill Perry has served as an adult leader for many years. He began as a cubmaster and was instrumental in reviving the Cub program in his community. He has also served as Webelos den leader.

"He is a graduate of the 'University of Cub Scouting' and attended 'Train the Trainer' as well as 'Timber Tag.' He has served on the staffs of several council training events, including Akela Kivas, in both Abilene and Hamlin, Pow Wow and Workshop.

"He is a real inspiration and has fueled the fires of many leaders and parents."

Mrs. Perry's citation read: "This Scouter of the Year award goes to Kay Perry who began as a den leader and has also served as den leader coach. She is a graduate of the 'University of Cub Scouting' and has attended 'Train the Trainer.' As well as being a businesswoman, she serves as a church youth director and is active in many community functions.

"She has served on the staff of Akela's Kiva and is full of helpful ideas. She is described as the 'driving force' behind her husband's scouting activities. She is currently the Stamford Roundtable commissioner."

Members and leaders of Haskell Pack and Troop 136 expressed their pleasure at the awards to the Perrys.

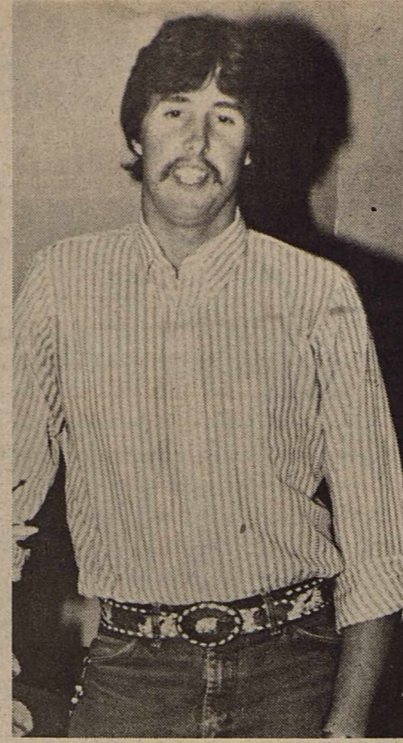

Ask VA

Q: I receive VA compensation benefits. I am now retired and living on a limited income. Can I also receive a VA pension?

A: You cannot receive both VA compensation benefits and a VA pension. You may elect to receive a pension, if you qualify, and the pension would in fact be greater than the compensation benefit.

Q: I am a veteran with a service-connected disability rated at 50 percent. I have received an injury which is not service-connected, but which will require a prosthetic appliance. Will the VA supply this needed appliance?

A: Yes. Any veteran with a service-connected disability of 50 percent or more may be provided with necessary prosthetic appliances for any medical condition.

Clayton Sorrells of Rule was named the Outstanding Male Student at Western Texas College for 1986-87. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Derrell Sorrells.

Texas A&M researcher helps USDA catch dishonest honey dealers

COLLEGE STATION — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is in a sticky situation with its subsidized honey program.

To encourage farmers to keep beehives, the USDA subsidy program pays a standard price for U.S. honey which is above market price for international honey.

But unscrupulous people are buying honey made in other countries and sold on the world market for considerably less, then re-selling it to the USDA as American honey to get the larger subsidy price for it.

To trace the origin of the honey, the USDA has called on Dr. Vaughn Bryant, head of the anthropology department at Texas A&M University and an expert in identifying pollens. By studying the pollen grains in honey, Bryant is able to determine, sometimes within 50-100 miles, where the honey is produced.

Burris to compete in speech contest

Scott Burris will be competing Friday for a place in the state FFA speech contest. The Haskell High School senior won the right to compete in the San Angelo area contest by taking first place in the Double Mountain district contest. The state contest will be in July.

Burris took third place in the state last year.

Also going to the area FFA convention in San Angelo this week will be four Haskell students applying for the Lone Star Farmer degree, Russ Flanary, Steven Klose, Kirk High and Shanna Mueller.

Texas A&M scientists emphasize importance of lean beef to cattle industry

COLLEGE STATION — Fat is out, lean is in and cattlemen who don't know the difference may find themselves out of business, say beef researchers at Texas A&M University.

"The survivors in the beef industry are ready to produce the beef products that are meeting health guidelines and responding to consumer demands," says Dr. H. Russell Cross, an animal scientist specializing in lean beef studies. "The new breed" of beef producer is listening to and working closely with health professionals to produce a product that will be a positive contribution to the health and well-being of the consumer."

The new beef product has been in development the past few years through genetic research, said Cross. It meets the American Heart Association dietary guidelines for limiting total fat and cholesterol, he added.

Cross, Dr. Jeff W. Savell, Dr. Gary Smith and other researchers of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) at Texas A&M conducted the National Consumer Retail Beef Study (NCRBS) with the assistance of the Beef Industry Council and The National Cattlemen's Association.

"The most significant result of the study was that consumers believe that beef products are too fat," Cross reported, adding that the consumers' definition of leanness is related to the fat left on their plate, not differences in marbling. He said the image of beef was improved as more trimmable fat was removed.

"Efforts to reduce the fatness of beef without sacrificing eating quality should be a common goal of all meat and animal scientists," Cross said.

Oil dependence

Sen Loyd Bentsen said Friday he will continue efforts to get signed into law a measure which he steered through the Senate Finance Committee that caps U.S. dependence on foreign oil at 50 percent of consumption.

No Social Security for month of death

Social Security benefits are not payable for the month a beneficiary dies, Glyn Hammons, Social Security manager in Abilene, says.

The benefit check, which is usually received on the 3rd day of each month, represents the benefit payable for the previous month. Therefore, if a person dies in July, for example, the check that is received August 3, which represents payment for July, should be returned, Hammons said. However, if the check is made out jointly to both husband and wife, the survivor should contact a Social Security office to find out whether the check should be cashed.

If a person's benefits were being handled by a direct deposit, the financial institution to which the checks were being sent should be notified of the death as soon as possible. The institution will then return any checks that were received after the person's death.

More information about Social Security checks can be obtained at the Abilene Social Security office located at 142 S. Pioneer. The telephone number is 698-1360.

WHEN TO FILE 1099s

Many business people fail to file information returns (Form 1099 and others) because of lack of awareness. Some of the more common information returns and the circumstances under which they are due are as follows:

- * Form 1099-B. Brokers use this form to report sales of stocks, bonds, commodities, etc. Barterers are to use this form to report exchanges of property and services. Real Estate "brokers" use it for reporting sales or exchanges of real estate.
- * Form 1099-DIV. Corporations must report payments of $10 or more in distributions such as dividends, capital gains and nontaxable distributions paid on stock.
- * Form 1099-INT. Payors must report payments of $10 or more in interest.
- * Form 1099-R. This form is used for reporting total distributions from retirement plans.
- * Form 1099-SSA. The Social Security Administration uses this form to report Social Security benefits paid for the year.
- * Form 1099-MISC. This is the catch-all reporting form. It has several uses, the most common of which are:
 - (1) Payors report $600 or more of rental or royalty payments and payments not made in the course of the recipient's business.
 - (2) Payors report payments of $600 or more for services performed by persons not treated as employees (subcontractors, directors' fees, etc.)
- * Form 8300. Each person engaged in a trade or business (including banks) who receives more than $10,000 in cash in one transaction must file this form.

The controlling stockholder or manager of a business should see to it that his/her accounting department has compiled with the information return filing requirements. It is the individual in the position of authority that may be held personally liable for non-filings.

NOTICE OF RIGHT TO NOMINATE BY PETITION

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for County Committee elections for Haskell-Throckmorton Area Committee. This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from your local FmHA office.

Persons nominated should be currently engaged in the operation of a farm, have their principal farming operation within the County or Area in which activities of the County or Area Committee are carried out, derive the principal part of their income from farming (that is more than 50 percent of their gross income must come from agricultural production), be a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, not have an FmHA insured or guaranteed loan, and be well qualified for committee work. Nominations must be received in Haskell County Office no later than June 10, 1987. FmHA committee elections are open to all eligible voters without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, sex, and or handicap.

Watch your diet at fast food places

Fast food restaurants have become a favorite place for Texans to grab a quick and filling meal. In the past these food emporiums were known for the basics - burgers, fries and milkshakes. As Texans' tastes have grown more particular, these restaurants have expanded their menu selections. Many of the new offerings, however, are full of fat, calories, cholesterol and salt. How can a health-conscious consumer win at a fast food restaurant?

Many fast food chains provide customers with literature describing their products' nutritional analysis. If not available in the food outlet, ask the manager for the corporate address to write and request such information. You can also check with your local public library for the restaurant chain's address. By carefully studying these guides, diners can make wiser food choices on their next visit to the restaurant.

"Even if the restaurant doesn't have literature available on the products, we can learn how to choose heart-healthy foods by keeping our choices simple," advises Addison A. Taylor, M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association. "Usually the fewer sauces, dips, toppings, and cheese slices, the healthier the meal," says Taylor, "and select broiled or roasted foods rather than fried ones."

The heart-smart diner should also learn to become more assertive. Remember, you are the patron. Ask questions about the unobvious, such as, "Is the chicken sandwich deep-fried or broiled?" Request that the cheese be left off the single burger.

A comparison of two meals at a popular fast food chain shows how diners may reduce their caloric, cholesterol, salt and fat intake by substituting selections. A typical order might be a double hamburger topped with cheese, lettuce, onions, tomatoes, pickles, mayonnaise; a small serving of french fries and a chocolate milkshake. This order contains 1,472 calories, 80 grams of fat, 210 milligrams of cholesterol and 1,695 milligrams of sodium.

The AHA recommends that total fat per day be no more than 30 percent of calories. Daily cholesterol intake should not exceed 300 milligrams. The above meal contains almost 50 percent of calories from fat. In one meal the diner has eaten over two-thirds of the recommended daily limit for cholesterol intake. Unfortunately, many Texans are including more than 30 percent fat content through the day. The AHA also suggests that sodium intake should be reduced to 1,000 mg. per 1,000 calories, or a 1:1 ratio. The sample meal exceeds the AHA guideline by over 200 mg. of sodium.

To avoid excessive fats, sodium and cholesterol, the same diner could choose a single, quarter-pound burger served on a multi-grain bun, topped with mustard, lettuce, onions and tomatoes, a plain baked potato and a carton of milk. This meal has 752 calories (almost half the amount of the other meal), 27 grams of fat (one-third the fat of the first meal), 102 milligrams of cholesterol (one-third the cholesterol) and 520 milligrams of sodium (again, one-third less).

Another wise, fast food choice may be the salad bar, with raw vegetables and fresh fruits as the recommended items. Don't fool yourself, though - chopped eggs, mayonnaise - heavy potato salads, creamed vegetables, processed cubed meats, fried noodles, cheese toppings and high-calorie dressings make a salad as fattening as a traditional cheeseburger and fries meal.

Fast food fans have been quick to embrace chicken nugget products. Although chicken is heart-healthy when its skin is removed and the poultry broiled, chicken nuggets aren't a healthy or low-calorie alternative to burgers. They tend to be deep-fried (sometimes twice for extra crispiness), in a highly saturated fat. What's more, the chicken is usually breaded first, which means it absorbs more fat when cooked. Sometimes the chicken skin is ground into the chicken meat before the nuggets are breaded or fried. This means the fat content may make up more than 50 percent of the nuggets' total calories.

"The more customers learn about the nutritional values of fast foods, the better their choices can be," states Taylor. "As fast food menus expand, we encourage the restaurants to provide better nutritional fare."

Exercise increases energy

Between a job, family and household chores, most of us consider ourselves too busy to take the time to exercise. We ride instead of walk, gulp down our food and spend leisure time in sedentary activities.

We also like to believe that exercising would simply add to our fatigue at the end of the day. However, exercise has been shown to increase energy and help people cope with their stress.

The truth is, we don't need to find extra time and space for fitness. But we do need to use our time and space a little differently. Here are some ideas:

- Substitute moving time for waiting time. Don't wait for elevators, parking spaces or bus rides less than a mile. Wear your walking shoes and walk whenever possible.

- Try an exercise break instead of a coffee break. Take a quick walk even if it's only around the office, or do some exercises right at your work station. The office is no place to do pushups, but you can do neck and shoulder rotations, flex your arms and legs, stretch your fingers and toes.

- Get some midday relief from back aches by sitting in a chair, bending from the waist, letting your head dangle between your knees and then slowly rolling your spine back up into position.

- Once you start exercising throughout the work day, you may decide you want more. Consider getting up earlier for stretching exercises or a brisk walk. Join a lunch time aerobics class or take a brisk walk over the noon break. Take an exercise class after work or use an exercise audio or video cassette at home.

When you put your body in motion, you may be surprised at how much fitness fits in a busy day.

Most teachers

More school teachers are now graduating from Texas A&M University than any other university in the state.

Blood donors get choice

A confidential system where donors can indicate that their blood should be used only for laboratory studies has proved effective in reducing the incidence of high risk donor blood entering the blood supply, according to the February issue of Texas Medicine.

The safety of the nation's blood supply became a critical issue when it was discovered that acquired immune deficiency (AIDS) could be transmitted by blood transfusion. In 1983, concern about this disease led to AIDS blood donor screening recommendations from the Food and Drug Administration. The Gulf Coast Regional Blood Center, Houston, the site of this confidential system, implemented the FDA recommendations immediately. However, in 1984, it expanded upon the FDA recommendations and began requiring donors to apply a pressure-sensitive bar-coded label to a donor card that indicates whether the donor's blood should be used "for laboratory studies only" or "for transfusion." The blood center believed the risk of contracting AIDS through blood transfusion could be further reduced by going beyond the FDA recommendations and eliminating donations from persons at high risk for AIDS, according to the official journal of the Texas Medical Association.

"The hypothesis depended on the confidentiality of the system developed to protect individual rights," according to authors Bill T. Teague, Pablo J. Fortes, John Drury, and Ronald Phillips. All of the authors are with the Gulf Coast Regional Blood Center.

The blood center tests all donations, regardless of designation, for the HTLV-III antibody. From the period of June 1 through November 1985, the center found that .19 percent of the "for transfusion" donations were repeatedly reactive to the AIDS antibody testing. Only .07 percent were positive for the Western blot test which generally is accepted as a reliable test to confirm the presence of the antibody.

"The extremely low number of "for transfusion" donors who test repeatedly positive for the HTLV-III antibody suggests that these donors are, in fact, very low risk and/or did not feel they were at high risk at the time of donation," according to the authors.

Many have problem in digesting milk

Milk often is considered the perfect food, providing calcium, protein, and vitamins D and B12 for strong bodies and good health. But according to the Texas Medical Association, most blacks, Orientals, and American Indians and some whites of Mediterranean ancestry have difficulty digesting cow's milk.

This difficulty comes from a disorder called lactose intolerance. People with lactose intolerance lack sufficient amounts of lactase, the enzyme needed to digest lactose, the sugar in cow's milk.

When lactase deficient people drink milk or eat milk products, undigested lactose travels to the large intestine where bacteria transform it into products that can cause cramps, gas and diarrhea. These symptoms usually occur 30 to 90 minutes after consuming milk or products containing milk.

Lactose intolerance should not be confused with milk allergy. People who are allergic to milk usually cannot tolerate milk proteins and develop symptoms such as hay fever, hives, or asthma after drinking milk.

Although most infants are born with large quantities of lactase, many inherit or develop lactose intolerance later in life. For those who inherit the intolerance, the problem may develop at any age, but most commonly appears between the ages of three and six. Some people, however, do not develop lactose intolerance until much later in life because the body's production of lactase tends to slow down with age and in some cases stops altogether.

If you or your child experiences intestinal discomfort associated with drinking milk, consult your physician. He or she can check for lactase deficiency and can recommend milk substitutes if needed.

Though the symptoms of lactose intolerance can be distressing, they usually are not life-threatening. As long as care is taken to obtain the nutrients found in milk from another source, most lactose intolerant people can lead normal, healthy lives.

Private store suffers from state competition

Judy Wright was getting discouraged. Last year YES Computers, her retail computer store, took a dive in profits, while state-funded Texas A&M University campus store racked up record sales.

A slight exaggeration - hardly - its closer to the truth than Wright and other small-business owners want to admit. The government is competing with the sector that provides the most new jobs and is supporting the country's economic upturn.

"But is government agencies and government entities-like the campus store that sells computers and software below cost-are allowed to continue such unfair competition, small businesses will be folding like accordions," said Robert Stluka, state director for the National Federation of Independent Business/Texas, representing more than 44,000 small business owners statewide. Already three computer stores in the area have gone out of business.

"We're facing bankruptcy as well," said Judy Wright earlier this year. Wright has owned and operated YES Computers for four years. "We were able to hold on, but it was just a slow death," she added.

One of the problems, according to Wright, is that the University doesn't have to assess overhead costs and figure them into their selling prices. But Judy Wright has to. She pays rent, utility bills, salaries, payroll taxes and liability insurance costs.

"I'm already at a major disadvantage because of those costs that the University doesn't have to pay," Wright said.

According to a Stluka, the inequity of this competition originates with the special privileges these groups receive in the business world. Government businesses operate from buildings paid for with tax-supported bond issues or state appropriations. And state agency businesses use massive purchasing power to buy in volume and take advantage of quantity discounts.

"Every private business in the state has to contend with this and more," Stluka said. "Government competition is a quandary to Texas taxpayers," he added. "What seems benevolent and harmless really undercuts the business climate and raises taxes for everyone. It's a double-edged sword that slashes at our economy both ways."

As a small-business owner, Wright says she objects that her taxes are used to build, equip and maintain her competitors' facilities or pay her competitors' salaries and promotional expenses.

"They have cornered the market as far as price goes and they've cornered the buying power too," Wright added. "Practically anyone can purchase through the University-by having a friend or relative who works for the University buy things for you."

Wright says she used to employ seven people. Then she cut back to four full-time employees and one part-time. "I cut down hours, cut down ads and let attrition reduce my workforce," she said. "There's no way we could have expanded. They're growing, but at the expense of local businesses. I think they've lost sight of their mission," Wright added.

On April 11, 1987 YES Computers closed its doors and filed for bankruptcy.

"The foremost and undebatable reason for bankruptcy was unfair competition from state entities, in this case the culprit was Texas A&M University," Wright said.

"The real problem is the absence of any official policy defining the extent to which the state would be involved in businesses that compete with the private sector. That's an oversight that needs immediate attention, so everyone-public and private-can know the rules of the game," Stluka said.

Dr. Pruitt to teach history

Dr. Franklin Pruitt will be the instructor for a Texas History course scheduled at the Haskell extension center of Western Texas College this summer.

Texas History is to meet on Tuesday nights. All summer classes will meet one night per week from 6 to 10:10.

Pruitt has been a member of the Western Texas College faculty since 1974 and has taught several courses at the Haskell center. He is teaching U.S. History in the current spring semester.

He will be at registration in Haskell next Thursday (May 21) and can talk with students there who would like more information about the Texas History course or about other history courses.

"The Texas History course will be a survey course," Pruitt said, "although certain events will be emphasized. Some time will be devoted to the early exploration and attempts at colonization in Texas. A great deal of emphasis will be placed on Anglo-American colonization and the Revolution."

"Another unit will cover the period of the Republic and the effort that finally resulted in annexation by the United States. The period of statehood will be viewed through the various governors of the state."

Caring for dementea patient distressing

Caring for a relative who is losing his or her memory and power of reasoning can be distressing.

The Texas Medical Association says if you feel responsible for the well-being of a person suffering from senile dementia, you should be aware of some of the risks that person faces, and some of the resources available to you as a caregiver.

Dementia is an incurable disorder of the brain in which there is a progressive loss of memory and other intellectual functions so that the mind gradually ceases to function normally. The affected person slowly becomes increasingly confused, incapable of sensible conversation, unaware of surroundings and generally incapacitated.

The Texas Medical Association says about one family in every 10 includes at least one elderly member who has some form of senile dementia, including Alzheimer's disease which accounts for nearly 80 percent of dementia cases.

There are risks whenever mentally impaired people live alone, especially after they have progressed beyond an early stage of senility. Because of forgetfulness and a decreased ability to concentrate, there is a danger of fires, falls and other accidents. Some form of daily attendance is important to guard against potential disasters, such as turning on the gas and forgetting to light it.

Friends and relatives can help by organizing memory aids, lists and routines, and by making sure that adequate food and warmth are provided. Without some supervision, a senile person may eat poorly, forget to take medications and neglect personal hygiene.

Do not hesitate to seek assistance from community services and from your physician. In many places, there are day-care centers where people are looked after for several hours and provided with lunch and some kind of occupational and activity therapy.

Your physician also may be able to arrange for your relative to be admitted to a hospital or nursing home for brief periods so that you can have an occasional holiday.

Eventually, your relative may require the skilled and constant care that is available only in high-quality nursing homes. If the doctor strongly recommends this form of care, you may be doing the patient the best possible service by accepting the doctor's recommendation.

Farmers sign up for insect program

By Paula Verden
 Extension Agent - Entomology
 The Haskell/Stonewall County Pest Management Steering Committee is currently signing up acres for a cotton insect scouting program. If you are interested in signing up to have some of your cotton checked, you can pick up a contract at the Haskell County agent's office.

Cotton will be checked by field scouts who will be trained and supervised by Paula Verden, the entomologist for Fisher, Jones, Kent, Haskell and Stonewall counties. Dry land cotton will be scouted one time each week for $2.75 per planted acre. Irrigated cotton will be checked twice each week and will cost $4.25 per planted acre. A scout report form will be issued to the producer after each field is checked for that week.

The cutoff date for signing up acres is June 10. Payment must be made in full before scouts will be allowed to start checking fields for that producer.

If you are interested in hearing more about the program, you can call Paul Verden at 915-776-2706 or one of the Steering Committee members, Lynn Dudensing, chairman; Mike McGuire, vice chairman; Steve Lehmann, secretary/treasurer; Jackie Wilcox, Jay Beakley and Jim Bridwell.

Dr. Kemp Jr. heads state dental group

Dr. William J. Kemp Jr., a Haskell native, has been elected president of the Texas Pediatric Association.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. William J. Kemp of Haskell, he practices dentistry in Amarillo.

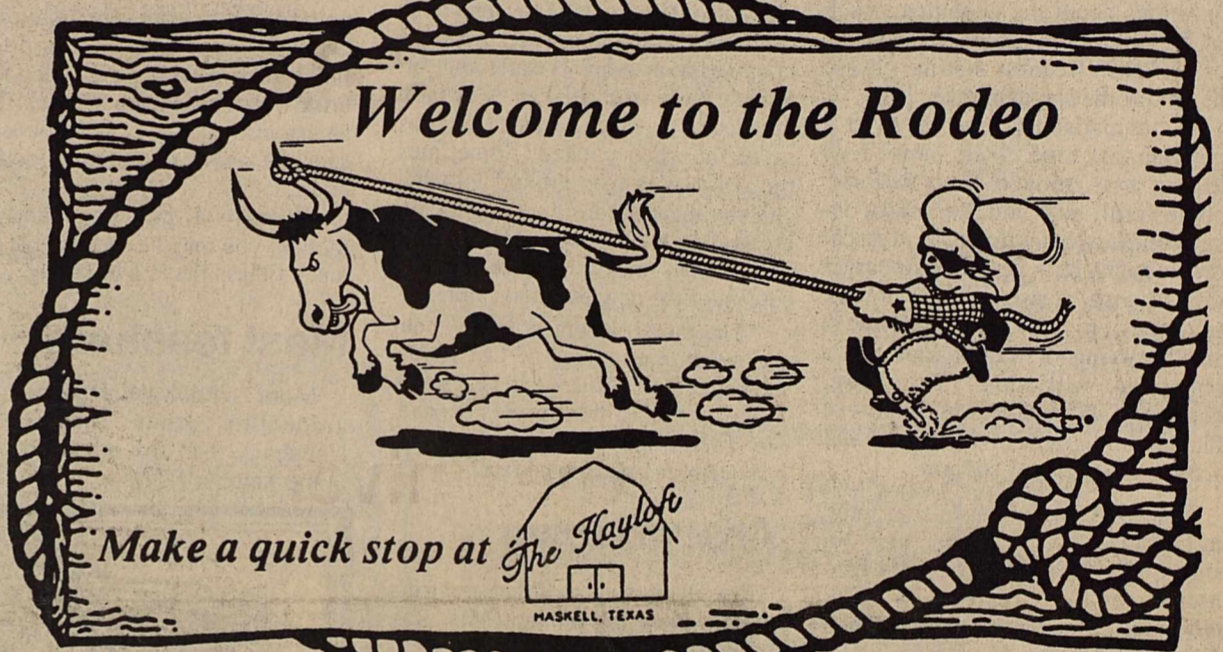

He is a 1972 graduate of Haskell High School, Texas Tech University and the University of Texas Dental School in Houston.

Kemp and his wife, Pat, have two children, William J. III and Patrick.

Band Boosters

The Haskell Band Boosters met at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Band Hall with Ann Johnston presiding. The minutes were given. The treasurer's report was made by Doris Mae Watson. Mr. Wilke gave a report on the ratings that all the bands received at various events. He also asked the club to consider buying a video system as a teaching aid. Officers were elected for the '87 fall year. These are as follows: Sue Miller, president; Muriel Nanny, vice president; Kenneth and Martha Jarred, treasurers; and Kathryn Medford, reporter. Plans for possible fund raisers were discussed for the fall year. The spring concert will be at 8 p.m. May 21 in the Civic Center.

Underwriter

Julie D. Watts, an agent with Bennie R. Jones, CLU and Associates of Abilene, has earned the Chartered Life Underwriter (CLU) diploma and professional designation from the American College, Bryn Mawr, Pa. The CLU designation is awarded to persons who complete a 10-course program of study and examinations and fulfill rigid experience and ethical requirements.

Nelson Coulter new football coach

Haskell High School has a new football coach and athletic director.

He is Nelson Coulter of Robert Lee, who has been coach and athletic director at that Class A school for the past four years.

School Board members chose him last Thursday from a field of seven finalists who were interviewed for the position vacated by the resignation of Harold Hill.

The 29-year-old Coulter is not without a local connection. His wife, Jane, is the daughter and sister of former Haskell High basketball coaches James Raughton and Jim Dan Raughton.

Coulter is coming off a 6-4 season at Robert Lee. His 1985 team was 3-7, but his 1984 team won the bi-district and regional, advancing farther in the playoffs than any team in the school's history. The 9-5 team was No. 8 in the final Harris poll, and Coulter was chosen as the West Texas Football Coach of the Year. His first team at Robert Lee in 1983 was 6-2-2.

He is a graduate of Bronte High School where he was a second-team all-state selection. He graduated cum laude from Angelo State University.

He was a teacher and assistant coach two years at Robert Lee before moving to Rankin for a couple of years with a similar assignment. He returned to Robert Lee as head coach and athletic director in 1983.

At Haskell High School, Coulter will teach math.

Leiza Morales runs in 800 at state

The Indians won't be the only Haskell team represented in the state track meet in Austin Saturday night.

Leiza Morales will carry the colors of the Haskell Maidens in the 800-meter run.

Morales, who won the district championship and was runnerup in the regional meet, clicked off a 2:25.5 in the state qualifiers' meet in Abilene Friday, finishing behind Munday's Mindy Myers who had a 2:25.3, and tying Paducah's Sheila Davis.

Morales had won the district meet with a time of 2:26.12 and was runnerup in regional with a time of 2:22.62.

Honor roll

The names of Matt Lane and Craig Hanson were omitted from the "All A" honor roll for the Haskell secondary school published last week.

Lane is a junior and Hanson is an eighth-grader.

Pony League season begins here May 22

The 1987 League baseball season gets underway here May 22 when the local junior team meets Jayton at 8 p.m. The second game will be May 26, here against Hamlin.

The junior team is for boys 13 to 15 years old. Coaches are Conrad Roewe and Larry McMillin.

Haskell also will field a senior team for boys 16 to 18 years old. The season will begin the first Monday in June. Coaching the older boys will be Mike Cook and Sergeant Jirick.

Haskell juniors will compete in a league which also includes Munday, Knox City, Jayton, Rule and Hamlin. The senior league will be comprised of Munday, Knox City, Jayton and Haskell.

Alto defending champion

Defending champion Alto is a big obstacle in the path of the Haskell Indians as they go after the Class AA track championships in Austin Saturday night.

The Alto team is paced by one of the state's finest athletes in Steve Lofton.

Lofton, who will attend Texas A&M next fall on a football scholarship, won the 100 and 200 last year and was on the 400-meter relay team that won the state. This year, he's competing in all three events, plus the long jump.

Like Haskell, Alto does not have a track.

Indians seek state title

At Abilene meet

The Haskell Indians have never won a state championship in a team sport.

There's a chance that won't be the case after Saturday night.

Coach Jimmy Lisle's Indian track team will compete in five events at the state track meet in Austin.

Representing the Indians in individual events will be Fred Shaw in the 100-meter run, Stephon Brockington in the 200 and Mark Young in the 800. Those same three, along with Johnny Castillo, make up the 1600-meter relay team. The 400-meter relay team has Shaw and Brockington, along with Derrick Billington and Joel Torres.

Young, in the 800, and both relay teams reached the state meet by winning first places in both the district and the regional meets. Shaw and Brockington were district champions and second-place finishers in the regional.

Class AA action begins at 6 p.m. in University of Texas Memorial Stadium. Haskell's first action is scheduled for 7 o'clock when the sprint relay team takes the field.

The Indians competed last Friday in a state qualifiers' invitational at Abilene which featured teams of all classes from throughout West Texas.

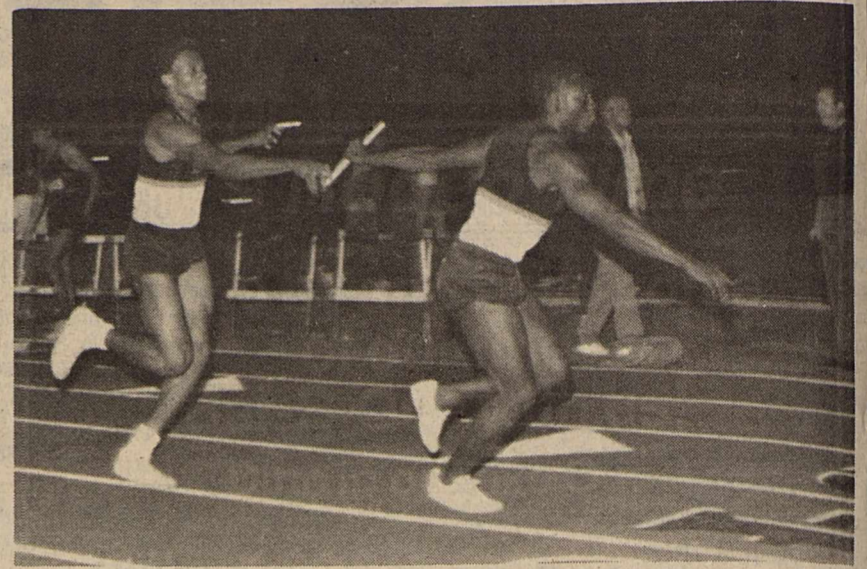

Young came in second in the 800 run with a time of 1:59.5, finishing behind Lubbock Estacado's Arthur Kinney who had a 1:57.

The Class AA Indians' 400 relay team came in a close third behind a couple of AAAA teams, Estacado and Monahans. Estacado had a 41.8 time, Monahans 42.4 and the Indians 42.5.

Brockington was fourth in the 200 with a time of 21.9. Gerry Woodberry of Lamesa was first at 21.3, Darrell Warick of Coleman was second at 21.7 and Ronald Collins of Estacado was third at 21.8.

The 1600 relay team came in fourth with a time of 3:23.8. First was Estacado with 3:16.8, second was Amarillo at 3:17 and third was Waco Robvinson at 3:20.1.

Shaw was fourth in the 100 meters in a confusing race which was actually about 110 meters.

New grits recipes bring flair

Few foods, especially those that are so basically bland, stir up as much ire and passion as grits. Yet, along with the familiar biscuit, they symbolize southern cooking. And, loving them is almost aligned with loving the South.

To many native southerners, grits are as necessary for a good breakfast as bacon and eggs. Steaming-hot grits, topped with butter, have been included in their daily diets for generations.

But visitors and regional newcomers tend to approach their first serving of grits with a certain amount of fear. That first experience is often a negative one. And the reason may be that many of these folks have never eaten "true grits"—cooked slowly over low heat and stirred every so often so they don't stick to the pan.

Curiously, grits are closely related to commel, enjoyed extensively both in the South and out of it. They're derived from the same base—dried kernels of corn, whole or ground.

The heart of the corn kernel is hominy. To separate out the hominy, corn kernels are hulled, washed and boiled. When the hominy is ground into very fine particles, it becomes commel. And, when it is ground coarsely, it produces grits.

Grits come in three forms—regular, quick cooking and instant. To the true grits lover, quick cooking and regular varieties have the most satisfying taste and texture.

While the origin of the word "grits" is not certain, it may relate to the product's texture, which is actually gritty since it is a collection of those tiny particles of ground hominy.

But while the name's beginnings are questionable, the origin of the product is fairly well nailed down. Southern historians claim grits as America's first food, which was offered by the Indians to the settlers who landed in Jamestown, Virginia, in 1607.

Those American Indians are generally credited for giving us the process for making grits. They learned to soak corn in lye water to remove the skins. And those tender inner kernels were washed and boiled to make hominy or ground into grits.

The Indians called the product they gave to the settlers "rockafomnie". That name was later shortened to hominy and was to become the mainstay of the southern diet.

Besides being delicious and filling, grits are also good for you. Like other grains, they provide vegetable protein that, when combined with a little meat or cheese, or some beans, produce a complete-protein meal.

By themselves, grits are a simple staple. But nobody eats grits plain. At the very least, butter and salt or pepper are a requirement.

But for generations, southern cooks have shown a tremendous amount of ingenuity in fixing grits, allowing them to become a major ingredient in every kind of recipe imaginable. You could say that grits are to Southern cooking what rice is to Oriental fare and pasta is to Italian chefs.

Americans now consume more than 600 million pounds of grits a year, and the challenge for many comes in thinking of new uses for this ever popular southern staple.

In answer to this need, the home economists of the Martha White Kitchen have developed three recipes for both experienced grits cooks and those seeking to add some flair to this traditional southern cooking art.

FRIED CHEESE GRITS PARTY BITES

4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cut Martha White Quick Grits
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 cup (4 oz.) grated sharp cheddar cheese
1/4 teaspoon paprika
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 cup Martha White Self-Rising Flour

Bring water and salt to boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits; cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir small amount grits mixture into egg; return all to saucepan. Add cheese, paprika and hot pepper sauce; blend well. Pour mixture into greased, shallow 2-quart casserole. Cool; cover and place in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Cut into 1-inch cubes and coat with flour. Deep fat fry until cubes are golden brown and float to the top. Drain well; best served warm. Good with sweet and sour sauce. Makes about 40 appetizers.

JALAPENO CHEESE GRITS

4 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup Martha White Quick Grits
1/2 cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
2 cups (8 oz.) grated cheddar cheese
1 roll (6 oz.) jalapeno cheese
3 eggs, beaten
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons chopped jalapeno pepper
Paprika

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 2-quart baking dish. Bring water and salt to a boil in large saucepan. Slowly stir in grits. Cook 4 to 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add butter and cheeses, stirring until all are melted. Stir in Worcestershire sauce, eggs and chopped pepper. Pour into prepared dish. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Bake about 45 minutes or until set. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

WTU plans open house at Oklaunion station

West Texas Utilities will open its new coal-fired Oklaunion Power Station to the public Saturday, with an open house from 10 a.m. till 3 p.m. All Haskell patrons are invited.

"We're inviting everyone interested in seeing this new plant to come out and take a tour," said Glen D. Churchill of Abilene, president and chief executive officer of WTU.

"We've had many requests from people who've seen the plant from a distance and we know there are many others wanting a close-up view of one of the largest electric generating units in the state," Churchill said.

Both walking and riding tours will be available during the five-hour open house period. Refreshments will be served and souvenirs will be handed out to all visitors, with special favors for children.

Plant manager Chuck Adami said plenty of parking space will be available and that members of his staff will serve as tour guides.

"We're proud of the plant and we're hoping for a large crowd on May 16," Adami said. He urged visitors to wear casual attire, including comfortable walking shoes.

The Oklaunion Power Station is the largest in WTU's system and the first to burn coal as boiler fuel. The coal comes by train from Wyoming. The plant is situated about eight miles southeast of Vernon and has become a landmark visible from all major highways in the area.

Construction began in May 1982 and the plant was completed and placed in service in December 1986.

WTU, a member of the Central and South West system, owns 54 per cent of the plant and is the operating company. The remaining ownership is shared by Public Service Co. of Oklahoma and Central Power and Light Co., both CSW companies; Oklahoma Municipal Power Authority and the City of Brownsville.

FmHA election upcoming

Eligible farmers in the Haskell-Throckmorton area are invited to become nominees for the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) Area Committee, county supervisor Larry P. McDaniel announced this week.

As a result of the 1985 Farm Bill, one of the three members of FmHA area committees must be elected. The third member is designated by FmHA. The Haskell-Throckmorton area committee assists the FmHA county office in determining the eligibility of applicants for certain types of FmHA loans.

Generally, farmers who are residents of the county but not FmHA borrowers are eligible to become nominees for the FmHA area committee.

"Farmers in this county, serving on the committee, play an important role by assisting in the process of loan applications and reviews," said McDaniel.

All terms of service will be for three years on a staggered basis.

Nominating petitions must be returned to the Haskell County office by June 10.

Additional information and application forms for those who are interested in becoming nominees for the area committee are available at the FmHA county office, 316 N. 1st St., or by calling 864-2615.

Thrips cause damage

By JAMES F. LESER
Extension Entomologist
Lubbock, Texas

Thrips are a serious pest of South Plains cotton fields and cause an estimated $9.4 million loss of profitability to area farmers.

These severe thrips problems are generally associated with areas where wheat is grown. Wheat acts as a source of thrips, which leave maturing wheat, searching for suitable hosts to infest. If cotton plants are emerging at this time, they will be infested. If a later planting date results in plant emergence after thrips have left wheat, this pest will usually not be a problem.

Thrips often attack cotton plants just as they emerge. The infestation can last for more than three weeks. These early, heavy infestations not only affect earliness but also reduce yield and fiber quality dramatically.

While visible leaf crinkling is the obvious result of thrips feeding, recent extension studies indicate that while thrips are grazing on leaf buds, they are also damaging extremely small squares not visible to the unaided eye.

South Plains thrips control tests clearly demonstrate that preventative thrips management with long residual systemic insecticides, is the most profitable where thrips are historically a problem. Foliar treatments based on field scouting and thrips counts could be fairly effective. However, the vast majority of farmers and their scouts still insist on timing applications on the basis of visible damage.

Several systemic insecticides are marketed in the area, including granular in-furrow materials and planterbox seed treatments. In-furrow applications within the prescribed rate ranges usually are effective for five to six weeks after planting. The seed treatments last three weeks.

Writers to hear expert

Dr. Chris Willerton will conduct the fourth seminar in the Abilene Writers Guild spring series. His topic, "Writing Poetry," will be presented Saturday, from 9 a.m. until noon, at the Guild building, 860 Hickory in Abilene.

He is director of the Honors Program and is professor of English at Abilene Christian University.

The study will lead participants through the elements and terminology of poetry. Traditional and modern poetry will be analyzed. This session is intended to enhance the student's ability to understand and appreciate poetry.

All area poets, would-be poets and dreamers are invited to attend the seminar. Fee is $15, and registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. For further information call Juanita Zachry, 673-2356.

Weinert News

By Myrtle Phemister
Mothers everywhere were honored May 10th, with gifts, cards, special dinners and reunions, and approximately seventy mothers in Weinert received special attention. Space and information limits our news.

Alton and Mildred Sanders were in Dennis, Texas the past weekend for the discipleship Revival, where Alton was in charge of the singing. Virginia and Bob Melvin of Lubbock were the associates at the revival.

Billy Collins of Grapevine, Texas, nephew of Susie Brockett was in town for a few days visit in the Brockett home. Billy has been very ill, and this was his first visit to our area in a long while.

Pete and Inio Brockett entertained their daughter, Kim Taylor with children Reneau, Justin and Jimmy of Albuquerque, New Mexico. There is always time for fishing at Miller Creek Lake, as Pete works there.

Marvin and Myrtle Phemister were in Salado, Austin and Wimberly the past weekend where they enjoyed a special time with their children, grandchildren and other relatives (which included 6 great grandchildren).

They attended the graduation exercises at Mary Hardin Baylor College in Belton on Saturday, where they were met by their daughter, Lola Williams and F.D. of Harlingen.

Terry and Beth Sanders with Kerri and David of Abilene were in Weinert for the weekend to visit his parents, Alton and Mildred Sanders.

Jerry and Doris Walker had all their family home for the weekend. Jerry took a "flying" trip to Corpus Christi with Rex and Todd Herricks to check on the crops in that area. The crops in most areas are in need of rain.

The Arts and Crafts show held in Weinert and hosted by the Pep Squad was a huge success, and such a happy occasion. The rumor is floating around that it may become an annual event. The group thanks everyone for their help in making it a great fund day!

The activity in the northeast part of our town is credited to the children of Bertie Alexander, as they prepare to celebrate their mother's 85th birthday on May 16. The party will be hosted at the Foursquare Church, 2 to 4 p.m. and everyone is invited. Let's go!

Healing power of laughter

Researchers in family relationships identify a sense of humor or laughter as an indicator of strong families. When family relations become strained or the family experiences difficult financial times, laughter is harder to generate, or may cease to exist.

Holding on to our sense of humor is serious business. Sometimes the only way to bear our burdens is to laugh and bear them anyway. Life is tough, but without laughter it is intolerable.

Recent medical studies indicate a connection between immunity and the mind. For instance, deep laughter releases substances into the body that seem to block pain. Some physiologists have found that stressful events often precede illness. Then, control over stressful events is important.

Humor is evidence of our freedom—the freedom to transform our pain, fears and anxieties into absurdities. With humor, we choose to accept the world the way it is and laugh at it instead of getting hung up on the way we know it "should" be.

Laughter is also the body's way of realizing that despite everything that has happened to us, we are not doomed. Laughter allows hope.

There are great moments of mirth in every family that conjure up scenarios of dealing with very serious problems in unconventional ways. Humor often defuses anger and heals pain.

When families come together in shared laughter, they enjoy a deep feeling of common humanity and unity. Laughing at our troubles presents us with an offer we can't refuse.

Legislative politics forges turnaround

AUSTIN Each giving a little and taking a little, the Big Four of legislative politics is forging perhaps the most dramatic turnaround in recent history.

The situation remains delicate and can still collapse as the session winds to its June 1 close. Not everyone is happy with the deal, particularly the Texas Republican Party, but many lawmakers see bluer skies.

A compromise forged by Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis and Comptroller Bob Bullock promises to dispel the clouds of crisis, indecision, confrontation, and bankruptcy which have darkened the legislative agenda for over a year.

A few days ago, conservatives and liberals were locked on a collision course to the poorhouse with the prisons, mental hospitals and public education seemingly falling down around them.

Now the plan is to broaden the sales tax base and lower the rate, increase tax revenues, save the institutions with adequate funding and give the governor new emergency budget authority.

Pressure for Tax Hike

The obligation is on the Legislature to adopt all the elements in

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

the next two weeks without short-changing any players. Many business lobbyists are working behind the scene to halt the tax reform, because it means their services will include a sales tax for the first time.

If all goes right, Hobby and Lewis will get a tax hike, Clements gets budget authority to eliminate spending he doesn't favor, and Bullock will have the pleasure of knowing that his tax reform package has brought Texas government back to some semblance of solvency.

The surprise turnaround was Clements, who had just ended his no new taxes tour and had polled House Republicans on upholding a tax veto.

The pressure to raise taxes is enormous. The House and Senate have already passed budgets requiring additional taxes, and they have only to work out the differences in conference. Meanwhile, a group of prominent Texans, mostly Democrats, urged the Legislature to increase funds for public education.

And Clements apparently found some of his House Republicans were for a tax hike, too. Not many, but maybe enough to override his tax veto. The old Clements would have vetoed the bill and used the time before a special session to solidify the one-third majority bloc he needed to hold a veto.

But time is running out on the state Treasury. The new Clements saw that if he changed his stance, he would get half-a-loaf and Texas could move on to some new problems.

Clements Blasted

Immediately, the governor was blasted by the Texas Republican Party for reversing his stand against new taxes.

His own party sent over a resolution urging him and the 56 House Republicans to stand fast against new taxes. It prompted Clements to say he may still veto the tax bill, but not before Houston Rep. Randy Pennington called his actions "disgraceful."

Quite a few House Republicans were miffed because he did not tell them first about his reversal. "Hung out to dry" was a phrase used by Garland Rep. Anita Hill.

Mason Rep. Gerald Geistweidt has become the closest to being an apologist for Clements: "We believe he's been right all along and should continue to stay that way. But if you don't start talking somewhere, we won't be any further along at the end of this five-month session than we were at the beginning."

Hobby Plan Passed

Meanwhile, the Senate passed two of three bills in Hobby's "Build Texas" economic program, labeled by some as similar to the depression-era public works program.

The Senate okayed $400 million in bonds for water and flood projects and $400 million again for local public works projects.

Open Container Bill

Clements signed the open container bill into law, making it illegal to drink alcoholic beverages while driving.

The prohibition applies only to the driver, not to passengers.

Other Highlights

- Former Secretary of State Al Haig visited the Capitol last week seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

- The governor, neutral thus far, planned to attend a Houston fundraiser for Vice President George Bush's presidential bid.

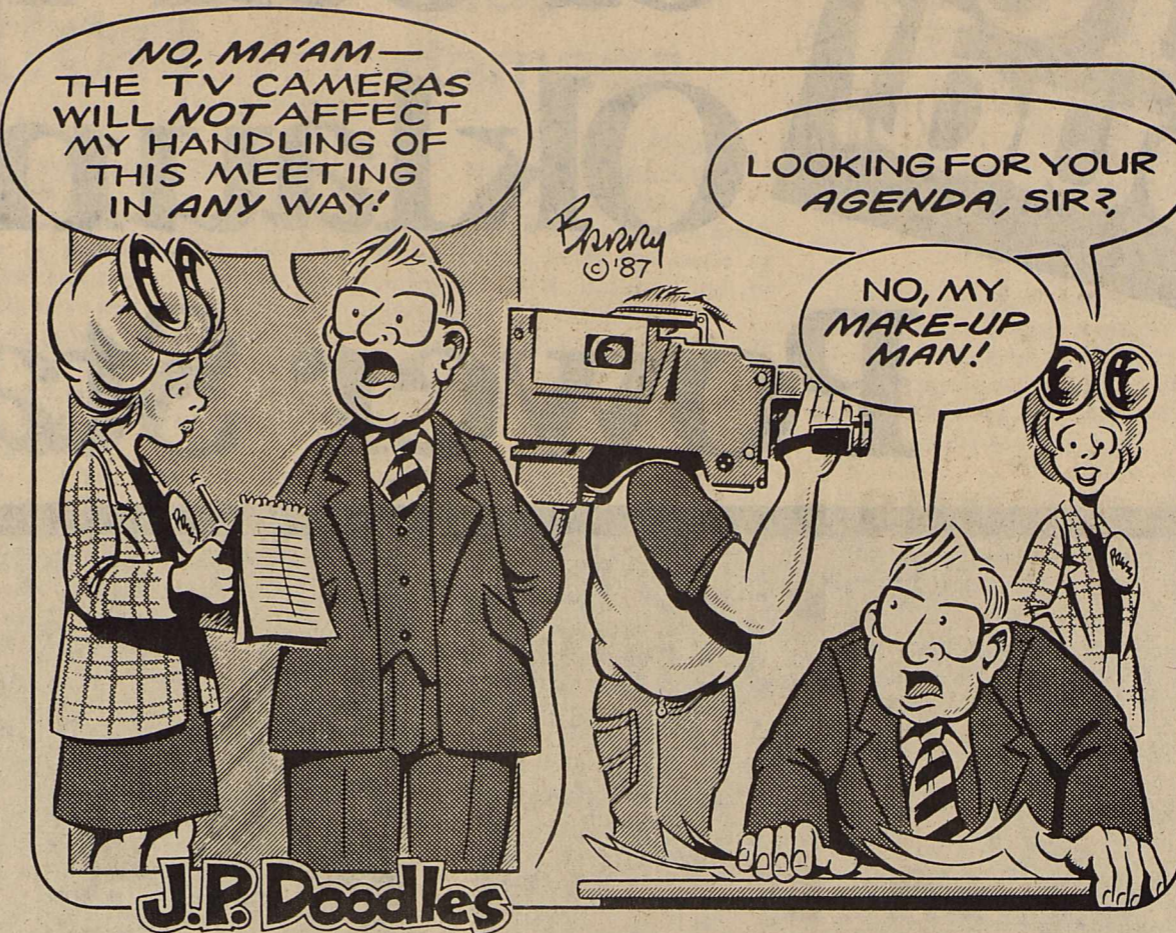

- The foresight of two legislators last summer, San Angelo Sen. Bill Sims and Sanderson Rep. Dudley Harrison, led Texas to beat federal red tape last week in raising the rural highway speed limit to 65 mph and the governor signed the proclamation.

Commodities

Food commodity distribution in Rochester will be from 9 to 11 a.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church.

Each patron should bring a large grocery sack.

In Haskell, this month's distribution is being made today (Thursday) at the Experienced Citizens Center. Rule recipients also are being serviced today.

-Letters to the Editor-

Editor:

Although it reads like an episode from a nighttime soap opera with its corporate intrigue and sudden plot twists, the Texaco-Pennzoil battle has serious implications for our state and the outcome will affect Texans for generations to come.

The heart of the current struggle between the corporations is a question of fairness. Texas law has squeezed Texaco between the proverbial rock and a hard place. The rock is court procedures that force Texaco to post a bond equal to the trial court's judgment, in this case, a whopping $11 billion plus interest. The hard place is that amount of bond money simply does not exist—the total worldwide bonding capacity is only slightly more than $1 billion. Even if Texaco could have posted such an outrageous bond, current law still would permit Pennzoil to place liens against Texaco's property, thus forcing defaults on loans and bankruptcy.

Lien statutes and rules of appellate procedure regarding bonds forced Texaco into bankruptcy. It had no choice but to protect its employees, shareholders and suppliers in the only manner possible.

No one—no matter how big or small—should be forced into that situation, just to preserve the right to appeal. It is a fundamental constitutional right to have a full day in court. Our laws should enhance—not block—our access to the appellate judicial system.

In an effort to open access to our courts and our constitutional right to appeal, I am sponsoring Senate Bill 1414. This legislation would allow trial court judges flexibility in setting bonds, with a ceiling established at $1 billion, an amount sufficient to protect the interests of alleged injured parties while being fair and reasonable to the party seeking an appeal. In addition, it would prevent the placement of liens against property during the appeals process once a bond has been established.

If either party disagrees with the trial judge's decision on the bond, it can be appealed.

Today, 39 other states and the federal courts provide such flexibility. The proposal cannot guarantee that Texaco would not have been forced into bankruptcy. However, without this bill, Texaco cannot safely emerge from bankruptcy during its appeal because as soon as it does, it will be forced to sell assets to post the $11 billion bond and will face the spectre of Pennzoil attaching liens to its property.

The situation affects not only Texaco's 13,000 Texas employees, 30,000 Texas shareholders and 23,000 Texas suppliers, it affects Texans who would be denied their full day in court because they could not post an unreasonable bond.

Opponents like a brand SB 1414 as "special interest" legislation for Texaco. Quite the contrary, it is "special interest" legislation for TEXANS.

Tax returns may be corrected

Taxpayers can correct mistakes or omissions they made on tax returns they have already filed by completing and mailing a Form 1040X to Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS says taxpayers can receive copies of Form 1040X by calling the toll-free number 1-800-424-FORM.

"Technospeak," says the Chicago Tribune, "is the modern tongue that turns perfect sense into technical gobbledygook. If you don't understand it, that's the point."

But with a bit of practice, maybe you can learn to untangle the knotty sentences uttered by today's technocrats and bureaucrats.

The Tribune lists 15 common sayings, all translated into technospeak. How many can you decipher? Just to give you a head start, the answer to No. 1 is "Birds of a feather flock together." Other answers are at the end of this column.

1. Avian species of identical plumage congregate.
2. Freedom from incrustations of noxious substances is contiguous with conformity to divine prescription.
3. Pulchritude possesses solely cutaneous profundity.
4. A superannuated canine is immune to indoctrination in innovative maneuvers.
5. Ululate not over precipitated lactal secretion.
6. All that coruscates with replendence will not assay auriferous.
7. The existence of visible vapors from ignited carbonaceous materials confirms conflagration.
8. Mendicants are interdicted from elective reciprocity.
9. Probity gratifies reflexively.
10. Male cadavers are unyielding of testimony.
11. Inhabitants of vitreous edifices ill-advisedly catapult petrous projectiles.
12. Ergonomia exclusive of diversion renders John a hebetudinous progeny.
13. He who cachinnates ultimately, cachinnates optimally.
14. Abstinence from speculative undertaking precludes attainment.
15. Missiles of ligneous and of nonmetallic mineral consistency have the potential to fracture my osseous structure, but malicious appellations are eternally innocuous.

ANSWERS:

1. Birds of a feather flock together.
2. Cleanliness is next to godliness.
3. Beauty is only skin deep.
4. You can't teach an old dog new tricks.
5. Don't cry over spilled milk.
6. All that glitters is not gold.
7. Where there's smoke there's fire.
8. Beggars can't be choosers.
9. Virtue is its own reward.
10. Dead men tell no tales.
11. People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.
12. All work and no play makes John a dull boy.
13. He who laughs last laughs best.
14. Nothing ventured nothing gained.
14. Sticks and stones will break my bones, but names will never harm me.

Older people need to watch their diets

If you're one of those older folks who thinks teenagers eat too much fast food and sweets, take a closer look at your own diet.

Many in the over-65 age group also have some bad eating habits which can affect their nutrition and health. Answer these questions and see if you fit in this group.

Are you salting your food more and more? We often get into the habit of heavily salting food to compensate for the loss of taste with age. This can worsen any pre-existing hypertension. It's better to learn how to use more herbs and spices for flavor.

Have you started eating mostly soft foods? When you restrict your diets to easy-to-chew foods, it becomes difficult to get adequate amounts of needed nutrients. Typically, poor teeth and gums makes the soft foods seem more attractive. But good dental care and well-fitting dentures may help the older you enjoy crisp foods again.

The softer, high-carbohydrate foods preferred by many elderly can also lead to an increased incidence of constipation since they contain little fiber. Adding cooked whole grain cereals to a "soft" diet will greatly increase its fiber content and help this problem.

Are you skipping meals because you're depressed, it seems like too much trouble to cook, or you're just not hungry? It doesn't have to be this way! Try trading off with a friend to cook and eat at each other's homes.

Maybe your church or a senior citizens' center has a noon meal where you can eat in pleasant company. Or you may qualify for a "Meals-On-Wheels" program, where a friendly visitor will bring you a meal each day.

Keeping up good eating habits is a part of keeping up your health.

If you use NCR forms, we have Liquid Paper's "Just for Forms". Corrects those errors easily. Haskell Free Press.

Overuse of salt common

Most American use 10 to 15 times more salt than they need.

Salt's primary ingredient is sodium, and excess sodium contributes to high blood pressure in many people. This condition can lead to heart disease and stroke in some people.

Many more foods contain high levels of "hidden" sodium--disguised in complex ingredient list labeling or not listed at all. For these reasons the American Heart Association encourages people to become sodium smart and learn ways to detect and reduce sodium intake in their diets.

Just like you acquired a taste for salt over time, it's also possible to learn to enjoy less salty food.

"The easiest way to cut down on salt is to sample your foods first without added table salt," suggests Addison A. Taylor, MD, president of the Texas affiliate of the American Heart Association. "This practice is not only good etiquette, it's also good sense. You may decide you prefer certain foods without added salt."

"The next step is to go a little easier on salting those foods you prefer with salt," advises Taylor. "Your tastebuds will quickly learn to adjust to less salt on food."

"Reducing added salt in cooking and preparing foods is an essential way to cut your salt intake too," says Taylor. "Be a creative cook by using spices, seasonings and juices during cooking. These ingredients can become regular condiments at your table too. They're also more colorful at the table than salt."

Olney rodeo queen contest now open

Haskell girls are invited to enter the queen contest during the annual Olney Rodeo May 28-29.

As part of the contest competition, girls will compete in a style show during a luncheon.

There will be three age divisions for the queen contest.

More information is available by calling Belinda Cooper (564-5151).

Windfalls

If you get a federal income tax refund check and don't know why--don't cash it. Instead, the Internal Revenue Service says that you should contact your local IRS office to determine if you are entitled to it. Interest or penalties may be charged if taxpayers do not return a check issued in error.

—Sagerton—

Fred Kupatt of Sagerton was among those honored at the annual Haskell Soil and Water Conservation district banquet on April 30, 1987. The event was held in the Haskell National Bank Community room in Haskell and was attended by more than 100 area people.

Fred was selected as the outstanding conservation farmer for 1987 by the Haskell Soil and Water Conservation District. Alvin Ulmer of Sagerton a member of the board of directors for the conservation district presented the award to Fred. Fred has farmed since 1946 except for the time spent in service during World War II and the Korean War and has always practiced good soil and water conservation. He had the honor of receiving this award from California Creek Soil and Water Conservation District in 1972.

Accompanying Fred to the banquet were his wife Billie, his son Kraig, who farms with him and his wife Leslie a teacher in Aspermont school. His daughter Kris who teaches school in Reagan County Middle School was unable to attend.

Mrs. Alvin Ulmer of Sagerton also attended the banquet.

Kris Kupatt of Big Lake was home this past weekend visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kupat and her brother Kraig and his wife Leslie Kupatt.
