Methodist Church Notes

Last Sunday was a high day at the Methodist Church. The Sunday School was well attended and the Music, class work and order was indeed excellent. We are so well pleased with the outlook for the Sunday School. Sunday morning the preacher preached from Matt. 5: 13, 14 and at evening from Acts 1: 7, 8, and each service was well attended. Last Wednesday evening we had a great prayer-meeting. God will greatly enrich the experience of grace of any Christian who will devote an hour in midweek for song service scripture reading and prayer. May our prayermeetings grow in interest and power. We meet each Wednesday evening at 7:15, bring your Bible, come with us and we will do you good.

S. C. Dunn.

Germans and Austrians Falling Back All Along Line—Battle in France Goes on—Japs Take Tsing Tau—Craddock's Fleet Annihilated.

Summary of News to Date.

Beyond the fact that the allied French, British and Belgian forces are taking the offensive, little has been made public regarding the operations in Belgium and Northern France.

In the west, southwest of Ypres, over a thousand Frenchmen and four guns have been captured, according to the Germans, who declare also that attacks by the French west of Yvonand and Chavonne have been repulsed with severe losses.

In the eastern field of war, according to all official reports, the Russians have made decided progress against the Germans and Austrians and Russian cavalry has penetrated German territory.

A newspaper dispatch estimates that about 3,000,000 Austrian and German troops are on the line from Cracow, in Galicia, to Thorn, in East Prussia.

Earl Kitchener, the British secretary of war, has telegraphed congratulations to Grand Duke Nicholas on the action of the Russian arms against the Germans and Austrians.

A cruiser of the Breslau class, formerly owned by Germany and now attached to the Turkish navy, has been captured by the Russians.

Vienna, however, declares there is no fighting in either Galicia or Poland and says the movements of the Austrians that are taking place are in accordance with prearranged plans.

The Germans report that they have defeated three divisions of Russian cavalry which crossed the Warthe above Kelo and driven the Russians back to the other side.

"There has been no encounter elsewhere," the report adds.

The Turkish troops are in touch with the enemy along the entire front, Constantinople says, but no details are given of any fighting on land.

In the extreme western zone, south and east of Ypres, hard fighting continues, but with neither side having a distinct advantage.

"An engagement ensued immediately. All the ships opened a brisk cannonade with all their artillery.

The presentation ceremony was witnessed by thousands of visitors from all parts of the state, and even sailors who have seen years of service unconsciously nodded, and now and then broke out in loud applause as the Rev. Father J. M. Kirwin, speaking for the Lone Star State, recounted in sweeping phrases the deeds of Texas' heroes.

A newspaper dispatch says Germany will move 150,000 fresh troops into Belgium next Sunday.

Tsing Tau Fortress Surrenders. Tokio.—It is officially announced that the German fortress of Tsing Tau has surrendered to the Japanese and British forces.

The fall of Tsing Tau ends the most picturesque of the minor phases of the great world war now raging. On two continents and in many of the islands of the seas where colonies of the warring nations were planted, combats of more or less interest have taken place.

Aguascalientes, Mex.—All factions are apparently turning to Villa as the only one who can restore order out of the chaos which the three years' war has wrought.

Villa, who probably could have been named president by the peace conference if he had wished it, insists that he does not want the office, and that Gutierrez will have his support.

Just now Villa is busy with train movements and the mobilization of his reserves for any campaign that may become possible south toward the City of Mexico.

Brownsville, Tex.—General Villa two days ago wired General Venustiano Carranza proposing that in order to settle the question of peace in Mexico that both he and Carranza be executed.

General Carranza did not answer the proposal, according to A. Dittman, a motion picture photographer, who has just returned from the Aguascalientes convention.

Dittman denied that the convention was "shot up" at any time during the proceedings, but did state that there were numerous times when every officer had his hand on his pistol ready to draw.

THE KERRVILLE ADVANCE

Published Every Thursday at Kerrville, Texas, by T. A. Buckner.

SUBSCRIPTION $1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE

Entered in the U. S. Mails as second class matter at Kerrville, Texas, on Oct. 17, 1912, according to act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

Four New Ones

At the election held Nov. 3 four more States voted for Statewide prohibition—Arizona, Colorado, Oregon and Washington, making now 13 prohibition States, and nearly all the other states have local option laws. Ohio and California voted against Statewide prohibition but have stringent local option laws. When Congress submits a constitutional amendment for National prohibition it will not be but a few years before three-fourths of the States, the requisite number, will ratify it, then the American air and soil will be free from the poison and demoralization of the liquor traffic.

The following are Prohibition States:

1. Arizona.
2. Arkansas.
3. Colorado.
4. Georgia.
5. Kansas.
6. Maine.
7. Mississippi.
8. North Carolina.
9. North Dakota.
10. Oregon.
11. Tennessee.
12. Washington.
13. West Virginia.

And Virginia, too, has already voted dry and next year will be added to the grand column.

Ten States have woman suffrage and 22 States have National woman suffrage. At the late election Nevada and Montana were added to this grand column.

"One of the most deadly influences of cigarette smoking," says Orison S. Marden, "is the gradual killing of the power of decision. The victim begins to vacillate, to waver, to ask everybody's advice. He cannot make up his mind about anything. He loses the power to say no, for the cigarette has stolen his courage." And listen to this remarkable statement from Marion Lawrence: "The cigarette habit as we now have it in America, is without question, undermining the health and character and blighting the business prospects of more boys than any other one thing. No boy is safe that uses cigarettes."

There is a peace movement inaugurated by the American Peace Society, of which our Congressman Slayden is a member, which is aided by influential statesmen of all the neutral nations. It is a great movement for a greater civilization, and it is hoped it will soon be crowned with success.

At the late election the Republicans gained 61 Congressmen and the Progressives lost 10. It looks like Col. Roosevelt's Progressive party is played out. The Democrats still have a majority in the national Senate and House which vindicates President Wilson's administration.

BENEDICT XV to WORK a REVOLUTION at the VATICAN

CROWNING OF POPE BENEDICT XV

DELLA CHIESA was almost exiled from Rome to be the archbishop of Bologna because he was the disciple of Rampolla. His elevation to the cardinalate was delayed until last spring, also because it was thought this honoring of Della Chiesa would be something gained by the Rampolla faction at the Vatican. Throughout, Della Chiesa has been known as identified with Rampolla in contrast to the policies of Pius X and Merry del Val.

And now Della Chiesa is Pope Benedict XV. Truly it is the return of Rampolla in the spirit if not in the flesh.

In a thousand ways, some little and some big, a revolution will be wrought at the Vatican. Just to mention a minor matter—Pius X could converse in no modern tongue save Italian. Foreigners had to talk through an interpreter on the rare occasions when they were received by his holiness. Besides Italian, Benedict XV speaks fluently English, French, Spanish and understands German. Like Leo XIII, he will make a practice of addressing every visitor in his native language.

If, on leaving Bologna, Benedict XV failed to buy a return ticket to his archiepiscopal see as Pius X did when in 1903 he left Venice to attend the conclave from which he emerged pontiff, yet Cardinal Della Chiesa little expected to sit a few days afterward on the throne of Peter. A faithful disciple of Rampolla, and, as such, little liked by the state chancellery set of cardinals, and a cardinal of only a few months' standing, the archbishop knew that he had against him the supporters of Pius X's new religious and political policies, the secretary of state with his powerful friends and, perhaps, the votes and the influence of all German and Austrian cardinals.

It was perhaps due to these many obstacles in his way that the clergy and the civil authorities of the diocese of Bologna failed to escort the archbishop to the railroad station and wish him all success as is the custom.

What happened within the frescoed walls of the Sistine chapel will not be known for some time to come. One day, when Benedict XV will consider the time ripe, the necessary permission will be given and a new Cardinal Mathieu will publish his diary of the conclave, giving the details of the religious and diplomatic struggle that led the sacred college to vote for Cardinal Della Chiesa. Giacomo Della Chiesa was born in Genoa on November 21, 1854, and belongs to one of the oldest families of the Riviera. On his mother's side his family has already given to the church another pope, Cosimo Migliorati, who was Innocent VII (1404-1406), while on his father's, the new pope is connected with nearly thirty aristocratic families of northern Italy, among whom are some of the most prominent society leaders of the capital, like Marquis Durazzo, Prince Centurione and Count Saasli.

Of Benedict XV's boyhood days very little is known. His sister-in-law relates that he was a quiet, obedient lad who studied and seldom indulged in his companions' pastimes. One day, when only twelve, the young marquis approached his father and told him pointblank that he wanted to become a priest. His father thought it over for a minute and then said: "Very well, but first get your diploma and then renew your request."

For eight years not a word more was said on the subject. The young man attended the school at Genoa, always distinguishing himself and later on entered the law faculty of the local university. His early inclination had been wholly forgotten by all when one day the young man returned home and laying on his father's desk the parchment stating that he was a full-fledged doctor of law, said: "Now, will you give me your consent to become a priest?"

The old marquis was thunderstruck. There stood before him the same slim figure of eight years previous, whose steady gaze betrayed a strong determination. The marquis surveyed him carefully and then said: "Of course, if you still think so."

That settled it. A few months later the young man entered the Capranica college in Rome, where he took his minor orders, and later on the Nobles' academy, where he graduated as D. D. It was while he was teaching that the then Cardinal Rampolla put his eyes on him. In 1885, when the Caroline islands questions came up and Rampolla was sent to Spain as special envoy, Della Chiesa was given him as his secretary and highly distinguished himself. The happy solution in 1887 of the Caroline islands question by Leo XIII opened to Rampolla the gate of the Vatican state chancellery and Monsignor Della Chiesa went with him, beginning at the bottom of the ladder. A few years later, however, he succeeded Monsignor Tripepi, who was appointed cardinal, as Rampolla's substitute, and this gave him the opportunity of acquiring under great masters, Leo XIII and Cardinal Rampolla, the wide diplomatic experience which is now his chief asset.

The many years spent at the state chancellery were the happiest of Benedict XV's life in Rome as a prelate. He resided with his mother, to whom he was deeply devoted, in Piazza S. Eustachio, in an apartment that the marchioness had furnished for him and which was the meeting place of Catholic artists and literati. Every evening the young diplomat found himself surrounded by a number of devoted friends, who were never tired of listening to his brilliant conversation, and for whom he always had a good Havana and a delicious cup of mocha. Politics was severely banished from the conversations. One evening to a diplomat who wanted his opinion on some burning question, the young minister said: "My friend, why do you want to ruin your digestion and my appetite?"

On another occasion, having been asked whether the affairs of the church were proceeding smoothly, he smilingly replied: "No, they limp some, like me."

With Leo XIII's death and Rampolla's failure to be elected pope Monsignor Della Chiesa's happy days at the state chancellery came to an end. Although he still retained his position as Cardinal del Val's substitute, yet his influence was gone and he was gradually put aside. The new elements, composed of trusted friends of the secretary of state, were hostile to him chiefly for the fact that he retained for his superior a devotion only equal to that for his mother. The new secretary of state knew that if Rampolla was gone Della Chiesa represented in the state chancellery Rampolla's tradition. Yet they did not dare remove him. His services, his advice, were still regarded as precious and besides a man of Della Chiesa's intellectual caliber could not be appointed to a minor position.

The opportunity of removing Della Chiesa came in 1908 when, following the death of Cardinal Svampa, the archiepiscopal see of Bologna became vacant. In order to prevent criticism of all sorts Pius X decided to consecrate the new archbishop personally, but everybody understood that the idea was to send away from Rome one of Rampolla's devoted friends.

While archbishop of Bologna Benedict XV gained the reputation of being a strict disciplinarian, a hard worker and a man of well-defined ideas. His activity was prodigious; though he invariably sat up at his desk till long after midnight he was at work again in the morning at five. On one occasion, though seriously ill, he rose from his sickbed to perform a pastoral visit to a little mountain village, not wishing to disappoint the inhabitants.

POPE BENEDICT XV

The new archbishop first went to Bologna in 1908. He immediately adopted energetic measures to exact the fullest observance of the strictest discipline from his rather free and easy-going clergy, and when they protested, saying: "In the past things were managed differently," the new archbishop would reply: "Yes, but let the past alone; we have the present to deal with now."

Though far from rich, the new pope was famous for his enlightened and generous charity. It is calculated that during the eight years he was in Bologna he spent some 15,000 francs a year of his own private income and none who sought help at his antechamber ever went away dissatisfied.

The see of Bologna has always been occupied by a cardinal. This, although not a right, was a tradition which had invariably been respected and the Bolognese expected their archbishop to receive the purple shortly after his appointment. But time passed and no intimation came from the Vatican. More than once petitions were sent to the holy father, but they were, it is said, always thwarted by the secretary of state, who thought that the purple conferred upon Monsignor Della Chiesa would be taken to mean recognition of Rampolla's services as secretary of state.

This systematic opposition lasted for several years, till the death of Rampolla put an end to it. In fact the Bologna archbishop was created a cardinal in the consistory of May last.

Benedict XV, although of noble lineage, is comparatively poor, and when the news reached him that he was to receive the red hat he was seriously embarrassed to meet the expenses. A committee of Bologna nobles was organized to present the new cardinal with some sort of souvenir and a large sum of money was collected. After a long consultation it was decided to present him with a motor car. Five thousand francs remained and the opinion of the cardinal was asked as to how it should be employed.

"Give it to me," said the cardinal promptly, "for I have been obliged to run into debt, owing to my nomination."

His cardinal's robes were presented to him by the Marchioness Carega of Genoa, who is one of his relatives. As a rigid moralist Monsignor Della Chiesa entertained a special dislike for dances of doubtful taste, more especially for the tango. He was the first bishop to condemn the tango in Italy and his pastoral letter warning the Bolognese not to indulge in the new dances preceded only a few days that issued by the vicar of Rome. Naturally he made many victims among the dancing masters of Bologna, and when one of these appealed to him in order to explain to him what the dance consisted of the archbishop replied: "Never. I will rather give you two thousand francs."

And pushing a roll of banknotes in the astonished professor's hands he added, with a show of mighty severity: "Come for more when you need it."

Benedict XV is not only versed in theology and common law, but possesses sound and vast knowledge of ancient and modern literature and is a confirmed admirer of D'Aunanzio.

Nor does he disdain a certain form of physical exercise. He loves tennis and during the summer when he repaired for a short rest to the family castle at Pegli, near Genoa, he played tennis for several hours every day with his many nieces and nephews.

Although a hard worker, the new pontiff is a poor eater and likes plain and simple foods. It is related that on the eve of his periodical visit to the many parishes of his vast archdiocese he used to send a circular letter to the priests warning them against going to too much trouble on account of his visit. In one instance the parish priest thought that the bishop sent this circular in order to avoid him embarrassment and prepared an elaborate dinner. After the second course had been consumed the archbishop, seeing that a third was coming, asked the priest whether there were any poor in his parish. The priest, expecting a donation, said: "Oh, yes; they are plentiful."

Amused and sorry the archbishop replied: "Well, one would not think so, judging by the quantity of viands you have prepared. Give them to the poor."

SUCH A FOOLISHMENT. "Goose step!" yelled the German officer. "Can't do it," answered a private, saluting. "Why not?" exploded the astonished captain. "We're wearing duck pants," cried the soldier.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 15

JESUS AND PETER.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:27-31, 33, 54, 66-72. GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.—I Cor. 10:12.

The record of Peter's failure is a sad story. Mark, who received his Gospel from Peter, gives it in clear outline. This suggests that Peter did not spare himself.

1. After Passover Feast, vv. 27-31. On the way to Olivet Jesus warns the disciples that all would be "offended" (caused to stumble) because of what was about to occur. Not one escaped, Matt. 26:56, Zech. 13:7. Peter, assured in his own mind, denies that this should be true of him so confident was he of himself and of his devotion. Over against this warning Jesus sounds the note of his resurrection, and it was chiefly in their inability to catch, or comprehend this note, that they stumbled. Particularly is this true of Peter. That Jesus could found a church on the vulgar tragedy of a criminal's death was beyond the range of his understanding. This self-confidence was the beginning of his fall, Prov. 16:18. It is pride like this, which men have in their own strength, that is the chief reason why they are not saved. If they are able to care for themselves, why do they need the help of another?

Peter's Denials. Peter trusted his own heart. A man is a fool who will trust such a deceitful member, Jer. 17:9. Prov. 28:26. Peter's loud profession is answered by a definite prophecy of his utter failure, v. 30. "Before the cock shall crow twice, thou shalt deny me thrice." Again Peter contradicts the Lord, "I will not deny thee." Peter's later denial of the person of Jesus in the judgment hall is prefaced by a denial of his master's assertions on the way thither. He had to learn wisdom and humility in the bitter school of experience. Peter is quite like us all, but he did learn and profited thereby (1 Peter 5:5), which cannot be said of all of us.

2. Following After Off, vv. 53, 54. Peter "followed afar" into the court of the high priest's palace. We have suggested (Lesson of Nov. 13) that zeal and affection prompted Peter, yet he was expressly forbidden and forewarned John 13:36-38. Some one has said that the development of Peter's weakness began in the garden when he ceased to pray. That courtyard and its brazer of coals was a dangerous place for any disciple of the Lord. The servants and soldiers of the priests against Christ were congregated about that spot. It is never safe to warn oneself at the enemies' fire though we see it constantly being done, Matt. 4:13; Ps. 111.

3. "I Know Not This Man," vv. 66-72. While at the fire, a scolding maid looking at Peter said, "Thou also wast with the Nazarene, even Jesus." Immediately and without any seeming hesitancy Peter denied, and declared his ignorance both of the man and of understanding what she said. Peter did not sympathize with what was being done to Jesus, but at heart he was not brave enough to separate himself from the enemies of Jesus thereby to draw upon himself some sort of censure or condemnation. Thus conforming to the world about him made it easy for Peter to utter his first note of denial. Having done so he passed on into the porch and heard the first crowing of the cock. The apparent contradiction between Mark and the other writers over the question of the number of denials seems to be solved by John 18:25, where reference is made to several who spoke at the same time. Doubtless the words of the first maid are reinforced by those of another on the second occasion; they both brought an accusation against him.

Speech Betrayed Peter. This second maid addressing the onlooking spectators said, "This is one of them," and again Peter denies the accusation. He had escaped one preacher and perhaps more dangerous one. To deny a fresh seemed to be the only way of escape, James 4:4; 1 Cor. 15:32 R. V. A few words of a serving maid filled Peter with dismay but a second denial did not deliver him from his predicament. After a little more standing with him declared he must be one of the followers of Jesus, for his speech betrayed him to be a Galilean. Then Peter touched the bottom, for he accompanied his denial with curses.

From his high and exalted state of mind, his high hopes as to Jesus, he sees himself a traitor and Jesus about to be crushed by the hand of man. Peter was passionately devoted to Jesus and had felt that he could go with him to the limit. Once before at Casarea, Phillip Peter had been warned. He had been mystified by what Jesus said about the cross and had protested. He had high and noble aspirations, but they carried him beyond the limits of his permission to dance and defeat.

There is always the gravest danger in ambition that is not controlled.

Near Red Cross hospital of 200 beds near Torquay, established by American women, is said to be the best arranged war hospital in England, according to Sir Frederick Treves, the distinguished surgeon. The organization, which has at its head wealthy Americans like Mrs. John Astor, Lady West and others, has appropriated $25,000 for medical supplies, and is ample to maintain another year, it is said.

A Fine Sentiment. Maude Marie was a sentimental of twenty summers, who seemed to care for the world with a gentle sigh. Lutes the Kansas City Star. Henry, who thought her sweetness was almost cruelly practical, evening they were leisurely ram along the country road when Henry noticed that Maude Marie thoughts seemed afar off. "You look like somnambulist," remarked the young man. "Are your thoughts?" "I was thinking of the night, dear," tenderly replied the fair. "Isn't it sublime? Isn't it glorious! Isn't it the most wonderful night ever saw?" "Yes," was the startling reply of the practical John. "It is just that of a night to shoot cats."
