Entertainment by the Grades

Probably the largest audience ever assembled in the city met to witness the program given by the grades at Tivy High School Auditorium Tuesday night. Every available seat was filled and every inch of standing room taken and still many came that could not crowd in and went away.

The program of songs and plays by the pupils from first grade up to the seventh were excellently rendered. "Pied Piper of Hamelin" "Boewulf, the Deliverer," and the Japanese Entertainment, as well as "Vacation Plans and How they Turned out," each with appropriate costumes, were played in a manner that bespeaks much credit for the pupils and teachers who trained

SYNOPSIS -19-

Humphrey Van Weyden, critic and dilettante, finds himself aboard the scaling schooner Ghost, Captāln Welf Larsen, bound to Japan waters. The captain makes him cabin boy "for the good of his soul," Wolf hazes a seaman and makes it the basis for a philosophic discussion with Hump. Hump's intimacy with Wolf increases. A carnival of brutality breaks loose in the ship, Wolf proves himself the master brute. Hump is made mate on the hell-ship and proves that he has learned "to stand on his own legs." Two men desert the vessel in one of the small boats. A young woman and four men, survivors of a steamer wreck, are rescued from a small boat. The deserters are sighted, but Wolf stands away and leaves they were the stands of the stands away and leaves they. survivors of a steamer wreck, are rescued from a small boat. The deserters are sighted, but Wolf stands away and leaves them to drown. Maude Brewster, the rescued girl, begins to realize her danger at the hands of Wolf. Van Weyden realizes that he loves Maude. Wolf's brother, Death Larsen, comes on the sealing grounds in the steam sealer Macedonia, "hogs" the sea, and Wolf captures several of his boats. The Ghost runs away in a fog. Wolf furnishes liquor to the prisoners. He attacks Maude. Van Weyden attempts to kill him and fails. Wolf is suddenly stricken helpless by the return of a blinding head trouble, and with all hands drunk and asleep Van Weyden and Maude escape in a small boat together. They land on Endeavor leland.

"Oh," was all she replied; but I could have sworn there was a note of disappointment in her voice.

But "my woman, my mate" kept ringing in my head for the rest of the day and for many days. Yet never did it ring more loudly than that night, as I watched her draw back the blanket of moss from the coals, blow up the fire, and cook the evening meal. It must have been latent savagery stirring in me, for the old words, so bound up with the roots of the race, to grip me and thrill me. And grip and thrill they did, till I fell asleep, murmuring them to myself over and over again.

The second hut was easier to erect, for I built it against the first, and only three walls were required. But it was work, hard work, all of it. Maud and I worked from dawn till dark, to the limit of our strength, so that when night came we crawled stiffly to bed and slept the animal-like sleep of exhaustion. And yet Maud declared that she had never felt better or stronger in her life. I knew this was true of myself, but hers was such a lily strength that I feared she would break down. Often and often, her last reserve force gone, I have seen her stretched flat on her back on the sand in the way she had of resting and recuperating. And then she would be up on her feet and toiling hard as Where she obtained this strength was the marvel to me.

"Think of the long rest this winter," was her reply to my remonstrances. "Why, we'll be clamorous for something to do."

We held a housewarming in my hut

the night it was roofed It was a pleasant evening indeed, and we voted that as a social function on Endeavor island it had not yet been eclipsed. Our minds were at ease. Not only had we resigned our asleep. Why not creep aboard the selves to the bitter winter, but we were prepared for it. The seals could depart on their mysterious journey sleep? After that-well, we would into the south at any time, now, for all we cared; and the storms held no time and space in which to prepare to terror for us. "Good or bad?" I asked.

She shook her head. "I don't know, but it is there, somewhere." She pointed in the direction of the sea and wind.

"It's a lee shore," I laughed, "and I am sure I'd rather be here than arriving, a night like this." "You are not frightened?" I asked

I cocked both barrels and leveled the shotgun at him. Had he moved, attempted to drop down the companionway, I know I would have shot him. But he stood motionless and staring as before. And as I faced him, with leveled gun shaking in my hands, I had time to note the worn and haggard appearance of his face. It was as if some strong anxiety had wasted it. The cheeks were sunken, and there was a wearied, puckered expression on the brow. And it seemed to me that his eyes were strange, not only the expression, but the physical seeming, as though the optic nerves and supporting muscles had suffered strain and slightly twisted the eyeballs.

All this I saw, and my brain now working rapidly, I thought a thousand thoughts; and yet I could not pull the triggers. I lowered the gun and stepped to the corner of the cabin, primarily to relieve the tension on my nerves and to make a new start, and incidentally to be closer. Again I raised the gun. SYNOPSIS.

On Windward Island Palidori intrigues
Mrs. Golden into an appearance of evil which causes Golden to capture and torture the Italian by branding his face and crushing his hand. Palidori floods the island and kidnaps Golden's little daughter Margery. Twelve years later in New York a Masked One rescues Margery from Legar and takes her to her father's home, whence she is recaptured. Margery's mother fruitlessly implores Golden to find their daughter. The Laughing Mask again

Importance of Letter "E."

• E99 is one of the most important letters in the alphabet. I want to call your attention to the fact that E is is never in war and always in peace. It is the beginning of existance, the commencement of ease and the end of trouble. Without it there would be no meat, no life, no heaven. It is the center of honesty, makes love perfect, and without it there would be no editors, devils, or news. It is in our Saddles that are easy on your horse; in bridle that makes your horse proud, and in blankets of which we carry the best. It is in my name and the prices I make. It is in my Sanitary Buggies, the best in the land, Buy one and end your troubles.

WHEN YOU BUY AN OIL STOVE

Be Sure You Buy a Clark Jewel

They are unexcelled in quality, design and finish. They are guaranteed to bake perfectly and be economical in the consumption of oil. When you want the best you will buy one. Let us tell you more about them.

PREPARED

We now have in a fine large shipment of 1916 CLARK JEWEL oil stoves. They have the same fine burner construction as last year. The burners are short and close to the top. The blue flame strikes the bottom of the vessel direct and gives quick results with little oil.

No More Sweating

"What are you going to in (or with) your kitchen this summer, Mary? Are you going to sweat over the old wood stove as you have done heretofore?"

"No, John, I am going down to the Fawcett Furniture Store and get myself one of those CLARK JEWEL oil stoves I hear everybody talking about. They save oil and time."

USING SULPHUR FOR CONTROL OF DISEASE

Applications for Potato Scab in Spring Are More Satisfactory Than Those in Fall.

An agricultural scientist has been carrying on investigations to obtain data regarding the effectiveness of sulphur for the control of potato scab. and his preliminary report has been received by the department of agriculture. The results thus far obtained indicate that spring applications are more satisfactory than fall applications. The benefits derived from the use of sulphur were greater when applied to land where no crop had been grown the preceding season than on land where such a crop had been

PROTECTION OF MILK SUPPLY

Dependable Means of Determining Healthy Cows Afforded by Means of Tubercular Tests.

The increasing interest in the protection of the milk supply for the consuming public is one of the encouraging features of live stock improvement, and equally so as a sanitary means of improved health among our people. It has demanded some nerve and resolution on the part of sanitary officials in all parts of the country. It has become a risky proposition now for a health officer to lend his assistance to any dishonesty in the matter of covering up a diseased or unhealthy animal.

The guarding of the milk supply for the innocent purchaser and user s certainly a noble work for anyone

LIABLE TO BECOME CHOKED

Trouble Is Likely to Occur When Animals Attempt to Devour Vegetables Without Mastication.

(By H. S. EAKINS, Colorado Station.) Of all animals on the farm, cattl are, perhaps, the most liable to be ome choked. Choking is most liable to result from attempting to swallow without mastication, carrots, turnips potatoes, apples or sugar beets. Cat tle frequently choke from chewing leather, boot beels, old rags and al sorts of unseemly things which could not be digested if swallowed, and the practice indicates a depraved appetite. In such cases, if the services of a veterinarian cannot be secured the owner will have to do the best he can done, and the things that are usually ione first should not be done at all. Attempting to pour water down the throat usually results in most of it going into the lungs, and the result is death of the animal, that might otherwise have been saved.

A case of turnip choke came under observation recently. A sharp-pointed broomstick was thrust down into the throat in an effort to push the turnip lownward, and the animal died from the injury. Less heroic efforts wil usually relieve the animal. Whatever is attempted to relieve the sufferingg animal, do not try the drench or the

SANITARY DAIRY MILK PAILS

Old-Fashioned Habit of Using Open Bucket Has Been Discarded-Quality Now Counts.

Bays glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin drinking phosphated hot water. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.
