Your Ideas, Plus Our Service Mean a Real Home

There is a difference between a house and a home. It isn't a home unless it combines correct architecture with practical arrangement that meets your personal needs. Creating homes has become a fine art. Correct home-building ideas have taken years and years to develop. The right kind of a home costs no more, frequently less, than the "hit or miss" kind.

These correct ideas and a Building Service by National experts are yours for the asking. Hundreds of modern designs are at this office ready for your attention. Step in and ask us about this Building Service.

THE COW, THE HEN AND HOG

Every farmer is asking himself this question: "What can I produce this year and in future years that I can sell quickly for cash with a margin of profit above the cost of production?" A careful study of this question reveals but one answer, namely: those products which during the past have always sold readily at good prices and for immediate cash.

Such products are butter fat and offspring from the dairy cows, eggs, poultry and hogs. In other words, the cow, the hog and the hen will put any farmer in a position to live on a cash basis, enable him to produce other farm crops without borrowing money in advance; and, above all, enable him to independently "live at home." The farmer who in the past has planted his acreage largely to grain or cotton does not face a very optimistic outlook for this year's operations, if he expects to follow his old paths. On the other hand it is encouraging to know that butter fat in the form of cream finds a ready market and for cash; that Texas is by no means over supplied with this product, and that by using the by-product, skim milk, for calves, poultry and pigs, other products can be secured that can be sold for cash thus enabling him to exist in this most critical time in the history of our farming operations.

Food and feed crops should be the basis of our 1922 farming operations, with enough live stock to convert them into readily salable products.

Think it over, Mr. Farmer. Look over your community and see for yourself who the farmers are that have "gotten by" this year, and follow that old axiom "delay is dangerous." Remember that from six to ten good dairy cows, fifty to one hundred laying hens, with two brood sows will make any farmer independent.

The outlook for Kerrville's growth is very gratifying. More houses are needed for rent.

Give your home merchants the benefit of your trade. Every dollar sent away from here is lost to the whole community.

Good roads will prove of inestimable benefit to Kerr County. Give the road builders all the assistance you can in their work of road improvement.

There is one instance mentioned wherein quick action was taken in a Dallas court for the disposition of a case—it being announced that both the defendant and his attorney were dead. There was an immediate dismissal.

The seating of Newberry as Senator from Michigan, by the narrow margin of six majority, will prove a costly gain to the Republican party. If Newberry had any correct appreciation of political decency he would not have accepted the seat voted him. There were several Republican Senators who refused to join in this outrage.

From Cleveland, Ohio, comes the telegraphic report that a mob was trying to find a negro who had attacked a white woman near that city. This is the same result wherever there are real white men with red blood. It is not confined to any geographical section, though some of the rampant Northern Representatives in Congress would have it appear the South is the only place in this country where lynching of negroes follows attacks on white women.

Postmaster General Hays has resigned, to take effect by March 4th, or sooner. He has accepted the position of head of a movie trust at a salary of $150,000.00 per year, which will net him about $100,000.00. The claim is made that Mr. Hays is to make the movies a great educational industry as well as amusement for the people. There is room for some kind of improvement and if Mr. Hays can bring it about, let him go to it. The movies have gotten in about as questionable position as did baseball, and Judge Landis was given a $147,000.00 salary to put that sport on the square and regain the confidence of the public. He has only partly succeeded, because it is not so easy to build up a confidence that required many years to secure. The movies are said to be in the control of a greedy, immoral trust, that cares nothing for the wishes of the public. The small owners of show houses are at the mercy of this movie trust and must accept whatever is sent them for exhibit. Some suspicious Democrats appear to see in Mr. Hays' acceptance of this position a chance to spread propaganda for the Republican party.

It would be well to keep your rifle, shotgun or six shooter handy, as several suspicious characters have been noticed around Kerrville the past week. We haven't been troubled with any serious robberies, but as this practice is numerous elsewhere, it is liable to be our turn next at almost any time. If you are visited by such gentry, shoot to kill.

Junction Eagle: In this issue we reprint from The Express, a most excellent and timely article by L. A. Schreiner, president of the Chas. Schreiner Bank of Kerrville. There is much in this article to command careful attention of our readers. It should be all the more interesting because it comes from a man living among us, interested in the progress and development of this particular section, and perhaps knowing its present condition and needs better than any other man.

Furniture of Distinction for the Home

Good Furnishing creates an atmosphere of harmonious taste with the provisions of actual comfort.

For lovers of Fine Furniture, who wish to practice economy, a cordial invitation is extended.

These are days of quality buying. So it's up to you to remember quality—real, genuine quality—rather than the price. Think rather of the article's lasting value than the low amount you may pay for it. Get better furniture and, in the long run, greater satisfaction and greater value.

The economy in furnishing homes lies in knowing where to look for Quality Furniture at moderate prices. This is the reason we ask you to come here, if only to look and compare. You will find all that you could desire to satisfy your ideas of comfort and individuality, and the prices much less than you would expect to pay.

Ask Your Doctor About This

The well equipped bath room is now one of the fundamental necessities of decent, healthful living.

If you have no bath room in your home, or if you are putting up with out-of-date plumbing, it means that you and your family are depriving yourselves of an economic convenience and luxury which most of your neighbors are enjoying.

Your doctor will tell you that a morning shower or a dip in the tub just before retiring will increase your vitality and with it your mental and physical efficiency.

Considering the matter from a standpoint of health, it will pay you to have a modern bath room in your home.

SEEDS OF ROMANCE

By VERRA M. HILLS

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Senator Hibbard was returning to his "old home town" to do penance. He had not been there for over fifty years, not since he had been unceremoniously dismissed from high school, and sent, by the wise parents, to work his way through a technical school.

Of all his boyhood pranks, the one which stood out clearest in his mind was the one which he had always regretted. Miss Betsy Perkins, a near neighbor of the Hibbards, had been at thirty-seven a real "old maid." But it was whispered that she still had "hopes." Then suddenly there had burst upon the town the story of Miss Betsy's "romance." She was receiving notes from an unknown admirer. Miss Betsy grew younger-looking day by day, but Mrs. Hibbard was uneasy. "I'm afraid there's something wrong about it," she told her husband anxiously.

There came a day when Miss Betsy was to meet her lover at the park. Dressed in a new gown, and with shining eyes, she had been there at the appointed hour. Of course no man appeared. Among the boys hiding behind the trees to watch her, Walter Hibbard was the hero of the hour. He had enjoyed writing those notes, but he did not enjoy seeing Miss Betsy trailing desolately homeward, with quivering mouth, and hurt eyes. He found that he had a conscience, and that it was an uncomfortable possession.

Walter Hibbard, coming back as a prosperous senator, paused to speak to the proprietor of the general store. "Is Miss Betsy Perkins still living?"

He detected signs of surprise in the man's face.

"Betsy Perkins? Sure, Small white house on the left, up the street." He rang the bell and the voices ceased. After a moment of quiet someone ran upstairs, and someone else opened the door.

She was a very pretty girl, and the senator liked pretty girls.

"May I see Miss Perkins?" he asked, smiling.

"I am Miss Perkins," replied the girl, "unless—unless you mean my sister, Elfreda."

"I was looking for a Miss Betsy Perkins, who would be quite an old lady."

"Won't you come in? You must mean Great-Aunt Betsy; but she died many years ago. Were you a friend of hers?"

They had just seated themselves when a stair creaked; there was a sound of a closing door, and the noise of an automobile in the street beyond. Betsy rose, trembling a little.

"Oh, will you excuse me a minute, please?" she said, and ran from the room.

In a few moments she stood, a tragic figure, in the doorway.

"She's gone; my sister's gone away to be married. She's only seventeen, and I was trying to persuade her not to, when—when you came. Oh, I must stop her some way."

She seemed very helpless, and the senator was used to thinking and acting quickly. Ten minutes later they were in a hired car, speeding in the direction of Allerton, a haven for elopers.

At the parsonage the woman told them that a couple had come and gone. "They went to get a ring," she said, and Betsy's sudden alarm died down again.

"We are in time," she whispered exultantly, and the senator no longer regretted having come.

They found the runaways in front of the jeweler's shop, disagreeing stormily. Elfreda was firm; if she couldn't have the kind of wedding she wanted, she would not be married. She thought she would spend a week in Allerton with Pussy Williams.

"Well, that's over—for a while," said Betsy, on her own doorstep. She held out her hand in farewell, but the senator had other plans.

"Little Miss Perkins," he said, "you can't stay here all alone. Let me take you up to the city for a few days. Mother and I miss all our young folks. And besides, for your Aunt Betsy's sake—"

Because she wanted to see much, Betsy went. In the great city station, when a cheery voice said "Gramp!" at her elbow, she would have gone on, but the senator stopped abruptly. He had forgotten that Walter, his grand-son and namesake, was to meet him. But there the young man stood, hat in hand, looking expectantly toward the girl.

Betsy Perkins was very pretty, and Walter, like his grandfather, appreciated pretty faces.

Having introduced them, the senator watched them keenly; obviously they were getting on. Well—he had never regretted marrying young; Dana, his son, had married at twenty. Walter here was twenty-three, and Miss Perkins was a charming girl. It would never do for her to experience a misfortune like her great aunt's.

"Come, Walter," he said, "we'll have a cosy evening at home tonight, and tomorrow you can show Miss Perkins the sights of the town. It takes a young man to do that."

AMERICAN WOMEN REJECT DICTATION ON SKIRT LENGTH

New York, Jan. 14.—American women have definitely rejected French dictation on the length of their skirts. Months ago Paris modistes declared that the long skirt was to be the coming vogue for women. American designers were ready to agree with them. In fact they will tell you now that the longer hem is here. Perhaps—but where?

Not on Fifth Avenue; not on Broadway; not yet on Hester Street; nor Main Street. Gopher Prairie!

At the first announcement from Paris of the long skirt, magazines of fashion were filled with illustrations of long-skirted mannequins; display windows immediately ignored the tapering calves of waxed models; cloth makers sat back in swivel chairs and chuckled at the thought. And what happened?

The flapper still flaps about in knee-length skirt and hose of gauze, clinging to them because she knows in summing up her charms that legs are not least. The athletic girl in flat heels and woolen hose strides around in the freedom of her short, flaring skirt. And the matron whose years recall the germ-laden hems of yesterday awaits for someone with a less shapely ankle to hasten the style. In these days when a long skirt might suggest a physical defect, it is a brave woman who will attempt it.

Heretofore Paris has been a bright and shining symbol of style and chic. When Paris designers said short vamps, short hair, short corsets and short skirts, we wasted no time in "outshorting" them. But when they start lengthening, in the vernacular of the doughboy, we are not so "toot sweet."

Notice to the Public

Parties are in the habit of depositing rubbish along the Harper road on Town Creek. Those guilty of this offense will be prosecuted, if the practice is not stopped. The public dumping ground is on the Cypress Creek road, and off the road a piece. If the rubbish is piled along that road instead of the regular dumping ground, that offense will also be prosecuted. TURKISH IMMORALITY THREATENS AMERICA. DECLARES DR. CRAFTS

New York, Jan. 17.—America is threatened with an invasion of Turkish immorality, Dr. Wilbur Crafts, reformer, said here Monday.

Visions of ladies in silken pantallettes doing a Turkish dance and treading with bare feet on the morals of the world were conjured up by Crafts. He foresaw a dull smoke of incense accompanying this immorality wave—poison gas for the morals of American youths.

Evidences of this Turkish immorality wave are "vampires, jazz and joy rides," Crafts said in predicting dire consequences for the Nation unless this is stopped.

"The Bible holds the lesson for us in the history of Elijah's slaughter of the priests of Baal, for their immorality," Dr. Crafts said.

"Turkish immorality then had crept over the world. "The same situation is revived today when there is in progress a systematic corruption of our people by vampires, jazz and joy rides."
