CARE OF CAMP FIRES

The current effort being made to educate the public in the importance and technique of building and disposing of camp fires will strike a sympathetic note among many citizens. It is a good work.

The automobile has transformed many a city-dweller into a camper. Governments, realizing this, have built roads that tap scenic wonderlands and virgin forests. Forest services have cleared trails for the hikers. Today, as at no time before, the natural resources for recreation are open to the people's

> HERE'S A GOOD HOT WEATHER SNAKE STORY

A. M. Kilgore, while prospecting a few days ago up the Glade in the vicinity of what is known as Brown's Spring, was suddenly freightened by an unusual rattling of what seemed to be rattlesnakes. Further investigation proved the rattling came from none other than the genuine old rattlers. They were located in a crevice of sand rock. Kilgore made a hook of heavy wire and began pulling them out and killing them. He pulled out twenty-six when a turn in the crevice made his hook no longer of service, but the rattling continued. - Farmington Times-Hustler.
